"Sounds like diamonds or pearls," he said, his wonderment increasing. "I think I'd better open it and find out."

Sure enough, the box was full of beautiful pearls, together with two diamond bracelets and three or four rings.

"The family must be getting rich," laughed Chug. But Eddie did not join in. He was thinking that maybe here was a chance to prove that he was good enough for the Inside Circle.

"Let me handle this, Chug," he said, seriously.

"Handle what?"

"The case?"

"What case?"

"This strange delivery of jewels to your house after your mother has been called out by a telephone message."

Chug looked at his friend in surprise.

"Can't my mother buy some jewelry for herself without arousing suspicion?" he demanded. "This is just as simple as a delivery of a dozen eggs, only pearls and diamonds cost more."

"Wait for the crime to happen, that's my advice," Chug said, teasingly, and with that remark, he put the box on the table and went back into the club room to start on a new story about detectives. Eddie went to the telephone and called up the Siberling Jewelry Store.

"Did you send some jewelry up to Mrs. Slater?" he asked.

"Yes, we did," came the answer. "Mr. Slater called up from his Law Office and asked us to do this especially for him. He wants Mrs. Slater to make a choice and then send the rest back."

That seemed to settle that. Yet Eddie was not satisfied. He lifted up the receiver and called the Slater Law Office. The line was busy, and before he had chance to try again, he heard the doorbell ring for the second time.

"I'll answer it," he called out to Chug. "Don't bother to come out."

This time the visitor was a total stranger, but he seemed to be familiar with everything that had happened.

"This is Slater's isn't it?" he asked, politely. "Well, I'm from Siberling's, the jewelry store. There has been a mistake made, and a box of pearls and diamonds that should have gone to Mrs. Statelers has been delivered here instead. I've come to get the box, please."

"Oh, so that's it!" exclaimed Eddie.

"Just wait a minute, and I'll get it for you."

In another minute he was handing the man the box.

"I knew there was some mystery about all this," he said. "It was the two names being so much alike."

"Yes," agreed the man. "That was it exactly. Thank you."

"Thank you," replied Eddie, politely; but he stopped being polite when the door had been closed. Chug was standing in the hall grinning and saying: "That was some case! There was not much need for a detectvie there!" But Eddie brushed by him without answering and went to the 'phone.

First he called the line that had been busy.

"Mr. Slater?"

"Yes."

"Yes, Eddie?"

"Did you order ten thousand dollars' worth of jewelry from Siberlings?"

"Goodness, no!"

"Goodbye, Mr. Slater."

Then he called the railroad station.

"When does the next train leave for New York?"

"In ten minutes."

"Thank you."

Then, much to Chug's further surprise, Eddie called Police Emergency.

"Jewel thief trying to get out of town with ten thousand dollars' worth of Siberling's jewels," he reported. "Hold him up at the New York train, which leaves in ten minutes. He is wearing a brown felt hat, gray suit with brown shoes, blue tie and a ruby stick pin. Bring him back to Slater's house for me to identify him."

When he hung up, he turned to Chug and explained:

"As I have it figured out, here is that fellow's game. He calls up your mother, and gives her a message which makes her leave the house. Then he calls up Siberling's and tells them he is your father, and asks them to deliver the jewels. He watches the house, and after the delivery man has gone away, he comes to the door and says it is all a mistake, and that he is to take the jewels back. He times all this so that he will just be able to catch the fast train for New York."

Chug gasped in astonishment.

"Eddie," he said, "you're either the best detective in the world, or the biggest ham!"

Fifteen minutes later he was admitting that Eddie was not the "biggest ham," because the man, who was really a crook wanted in three big cities for working the same scheme, was brought back in handcuffs by two policemen.

"This certainly makes you a member of the Inside Circle," Chug said, warmly. "I never saw anything quite so clever. It makes me feel like shaking hands with you."

But before he could put out his hand to congratulate Eddie, Mr. Siberling rushed into the house all excited.

"Where is the box?" he cried. "Where is the box?"

"What box?" the policeman asked.

"The box of jewels!" was the answer.

They all looked in surprise and dismay at each other, and the crook laughed, scornfully.

"My young friend made a big mistake when he gave it to me," he said. "You know, a real crook never gets caught with the goods."

"That's right," said Eddie, still undisturbed. "And a real detective never lets them get out of his hands, once they are in."

He drew the pearls and the diamonds out of his pocket and gave them to Mr. Siberling.

"The box I gave the crook was full of marbles," he explained. "I put them in while he was waiting at the door."

"Young man," said one of the policemen, "you'll be a great detective some day."

"I'll say he will," Chug joined in. "Shake, Eddie."

This time the two boys really shook hands, and while they were doing so, Eddie gave Chug a sign.

"Why, that's the secret grip of the Inside Circle!" Chug said, in surprise. "How did you find that out?"

"A real detective finds everything out," he replied, with a grin; and now, whenever there is a mystery to work on, Chug never relies on his own judgment to figure it out, but calls on Eddie to help him out. Between the two of them, there hasn't been an unsolved "case" in this town yet!—Selected.

A BAKER'S DOZEN

Ted's mother asked him to go to the bakery for a dozen rolls.

"And be sure you get a 'baker's dozen'," said Aunt Lou, who was to be a guest for tea.

Ted thought that a "baker's dozen" meant some special kind of rolls so when he arrived at the bakery he stepped up to the counter and said politely: "I would like to have a dozen rolls, the baker's dozen kind, please."

The shopkeeper, who happened to be a Mrs. Shopkeeper, laughed. But when she saw Ted's face flush with embarrassment, she explained just what was meant by a "baker's dozen."

"A baker's dozen is thirteen or sometimes fourteen," she said. "You know bread has always been a very important food to keep up the life and strength of nations. And years and years ago people knew this just as they do today. For that reason long, long ago bakers were watched and rules set for the making of bread, just as today a loaf of bread has to weigh a certain amount. So in the time of King John of England all sorts of laws were made to compel bakers to give an honest loaf and they were fined if they did not comply with the rules. But I guess people then were about the same as they are now and some bakers were not so particular about the weight of their loaves of bread, so punishment was added to the fine for dishonest bakers. But in those days there were not so many good scales and ways of weighing bread so, in order to be safe and obey the laws, bakers gave an extra loaf to each purchaser of a dozen loaves of bread. They called it the in-bread or vantage loaf. To a dozen rolls, fourteen were allowed.

"This old custom is still kept up in some parts of Scotland. Now so that you will know what a baker's dozen is after this, I am giving you an extra roll, a nice sweet one for yourself, although we usually give but twelve to a dozen."

"And I will tell you something else to help you remember about a baker's dozen," said a gentleman, who was waiting for some bread. "Long, long ago when Henry Hudson discovered the bay that bears his name, he gave to a cluster of thirteen or fourteen small islands on the east shore of the bay the name of 'Baker's Dozen'."

Ted hurried home with his rolls and a long story to tell his mother and his Aunt Lou.—Jane V. Roach in Junior World.

JUST A SHADOW

"You are just a shadow, that is all," remarked the Zephyr, passing by the old oak tree. "You do not stay in one place long and only on sunny days do you come out."

"Yes?" answered the Shadow, questioningly, yet with a pleasant voice. "So I am only a shadow, is that it?"

"Only a shadow," repeated the Zephyr, rustling up the leaves at the base of the tree. "Only a shadow, and you creep around, keeping the old oak tree between you and the nice, bright sun."

The Shadow did not reply to this, but she kept on being a shadow just the same. At length the Zephyr said, "Haven't you anything to say now? What are you thinking about?"

"Well," replied the Shadow, "I was thinking of some people who came here yesterday. They had been riding in their automobile and it was about noon. Coming to where I was, the gentleman said that he thought it would be a fine idea to eat dinner in the shadow of the old oak. It was nice and clean on the ground and there were some rocks just right to serve as table and seats. They enjoyed me, I am sure."

"Pooh!" retorted the Zephyr. "You had little to do with it. If the ground had not been nice and clean and if the rocks had not been here for seats, I can assure you that those people never would have stopped to eat their dinner here. No, my dear, do not feel conceited, for, as I said, you had little to do with their stopping here. You see, you are only a shadow."

The Zephyr passed on midst a whirl of leaves she had stirred up.

"So I am only a shadow," murmured the Shadow, as the Zephyr spun down the road. "I really thought that those people liked me. Perhaps it was the nice, clean ground and the rocks after all. But if that was so, why did Mr. Smith's dog, Rover, come and lie down in my lap after he had eaten the crusts and crumbs those people had left? I will not be discouraged yet!''

Just then a little kitten came along, chasing a leaf. Crouching in the shadow, she would dart out, grasp the little leaf, poke it this way and that, and then run back into the shadow.

''Well, well,'' whispered the Shadow to herself, ''a wee kitten likes me, anyway. What a good time she is having!''

This play lasted quite a few minutes, and then a small voice floated up.

''Kitty, kitty, kitty! Where are you? Come, kitty! O, there you are, down by the old oak! Do you think you can hide in that shadow? Come here!''

But the kitten crouched still lower, and as her little mistress approached, jumped up and whisked around the old oak and back again into the shadow. Round and round and round the two, kitten and little girl, chased each other, having a fine time together. When the little girl finally caught her kitten, she took kitty in her lap and sat down in the shadow to rest.

''O, isn't it nice and cool here!'' she exclaimed. ''I do not wonder that you came here!''

''Nice and cool, is it?'' a lady's voice said, pleasantly. ''Then do you think anyone will care if we rest here for a few minutes? We have been walking a long way and are a bit tired.''

There were two ladies. Their shoes were dusty and so were their clothes.

''Yes, dear, we have been walking for more than an hour and this is the best place we have found anywhere. What a delightful old oak and what a fine shadow it casts. If I lived here I should build me a little bench and bring a chair and enjoy this as often as I could get away from my work.''

So they sat down and talked with the little girl and her kitty for a long time. They even played together as if they, too, were small children.

''Well!'' said one at last, ''I haven't felt so young for a long time. I think it must be the influence of this old oak and its shadow! But we must be going now, as we shall have to get back home before dinner.''

''Will you come again?'' asked the little girl, shyly.

''Indeed, we shall,'' replied both of the ladies. ''This is one of the pleasure spots of vacation land.''

How grateful the Shadow felt toward them all! It was so good to have folks appreciate her.

''I do wish more would come to call on me,'' she said to herself. Life is full of happiness for me when I see folks enjoy themselves so!''

Two hours or more passed and once more the Shadow had visitors. This time two elderly people sat down, the gentleman removing his hat and fanning himself with it.

''This is some relief from those scorching roads, isn't it?'' his good wife remarked. ''My feet were getting hot and I do not know but what they might have blistered if I had walked much farther. But here in the shade it is restful and comforting.''

''Yes, it surely is,'' the gentleman nodded his head as he emphasized what he said. ''The sun was hot, too, and gave me a little headache; but I feel better, even as quickly as this. Fifteen minutes here and then a good drink at the spring on the hill and we can return to the inn feeling tiptop. These after-dinner walks are fine when one finds such a place to rest and refresh himself. When I was a boy, down on the farm, how many times have I been thankful for the shadows where I could lie down for a few minutes in haying time, to get out of the glaring sun. I always think of Theodosia Garrison's little poem, the last stanza, that goes:

'' 'This is God's hospitality,
And whoso rests beneath a tree
Hath cause to thank Him gratefully.' ''

''Only a shadow,'' murmured the Shadow again, as the elderly folks went their way. ''Well, if I can make anyone as happy as that, I am glad that I am only a shadow.''—Beatrice M. Parker.

EDUCATION

Education is the development and direction of natural powers. No school for animals would think of training a mule for the race course or a bull-dog for bird hunting. Too many schools and individuals look out into the world to find a place for life-work instead of looking into the individual for the natural gifts. It is more important to develop natural powers than to hold up ideals in the field of education. If schools would use such studies as would develop natural powers instead of giving ready-made courses in the field of human activities, students would make fewer mistakes in choosing their occupations or professions. The school, in addition to giving such studies as will develop natural powers, should endeavor to discover the special gift of the student and then encourage the student to follow that line of life service. The special gift, if any exists, will show itself in the course of growth and education. One thing is important in education, and that is not to lead students into lines for which they have no talent.

The schools are inclined to hold up ideals before students and encourage them to aspire to and prepare for high positions. The majority of the human race must occupy humble positions and do common work. One reason for this mistake is the fact that so many teachers have had little experience in the real struggle of life. The promise of position and larger pay persuades young people to aspire to and strive after high positions and larger salaries. Education is not a matter of position and salary, but a matter of finding and filling the position for which the individual was born. The lowest position may be as important as the highest position. The track man is as essential to the safe and successful operation of a railroad as the conductor of the passenger train. Men and women who have false education look down upon manual work as menial service, and they aspire to something higher. Bottom work is as necessary and important as top work. A good housekeeper deserves as much respect as a member of Congress. In fact, she is the mother of the nation and the feeder of its inhabitants. The bakeries and laundries of the great cities learned their lesson from women in the kitchen and at the washtub. There is no low place in honest work and service.—W. W. S. in Christian Sun.

Saturday -Give generously. II Cor. 9:1-8.

Suggestions to the Leader

Suppose you call this a "Millionaire Club" meeting. For once in our lives we will all be millionaires. You might draw pictures on placards showing several sacks filled with gold, with "$" sign on them. Have one sack open and the contents partly spilled out. Place above the picture the question, "How would you spend $1,000,000 for missions?" Then below the picture, "Tell it at C. E. tonight." The question should be given out to several a week before asking them to make the gift of a million dollars, and tell to whom they would give, and how they would give.

Leader's Talk

One would not begin to spend a large sum on missions without first studying the need of the world. If the nations were to walk by and tell us all their needs and wants—spiritually, morally, socially, economically, etc., so vast are they that a million dollars would not go far to meet them. Money would have to be given at strategic points. If by giving to one nation we could raise up a host of evangelists, that would be a profitable investment.

We should have to decide what we wanted to accomplish through the money we gave—speed the gospel, extend medical work, aid education and agriculture, etc.

Discuss These

1. Which gives greater joy, spending for self or for others?

2. Who gives the most, the man who gives one million dollars out of a large fortune, or the man who gives himself and goes as a missionary to foreign fields?

3 Where is found the world's greatest missionary need? Why?

4. Should we spend all our million dollars on one country or on many?

5. Which would be better, to invest a million in safe bonds and use the interest, or give the million dollars outright?

6. What is it that is holding back the evangelization of the world, the dearth of men or the shortage of money to send men?

7. Should we wait until we have a million dollars before we give? Why?

Quotable Poetry

"I'M THE CHILD OF A KING"

"My Father is rich in houses and lands,
He holdeth the wealth of the world in His hands!
Of rubies and diamonds, of silver and gold,
His coffers are full He has riches untold.

Refrain:
"I'm the child of a King,
The child of a King;
With Jesus my Saviour,
I'm the child of a King.

"My Father's own Son, the Saviour from sin,
Once wandered o'er earth as the poorest of men;
And now He is reigning forever on high,
And will give me a home in heav'n by and by.

"I once was an outcast stranger on earth,
A sinner by choice, an alien by birth!
But I've been adopted, my name's written down -
An heir to a mansion, a robe and a crown.

"A tent or a cottage, why should I care?
They're building a palace for me over there!
Tho' exiled from home, yet still I may sing,
All glory to God, I'm the child of a King."

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

REMEMBER THE EXECUTIVE MEETING

The Executive Committee meets in Weaverville on September 23. All members have not yet been heard from. I am doing all I can to make arrangements for entertainment and transportation. It will help greatly if you will let me know if you are going and how.

The meeting will be a success only as you put something into it. Plan to attend, or if impossible to attend, please send report. Will the District Chairmen who cannot attend please send report to me at Weaverville, N. C., so that my report may be complete.

MRS. C. W. BATES,
Chairman of Districts.

WHAT PART HAVE THE WOMEN IN THE WORK OF YOUR CHURCH?

Last week's Herald contains 24 reports. In four of those reports mention is made of a Woman's Auxiliary. In two others there is mention made of Ladies' Aids. A Ladies' Aid is a splendid organization as far as it goes; but it stops too son. It is a garment covering only part of the body. The Auxiliary covers the whole body. That body is the Methodist Protestant Church.

Note the different kinds of activities of the Auxiliaries reporting:

Winston, First, reports having given a farewell party to the pastor and his wife.

Fountain Place, Burlington, is planning to make a special effort to bring the inactive members.

Hollister, Halifax, has had the roof of the church painted.

High Point, First, reports the gift of furniture to the Children's Home.

The Children's Home report of last week shows $112.50 received from the Treasurer of the North Carolina Branch.

Is the Woman's Auxiliary worth while?

MRS. C. W. BATES,
Chairman of Districts.

HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

EMERGENCY MEASURES

During the months of May and June we did not reach the goal set out to attain. Some said it was the wrong time of the year for a campaign, others said "our subscriptions expire the latter part of the year, and we cannot get them renewed until then," and various reasons were given, so we desisted in the matter for a season.

Our failure to successfully carry the campaign through has brought perplexity and embarassment to our editor, and threatened the very existence of the Herald. So acute had the situation become that President Taylor was impelled to call a meeting of several ministers and laymen to consider emergency measures. This group requested Dr. Taylor to write an appeal to the ministers of the Conference, last year delegates, and other laymen of the church, and urge them to assist in relieving the situation by taking an offering in each church, within the next 30 days, equal to two per cent of the promised pastor's salary, and forward same to Dr. McCulloch.

It was learned at this meeting that Dr. McCulloch had served the entire year, thus far, without financial remuneration for his services, and had even obligated himself to the printers for the amount of $1,200 further in order to keep the Herald in circulation. Beloved, is not this loyalty, this sacrifice on the part of this old soldier of the Cross, this evidence of love and faith in you, a challenge to every man and woman, boy or girl, in our Conference bounds to contribute to this emergency fund? Will we fail him now after 35 years of editorship? Will we now halt as our educational Moses, with unsteady but resolute step, endeavors to continue to lead us on to better and greater things as a Conference and as individuals? Our sense of appreciation, I am sure, will make this emergency fund a great thank-offering of love.

N. M. HARRISON.

BRO. ABERNETHY ENTERTAINS

On Friday of last week Rev. J. H. Abernethy made a feast and bade—not many governors and senators, but a few superannuated preachers, the nearest M. P. pastor, and one poor editor. Those accepting the invitation were Rev. W. F. Ashburn, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, and the editor of the Herald. Supernumerary was Mr. Joseph Coble with chauffeur's rather than minister's garb, but he was not cast into the outer darkness, but permitted to fare as sumptuously as the oldest superannuate. Bro. Abernethy formerly served a number of our charges as pastor, but a throat affection removed him from the regular ministry, though he still preaches occasionally and regularly teaches a Bible class at Hines Chapel, a church of the Christian denomination. He went over and took a wife to himself from the daughters of the Presbyterian church. She joined heartily with him in the effort to make the occasion an enjoyable one to us and we had a delightful time. To some of us it was a rare treat. We had time for leisurely conversation, and at just the right time we were invited into the dining room for the sumptuous repast Mrs. Abernethy had prepared for us, and as Dickens would have said, we did ample justice to the dinner or supper served. We found Bro. Abernethy and family pleasantly situated on a good farm which he is fortunate enough to own. A third member of the family is James, Bro. Abernethy's son with mother deceased. He is just merging into manhood, is industrious, bright and promising. We feel indebted to each member of the family for special kindnesses shown us and we will long remember the pleasant hours they gave us.

The greatest praise that can be given to the member of any association is in these terms: This is a man who always does what is required of him and who always appears at the hour when he is expected to appear.—Stuart Blackie.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Corinth, Little Circuit.—Our revival meeting was held at this church last week. Pastor Smith preached Sunday morning and Dr. T. M. Johnson came on Monday and preached until Friday night. Dr. Johnson brought us some good and helpful sermons, and I feel sure much good was accomplished, but this was a very busy week with the farmers, so our crowds were not as big as we expected and the revival was not what we hoped for. The people here learning to like Dr. Johnson and enjoyed his stay among us; he has a warm welcome in our hearts and we wish for him to come again.

We were glad to have with us in this meeting Mrs. B. N. Browning from Richmond, and Mrs. Alexander, of Thomasville.

At the third quarterly conference Mr. M. J. Morris was elected delegate to the Annual Conference.

Some of our young folks have left us since our last report. Miss Daisie Lee Carter has entered King Daughters' Hospital at Portsmouth, Va., where she will take a nurse's course. Miss Virginia Inscoe left last week for N. C. C. W. at Greensboro. On August 30 Miss Bettie Mae Walker, one of our members, and Mr. Irby Lucas, of Washington, D. C., were happily married. We wish for these young ladies much success in their new work.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Morris visited friends at Greensboro, Winston-Salem and High Point last week. While on their trip they got a view of High Point College and the Children's Home.

Miss Lucille Smith, our pastor's daughter, has returned home after spending some time with her grandmother in High Point.

Shiloh.—The Conference year is drawing to a close and much remains to be done. Let us work while it is day.

Everyone is invited to attend the tithing service to be held at Shiloh next Sunday, September 21. Each is asked to bring one-tenth of what he has made this week and lay it upon God's altar. Some may want to take part but cannot be present. If so, just mail your gift to the pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, and your Father will know just the same. "Bring all the tithes into the storehouse and I will open the windows of heaven and pour you out such a blessing that you won't have room to receive it," is the promise. May we not claim it?

Shiloh Charge. We are hoping to finish this year's work is good shape, but we cannot tell just at this time how we will come out. Maybe we have all talked hard times too much until we are believing that times are hard sure enough; let's stop and turn our eyes heavenward, and put our trust in One who is able to deliver us. As long as Peter kept his eyes on Christ he could walk on the water; so can we stem the tide of this financial panic if we will keep our eyes on Him. People have plenty of money for gas, new cars, and pleasure. Why not for the church? Just one word about our church paper: We must keep it going; we cannot let it stop. It is the most valuable paper we have. The North Carolina Conference could not be a Conference (or would not seem so) without the paper. We must reach our goal. I would like to say to all on this charge who are taking the paper to tell your friends about it and get their subscription.

We have held all of our revival meetings; had a good revival at each church; took in 36 new members and more to join later.

Our Greer's Chapel people gave up a real surprise pounding a few weks ago; they had us to announce a meeting of all the members of the church and of course I urged all to be present, and when I got there they had prayer service; after the service they invited me into one of the Sunday school rooms where they had brought in a good line of groceries. They loaded my car. It was packed full. Also filled my tank with gas and my motor with oil, and I came home happy, for we have rations in the pantry for some time yet. We want to thank these good people for their act of kindness and thoughtfulness just at this time.

Just before our revival meeting at Shiloh church, Bro. Jeff Berrier came over home with a big ham and other things to eat, and said when he had hard work for his mules to do he always put in an extra ear of corn, so he wanted to feed his preacher well during the meeting, and I tell you it came in fine. Mrs. Jeff Berrier, a big sack of potatoes and other things, and Miss Emma Berrier is small in size, but she has a big heart, for she came over to give us a part in the C. E. meeting, (Mrs. Troxler and me) and she had each part wrapped up in a $5.00 bill that looked big.

We thank Bro. and Mrs. York for potatoes and peas.

Miss Bertha Delap for $15.00 and ten yards of dress goods.

Miss Lelie Byerly for grapes and $5.00.

We thank these good people for these fine tokens of appreciation, and pray God's blessings upon them.

R. S. TROXLER, Pastor.

Mebane.—The work at this place is moving on very nicely. We feel that we have accomplished right much, but with our Conference year almost gone we realize we have lots to do yet.

The Woman's Auxiliary recently gave a farewell social for Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Minnis, who are returning to India to continue their work in that field. This was well attended by our own members, and we were delighted to have some ladies from the Efland Auxiliary visit us on this occasion. They were accompanied by their husbands. The pastor from Orange Charge and his wife were also present, as were Revs. Troxler and Crutchfield. The Mebane Auxiliary gave Rev. and Mrs. Minnis a check for ten dollars as a parting gift, this to help screen their bungalow in India. We were sorry to see them go, and yet glad that we have such a splendid consecrated family to represent our church in India. May we all be loyal to our missionary cause.

The Ladies' Aid had an interesting meeting Monday afternoon of last week with Mrs. C. C. Smith.

Union Grove, South Winston Charge.—We are still living, even though we have not sent in a report lately.

Our S. S. has been averaging pretty well under the faithful leadership of Rev. R. L. Vickery. We are sorry that he and his family have not gotten to be at church much lately on account of the serious illness of his wife. May we all pray earnestly that Mrs. Vickery may be restored to health again soon if it is God's holy will. We miss her so much at church.

Our new pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, has been very faithful in filling all his appointments to us, even though he does have to drive a distance of 75 miles to get here. He is always very cheerful and pleasant to every one after he gets here, and always brings us a splendid message at the preaching hour. We certainly appreciate his efforts in our behalf.

Our special meeting is to begin next Sunday, September 21, at 3 p. m. Service at 7:30 Sunday night also. It has been announced for the service in the afternoon and at night during the coming week. Please help us pray that God will have His way entirely in this meeting. Everyone is invited to come and worship the Lord with us.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Our Sunday school is moving along fine now. Attendance is good and trust it will still improve.

Our pastor, Mr. Williams, was with us today and brought an interesting message. His talk was on Samson.

Our last communion service will be held the fourth Sunday in September at 3 o'clock.

At this meeting we are glad to learn that Archie Gray Williams is improving.

G. H. Squires was received into the church at this service.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers.

First Church, High Point.—Much excitement and consternation were caused by the following announcement, which appeared in Sunday moring's Bulletin: "The Committee on Tearing Down the Church is invited to meet the minister Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. He has something to say before it acts. The active members are: Mr. Of Tenaway, Miss New Erkums, Mrs. Gada Bout, Mr. and Mrs. Gam Bler, Mr. Comp Plainer, Mr. Moons Hiner, Mr. Sabb Ath Breaker, Mrs. Bak B. Iter, Mrs. S. Cornful, and Mr. Bak S. Lider. Mr. and Mrs. Regular Attender will greet the committee." It set each one of us to thinking: "I wonder under which head he places me?" Perhaps many will be curious to know, and will attend the Wednesday evening service in order to find out.

At the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning, after a beautiful solo, "The Ninety and Nine," by O'Hara, was sung by Mrs. J. H. Allred, and the anthem, "In Thee Will I Put My Trust," rendered by the choir, with Prof. Ernest B. Stimson playing the organ with his usual skill and beauty, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an earnest and eloquent sermon from the text in II Timothy 1:6: "Stir up the gift of God which is in Thee!" He said in part: "Great gifts bring great responsibilities, and responsibility brings consecration. A prince moves out in daring realms, but when he becomes king he sinks into conservatism. Humanly speaking, our cultured Christianity should save the world, but we sink back into a coarser kind of work. My burden today is that the cultured people are not using their efforts to evangelize the world. In this text Timothy was referring to faith—stir up the faith that is in thee, and said 'I am proud of your faith, and that of your grandmother, Lois, and of your mother, Eunice,' which showed that he had received religious instruction from his mother and her mother. Timothy, like Jeremiah of today's Sunday school lesson, was timid: 'be not ashamed of the testimony of Jesus.' In Newark, Ohio, an advertisement about ranges made a great impression on me: 'We make them good, our friends make them famous.' The burden on us is to make the gospel famous. There are three things of importance in this text: 1. In every life there is some gift or talent that God can use. God and man as co-laborers can perform the most difficult tasks, even make a new rose. What does God get out of you? Some people apologize to the minister because they failed to go to church or perform some duty. The little fire that is there must be stirred up, or it will die. If we are not producing character, we have no right to live. What is the leading church of High Point today? It is the one which is leading boys and girls, men and women, to Christ. 2. Every believer in Christ has a tremendous responsibility. Where shall we begin? Where God began with us; to tell folks of their sins, and their hope of salvation. 3. The smoldering fire may be fanned into flame. It is sad when men lose their fortune, health, or friends, but the greatest tragedy is when a life loses its grip upon God, when prayer does not mean as much to us, when we do not enjoy worship services and the fellowship of Christian people as we once did. Oh, God, use us by thy strength to move out and draw others to Jesus."

The largest meeting in the history of the High Point Ministers' Association was held Monday morning at Wesley Memorial M. E. church to consider plans for a simultaneous evangelistic campaign in practically all the churches of the city during the week of October 5-12. Twenty-eight members were in attendance. Rev. R. I. Farmer is president of this association. Many of the churches are planning to have visiting speakers for the week, but several will conduct their own services. Cottage prayer meetings will be held regularly during the week. Next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock the ministers and their wives will be guests of Rev. and Mrs. Tom Sykes of the Friends' church at the playground at Archdale, where the usual weekly meeting will be held after games and luncheon. Rev. R. I. Farmer is chairman of the general committee for this campaign and it is planned to hold noon-day meetings in the shops and factories and in uptown and downtown centers.

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, as follows: No. 4, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, chairman, with Mrs. Fred Younts on Montlieu Ave.; No. 5, Mrs. A. M. Rankin, chairman, with Mrs. L. H. Zimmerman, 227 Montlieu Ave.; No. 6, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, chairman, with Mrs. P. E. Lindley, 807 Circle Drive; No. 7, Mrs. Lewis E. Teague, chairman, with Mrs. J. T. Ryan, 606 Parkway; and No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Snipes, chairman, with Miss Mary Lyndon, West Russell street.

The girls' Circle No. 1, Miss Margaret Snipes, chairman, will meet Thursday evening at 8 o'clock with Miss Mary Adams, 1100 English street; No. 2, Miss Mary Young, chairman, will leave the church at 6:30 o'clock for a picnic supper meeting; and No. 3, Miss Blanche Burgess, chairman, with Mrs. L. R. Peacock, 711 West Farriss avenue, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. In most circles the Mission study book, "The Crowded Ways," has been finished, and a new one will be taken up next month.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor met Monday evening and discussed the topic, "How Increase Our Membership" with Mrs. L. R. Peacock leading.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. The subject discussed will be "Encouragement by Provoking."

The September thank-offering service of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held on Sunday morning, September 28, with a special sermon by the minister, and some special music, a vocal solo by C. C. Gray, Jr., and others.

Registration of students at High Point College was begun Monday morning, and 36 local young men and women enrolled as freshmen. Today (Tuesday) all boarding students, both freshmen and upper classmen, are registering. Classes will begin work Wednesday. Complete figures can not be announced until Wednesday, but Dr. G. I. Humphreys, the president, was much pleased at the indications of the largest enrollment in the history of the institution. Applications from more than 125 new students were received through last week, and others will doubtless matriculate today and tomorrow. Mrs. C. L. Whitaker returned two weeks ago from her vacation spent in Greensboro and nearby towns, and the dining room has been opened to accommodate the football squad, but will be ready today for a full year's service. Prospects are very bright for a splendid opening, and everybody is happy and optimistic over the outlook for an auspicious year of work and service at our own college.

Why Not. Our meeting at Pleasant Hill began the first Sunday with a large attendance. The writer preached in the forenoon and Bro. L. A. King in the afternoon. Bro. King, whose membership is with Fairgrove church, is a local preacher. He delivered a helpful and interesting message.

On Monday Rev. B. M. Williams came and stayed until the close Thursday night. Bro. Williams did excellent preaching and in addition rendered fine service throughout. The attendance through the week increased from night to night. One drawback to this church is the fact that a large per cent of the members live out of the community.

We were glad to have Mrs. Williams with us in the meeting.

When you read this our meeting at Love Joy will be on. Rev. J. R. Anderson is the pulpit help. Wm. H. NEESE.

Enfield.—Sunday was a great day for us, a day that will long be cherished with sacred memories. We felt happy indeed to unite on this day and dedicate our little church to the service of our Lord. An appropriate program had been prepared by our pastor, Mr. Auman, including special music. A beautiful duet sung by Mrs. Exum Bellamy and Mrs. Cecil Matthews added to the sacredness of the service. Mr. Taylor, our Conference president, preached a wonderful sermon for us at the morning hour, using as his text Ephesians 5:32. He brought to our minds the one great purpose of the church—that of soul-winning. May we as church members divert our energies to this divinely appointed task.

At the close of this service Mr. Ralph Rives, in a very impressive manner, dedicated our church to the service of God. We were indeed glad to confer the honor of consecration to Mr. Rives since it was largely due to his untiring efforts that this service was made possible. May God continue to bless his efforts as he labors among us.

At the 3 o'clock service Mr. Auman gave a brief history of the church, dating from 1850 to the present time.

Our former pastor, Rev. C. J. Edwards, who was the builder of our church gave a brief, but very interesting account of some of the obstacles removed before he could make a beginning. Of course at that time time, to most of us, a new church seemed impossible. However, due to Mr. Edwards' brain and brawn, and to his faithfulness, the church became a reality, and well do we remember how proud and happy we were on the second Sunday morning in May, 1917, when all the Enfield churches united with us in our first service. We were justly proud, too, of Mr. Edwards as he stood before us and gave our church its initial sermon. We shall always love him, and appreciate his faithful service to us. We were glad to have him at this service. He preached a good sermon for us at the evening hour.

We were glad to have the following visitors worship with us: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avent, Mr. Powell Edwards, son of Rev. C. J. Edwards, Mrs. J. S. Warren, of Bradenton, Florida, Mrs. Warren, who for a number of years lived at Ringwood and was a member of the M. P. church there, is a sister of Mrs. Y. A. Spivey. She is here for a visit of several weeks. We extend to her a cordial invitation to worship with us while here. We were pleased to have a goodly number present from Whitakers Chapel.

Our Sunday school, also Christian Endeavor Societies, have stood the heat test pretty well; however, as the weather cools a bit we expect an increased attendance. Our pastor was away the greater part of July and August assisting in revivals, and we only caught a glimpse of him now and then. We are glad he is home again and that we are back to our regular routine of church service.

Success to the Herald and its readers.

Henderson.—With vacations over and fall approaching the feeling of "settling down" to things comes upon us. We are glad to note the increase of attendance and interest in the different organizations of the church. The Christian Endeavor society has resumed its work and under the leadership of Mrs. L. R. Gooch is making a splendid start. We trust our young people will continue to carry on this important work of the building of His kingdom.

The board of stewards met on Monday night, August 25th, at the home of Mr. Roy Dixon. The finances were discussed and other important items of the board. It is sincerely hoped that the budget will be paid in full before the close of the year.

The third quarterly conference was held at the church Tuesday night, September 2. Mr. L. R. Gooch was named as delegate to the Annual Conference this year.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Methodist Protestant Philathea class was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Tankersley, Jr., on Charles street, on August 26th, with Mrs. R. A. Hunter and Mrs. H. A. Jordan as assistant hostesses, the vice-president, Miss Lettie Finch, presiding in the absence of the president, Miss Ruth Cunningham. The meeting was called to order, several business problems were discussed with collection of dues.

At the conclusion, Miss Mary Young, who has just returned from a nine weeks' trip abroad, made a brief talk on her trip, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

The class enjoyed having present three visitors, Mrs. Alley Young, Mrs. Josephine Martin and Mrs. O. B. Belle, of Durham. Mrs. Bell will be remembered here as Miss Ruth Fowler.

The regular monthly meeting of the Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Protestant church was held at the home of Mrs. O. O. Young Monday afternoon, August 25, with Mesdames E. C. Kittrell and Edison T. Hicks as joint hostesses.

Miss Myra Hight, secretary of missionary education, conducted the devotionals and presented a most impressive program, emphasizing her particular department of work.

The business session was in charge of the president, Mrs. S. R. Watson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Reports from the Auxiliary treasurer and local treasurer were also given. The roll was called by circles. Circle No. 1, having the largest attendance. Interesting reports were given of the work being done by the various circles.

A committee was appointed and instructed to select and order the study book for the Auxiliary.

A thank offering service will be held at the church some time in September. This will be under the leadership of Miss Gertha Trogden, secretary of thank-offerings.

There being no other business, the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

During the social hour Miss Mary Young delighted those present with an interesting synopsis of the Passion Play, which she attended while in Oberammergau, Germany.

Refreshments consisting of sandwiches and iced tea were served by the hostesses.

Rev. R. A. Hunter will attend the Pastor's Conference of Eastern M. P. Ministers today, September 15th, which will be held in Littleton, N. C.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Circuit.—Our Sunday school seems to be improving.

Our pastor filled his appointment Sunday morning. His subject was, "Come Over and Help Us," which means a lot to us Christians. Are we going over and helping the lost and the poor?

The Lord's Supper was administered to a good number. Glad to see as many still remember the Lord.

Our C. E. Society is improving right along; nine new members. They had a social at the home of Mrs. R. E. Green Wednesday night at which they had a fine time. Punch and cakes were served.

Let's try to get the Herald campaign up to 3,000 subscriptions. If you would start to take it you wouldn't want to stop.

We missed the sound of Mr. Billy Hawkins' crutch Sunday as he has a sore on his paralyzed leg. We are glad Mr. George Green was able to come Sunday. He has been back to the hospital in Durham since I reported.

We were all glad to have back Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pair for the last two Sundays.

And, yes, we have a piano now.

Best wishes to all.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS, Reporter.

Pleasant Grove Ladies' Aid.—The society met in the home of Mrs. T. W. Kennedy with Mrs. Harry Russell as associate hostess.

After songs, Luke 10 was read by our president, Mrs. Vivian Cecil. Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, made an interesting talk on the chapter.

Fourteen members were present and our collection amounted to $23.95.

We are sorry some of our members were out on account of sickness and death. Mrs. Homer Veach is still on the sick list. If it is the Lord's wil may she soon be restored to health, church and society.

Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. Ralph Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Lawrence Darr served delicious sandwiches, pickles, cake, coffee and ice cream, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

MRS. CLYDE PAYNE, Reporter.

Mitchell's Grove, Guilford Circuit.—Our pastor delivered a good message, his subject being on seeing Jesus last Sunday evening. We trust all present will see the importance of seeing Jesus and so live that the world may see Jesus in us. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall see Jesus but the pure in heart.

We will have our special meeting the fourth Sunday in September; also Home-Coming day and we invite all to come and especially we desire all of our former pastors to be with us and that they may speak a few words, all of them, that we may take courage, and we desire the prayers of all that we may have a real revival in every heart, both saint and sinner. We feel that we need the prayers and the presence of all good people in our revival meeting; it seems we all need to unite with each other from one church to the other and especially on the same circuit. It must be very encouraging to the pastor; we know it is to the members of the church.

We have a good midweek prayer meeting.

A few weeks ago we felt the need of having a union prayer meeting with our neighbor church, Hickory Chapel, and we had a good meeting. Every one seemed so glad to be in a meeting of this kind.

We reorganized our Missionary Society, with Mrs. Nina Jones Witcher, president; Miss Ada Kersey, vice-president; Miss Josie Parsons, recording secretary and treasurer; Miss Jones, corresponding secretary. We feel that we will do good work with these new officers.

MARTHA PARSONS.

West Forsyth.—The usual attendance and interest marked the services at Tabernacle and Union Hill churches last Sunday. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered at each church. After the service at Union Hill the pastor and family went to the home of one of the faithful members of Union Hill, Mrs. Nat Poindexter, having had a previous invitation to visit in that home. We enjoyed a good supper and a very pleeasant visit with these good people. Mrs. Poindexter's husband is a member of the Primitive Baptist church, but attends our church frequently.

We are glad to report that Bro. Clinton Sprinkle, who has been a patient in Lawrence Hospital, Winston-Salem, for the past four weeks, is slowly improving. He had a very serious operation and for a time his recovery was doubtful.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree and niece, Miss Olive Anderson, of Tobaccoville, who are members of Pleasant Hill church, worshiped with the congregations at Tabernacle and Union Hill last Sunday. The pastor appreciated their presence and interest in the services. It is an inspiration and encouragement to the pastor to see members of one church present at the services of other churches.

Next Sunday's appointment will be at Pleasant Hill church. The Lord's Supper will be administered in connection with the sermon.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Graham.—Rev. and Mrs. Minnis have been gone from among us for two weeks. Although the pulpit has been very ably supplied and two splendid sermons preached by Rev. G. W. Holmes, their familiar faces have been greatly missed. During their stay in Graham many warm friends have been made, not only in the Graham church, but in many of the other churches of the Conference, who regret that we could not have them with us longer. Words fail to express the appreciation for the splendid work among us for the past two years, and the good wishes of the entire church go with them to their field of labor in India.

On Friday evening, August 15th, the third quarterly conference was held, and Mr. S. S. Holt was elected delegate to Annual Conference.

The fourth Sunday evening in September has been announced as the date for the thank-offering service of the Woman's Auxiliary.

REPORTER.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Bro. Foster Loftin sticks to the Sunday school and is in his place while so many others are riding around. We have some, both old and young, that stick to the church, Sunday school and prayer meeting. We are proud of the organ that Brother Reed helped get; it sounds like a good one.

The next second Sunday winds up the work for this year. I do not know how much we are behind on pastor's salary. If everybody will do their part it will not be any trouble to pay out. I am willing to do my part, though I am needy myself. I want to do what the Lord would have me to do.

At the next appointment officers are to be elected and church book to be revised. All come out and take a part.

There were only about 50 out today; I hope to see the house full next time and to see the church out of debt.

Mrs. Reed still stays on the sick list; we still remember her and hope to see her well again.

With best wishes to the Herald and al its many readers. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Matthews.—Our pastor filled his regular appointment yesterday morning with a fine sermon, using as his subject, "Light." It seems that each one gets better. We all like our pastor real well.

Our revival meeting which began the second Sunday in August continued through the following Friday night; did not show the visible results we had hoped for, but I feel there was much good done. Rev. J. D. Cranford did the preaching and I am sure I voice the sentiment of the people who were fortunate enough in getting to hear him that he is one among the best. His sermons were every one just fine, and it can truly be said of him, he is a man of God, one who is putting his all into his work. We received six additions to the church.

We were very glad to have a large delegation from Roberta with us on Wednesday night of the meeting. Especially did we enjoy the two songs which were so beautifully rendered by the Fisher sisters. Come again, Roberta. MRS. MATTHEWS.

◆

Lebanon Church, High Point.—The Sunshine Mission Band held their September meeting at the church Thursday afternoon. Twenty-eight children were present. Having completed their study book, "Going to Jerusalem," they decided to take up as their work for the next six months, India. The collection for this fine group of workers amounted to $17.36 for the past two months. Ten dollars of this will be sent to the Children's Home; $7.00 to Pine Ridge, Kentucky. Miss Lake Montgomery is president of this band.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Montgomery have returned from their bridal trip, and are at present making their home with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Montgomery on North Main street. The church extends to this fine young couple best wishes for a happy wedded life.

Woodrow Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chap Brown, leaves Wednesday to enter State College at Raleigh.

The Woman's Auxiliary held a very delightful meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Cook, two miles north of the city. The program was in charge of Mrs. Percy Payne. Mrs. Cook read the Scripture lesson, 11th chapter of Hebrews, followed by prayer by Mrs. Moton. Miss Vivian Cook, granddaughter of the hostess, sang a solo. Mrs. Payne used as her subject, "Plunge In." by Mrs. J. W. Shell in our August Record. The letter by Thos. R. Woodford was read and the ladies decided to get up a box of children's clothes and send to Pine Ridge. Mesdames Huff, Brunson, Hedgecock and Hayworth were appointed to look after this work. Our attendance was the largest we have had at any monthly meeting this year. Fifteen members were present. We were delighted to have Mrs. Moton, Mrs. Davis and Miss Vivian Cook as visitors. After the conclusion of the business our hostess, assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Percy Payne and Mrs. Enos Blair, served a delicious course of ice cream and cake.

Our pastor, Rev. Edwin Suits, assisted Rev. C. W. Bates in their meeting at Calvary church last week. A FRIEND.

Greensville Charge.—Our people at Philadelphia church held Children's Day services the fifth Sunday in June at 11 a. m. It was a fine program and we talked to the old people in the afternoon. It was a good day and the people seemed to enjoy the program for the day.

The second Sunday in August we began the special meeting at Ebenezer church. Rev. E. G. Cowan preached for us Sunday afternoon and Rev. A. D. Shelton preached for us at 11 a. m. for four days, and we did all the other preaching ourselves, closing the meeting Thursday afternoon. We had a good meeting. The church was much revived and we had 16 accessions.

The fifth Sunday in August we were again at Philadelphia church in our special meeting there. Rev. J. M. Morgan was our pulpit help here. Bro. Morgan is a former pastor of Greensville charge. He is much loved by these people. He brought with him Rev. J. D. Morris, and he preached Sunday afternoon, giving us a good message. Bro. Morgan did all of the preaching until the meeting closed Thursday. He did good preaching and the church was greatly revived and we had eight accessions here. Bro. Morgan said he came away from home and left his sermon outlines at home. We would not have known it if he had not told us. He preached like he had all things at his command, for God was with him. Both meetings, Ebenezer and Philadelphia, were held the old-time way—two services a day and dinner on the grounds. The people seemed to be happy and enjoyed every day and very service. Congregations were good from Sunday on at both churches, and a fine spirit prevailed. It was good to be in these meetings and we will never forget the fellowship and sweet experiences that we enjoyed. J. B. O'BRIANT.

Greensville Charge.—First Sunday in August our special meeting began with Brother Spencer from Granville charge as the help. He came Sunday and was in every service and was at his best. He did some very fine work, preaching the old-time gospel with power; the meeting was a succes in every sense of the word. Twenty-five professions and reclamations, with five uniting with the church and more to follow soon. Took in some members here during the meeting that ask to have their names transferred to other churches of other denominations. The church was revived and the future of the church looks brighter as a result of this series of meetings. The people were all greatly pleased with Brother Spencer and his splendid messages. A purse of $30.00 was given him in appreciation of his splendid work among us. The meeting closed on Friday night and we certainly should have run on into the next week, but could not.

Wesley's Chapel.—On the third Sunday in August our meeting began at this place with Brother J. Clyde Auman, of Enfield, as help; he came to us on Sunday and was in all the services until the close on Friday night. Here again we had to close at the wrong time. Brother Auman did some very fine preaching, which was appreciated by all, as was shown by the large crowds which attended each service. Twenty-two professions and reclamations here, with seven uniting with the church and others to follow; there were some others that expected to join the church the night the meeting closed, but it was raining that night and they could not get to the church, so will receive them into the church later. The church was greatly revived and helped by the plain gospel preaching of Brother Auman, and we hope that he may come this way again. A purse of $23.50 was presented to Brother Auman at the close of the services.

Hobbs Chapel.—On the fourth Sunday in August our meeting began at this church with Brother Auman as the help here. He came to us Sunday afternoon. (Brother O'Briant preaching in the morning. Brother Auman remained until the close on Friday night, and at this church as at both of the others we had to close the meeting at the wrong time; it is really a calamity that we could not have gone on for one week longer at each church, but we could not at this time. Here, as at Wesley's Chapel, Brother Auman was at his best and did some very fine work, bringing plain old-time Gospel messages at each service, which was appreciated and enjoyed by large crowds at each service. It was indeed a great meeting, possibly one of the best to be held in this church in years. One of the pleasing features of the services was the singing of the children, when was fine. There were more than 20 professions and reclamations here, with nine uniting with the church, and possibly others will come in later. The people here are loud in their praise of Brother Auman and his work and they are very anxious to have him come their way again, and we trust that he may. A purse of $27.00 was given him in appreciation of his work, which speaks well for the small membership of this church, but while small in number they are very loyal and liberal. Very extensive repairs have recently been made upon the church building here, a new metal roof, a choir loft, painted inside, and a nice new curbing around the well and a cement base around same. Also a new chancel rail around the pulpit.

Truly, we had great meetings at all three of the churches, real revivals, and great good was accomplished by the meetings at each church. We were glad indeed to have Brother O'Briant in many of the services in each church, and the members from the other churches on the charge co-operated with us splendidly, and also the members of other denominations helped us out a great deal by their presence, and helped us with the singing. For all of this we are truly grateful and we thank one and all. We were glad to have the privilege of attending some of the services and taking part in the services at Ebenezer during the special meeting there; also was glad to be at Philadelphia one day during their special meeting; we enjoyed all of these services very much. We trust that we may have a successful closing of the year's work and that we may have a good report to carry down to the Annual Conference.

Lebanon Church.—Bro. Suits gave us a very impressive sermon last Sunday on "The Correcting Influence of the Church." On Sunday night his talk on "The Gateway to Heaven" was unusually interesting and uplifting. The sermon was based on the vision of Jacob at Bethel. We wish every member of our church could have heard this message.

Our special meeting begins October 5th. Brothers and sisters, let's pray for this meeting; and may the Lord bless us with a glorious revival.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the church Monday night, September 22nd.

We are pleased to say that our sick people, with the exception of Sister Clarence Pierce, are better.

Two of our most popular young people, Brother Dale C. Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Montgomery, and his bride, Miss Viola Suits, daughter of our pastor and Mrs. Edward Suits, have returned from their wedding trip through the northern states and Canada. REPORTER.

South Lexington Charge—Saturday evening, June 13, the members of the South Lexington church surprised the pastor at his home with a nice pounding consisting of useful articles for the pantry. All this was greatly appreciated by the writer and his mother.

Last Sunday was a good day on the work with good interest manifested.

Our fall revival will begin the first Sunday in October with Rev. D. I. Garner, pastor of the Randolph charge, as the pulpit help.

We are glad to welcome Brother G. A. Barber and family back from Rockingham, where they have resided during the past year. Brother Barber was a steward of the church before going to Rockingham, and has been again elected to that position.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give a supper Saturday evening, beginning at 6 o'clock. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the church. C. G. ISLEY.

Shelby.—Our revival meeting closed Sunday night. The meeting in the opinion of many would not be counted such a great success, but I feel that the Spirit of the Lord was present, blessing many of us who had not had a chance to hear the gospel presented in such an inspiring way for many year. A visiting Baptist minister remarked after listening to a sermon "that is one of the best gospel sermons that I have heard in several years." Of course you readers are anxious to know who did all of this splendid preaching: our pastor, Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, was the one to claim the honor of delivering these much-praised sermons. The congregations were larger than the writer has seen at the church in many a year. On Friday morning a service was held for the children. There were 43 children and 17 grown-ups. In this service we could readily see that children were ready and anxious to hear the truths of the Bible presented to them in an interesting way. We feel sure that the good of this meeting will be felt in years to come. We were fortunate in having Miss Eloise Beam for pianist during the meeting. Miss Beam is one of the Children's Home girls; she is now specializing in music at High Point College.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely. There is a great number of children attending our Sunday school. They are made welcome and we feel that is the reason that they return.

Our Junior Christian Endeavor was organized last Sunday after a vacation of two months. We had 22 to organize with; they seemed real anxious for something to do.

Our Ladies' Aid, although not very large, is doing some things which are very helpful. They purchased a nice oil stove on June 2 for the parsonage and a dining table and chairs on August 27.

Mrs. C. F. Smith, of Asheboro, a sister of Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, has returned to her home after spending some time at the parsonage.

We regret very much that Mrs. J. T. Ramsey has been confined to her bed for the past four weeks.

As Conference is near at hand, we are hoping and trusting that we will be able to keep our present pastor for another year. We hardly see how we could do without him and his companion. REPORTER.

Lexington. -The Rally Day program given last Sunday morning was one of unusual interest and was well enjoyed.· Mrs. F. J. Cox and Mrs. W. T. Neal deserve much credit for the good coaching they gave the children and young people in the preparation of the program.

The evening service was one of the best we have had this year. Mr. Hendry's address was one of a series on the subject of marriage and the founding of a home.

The "Birthday Party," given on Wednesday night, September 3, by the women of the Missionary Society, was in every respect a success. It was a very enjoyable affair throughout, and about $20 was cleared. Special music, both instrumental and vocal, was one of the pleasing features of the evening.

A very pleasant outing was enjoyed last week by Mr. W. H. Blanton and ten of the boys of the Intermediate C. E. Society. They went on a fishing trip about four miles out to a lake near the farm of Mr. James Leonard. From the reports brought back by Mr. Blanton and the boys there was much catching, frying and eating. No details were given as to the size of the firsh caught, however.

Four of our faithful and promising young people are leaving us to enter college: Miss Lillabelle McCrary goes to Duke University, Miss Helen Harkey to E. C. T. C. at Greenville, N. C., Miss Lila Aron goes back to High Point College, and Mr. Homer Evans to State College at Raleigh.

Mr. C. L. Koonts reports a great trip and one of much interest which he took during his vacation the last of August. Mr. Koonts and Mr. Archie Kepley enjoyed this extended outing together. They picked up Mr. Nobe Koonts at Albany, N. Y., where he is employed, and he accompanied them on to Montreal, Canada, and into the famous northwoods where Theodore Roosevelt received the word that he was president at the death of William McKinley. Many points of interest along the way were visited.

Mr. W. T. Neal is recovering from a recent illness, we are glad to note.

Next Wednesday night is the "Fellowship Night." There has been a suspension of this pleasant coming-together occasion and we feel sure the congregation and many of our friends will be glad to come Wednesday night and enjoy the social hour and refreshments and all that make up a very pleasant evening. IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Moore

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom and all-wise providence to call from his labor in our midst to his eternal reward our beloved brother and co-worker, A. W. Moore, who for many years was a faithful, honored, and beloved member and official member, being the secretary of the quarterly conference of Greensville charge of the Methodist Protestant church, therefore be it Resolved:

First, That while we, the members of the quarterly conference, feel very keenly and deeply our loss, we bow in humble submission to His will, who is too wise to err, and too good to be unkind.

Second, That we count it a privilege to have known and served with one who was so faithful to all the interests of the church and conference, and we shall miss his smiling face, and his wise council in our sessions, and we shall strive to be more faithful because of his loyalty and unselfishness.

Third, That in the passing of Brother Moore, Matthews Chapel M. P. church has lost a faithful member and officer, the home and family a loving and kind husband and father, the community a good citizen and neighbor, who will be greatly missed.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Brother Moore's family, to the Methodist Protestant Herald, to the Brunswick Times-Gazette for publication, and a copy be spread on our minutes.

Latham

Early Monday morning, September 8, the soul of Ruffin Latham, of Seagrove, suddenly took its flight. Mr. Latham was nearing his 69th year. He had been in declining health for some years, but was much worse for a week prior to his death. He was a charter member of our church at Seagrove, and to it he was faithful and loyal to the end.

This writer's brief acquaintance with Mr. Latham leads him to say that a good citizen, a useful man in the community and a Christian gentleman has gone from us.

The deceased is survived by his wife and 10 children by a former union.

Funeral services were in charge of the writer Wednesday, September 10, at New Zion church. The attendance and floral offerings were a compliment to the deceased.

Wm. H. NEESE.

—Calvary's ten-days meeting closed last night. Eight, three of them adults, joined the church last Sunday, and more are expected to join next Sunday. Bro. Suits' preaching was pleasing and moving. He speaks in a natural tone of voice and depends on the power of the truth he is presenting for effect.

—Major Stedman, our aged representative in congress, is very ill, and his death is expected soon.

We thank these persons, Sunday schools and churches for these offerings which make the best showing we have had for a number of weeks. There are a number of Sunday schools to be heard from yet if we get an offering from every Sunday school in the Conference during September. We are confidently expecting this. God will lead you to do this, if His leading is responded to. Some schools have not sent an offering this year, but you will not fail us at this critical time. We thank you for the offering you are going to take and send us.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. W. L. Kivett, 3 bushels of apples.

Mrs. G. W. Apple, 4 dress patterns.

Mrs. Henry Stone, 1 overcoat, 3 coats and 5 vests.

Missionary Society, Cherrydale, Va., 5 dolls and doll clothing.

The Girls' Bible Class, Gibsonville, 26 tablets and 12 pencils.

Mrs. J. M. Dunham and Mrs. J. L. Trolinger, 23 dresses.

The Woman's Auxiliary, First Church, High Point, 1 bedroom suite, 1 chiffonier, 1 dresser, 1 rocker and 6 chairs.

The Woman's Auxiliary, Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon, 1 quilt.

We are thankful for these gifts, and may God bless the givers.

The School Year

On Monday morning we started 92 children to school, and they seem to be a happy lot to get back to school again. Of course there is the occasional child who does not like to go to school, but we have heard very little about not wanting to go this year. We trust that they will keep well and be able to make good records for the year. Your prayers and help are solicited.

The Farm

The workers on the farm have gathered in a good hay crop. The corn is pretty good, and the vegetable crop has been fair. We are beginning to get fall greens, and our fall cabbage and collards look fine. The plows are running now, getting ready to sow oats and vetch, rye and some wheat. We would sow more wheat if we had enough land to spare the proper acreage.

Produce and Supplies

We read in the Herald last week: "The Baracas bought 200 cans and the Philatheas are going to fill them for the Children's Home." My, but that sounds good, and we trust that there are many more communities thinking thus of us. Since reading that I met with the pastor, and he said: 'Brother Dixon, we plan to come next Wednesday with our circuit donation for the Home. So by the time you read this the donation from Saxapahaw circuit will be at the Home for the benefit of our children. They plan to bring theirs. But if you will get together a collection of produce, corn, wheat, potatoes, fruits, chickens, or produce and clothing of any kind that would be useful in an ordinary home we will be glad to send for it, if you find difficulty in getting it to us.

With love and good wishes for all of you, and praying the richest blessings of heaven upon you, I am,

Yours in the Master's service,

A. G. DIXON.

We invite you to call and see us when you visit our city. A cordial welcome awaits you.

Christ's Rewards of Victory

To him that overcomes I'll give
To eat of fruit of tree of life:
In Paradise of God's he'll live
And all his days be free from strife.

To him that overcomes I'll give
Immortal vigor, ceaseless breath;
Through all the coming days he'll live
And ne'er be hurt by second death.

To him that overcomes I'll give
To eat the precious manna hidden;
A new white stone he'll then receive,
Admitting him where'er he's bidden.

To him that overcomes the foes
And holds on faithful in the war
I'll make a ruler where he goes
And deck him with the morning star.

To him that overcomes, to same
White robes of victory shall be given,
Himself receive eternal fame,
And stand with those received in Heaven.

And him that overcomes I'll make
To stand in God's great Hall of Fame,
A pillar that no force can shake,
Adorned with names and my new name.

To him that overcomes I'll grant
To sit with Me upon My throne.
Amazing climax! Meant to plant
In us the hope to make our own.

An Ungrateful Prophet

The prophet Jonah makes a sorry figure. When given a high commission to execute for the Lord of Heaven and earth he runs away and tries to escape from the omnipresent God. In this he showed poor judgment. He called God the maker of sea and land and yet imagined that God's presence fell short of His creation.

If Jonah's best friends had seen him in the big fish's belly with seaweed wrapped about his head, they would scarcely have recognized him as a prophet of the Lord. But they would have observed one thing: that he did not object to the mercy of the Lord. He had sinned a great sin in disobeying God, but he did not object to God's delivering him from the terrible predicament into which his sin had brought him. Indeed, he prayed mightily for deliverance, and the merciful God delivered him.

He obeys the second call, but seemingly in not very good spirit. He preaches the preaching the Lord gave him, but it is easy to imagine him in an undertone inserting expressions of his own feelings: FORTY DAYS AND NINEVEH SHALL BE DESTROYED! (The dirty dogs, how glad I am!' FORTY DAYS AND NINEVEH SHALL BE DESTROYED! (Just what they deserve, but it ought to have come much sooner.) FORTY DAYS AND NINEVEH SHALL BE DESTROYED! (If I had my way it would be only two days. FORTY DAYS AND NINEVEH SHALL BE DESTROYED! (Then I'll go home happy.)

As the appointed time approached the anxious prophet seeks a safe place outside the city where he may wait and watch for the great destruction. He does not know whether it will come by fire or flood or storm or earthquake. He wishes to see the job thoroughly done and he has heard that it is an ill wind that blows nobody any good. But O dreadful disappointment! God comes to him and tells him that the people have repented and He has decided not to destroy them. Was the prophet glad then? No, the graceless man was angry toward the Lord and pouted like a sullen boy.

The Herald Has a Word

Last week President Taylor and Rev. N. M. Harrison referred to an emergency call for the M. P. HERALD. Explanation seems called for, as such a thing has not occurred in thirty years. Last year the HERALD had a phenomenal loss of income and at the same time a phenomenal increase in expenses. The sale of the Publishing House and the application of the proceeds to the debts of High Point College deprived the HERALD of $1,200 a year. The printing firm which had been printing the paper so acceptably for three years reported that they had been taking a loss of $1,500 a year in printing the HERALD and declared that they could not stand it longer. These two events imposed on the publisher the necessity of securing an addition of $2,700 a year to his income to pay printers' bills. How was this to be done? The Annual Conference adopted two devices looking to this end. One was raising the subscription price to $2.00. This has helped. The other was to put on a campaign to extend the circulation to 3,000 families. This also has helped. But still there will be a deficit due the printers of about $1,200. It is this deficit that this emergency call aims to provide for. We appreciate the kindness of those making the appeal and of those responding to it. We will acknowledge contributions to this fund under a special heading.

TWO PRAYERS

About thirty years ago a ten-year-old girl used to pray the following prayer:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take.
God bless Mother and Father,
Howard and Wallace (two brothers),
Timothy and Johnny (two cats).
Please give me a piano, a watch and a bicycle.
Amen."

The following sentiments have been expressed by two twelve-year-old boys in their prayers during the past week and are typical of the prayers they have been praying for the past two years:

"Dear Father, we thank you for all the wonderful things in the world, and we pray that where people don't have the things that we do, that they may. We pray that all over the world people may have Christian advantages and may have better homes and good schools and churches. We thank you for the Boy Scout troop in our Church. May it help the boys to live better lives; and not only in our church, but all over the world may boys have Scout troops.

"Help poor people to earn more money and have better things. Where people live in crowded tenements, help them to get better homes. May they have a chance to get out and enjoy the country. We pray that hungry people may get food.

"We pray that the bootleggers may be put out of business and that there won't be so many robbers. We pray that King George and Grandma will get well. Help China to get a better government, and may all the governments around the world get better. We pray that there won't be any more wars. We pray that bull fights in Spain will stop, and that there won't be any more prize fights in our country. We pray that people won't worship idols any more, but that they will become good Christians. Please help me to be a good boy tomorrow. Amen."

What a difference in these two prayers! And yet the girl who prayed the first prayer was brought up in a Christian home. Missionary magazines were always in the home, but they were not of interest to children. Her father gave generously for missionary work. She attended Sunday School regularly, but there was no program of missionary education in the Sunday School and not a "giving" one. She had no interest in children around the world because she didn't know about them. Naturally her prayer was a narrow, selfish one.

The second prayer is an expression of world interest and world friendship that boys have had from early childhood. Part of this training has come from the Sunday School, but most of it has been gained in the home. They have no feelings of racial superiority and have always been taught to appreciate the splendid capacities and achievements of all races. While they have been taught the needs of people around the world, there have been no feelings of patronage and condescension in their attitude as they have been led to help others.

Such words as "nigger," "wop" and "chink," etc., have never been a part of their vocabularies. They have been taught good things about other peoples, for when children know only unfavorable things about others they are apt to pity them; but when they know good things, friendly feelings will be spontaneous.

World friendship is one of the greatest needs of the day. We need to train our children to feel friendly towards people all around the world. Let us keep these ideals in mind as we teach our children to pray. Then truly the time will come when—

"In Christ there is no East or West;
In Him no North nor South:
But one great fellowship of love
Throughout the whole wide earth."

HER TENTH BOX

"I'm glad you have come, Marie I've been wanting to talk with some one and I believe it will help me to open my heart to you."

This was the greeting that Marie Martin received from her friend Lizbeth Tanner, as she stepped into her cozy parlor for a few minutes' visit.

"Then I'm glad I came, Lizbeth. But what can there be on your mind that disturbs you, as evidently it does?"

"Oh, it's this tithing question! I'm almost distracted over it. There is no use in trying any longer. I've given it a fair trial, but somehow it doesn't come out right. It's well enough when a person has a large income and everything is going smoothly, to lay aside one-tenth—yes, I think that is perfectly proper. But when there is an income of twenty dollars a week and an outgo of more than that, for the same time, how can I lay aside two dollars, which is the tenth, out of my weekly stipend, and be fair to my other obligations? I've tried, conscientiously, to give one-tenth, but as I said in the beginning, it doesn't come out right, and I'm all discouraged."

"O Lizbeth, I fear you haven't gone about it in the right way," said her visitor. "Surely we believe that it is the Master's will and he would not ask of us the impossible. Truly, my friend, I would not go back to the old way of giving when I had something to give, and withholding when my purse was empty. I could not afford to resume the old way."

"Yes, but, Marie, things are different with you. You haven't the obligations pressing on you that continually confronts me. I'm thinking that if I were situated as you are I should not find it so difficult to lay aside the tenth."

Her friend smiled and hastily added: "Oh, could we but exchange our crosses for a little time, I am sure we would each be glad to take up our own again, as in the allegory. Lizbeth, you mean to do our Father's will but, as I said before, you do not go about it in the right manner. I, too, have obligations which must be met, from my own purse, but the tenth belongs to him, while he gives me the remaining nine-tenths, and while to the incredulous it may sound like a fanciful sketch yet I am sure that nine-tenths go farther than as though I used the ten-tenths for self."

"It's very well to talk, Marie, but when you put into actual practice the tithing system, it's a different story. I take two dollars from the allowance and put it in my 'tenth box' which I keep on my dresser in plain sight. Sometimes I fancy the little box looks pleased, but more times I imagine it looks out-of-sorts, for you see many times before the week is up my money is gone and I am obliged to borrow from the tenth box."

"I see," replied her friend, seriously; "and then you are seldom able to pay it back. Am I correct in my conclusions?"

"That's just the trouble, and I see no way out of it."

"Yet I'm sure, Lizbeth, that if you borrowed from me you would not rest a moment until the debt was fully paid. Now, then, to begin at the beginning, you keep ninety cents out of each dollar entrusted to you; you have no right to plan for anything which your ninety cents or its proportionate amount will not buy.

"That is a very pretty dress that you have on."

"Yes, isn't it? And I made it myself," interrupted Lizbeth.

"Your lace collar and cuff set is exquisite, but I imagine it cost more than I could afford; and for a house dress something less expensive would have answered as well."

"Well, I admit I could have done with a cheaper set, or perhaps none at all; but George likes to see me look well, and I must cater to his fancies, you know."

"Not where it conflicts with duty," said Marie, firmly. "And I believe I know George well enough to know that it is the true woman inside the gown, and not the gown, that he is in love with. By all means, my friend, encourage the love and admiration of your husband, but not at the cost of the breaking of obligations you owe to Him who so liberally gives us all things. In short, Lizbeth, lay aside your two dollars with no more thought of taking it, even for a time, than as though it belonged to your neighbor."

"I know your theory is right, Marie, I've known it all along; but somehow I've not managed right. I hope I shall profit by this visit and, God helping me, I will.

"By the way, Marie, you know that Miss Jennie Hughes is to speak at our church tomorrow. You are going to hear her, I suppose."

"Most assuredly, my dear. And of course you are going."

"There is only one reason why I would not go. They are sure to take an offering and I will not sit there and have them pass the plate to me and not put in a penny. Yes, smile if you want to! I really have nothing to give. My last dollar went to pay the milkman this morning and I get nothing more until pay day, which is Wednesday—the day after the meeting at the church."

"That's really too bad, Lizbeth; but do not let that keep you from the meeting. It may be humiliating but maybe it will serve as a reminder to you that you have used what belongs to God. If you desire to keep your heart in tune with him you will pay it back with interest, so it is better not to borrow at all! Pray for light and I am sure our Father will not leave you in the dark. Now I must be off, for I have some errands to do—but I shall look for you at the meeting tomorrow."

"Oh dear, Marie! I do so want to hear Miss Hughes, but I don't want people to think I'm indifferent or stingy when the offering is taken. If I can master my pride, I'll be there. But let me assure you that I am determined, from this time on, to give back to the Lord what belongs to Him. From this day I'll not borrow from my tenth box. It is true that 'She who goes a'borrowing goes a'sorrowing.' I have proved that to my cost."

The day for the meeting arrived. The speaker was at her best and her words sank into the hearts of her hearers and awakened fresh thoughts of gratitude and praise. Glad indeed were they that they were living in a Christian land. An offering was taken for the need in other lands, and an appeal was made as only Miss Hughes can make it.

It was a crucial moment for Lizbeth Turner, but, God helping her, such a thing should not happen again. She could put nothing into the plate today—and what would her generous neighbors, sitting next to her, think of her apparent indifference! She lifted her heart in prayer.

Some one—a stranger—stopped before her and, pressing a coin of no small value into her hand, said, "Won't you please put this on the plate for me? I can't wait any longer, for I must be going." With a pleasant smile she hurried from the room.

The plate was coming nearer. God knew, but her friends would not know, that she gave nothing as, with trembling fingers, she placed the coin upon the plate. "It is the last time that this shall happen," she said, almost aloud.

When pay day came her two dollars was put into the tenth box first of all. True, she had the same obligations to be met, but she could, she would, deny herself and keep her account right with God.

A week had passed when her nephew, who lived with her while attending school in her city, said, "Aunt Lizbeth, my father thinks that everything costs so much now you ought to have more for my board, and beginning with this week I am to pay you a dollar more a week."

"That is very kind," said Mrs. Turner, "but I did not expect it."

"Oh, that's all right," and the boy hurried off to school.

"God did that, I'm sure," said Mrs. Turner, with tear-dimmed eyes. "I will never doubt him again."

Of course there were problems to solve, but somehow joys were added, disappointments subtracted, blessing multiplied —and the weight of responsibility was divided with the great Burden Bearer. She was often tempted to borrow "for only a little while," but she had promised to bring all the tithes into the storehouse, and she knew that when she had done her part He would do the rest.

Several months of the tithing plan had been carried out things were moving quite smoothly. Mrs. Turner looked with joy at her tenth box and it really seemed to smile back at her. It was growing heavier each week and her heart seemed growing lighter. Then one evening her husband came home from his day's work and said, with a smile, "I've good news for you, Lizbeth. The boss called me into his office today and told me that he was going to make a chance in some of the departments of the office force. To make a long story short, I am to have full charge of the receiving department. It is added responsibility but it means five dollars a week added to my salary! Why, I feel as rich as a king tonight! More than once I've been tempted to ask for an increase in my salary, but I've known of so many who have been turned down that I haven't done it. And now it comes, unsolicited. Surely I am favored."

For answer Lizbeth repeated the oft-quoted text, which tonight came with new meaning: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

* * *

"I'm interested in your tenth box, Lizbeth," said her friend Marie, a year after the opening of our story. "Have you found God's plan of giving burdensome or impracticable?"

"O Marie," Lizbeth responded with emotion, "If only every one who has hitherto doubted God's promise would give him the opportunity to fulfill it, what a change would come to her! I wouldn't go back to the old method for all this world can give. God bless you for helping to remove the scales from my eyes."—W. F. M. S., M. E. Church.

WORLD OPEN TO CHRISTIANITY

Never were the doors of entry into other lands so wide open to Christianity as at present, Dr. John R. Mott told the evangelism group of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which met at East Northfield in June. Having recently returned from a trip around the world, Dr. Mott told of the spirit of inquiry which was creating conditions ripe for the message of Christ. Even the Mohammedan world is open to evangelization, he said.

Dr. Mott gave a most encouraging outline of conditions in other countries from the point of view of the Christian work. As an illustration, he told of the resolve of Mr. Chang Singyee, speaking in behalf of the native Church of China, that within five years the Christian Church of China was to be doubled, and this in the face of the cataclysmic conditions prevailing in China now. In India, Dr. Mott said, Christianity is on the threshold of a most far-reaching influence.

"I have never been so impressed before by the tide of inquiry that is sweeping over all countries," Dr. Mott said. "We in America think there is a flood of literature abroad, but we have nothing in comparison with other lands. Tokyo, for example, has miles of bookshops. The press is reaching millions today that never knew anything beyond the borders of their own little communities only a few years ago. All this means that the doors of opportunty for Christ are equally wide open. The barriers of age-old custom and prejudice against the foreigner are now down. Faith and expectation on the part of the Christian Church are all that is necessary for the evangelization of the world."—Missionary Review.

All Things Through Christ

Brother O'Briant Passes

A telegram received early last Saturday morning brought to us information of the passing of this good man. We share the sadness of his family, and of his host of friends in the conference. It was a matter of deep regret to us not to be able to attend his funeral. We understand that a great concourse of friends was present to express admiration of this good man, and sympathy for his stricken famly. Surely a good man has gone from us. But he will live long in our memories, and in the influence of his good life. We extend our personal sympathy and the sympathy of the entire conference to his bereaved family. May the God of all comfort, heal their broken hearts, and give them peace. A committee will be appointed promptly to prepare an obituary in his honor, to be read at the conference memorial service.

Enfield

September 14.—We were permitted to participate in the dedication of this church on this date, together with Dr. T. M. Johnson, Rev. C. J. Edwards, and Rev. Euclid McWhorter, pastor of the Enfield M. E. Church. The pastor, Brother Auman, was in charge of the program. The church was presented for dedication by Mr R. C. Rives, chairman of the board of trustees. The three services of the day were well-attended, especially the morning and night services. This church is the outgrowth of Whitaker's Chapel, one of our centennial churches. The present building was erected during the pastorate of Rev. C. J. Edwards, in 1917-18. The opening service was held on the second Sunday in May, 1918, with Brother Edwards preaching the sermon. He was present also on this occasion, and spoke in the afternoon and at night. Dr. T. M. Johnson conducted a brief devotional service in the afternoon, and Brother McWhorter spoke felicitations on behalf of the other churches of the city. When this building was erected it was a considerable undertaking for a small congregation, the cost being about $15,500. But it was most likely the saving of our cause in that immediate community. The old church had come to be poorly located, and gave no promise of progress. The present membership is 103. During the pastorate of Brother D. R. Williams, a hut was built immediately back of the church at a cost of $1,200. There is still a small indebtedness on this building. The hut is used for Sunday School, and social purposes, and is no doubt a valuable housing addition to the work. We most heartily congratulate the church upon this auspicious day; for it is an auspicious day when a church can be dedicated. Brother Auman has provided a wise and zealous leader, and is seeking to promote the church along all lines. Among the organizations is a good Aid Society, with fifty members, and three C. E. Societies, with the Senior Society the largest and most aggressive of any young people's organization in the city. The church seems lacking in missionary activities, but no doubt this phase of the work will be developed as time goes on. The pastor is urging it, and our hope is that the Aid Society may be converted into an Auxiliary, according to the new order of women's work. Finances are behind, but the salary will be paid, we think, and earnest efforts will be made to raise the budgets. Some plans are working by which the financial strain here and at Whitaker's would be greatly relieved. We had a business conference with each charge in regard to the matter, and shall await the outcome with interest and concern.

Creswell

September 17-18.—These two days were given to this charge, and three churches were visited, with the first service at Mt. Hermon Wednesday night. On Thursday the appointment was at Rehoboth at 11 o'clock, and Creswell at night. The attendance at Mt. Hermon very well filled the house. At the other places it was not so large, though there was a very good attendance at Creswell. Brother Hethcox was away, helping a brother in a meeting, owing to engagement made before notice was given of our visit to his charge. We were sorry not to have him there, though we felt that he should keep his engagement.

At Mt. Hermon church the allotment to Board of Young People's Work was paid to us; the other two churches had already sent in their allotments. Brother Hethcox is closing his twelfth year here, and has many friends on the charge, and among other people, as well. We have splendid people on this charge, and it was gratifying to find the work generally in hopeful condition. Crops in that section seem much better than last year, and we trust that this blessing may be reflected in the total payments of the charge at the close. This work is a good friend to the Children's Home, as the Journal reports show.

We enjoyed our visit with these eastern charges, and we earnestly hope that the year may end well with each of them. We are grateful, too, for the kindnesses of pastors and people while on this visit.

Duplicate It

This good word comes today from Brother Pritchard: "We presented the HERALD Emergency Fund yesterday morning (that was Sunday morning) asking for $40.00, and received in cash and pledges, $55.00." Duplicate this, brethren, over and over again. This is both a necessary and worthy cause, and we must do our very best to raise this fund. There is no way of estimating the good that the HERALD has meant to our conference, and surely we will not be lacking in our support of the paper now, when the need is imperative. We are anxious for duplicates of this good report. Hurry the word along the line, brethren. It makes good reading for this weekly letter.

Church Officers

We are rapidly approaching the time of year when all church officers should be elected. Our opinion is that the best way to do this is through a nominating committee. This gives time and opportunity to think out carefully the most suitable persons for the various offices of the church. A committee can do this as it can not be done when the election is by nominations from the floor. And what ever you do ,don't elect the "old board." Of course you will not take me too seriously about that. There may be times when the "old board" should be elected; and at such times, that, of course, is the only thing to do. But electing the "old board," as a practice, is not good. The officers of church determine, in no small measure, its policy, and they should, therefore, be chosen with thoughtful and prayerful care.

And be sure to properly install them. The conference order of installation will be found in the Journal of 1928, page 83. This is good, but if pastors can formulate a better one, they are at liberty to do so. But by all means, properly install all church officers before the close of the conference year.

Fourth Quarterly Conferences

These are to be held now very soon, and they should certainly be well attended. The business of this year is to be completed by this conference, and plans are to be made for the ensuing year. We urge, now, the officials of these various charges to make every possible effort to attend these conferences. The Lord's business is involved, and certainly we must not let His cause suffer because of our failure to attend the business meetings of the church. We are sure that pastors will stress the importance of this.

S. W. TAYLOR.

September 23, 1930.

Rev. J. B. O'Briant Gone

Last week President Taylor reported the illness of Brother O'Briant. This week we are called on to report his death. We have a report of his funeral for another column. Brother O'Briant was a quiet man, his voice was rarely heard in the discussions of the conference floor, but he was a good preacher, a very good pastor, and a man of strong force of character. We believe his influence was always on the right side. We feel that in his going the church has sustained a great loss and that we have lost a warm personal friend. We can sympathize heartily with his dear ones now bereaved.

EVOLUTION'S SHAKY FOUNDATION

God seems to have raised up Bryan as a David to meet the challenge of the giant Evolution that is defying the armies of the God of the Bible as the pet champion of present-day Philistines (modernists, higher critics and advocates of new theology). Apropos to this, there has appeared an account of the last hours of Darwin, credited to an English Wesleyan publication. It shows amazing light upon the origin of the evolutionary theory and its shaky foundation:

"The Last Words of Darwin

"The following little account by Lady Hope of the death of Charles Darwin, the evolutionist, is startling. It is a most wonderful narrative and contains the account of a great and terrbile tragedy. The tragedy of Christendom for the past sixty years, the lapse from the true faith, the blight which has spoiled the Christian harvest, have here a surprisingly strange light cast upon them.

"Darwin is propped up in bed, and he looks out over the lovely landscape as the sun is setting. He is reading—the Bible! Says Lady Hope: 'I made some allusion to the strong opinions expressed by many persons on the history of the creation, its granduer, and then to their treatment of the earlier chapters of the Book of Genesis.

" 'He seemed greatly distressed, his fingers twitched nervously and a look of agony came over his face as he said, "I was a young man with unformed ideas. I threw out queries, suggestions, wondering all the time over everything; and to my astonishment the ideas took like wildfire. People made a religion of them."

" 'Was there ever a more dramatic scene? The very soul of tragedy is here exposed to us. Darwin, enthusiast for the Bible, speaking with glowing enthusiasm about the "grandeur of this Book," reminded of that modern evolutionary movement in theology which, linked with skeptical criticism, has become a blight in all the churches, and has destroyed biblical faith in multitudes—Darwin, with a look of agony, deploring it all and declaring, "I was a young man with unformed ideas," and imploring his visitor to gather servants, tenants and neighbors together and preach to them Jesus Christ.'

"This remarkable picture of Darwin is a challenge to every modernist. What an overwhelming criticism! The 'unformed ideas' of the young man Darwin are the basis of modern evolutionary theology!"—Rev. S. I. Keeler.

CHURCH UNITY IN THE EAST

Christians in the East have spoken on Church unity in a manner that deserves careful consideration. One hundred and seven of the leading Christians of India have spoken in a manifesto on Church union which puts the attitude of the East as succinctly as it could be expressed. The Indian Christians say, "It is felt by all that the attainment of unity is fundamental for India's progress." It is thought that this desire vigorously expresses itself in the Indian Churches as a movement for Church union. This spirit of union is in keeping with the spirit of tolerance of different forms of belief that has been peculiar to the people of India. The theological dogmas of the West have not dominated the Eastern mind, as they are not indigenous, and the Indian Christians are indifferent to them. They further hold that the existence of denominations tends to retard the growth of Christian experience and circumscribe the scope of its expression on those forms of thought and life which are most normal to the people. They believe that a united Church, free from the bonds of the present separated sects, will afford a congenial atmosphere for the Indian expression of Christianity.—The Christian Sun.

EMOTION IN RELIGION

In a conference for ministers held at Presbyterian Seminary, Chicago, this summer, Dr. W. C. Covert, general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Education, deplored the fact that organziation is replacing individual human emotions in religion. He declared that the Protestant Churches of America must "arise from their ecclesiastical routine," for they are in danger of being buried beneath the "dust of dignity" as well as being afflicted with "stereotyped terminology, insincerity, intellectual abstractions and diluted devotions." He mentions six points in which the churches err—the neglect of the emotions; the indifference of church people; the lack of appreciation of worship; the regularity of precedents and customs, the meaningless vows of fellowship; the devastated areas in the spiritual life of the church. The remedy recommended for the development of an emotional basis of religion on art, music, prayer and worship was the consideration of the possibilities of "the thrilling intimacy of a great brotherhood; the mystical appeal of divine worship; the spiritual wealth of a noble hymnology, and the obsecession of a great personal devotion to Jesus Christ."—The Christian Sun.

—In a lecture at Mansfield, Dr. Dinsdale T. Young said that the subject of one of his sermon-lectures was Samuel Bradburn, a poor boy, who once worked at a cobbler's bench, and who became a minister and president of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference. At one conference several ministers spoke of the sacrifices they had made, one saying that he had "given up his all" to take up the work of a Christian minister. Mr. Bradburn then rose, and, to the great amusement of the conference, said, "Brethren, when I came into this ministry I gave up half a dozen of the best awls that a man ever had."—Christian Herald.

—To unconverted persons, a great part of the Bible resembles a letter written in cipher. The Blessed Spirit's office is to act as God's decipherer, by letting His people into the secret of celestial experience, as the key and clew to those sweet mysteries of grace which were before as a garden shut up, or as a fountain sealed, or as a book written in an unknown character.—Toplady.

—According to The Bible Champion, the Chicago Tribune of February 25, 1914, carried this item: "The back rooms of 445 saloons in Chicago contribute to the delinquency of 14,000 girls every 24 hours." Still the Tribune is among the papers that want to do away with national prohibition.—Christian Sun.

OUR STORY PAGE

A LITTLE GIRL'S VICTORY

Two little girls were going to school one morning. Mary was the older and she had a penny which her mother had given her to spend on the way.

When Mary came into the school room she lost her penny. Her little friend saw her drop it and as it rolled toward her she placed her foot on it and waited until Mary quit hunting. Then she picked it up and put it in her pocket.

This little girl was very unhappy all morning. She could not study, for a little voice kept saying over and over —"You have Mary's penny."

When the bell rang at noon this little girl did not walk home with Mary, but went home alone.

On the way to school she passed a store where she meant to buy candy with Mary's penny. But this little voice kept speaking,' 'You have Mary's penny.'' So the little girl turned and ran all the way to the school-house and told Mary all about having her penny and gave it to her. How happy this little girl was then! She knew she had done what was right. This taught the little girl a lesson, and although she is a woman now she never tried to steal any money after that.

We should never keep anything which does not belong to us. Even if we should find something, if we know who lost it we should return it to them.—B. A. P., in Herald of Light.

A BOY WHO LISTENED

"Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart unto my knowledge" (Prov. 22:17).

Perhaps some of you will like to hear about the boy who listened. It is far better to be a listening boy than a talking boy. Stephen was taken by his father to visit his great-grandmother, and stayed the night.

The next morning he got up early and went no doubt to look at the farm. Then he made up a big fire for his great-grandmother, carrying in quite a heavy log of wood all by himself, and enjoying the fine blaze they made.

Then his great-grandmother said: "Now, my child, 'tis the prime of the morning, are ye ready for the teaching of Heaven? Do you want to hear the wonderful words that tell of the Son of the Blessed?"

"Yes," said Stephen, "tell me again how He rode on that young ass."

"'Tis what He showed forth that ye must think on, my child, how meek and gentle He was. Shall I read you how they led Him like a lamb to the slaughter, and how He stood like a sheep in the hands of the shearers and never opened His mouth?" Together they read the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, and his great-grandmother explained it to him.

During the morning some of the village people came in to see the great-grandmother. One after another Stephen let them in and listened to the wise and good counsel she gave them. To some she handed one of the garments she had been making, but to all she spoke of the Lord Jesus and tried to put each heart in touch with Him.

Stephen made up his little mind very decidedly on one point, either this dear old lady must go home with him or he must stay with her. She had taught him of Jesus, and he must stay by her and hear more.

Stephen's wish was quite right, but as he was only a little boy, not even old enough to go to school, he should have asked his father about it instead of deciding himself what to do.

When the visitors had gone, Stephen said, "I will take you home with me to my mother, there is plenty of room in our gig."

"Bless you, my child, but I am going up where no carriage of this earth can carry me."

"Where are you going?" asked Stephen.

"Up yonder, where that sunbeam glints down from the snow-clouds."

"How will you get there?" asked little Stephen as he looked up to the bright opening in the heavy winter sky.

"The Lord Jesus lives up there," replied the old lady. "He lives up there, 'tis the House of His Father, and He has promised to come back again for all who love Him."

"I love Him," said Stephen, "will He take me with you?"

"Ah, child, you must trust Him first here, get His words in your heart, they are all written in the Bible, they'll teach you to please Him, and then one day He will take you."—Sunlight for the Young.

WHAT SORT OF EYES

Johnny often wished he could see Jesus. He would like to have been one of those children who got into His arms and received His blessing. He would like to have been in the ruler's house when Jesus raised his little girl from death.

One day the superintendent of the Sunday School, talking to his scholars, said they could see Jesus with the eye of faith. Johnny, who was listening, was very much taken by the words, "could see Jesus with the eye of faith." "Oh, what sort of eyes are they?" the little boy thought. He forgot everything else the superintendent said. Perhaps he told with the eyes of faith were; but Johnny was thinking, and as he could not understand what they were, he pushed up to his teacher, and asked, "Are they spectacle eyes?"

His teacher could not answer then, because she was hearing the lesson; but after it was through she called Johnny to her side, and asked him who he was named for. "My uncle that lives in St. Louis," answered the little boy with some surprise in his face. "How do you know you have an uncle there?" she asked. "Oh, I know it" said Johnny, "I know because he sends me things." "How do you know he sends them?" asked Miss Jay. "Oh, I know because he writes to your affectionate Uncle John'."
me,' answered the little boy, "And his letters all say, 'From

His teacher looked as if, after all, there were not sure proof. He saw the look. "Oh, I know," went on the little boy, "because folks have seen him there, and they told me; and if I grow up a good boy, he's promised to take me and help me. Oh, I'm just as sure, as sure as if I had seen him!" and Johnny did look as sure as he could be.

"You never saw him with your two eyes," said Miss Jay. Johnny shook his head. "But you believe in him just as fully as if you had." Johnny nodded. "Well, that is seeing him with the eye of faith," said his teacher. Johnny's face flushed with a strange new thought. "That is the way we see Jesus Christ," she said. "Jesus sends us things. He gives us the sun to warm and light us, corn to eat and cotton to wear. He has written to us; the Bible is His Word. Other folks have seen Him. Peter saw Him, and John and Matthew, and they tell us what He said and did. And He promises to take us Himself into Heaven, if we trust Him and do His will."

Johnny listened with his heart as well as with his mind. They were both wide open to receive teachings; and Miss Jay spoke slowly and plainly that he might take it all in.

"Eyes of faith is seeing things with your heart," said Johnny at last, "making you feel sure."

"Yes," answered the teacher, "that's it, we believe God and take Him at His Word."

The little boy carried home with him a new and precious thought from the Sunday School that day. It was a seed of thought, which he kept in his heart; and often prayed the little prayer, "Open, O Lord, my eyes of faith to see and know Thee, and love good and hate wickedness!"—Publisher Unknown.

PROHIBITION NOT OVERCROWDING JAILS

"Contrary to the usual unfounded claims of the wets, prohibition is not overcrowding State and Federal prisons. According to official statistics recently published in the Congressional Record, there were 116,670 prisoners in the State prisons January 1, 1930, of which 4,037 were prohibition violators; seven states had no prohibition violators at all in their State prisons, namely: New York, Nevada, Montana, Arizona, New Hampshire, Louisina and North Carolina. New Jersey had one solitary bootlegger in the State's prison; there were two in Wisconsin and three in Utah.

"In Federal prisons there were 11,270 prisoners, making a total of all prisoners in Federal and State penitentiaries of 127,490 on January 1, 1930, on which date there was a grand total of 7,158 prohibition violators in all prisons, about 5 1-2 per cent. of the total, a proportion far too small to cause general overcrowding. The increase and excess of prisoners is caused by theft, burglary, larceny, forgery, assault and hold-ups."—The National Enquirer.

A LONG TASK

The final adjustment of the complex relations between labor and capital may not be expected in a short time. The creation of a body of principles that will insure justice in the economic field must be the issue of many experiments, in which the results of trial and error have to be reckoned with. Therefore, patience is necessary and the impossible may not be demanded for immediate delivery.

This imposes a severe test on the mutual forbearance of both parties. When the pinch of poverty is felt in the homes that cluster around factory and mine, when the actual problems of manufacture and sale are borne by owners and employers, it is not easy to wait until adjustments may be worked out that will bring better conditions to both parties. One can hardly be patient or philosophically calm when the rent is not paid.

If there is one place above others where religion ought to come into the problem, it is here. The practise of patience and the confidence in the final triumph of justice in all human relations are the particular gift of religion in its broadest understanding and interpretation. The Christian message is particularly pertinent on Labor's Sunday.—Dr. O. S. Davis in Zion's Herald.

EVERY-DAY RELIGION

Every-day religion is needed in the home for family prayers, training children, and to bear the trails and bereavements that come in the spirit of resignation to the divine will. "Thy will be done," repeated only on Sunday, will not sustai nthe widow in her loss and strengthen her for every good word and work. She needs His grace every day, and His "grace is sufficient." Temptations are every-day experiences, and it requires every-day religion to overcome them. Sunday religion is the blossom and fruit of every-day religion. There is no spiritual Sunday religion where there is no every-day religion. The man in the field, the shop, in the train, the steamship, t he school room, the study, the office, the court-room, the mine, the air, on the beach, needs the presence and help of the Holy Spirit to make him faithful in the every-day tasks of life. The woman in the kitchen, the sewing-room, the nursery, the store, the school-room, the hospital, the parlor, the club-room, society, everywhere, and every day needs a consciousness of the presence of Jesus Christ in her life, her home, and her work. It is the every-day revolution of the earth that gives day and night, sunshine and stars; and religious through the day makes hours of sleep safe and sweet.

Officials in high and low positions need religion every day. Temptations to neglect duty, accept graft, to carelessness in office, creep into the daily life, and it takes real, every-day religion to keep officials from doing wrong or neglecting right. The influence of officials over private citizens is a great opportunity for serving God every day, and nothing can satisfy that demand but every-day religion that operates all the time.

Servants occupy a place in life where religion may count most in daily service. The highest position is that of a servant. There are all grades of servants from the lowest menial position to the highest office. Servants can illustrate true religion in its obedient and saving form. Jesus was servant of all; and that was the highest position. He filled while He went about doing good. Ministers of the gospel are servants not only on Sunday in the pulpit, but every day of the week. Their life counts more than their rhetoric and oratory on Sunday. Ministers and laymen alike are measured by their every-day religion. One who will not perform his duty during the week need not try to praise God on Sunday. Sunday is the day to express religion in public worship, but the week is the time to cultivate the virtues and graces that make worship acceptable to God and profitable to men.—W. W. Suggestions for the Leader

This would be a fine time to consider the needs of the community in which you live and see wherein you can help. There are numerous people all about us who need our help and who are waiting for someone to make a start. Are you going to wait for the other fellow to do what you should do and get the blessing you should have?

If everyone tries in every way to live like Christ the community will be helped. A Christian life is the best contribution one can make to a community. If more folks would look for more opportunities to help other folks and remove all selfishness from their lives this would be a grand old world. This lesson helps to lift our eyes from self and things of self, to the needs of others, and the many ways of helping to supply these needs. Christian Endeavor is helping to bring the spirit of Christ, which is also the spirit of helpfulness, into the lives of millions of the world's youth today.

The church may be the center of the life of a community providing spiritual, physical, recreational, and education lines of work. Christ is the Master of all life, and His church must express His interest.

Sometimes it may seem that our opportunities for service are small, but perhaps we only need to have our eyes opened to see the chances to help that are everywhere about us.

Suitable songs: "A Little Bit of Love," "Help Somebody Today," "If Your Life Rings true," "Will There Be Any Stars?" and "Following Jesus."

Topics for Discussion

1. What is one need in our community?
2. What is the greatest service that our Christian Endeavor can render to the folks of our community?
3. What ways are open to us to help more folks get to church?
4. What can we do now that will help the folks of our community in years to come?
5. Why should one seek to help others?
6. Who is your neighbor?
7. If Christ were a young man living in our community, what would He find to do for others?

Quotations and Poetry

"The Master went about doing good. One of the most important tests of fellowship with Him is service. Endeavorers singly and as a society should be interested in all community projects and help them along.—Anon.

THE GREATEST OF TREASURES

"We may travel over mountain and meadow,
We may journey through valley and dell;
We may ride on the waves of the ocean,
And hear the sweet story they tell;
But unless we bear burdens for others,
And lift up the heads that are bent,
We can never hope to discover
That greatest of treasures—content.

We may dwell in a palace of splendor,
We may juggle with nuggets of gold;
But unless we are loving and tender,
Our hearts will be heavy and cold.
Help others. The way will grow brighter,
The way that the Nazarene went,
And lo, our own load will be lighter,
And we'll find that great treasure, content.

WEST END M. P. CHURCH CELEBRATES THIRTEENTH ANNIVERSARY

West End celebrated its 13th anniversary Sunday with an especially prepared program for both the morning and evening services.

During the morning service, in addition to an inspiring sermon by the pastor, Dr. P. E. Lindley, on the subject of "A Good Church," a brief memorial service honoring the members who have passed on to their reward was conducted and a condensed history of the church read.

At the evening hour Rev. J. Elwood Carroll brought a most interesting message on "Youth and the New Church."

A very important featuer of both the morning and evening service was the many beautiful vocal and instrumental musical selections which had been prepared by the choir for this occasion.

Following is the history of the church as read to the congregation assembled Sunday morning:

"In the fall of 1916, Rev. R. M. Andrews and a few members of Grace Methodist Protestant Church made a survey of West Greensboro for the purpose of establishing a new Methodist Protestant church. The result of this survey was that plans for building a new church were immediately started. A donation of $1,500 from the Annual Conference, subscriptions of $2,300 from the community and a gift from Grace Church of $300 made possible this beginning.

"The building was begun in the early spring of 1917, and on September 23 of the same year Rev. R. M. Andrews and Rev. N. G. Bethea organized West End Church with a membership of 32, an unfinished building, and an indebtedness of $1,800.

Just six years later, this little group, now grown to 200, worshipped in a building completed, and free of debt.

"Four years later, or in 1927, another important milestone in the history of the church was reached. In order to take care of the ever-increasing membership of the church school, with its many opportunities and responsibilities, a new church school building, consisting of modern housing arrangements for the Primary, Junior, Intermediate, and Senior Departments of the school, was erected at a cost of near $15,000. This, of course, was made possible through a loan. Today this building is filling an important place in the life of our church.

"On the first Sunday in October, 1917, the Sunday school was organized—the records show 52 members.

"In the nearly 13 years since its organization the church school has made an unusually fine record, and has been the chief constructive force of the church. Thirteen years ago 52, meeting in one room—today, 343 strong, meeting in five fully organized and progressive departments, which are manned by 30 loyal and devoted officers and teachers. Through this organization a large percentage of the annual payments on our building fund is being secured.

"Next, after the organization of the church school came the Ladies' Aid Society; then in 1921 the Home Missionary Society was organized, and in 1922 the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. All these societies made enviable records, but in May of 1929, following a ruling of the General Conference of our church, the three organizations were merged, forming one organization known as the Woman's Auxiliary. This organization is doing a most splendid work—these women, divided into three circles, are working almost unceasingly for their Master through this avenue of the church.

"During some periods in the life of West End church we have boasted of three C. E. Societies, at present we have just one—a wide-awake and alert Intermediate society, which at present is the proud holder of both the City and State award for best all-round society.

"The Girl Scouts must be accorded a place among the organizations of our church. They were organized in 1927, and at present are doing good work under the able leadership of Mrs. A. E. Pleasants.

"The youngest of West End's organizations is that of the Men's Brotherhood, which was formed in February of this year. We predict for this organization a prominent place among the many progressive organizations of our church in the years to come.

"After having reviewed the beginning of West End, its organizations, and growth, we would like to name a number of ministers and laymen who have in various ways aided us, but the list is large and their share in the progress of the church is no small part.

"During these 13 years, five pastors have served us, the first, Rev. R. A. Hunter; second, Rev. N. M. Harrison; third, Rev. E. Lester Ballard; fourth, Dr. J. D. Williams, and, fifth, our present pastor, Dr. P. E. Lindley.

"We shall make no attempt to review their pastorates separately. But we rejoice today for the result of their labor. All have ministered to the soul needs of our members, the community, and our city. To these consecrated servants of the Master there shall yet come joy as they see more and more of the fruits of their tireless labors in the Master's Kingdom at West End.

"The man who plants a needed tree
To grow when he is gone
Leaves there a part of his own life
Which in that tree lives on,
Still greater he who plants a thought
That grows in minds of men:
Transplanted then from man to man,
In each he lives again."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Calvary, Greensboro.—And how goes it at Calvary? Very well, thank you. Last week we closed a very successful revival. There were eight accessions on the Sunday of the meeting, and one more came in yesterday. The attendance was unusually fine, and I have never seen better interest shown on the part of the membership. The influence of the meeting, especially in the matter of personal work, continues, and will bear fruit in still other additions to the membership. Brother Suits did most effective preaching.

And we are making progress on our finances, especially the debt. When the note at the bank is renewed the first of the month we will have paid another hundred dollars. Two years ago it was $2,000. Now it is $850. The Calendar Club-penny-a-day, is responsible for a good part of this reduction. But the Woman's auxiliary is due a great deal of glory. I take my hat off to the finest group of women I know. And, which it better, it is more than an efficient money raising machine. These women are active in almost every other line of endeavor.

The women folks are busy getting ready for their booth at the Fair. All you who read this, look for the sign "Calvary Church," and if you need anything to eat or drink, patronize us.

"Promotion Day" will be observed on the first Sunday in October, at the Sunday school session. At night the "Thank Offering Service" of the Mission auxiliary will be held.

The Stewards are meeting tonight to take steps to wind up this year's finances, and lay plans for next year's. In spite of the depression, we are in excellent shape, and expect to be on the Honor Rolls a hundred per cent.

We have had a delightful, happy and prosperous year. And we wish all the churches in the conference the same.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

Asheboro.—Yesterday morning just before the sermon the writer took about five minutes in presenting the Herald Emergency Fund and placed four secretaries in the aisles to receive the pledges from the people. We asked for forty dollars and rceived pledges and cash to the amount of fifty-five dollars.

In the absence of the pastor who will be assisting Brother Gerringer in a meeting in Burlington next Sunday, Rev. N. M. Harrison of Charlotte will preach both morning and evening.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Concord.—The usual services are being held with very good attendance. The S. S. attendance for the past few Sundays has been 354 and 349. Dr. R. M. Andrews of High Point was the speaker at the morning hour Sunday, and brought a splendid message which was enjoyed by all. Dr. Andrews also spoke to about 40 members of the Young People's class in S. S. by special invitation of the teacher, Mrs. D. A. McLaurin.

Our folks have been much distressed over the serious illness of Maxine Litaker, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Litaker, who has been ertically ill for two weeks. We trust that she will soon be restored to her health.

One of our members, Mrs. A. L. Winecoff, died in the Concord hospital on August 26. Funeral services were held in the church and were in charge of our pastor, Brother Millaway, assisted by Rev. E. E. Snow of the M. E. church. Besides her husband Mrs. Winecoff leaves two chilren, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holland, and several brothers and sisters.

Mrs. J. S. Polk is confined to her home by illness.

On Saturday, September 13, Miss Lorene Craven and Glenn H. Knight were married. Mrs. Knight is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Craven, and a teacher in our Sunday school. Mr. Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Knight of Monroe, N. C., and holds a position with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. in Charlotte, N. C. This splendid young couple has the congratulations of the enttire church. For the present they are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McLaurin.

Why Not Charge.—The annual camp meeting at Love Joy began the second Sunday, and closed Friday night following. The writer occupied the pulipt on Sunday morning, and Rev. J. W. Hulin afternoon an dat night. Brother Hulin preached twice during the week. His earnestness and zeal made him a valuable helper throughout.

On Monday morning Rev. J. R. Anderson of Albemarle came, and and stayed until the close Friday night. Brother Anderson's preaching was Biblical, pointed, convincing, and inspiring. Every message was delivered with a remarkable degree of enthusiasm. There were eight professions and numerous requests for prayer.

One of the important and interesting features of the meeting was the singing, led by Bro. Arlindo Reynolds. Love Joy has the best all around choir that has ever sung for this writer. I doubt that any rural church can surpass them.

On next Sunday our meeting at New Zion will begin. Rev. E. A. Bingham will assist. This meèting, the eighth, will close the round on this work.

Wm. H. NEESE.

◆

Concord.—At the third quarterly conference about two weeks ago, Brother W. J. Widenhouse was declared elected delegate to the Annual Conference to be held in Albemarle, N. C. Finances considerably behind, but we are hoping that it may turn out better than it seems now.

G. F. MILLAWAY.

◆

West Forsyth.—Attendance at Sunday school and the church services at Pleasant Hill last Sunday was good. We are glad to have had a number of visitors in the congregation at the church service. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered by the pastor after the sermon and a large number of people participated in the service. Mrs. Adelia Long, one of the oldest and most faithful membebrs of Pleasant Hill, who has been preparing and furnishing the elements for the Lord's Supper for the past thirty-five years, was ill Sunday morning and was not present.

The annual revival meeting will begin at Pleasant Hill church the third Sunday in October. Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, is the engaged help.

We have been remembered with appropriate gifts for our dining table by a number of people for the past two weeks, for which we are thankful. Those making the gifts were Mrs. W. W. Whitman, of Tabernacle church; Mrs. J. F. Hunter and Mrs. E. M. Long, of Pleasant Hill church; Mrs. Pearson Sprinkle, a neighbor who is a member of the Baptist church. Bro. Walter Long, of Pleasant Hill church, has our thanks for a nice watermelon; also Prof. W. B. Speas, superintendent of Pleasant Hill Sunday school, was the donor of a nice watermelon.

The pastor and family had as their guests for dinner last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree, and niece, Miss Olive Anderson, of Tobaccoville. They are members of Pleasant Hill church and came home with the pastor after the service. They surprised the pastor's wife by bringing with them a box of nice things to eat and placed it on the dining table and all enjoyed the combination of the visitors' lunch and the pastor's dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Harrell and daughter, Miss Cleo Harrell, and Miss Hobson, of East Bend, were pleeasant visitors in the home of the pastor last Sunday afternoon. Bro. Harrell, who is a member of Tabernacle church on this charge, is the banker at East Bend, and his daughter, who taught in our Children's Home two years ago, is a member of the high school faculty in the East Bend school. Miss Hobson also teaches in the East Bend school.

We will begin our revival meeting at Harmony Grove church next Sunday morning, which will continue through the following week. The pastor has been asked by the church to do the preaching during the meeting.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Glen Raven, Haw River Charge.—Not many of us like to grow old, yet is nice to have a birthday, especially when you get a big pounding, receive many nice presents, as the writer did last Thursday, September 18. This was just a big surprise the C. E. society of Glen Raven church gave, and a very glad one, at that, to their pastor.

To each one who shared in this, the writer feels very grateful, and may he so live as to cause you never to be sorry for the kind things you have done for him.

I will take time and space to say that our work on this charge is going very well. After the usual summer slump, our attendance is getting better, and interest seems very good. We are behind some with finances at both churches, but at present we are putting forth a special effort to make a good showing on all claims, if not pay them in full. Haw River church thinks they can pay both A. C. B. and G. C. B. in full, and we hope Glen Raven will do as well.

Our special evangelistic efforts this summer resulted in 87 conversions and 22 accessions to church membership. We are not satisfied with this and "Upon our dead selves may we climb to higher things."

Shiloh.—Today was a good day for Shiloh. The Tithers' service was the best service we have had in a long time. A good congregation heard a stirring sermon by our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, on "Obedience." Just beind the altar rail sat three chairs on which tood three posters. On the first was this ext from Malachi 3:8: "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me in tithes and offerngs." On the second were these words from I Cor. 9:7: "God loveth a cheerful giver." On the third we saw 1 Cor. 16:2: "Give as God has prospered you." At the end of the ermon, as Willie Vergh Leonard played softy, "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone," the ongregation silently, reverently marched by he altar and left there the tithe gift, and rom the looks on their faces they enjoyed it. Many eyes were moist, but shining with joy. Of course you want to know how much the ffering was. Indeed you shall. It was 93.94. If only the church would bring all he tithes into the storehouse, how God's work would prosper. Yes, and we believe the droughts and beetles and devouring pests would disappear. No life is so happy, so omplete as that one laid on God's altar. Do you believe it? Try it.

We are glad to welcome Robert Leonard, of Albemarle, back home for today. Also with him was his friend, Mr. Hatley. Always glad to have our home boys back. Come gain.

Lyman, eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. Troxer, was home from High Point College today. He says he enjoyed his first week there ine.

Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Leonard, as also gone to college at High Point, this eing his third year there.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Adam Young, of Churchland, worship with us today.

Bro. J. L. Evans today got up to make a ew remarks. He said he expected to disappoint the folks, for he knew they were expecting to hear something about money. But, o, he just wanted to know how many wanted Bro. Troxler back for another year, and sked all who did to rise. We think the whole church rose to its feet at once. So he oon found out what he wanted to know; nd we mean it from our hearts, Bro. Troxer.

On next Sunday night at 7 o'clock President S. W. Taylor will preach at Shiloh. Be ure to come, for Bro. Taylor always hac a message worth while.

South Lexington.—Work is going along nicely. Our Sunday school is looking good; we had 217 present Sunday. The Sunday chool is planning on having a supper on next Saturday evening, beginning at 5 o'clock and a large crowd is expected to attend; the proceeds of the supper will go to the church. We were glad to have with us Rev. J. W. Parker, of Randleman, who preached for us at both services Sunday. Rev. Parker is well known here, as he is the brother of he late J. C. Parker, of this city. There were large crowds at both services and every one seemed to enjoy the services very much.

We are planning to have a revival meeting the first week in October. Rev. D. I. Garner will be the pulpit help. Bro. Garner helped in a meeting here last year and he is well thought of. We are hoping to have a good revival and we ask the prayers of all Christian people that we may have and that many souls may be saved during the meetng. PHONSE BEAN, Reporter.

First Church, Thomasville.—Our Sunday school is getting along fine. The contest that was put on seemed to help the school. Although the attendance is not as high as we hope for, a large per cent of the classes stay for the closing exercises that did not stay before the contest was put on. The Sunday school as a whole seems to have profited by the contest.

On the last Sunday night in August our own children of the Children's Home gave a splendid program at our church. The children were well trained by one of the young ladies of the Home. After the Children's program Dr. Dixon gave a talk on the needs of the Home. Mrs. Dixon told us, in a short speech, many interesting things about the Home. I think, since their visit, that our people have a clearer idea of the Home and what it is trying to do.

Our revival meeting has just closed. The whole church has been made better as a result of these services. The pastor's help during the meeting was Rev. Elwood Carroll. He brought us a fine message at every service and I think that everyone who heard him was helped. In the absence of Mr. Carroll, Dr. H. W. Maier preached for us. We not only had good preaching, but we also had good singing. The Thomasville male chorus sang for us twice and the Madison brothers once. Eight young ladies and men gave their hearts and lives to Christ. On last Sunday morning four of this number joined our church. The others were already members. Those joining our church were: Miss Mamie Perry, Mr. Vern Dorsett, Mr. Chester Baity, and Mr. Woodrow Myers. We want to thank everyone who in any way helped to make the meeting a success.

On last Sunday night our former pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, preached for us. His subject was "Occupy until I come." Everyone was glad to see and hear one who has served us so well.

Our church was made sad by the passing of one of its faithful Sunday school members, Mr. E. L. Widows, who came to church every Sunday that he could until he was stricken. He had been ill for some time. He had an operation, but this seemed to do no good and he kept getting weaker and weaker until his soul took its flight into the beyond. May God's richest blessing be upon his bereaved wife and and children.

Our church is planning for a home-coming day on the first Sunday in October. There will be all-day services with dinner on the grounds. We are hoping to have a large number of our former pastors and members present. The public is invited.

First Church, High Point.—At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning Miss Mildred Luce, the new teacher of violin at High Point College, delighted the congregation with a lovely solo, "Cavatina," by Bohm, and Miss Margaret Sloan, who has returned for another year's work in the Music Department, sang "The Lord Is My Light" with fine effect and beautiful voice. After extending a cordial and earnest welcome to President and Mrs. Humphreys, the faculty and students of High Point College, Rev. R. I. Farmer delivered an eloquent and masterful sermon on "The Romance of a Christian's Heritage." He said in part: The age of romance still lives and will live as long as the human heart beats within the human breast. There was an era of chivalry in the olden days, but I want to tell us that in America there is still opportunity for romanticism and idealism. The difference between the romance of former days and the present is that we are making great advances in the realm of intelligence, industry, and science; the first third of this century has been the age that produced Byrd, Lindbergh, radio, world prohibition, woman suffrage, and many other marvels, and is an era of wonderful romance and adventure. In these days we are challenged with the fact that God sent forth His son, and thus made us His heirs. When your name is written in the Book of Life, you become heirs of God. There are two propositions in this Christian heritage which I wish to discuss: (1) That Jesus Christ was the Savior of the world. You must get right with God before you can do right. Paul said: "I beseech you that you become reconciled to God." All have sinned and come short of the glory of God, but when He forgives our sins, they are blotted out. He was such a man that the blood of all nations flowed in His veins; He was the incarnation of God in human flesh. He is the only antidote for sin. (2) Because Christ is what He is, He has a right to be Master of all human relationships. Whatever you are or have, you belong to Christ. How can we call upon God and act so beastly as we sometimes do? A German minister said: "We do not consult God in affairs of state." Small wonder that the World War went against them! Emerson said: "It was a great day when you turned the corner and met Jesus face to face." You students of the college, I want to tell you that it is the greatest day of your lives when you come face to face with Christ, and accept Him as your personal Savior! You will make a great blunder if you do not accept and walk hand in hand with Him in life's early morning, "while the evil days come not." "Fear God and keep His commandments; for this is the whole duty of man."

At 7:30 o'clock the evening service was something different from the ordinary, and centered around the hymns that have been a wonderful religious influence through the ages, such as "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Oh, For a Heart to Praise My God," and several others. Mr. Norman Dement, a pupil at the college, played as a violin solo Grieg's exquisite "To Spring" at this service.

Worship in the Junior Church was conducted by Mrs. Richard Shaw Sunday morning. Having had considerable experience with children and young people as a teacher before her marriage, she is an admirable leader of this group. Mrs. S. S. Coe is chairman of the committee to plan for this phase of the work until Conference convenes in November.

The Young People's C. E. Society enjoyed a delightful wienie roast Monday evening at Municipal Park, Jamestown. Mr. Arnold J. Koonce, past state president, made an inspiring address.

The mid-week prayer service will be held as usual on Wednesday evening, when the minister will use as the subject for his theme, "Fishermen For Christ."

Next Sunday morning, September 28th, the Annual Thank-Offering Service of the Woman's Auxiliary will be observed.

On Sunday, October 5th, Promotion Day exercises will be held for the church school, and a short Rally Day program will be presented. Mrs. L. R. Peacock is chairman of the committee on program. The offering, which is given credit on our budget, goes to the Board of Education.

First Church is co-operating in the Evangelistic Campaign, which will begin simultaneously in all the churches of High Point on Sunday, October5th, and continue as long as interest justifies. Cottage prayer meetings will be held for a week previous. The minister will conduct these services and do the preaching.

On last Monday afternoon the Junior Missionary Society held its monthly meeting at the church with Mrs. Ross H. Davis as leader.

At a brilliant reception in Roberts Hall dining room, honoring new students, the faculty of the college entertained last Thursday evening. Every member of the faculty and 200 students were in attendance. The receiving line was composed of Dr. and Mrs. G. I. Humphreys, Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Andrews, Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. P. E. Lindley, Dr. and Mrs. P. S. Kennett, Dean Spessard, Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, Misses Vera Idol and Mabel Williams, Prof. and Mrs. J. Hobart Allred, Mrs. Henry A. White, Prof. J. H. Mourane, Prof. and Mrs. Walter McCanless, Miss Naomi Morris, Prof. E. O. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Green, Coach Julian F. Beall, Prof. Ben H. Hill, Mr. Floyd Garrett, Prof. E. B. Stimson, Miss Margaret Sloan, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, Rev. and Mrs. R. I. Farmer, and Miss Mildred Luce. Miss Mary Young, dean of women, introduced the guests to the receiving line. Miss Vera Idol was general chairman of arrangements and acted as toastmistress for the delightful program; Dr. Humphreys spoke words of greeting to the students, Mrs. J. H. Allred rendered a vocal solo, Professor McCanless gave a reading, Miss Sloan rendered a beautiful piano solo, and Prof. Paul Kennett read a group of poems by John Charles McNeill. Two contests were enjoyed, followed by delicious refreshments.

Miss Claire Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Douglas, has won unusual distinction for herself and for High Point College by obtaining the A. M. degree from the University of North Carolina in four quarters, after graduating from the college with the class of 1929. She specialized in Romance Languages, and has won this merited honor by close application, native talent, and industry. This distinction brings acknowledgement of the college's high rating by the University and recognition of its high standard of work. Miss Douglas has won praise and congratulations from countless friends here and elsewhere.

Miss Dorothy Rankin, accompanied by her father, Capt. A. M. Rankin, and sister, Mrs Lewis Teague, left Monday morning for Westminster, Md., where she will enter Western Marylanl College as a student.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman.—It has been some time since you have heard from Mt. Lebanon, but we are still moving along nicely. In spite of hard times we are making some progress financially also.

Our pastor filled his appointment Sunday evening preaching, a very forceful sermon to a large congregation. This is the second sermon we have had from Brother Williams since his vacation in August. Although he had a vacation he did not have much rest, for he assisted in two revivals during that time.

Revival services are in session at Salem church, with Rev. M. C. Henderson, of Cherryville, doing the preaching.

Brother Henderson also preached during the revival at Level Cross, which closed one week ago with perhaps 30 converts and reclamations. He is not a stranger among us, as he was with us last year. This year he was welcomed by many friends.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold a very important meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. B. Nelson.

Prayer meeting for next Wednesday evening was called off on account of the revival at Salem and the Christian church.

Our people were deeply saddened by the death Saturday of our former pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Briant. He worked among us for seven year and was greatly beloved by all the people. Our pastor paid a beautiful tribute to him in his sermon Sunday evening. I am sure that the sympathy of our entire membership goes out to Mrs. O'Briant and the children. REPORTER.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, delivered another splendid sermon here Sunday morning. After the sermon the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was observed. At the close of the service C. G. Hunter presented the matter of raising the pastor's salary. As there was not a very large representation present it was decided to leave it until the next preaching service to make the decision.

The next appointment here, which will be the third Sunday in October, will be the day for the beginning of our revival meeting. Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, is expected to arrive on Sunday and be here during the week to assist Mr. Way in these services.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. C. E. Holder last Tuesday night for the regular monthly meeting.

Miss Normae Whitman will be hostess to the Junior Missionary Society next Saturday afternoon. All members of this organization are urged to be present for this meeting, which will be held at 3 o'clock.

We regret very much to report the serious illness of one of our loyal Sunday school and church members, Mrs. C. E. Sprinkle, who has been a patient at the Lawrence Hospital in Winston-Salem for the past five weeks. The latest reports show some improvement in his condition. We pray that he will continue to improve and will soon be back home anl able to attend S. S. and church again, as he has been greatly missed during his illness.

Fallston Charge, Laurel Hill.—On Sunday morning, September 12, our faithful pastor preached a very effective sermon on the "Duties of the Officials of the Church." The duties of the class leaders, trustees, and stewards were discussed. One point brought out was the qualifications of a church official. It was brought out that they must be full of the Holy Ghost and have the ability for their office.

The last quarterly conference for this yea will be held at Hebron church the firs Saturday in November. Let's all get busy an remember how good the Lord has been to u for the past year anl then remember wha part we owe to Him. Let's all make a report so our good pastor and we will not be ashamed of it.

Our dear pastor has been with us seven years and we sincerely hope that our delegates will bring him back to us for another year.

Our Sunday school is getting along fine, but it isn't what we would like for it to be. We want to see it grow more in number and spirit.

Three of our Sunday school girls left for college last week. Miss Sadie Mull went to Greensboro, while Misses Gala and Daisy Sain went to Lenoir-Rhyne.

Rev. J. M. Morgan was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Young Sunday.

We were very glad to have several visitors to worship with us on last Sunday.

Yarborough Charge.—Our delegate to the Annual Conference, Brother W. H. Balentine, of Harmony church, has been duly elected and reported to the Conference secretary. Our hopes are that our delegate will have the best report that this charge has sent in for a number of years, in spite of the financial depression.

Brother G. H. Hendry, of State Street, Lexington, N. C., was our pulpit help during our special meetings. The meetings here, we feel, have been very successful. Yarborough's Chapel revival was well attended—much better than usual. Perhaps the outcome is not what it would have been if we had had more time. Harmony church revival was a success spiritually as well as numerically. There were 11 conversions and nine accessions. We are grateful to Brother Hendry for his efforts on our behalf. Both the church and the communities were greatly pleased with his service and are anxious for his return.

The C. E. societies are both progressing nicely. The young people of our church have been wonderfully benefited by this society. It has been such a help to the church, we think, that no church would be complete without this society.

We have been very fortunate this year in that we have lost only one member from each church by death, Brother Bishop of Yarborough's church, and Sister Buzhardt, of Harmony church. But there has been much sickness among our people during this conference year. At this writing we have several of our number sick. Mrs. Gilmore Watson has been in bed for a number of weeks, but shows improvement. Brothers Gilmore Watson and Brack Gossett have just recently recently recoverel, but are unable to carry on their work. Clarence Killingsworth, of Harmony, who is a candidate for church membership, is recovering from an attack of pneumonia. As Sister Killingsworth and family were returning from church Sunlay their car overturned and all received slight injuries. We hope for all these sick and injured a speedy recovery.

The people on this work have been very thoughtful and kind to the pastor and family in many ways this year. They have been especially thoughtful in supplying us with table necessities from time to time. We appreciate ll these things.

Little Miss Lois Annette Broome, our three weeks' old daughter, wishes to thank friends who have remembered her with gifts and greetings.

Roberta.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. We have beaten Concord church for the past three Sundays. We have not gotten the report from Concord for yesterday, Sepember 21.

Rally Day will be observed at Roberta on Sunday, September 28. A program is being arranged by Misses Mae Blackwelder and Gertrude Furr and Mrs. John Penninger.

There will be choir practice Friday night.

All members of the Men's Bible class are asked to meet at the church next Frilay night o practice singing.

The Music Lovers Quartet of Westford M. E. church, Concord, was present Sunday and rendered some very fine singing.

Rev. Mr. Short left yesterday afternoon to conduct a meeting in Davie county.

All visitors are welcome at our church at any time. MISS ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—On last Sunday we had the opportunity of hearing our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, preach at Tabernacle church, Forsyth charge. It was a fine sermon indeed. Text, sa. 9:6: "And his name shall be called Wonderful." He is wonderful in eyes, watching over us. Wonderful in ears, He hears all our prayers, griefs, and joys. Wonderful in words of cheer; He holds our hands to keep us from falling; Wonderful in heart, cheering us along life's pathway as we journey upward; Wondeful in spirit, to guide us when we faint and falter. This is, of course, only a few of the good things Bro. Way told us. We again listened to another of his sermons at 2:30 p. m. over at Union Hill M. P. church. This was a splendid sermon from the text, Matt. 16:18: "Upon this rock will I build my church." Clearly did he point out the four cornerstones of the church; first, Faith is one cornerstone; Spirit, another one; Love is another; and Honesty is another. I must say to all who did not avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing both sermons that they have lost spiritual blessings uncounted. At both services a letter from our beloved president, Rev. S. W. Taylor, was read; the effects remain to be seen, and God grant they may be seen in the right way.

At Union Hill we walked over the cemetery with a Mr. Baker, who pointed out to us the first grave made there, that of his own infant daughter, Mary, only about three months old; born in 1877, which is now over 50 years ago.

May I say we have numbers of times planned to "play a trick" on Bro. Way just this very way. We all had a happy day together Sunday.

Much success to all. X Y Z

Reidsville.—We came home the other night after a visit to friends in Maryland and West Virginia and found that the parsonage had been entered. The doors were securely locked and the windows fastened. We were at a loss to know how the party or parties had managed to get in until we noticed that the kitchen chimney was down almost to the roof, and the brick scattered in the yard. The mystery was solved. The parties had come in by the chimney route, we suppose. After careful investigation we found that nothing had been molested, not even the pile of old sermons that slumbered peacefully on a convenient shelf nearby; but to our great surprise we found the dining table piled high with good things to eat. Sugar, coffee, flour, breakfast bacon, canned goods, potatoes, fruts, etc., grinned at us from that table, and we did nothing but grin in return. Two donations in one year is a new experience for us; but the lean, cadaverous look of the preacher member of the family, we suppost, accounts for it. The sympathies of the members of our church were aroused, hence the donation. To say that we are grateful is to express it mildly.

Our Christian Endeavor has paid the Annual Conference Budget in full, and the Woman's Auxiliary has overpaid its budget to date. It looks now as though we will meet all of our financial obligations in full this year. We are deeply grateful to these organizations for the splendid work they have done.

Since our last report the Philathea class and the Ladies' Aid Society have fitted up a kitchen in the church with water, sink and other conveniences. These improvements have been paid for.

The members took advantage of our absence from home to have a new floor put in the front porch of the parsonage, an improvement that we very much needed.

Some of our members have enjoyed a few days' visit in our fine new hospital, and were benefited very much thereby.

We begin our revival meeting on the 28th instant with Rev. C. W. Bates as our help. We are earnestly praying that the meeting will result in a genuine revival.

Pinnacle.—The annual home-coming day will be celebrated September 28 at this church. Everybody is invited to attend the services. There will be all-day services. Rev. T. V. Crouse will speak to us at the 11 o'clock service. Arrangements will be made so that those who wish may spread their dinner together at the church.

Little Sarah Melinda Brown, aged one year, nine months and 23 days, passed away on September 15, 1930, after a few days' illness. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Brown. Her passing sent a wave of sorrow and grief throughout the entire community. Funeral services were held at Pinnacle Methodist Protestant church by Rev. A. L. Hunter on September 17 at 11 o'clock. Interment followed in the family plot.

Our Sunday school is moving along very nicely under the supervision of Mr. T. C. Jones. Just now we are putting on a campaign to secure new members and to get back into Sunday school some of those who have recently been missing Sunday school. We are glad to have anyone visit our Sunday school and other church services at any time.

Fairfield Church, Guilford Circuit.—A large crowd attended the services Sunday, which were the beginning of the protracted meeting. At the 11 o'clock service Mr. Clay Madison delivered a forceful message, urging them to prepare themselves for the series of meetings which were to follow. He read the story of how Gideon and his small army routed the enemy. He urged the church just as Gideon's army did to stand in their place about the camp. After dinner, which was served on the ground, Rev. T. Glenn Madison, of Thomasville, delivered an eloquent sermon on the subject, "The Old-Time Religion." He said the term was often misinterpreted, misunderstood and misleading. Religion does not affect the man of today as it did the man of yesterday because he is undergoing and has undergone certain changes. Religion does not affect individuals or generations alike. Rev. Glenn Madison is expected to assist Rev. Mr. Peeler in the series of meetings which shall follow this wek. These Madison boys, who are cousins—are great speakers. You'll hear from them later; they'll bear watching. We have been very fortunate in having such an array of eloquent speakers as the Madisons, Peeler, and Whitlow "Shorty," as he is known—to talk to us. All have spoken to us within the past year. They are all students or graduates of High Point College and the college should be proud of them.

The Woman's Auxiliary met for a short meeting with Mrs. Peeler, the president, after the meeting Sunday afternoon.

Due to other meetings, the date of the meeting of the Jamestown Sunday school institute, which will meet at Fairfield church, was changed from the fourth Sunday in September to the first Sunday in October. The township institute will convene at 2 or 2:30 o'clock. Every one is invited to attend.

Mrs. J. D. Strader's class and Mr. Joseph Ingram's class are planning on going on a picnic next Saturday afternoon. The Guilford Battleground has been selected as the location.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Teague

Some time ago the death angel again visited the membership of our church and this time he summoned Mr. W. E. Teague. Mr. Teague had been in bad health for some time and a few days before his going he suffered intensely.

Mr. Teague and his family came from the central part of the state to western North Carolina several years ago. They first lived at Azalea, but later moved into Asheville. He and his wife united with the Asheville Methodist Protestant church.

Mr. Teague loved his church and supported it financially and by attendance. However, during the last two years of his life, due to ill health, he did not attend church regularly. While he loved his church, perhaps one of the outstanding traits of character which Mr. Teague possessed was his devotion to his family. One could not visit in the home without noticing this trait. The home was happier; the burdens of the faithful wife were lighter because he thus loved his family.

May God's continued blessing and His unfailing comfort ever rest upon .and remain with the bereaved, especially Mrs. Teague.

FRED W. PASCHALL.

Buzhardt

Mrs. Frank M. Buzhardt was born August 2, 1850, and died September 4, 1930. She was united in marriage to Frank M. Buzhardt 53 years ago. To this happy union were born six children. Surviving are her husband and her six children.

Sister Buzhardt united with Harmony church, Yarborough charge, S. C., about 62 years ago, and maintained her interest and devotion to the church and its cause. She never failed to stick by her pastor. There is no one who seemed to get more joy out of her pastor's visit than she did. Her friends and neighbors said she was the best neighbor to be found. She will long be remembered for her cheerfulness. She was the liveliest and most cheerful person that I ever knew, even up until a short while before her death. She will be missed by a host of friends. It was said that she did not have an enemy. Her greatest delight seemed to be in making others cheerful and happy. It was told to me that she was sick very little and that it was because she was always cheerful.

Sister Buzhardt loved her Bible and in her conversations she often referred to it. The church and community's loss is heaven's gain.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Snyder of Poplar Springs Baptist church, and her brother-in-law, Rev. Mr. Buzhardt on the morning of September 4, 1930, and the mortal remains of the sister were placed in mother earth at Harmony church to await the resurrection.

D. D. BROOME, Pastor.

Pardue

Mr. William T. Pardue departed this life Saturday, September 6, 1930. Mr. Pardue was born in Vance county in the year 1861, and lived in Vance county practically all of his life. He professed faith in Christ early in life, and joined the Methodist Protestant church at Union Chapel on Granville charge, where he remained a faithful member until the time of his death. His wife preceded him to the grave about 30 years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. U. C. Woodlief, of Henderson, Route 4, and Mrs. C. D. Newman, of Henderson, N. C., and one son, Fred G. Pardue, of Salisbury, N. C.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. H. F. Fogleman of Halifax charge, and Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, of the Christian church. After the funeral service at the church the body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Union Chapel church.

The high esteem in which he was held was attested to by the large crowd that attended the funeral, and the many floral offerings.

C. L. SPENCER.

Widdows

Lawrence Widdows, born on September 20, 1885, died on September 8, 1930. He united with Mitchell's Grove Methodist Protestant church in early life, where he continued his membership until death. After an illness of several months he died at his home in Thomasville.

Funeral service was conducted in the First Methodist Protestant church, Thomasville, by Rev. E. O. Peeler, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll and the writer. Interment was in the cemetery at Fairfield Methodist Protestant church.

T. GLENN MADISON.

Haltom

Harris Lee Haltom was born February 14, 1853, and died September 11, 1930. He was married to Sarah L. Kearns October 3, 1874. One of his greatest regrets was to leave his faithful wife, who had helped him in health and sickness. He also leaves one brother, W. E. Haltom, and two sisters, Mrs. O. P. Cranford and Mrs. A. G. Cranford.

He professed faith in Christ at Chapel Hill in early life and joined Mt. Ebal Methodist Protestant church. After moving his residence to Lineberry community he moved his membership to that church. About ten years ago he moved to Denton, and brought his membership to Denton Methodist Protestant church. He loved his church and said that he was ready and willing to die.

The funeral service was held at Denton Methodist Protestant church by his pastor, assisted by Rev. J. B. Trogdon and Rev. J. D. Cranford. Brother Cranford is a nephew of the deceased. The body was place in the Denton cemetery. E. A. BINGHAM.

First, That while we, the members of th quarterly conference, feel very keenly an deeply our loss, we bow in humble submissio to His will, who is too wise to err, and to good to be unkind.

Second, That we count it a privilege to hav known and served with one who was faithfu to all the interests of his church, and we shall miss his jovial nature in our sessions and we shall strive to be more faithful because of his loyalty.

Third, That in the passing of Brother High Philadelphia Methodist Protestant church has lost one of its oldest members, and one who was faithful to his trust, the home a loving husband, the community a good citizen and a kind neighbor, and our quarterly conference a member who will be missed.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow of Brother High, a copy sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald, and to the Brunswick Times-Gazette for publication, and that a copy be spread on our minutes.

REV. J. B. O'BRIANT,
REV. E. G. COWAN,
J. S. BRANSCOMB,

O'Briant

On Saturday morning, September 20, our hearts were saddened by the news that our good friend co-worker, and brother, Rev. J. B. O'Briant, of Rosemary, N. C., had been called from labor to reward after a week's illness in the hospital. On Sunday afternoon he was laid to rest in the cemetery at Rosemady. Through the kindness and courtesy of the pastor, Rev. L. M. Hall, and the members of his church, the M. E. church of Roanoke Rapids was used for the funeral services. Even this large auditorium could not accommodate half the great throng of people who wished to pay their last tribute of respect to this good man, who was known and respected and loved by practically everyone in this entire section of the state.

The services were in charge of Dr. T. M. Johnson, of Whitakers, assisted by Rev. J. C. Auman, of Enfield, Rev. E. G. Cowan, of Triplet, Va., and Rev. R. L. Hethcox, of Creswell, N. C.

Rev. L. M. Hall, of the M. E. church at Roanoke Rapids, Rev. C. T. Thrift, of the M. E. church of Rosemary, Rev. S. H. Bradley, of the Presbyterian church of Rosemary, Rev. A. P. Mustain, of the Baptist church of Roanoke Rapids, Rev. J. E. Kirk, of the Baptist church of Rosemary, and Rev. V. H. Grantham, of the Christian church of Rosemary, acted as pallbearers.

The honorary pallbearers were a great number of his very near friends and neighbors. Other ministers present for the funeral services were Rev. H. A. Chester, of the M. E. church of Whitakers, N. C., and Rev. J. D. Hardy, of the Maryland Conference, of the M. P. church.

At the close of the service at the church he was carried to the cemetery, where the Masonic Order, of which he was a member, took charge, using the beautiful ritualistic funeral service of the Masonic Order to lay his remains beneath the sod, under a large mound of beautiful flowers, there to await the resurrection morn.

His many friends from former pastorates, from all sections of the state, as well as the friends from the charge he was serving at the time of his death, attested the great esteem in which he was held.

To the companion and two sons and the other relatives of the family, we extend our heart-felt sympathy, and commend you to the great God who doeth all things well.

A VERY DEAR FRIEND AND CO-WORKER.

GOING TO SCHOOL

Near 15 years ago, I, by being invited got in the way of going to school. At the first I tried to talk about the various things of farming, and trees and fruits, and the keeping of winter apples, which was my hobby at that time. However, soon I got into the way of telling lively stories and reciting some poetry—all of which suited the children, and in the event gave me lively encouragement. Now, at this date, September 19th, 1930, I seem to feel the impulse growing—and even more lively. I traveled out to the schools, where there were, as a rule, two or three teachers, and they gave me encouragement and very kindly asked me to come again. As a rule I usually tried to visit a school but once or twice a year.

I have been privileged to "serve" in the Children's Home at High Point several times, and had lively liberty, and kind invitation to come again.

At the first of the venturing I went into the school at Rural Hall, when it was under the control of Rev. A. O. Lindley, and spoke about 12 minutes, and talked about trees and fruits, and keeping winter apples.

In the above I have casually referred to a "growing impulse." I have been invited to schools that I have not succeeded to reach—and, too, most of them have moved to "higher grounds." However, last winter, I visited a school for my first time, but had been invited to the place numbers of times, several years ago.

I write this in order to say that as I was walking up to the house, when, being very near, I felt the moving of an unusually sweet impulse.

I had abundant liberty on that occasion, and talked mainly about God's lively creatures—called animals.

I have been in the schools of the colored people several times, both week days and Sundays. One Sunday an intelligent colored man very kindly told me to come some time when we have a crowd and we will take up a collection for you. At once I felt to appreciate his liberal invitation, and told him that I would be glad to come again, but would not have the collection.

Distance has been very much difficult and expensive, and yet I feel impulsed to venture.

One other colored man, being at the head of a very high school, kindly reminded me of the fact that my "caste" of school are in the way of disappearing, and the reminder was, and is, a subject that I am forced to think on.

The thing that I am led to think on just now is that I am a farmer, and a born farmer, and that the "high caste" school authorities are not calling for farmers, but urge for the best of teachers and for the highest literary grades.

However, again, I once read of a boy who at the age of 14 years had gone all the way up in the educational, on up through the university, all before he was 15 years old. Well, although I was educated between the plow handles, we had the "Blue-back" and other books, at the schoolhouses, and at home; I try to urge that I, too, was educated in the university in sight of the rabbits and where we can hear the birds sing.

Near 35 years ago the farmers at King and round about arranged for a big rally, and engaged two speakers, a fine orator and a good farmer. The order of the day was for the orator to speak first. But at the time for speaking the quiet farmer kindly asked the orator to let him speak first, and he submitted at once to the suggestion. The good farmer served first, and, as it turned, his speech was not at all in the way of the very able speaker, and the service of the two was a complete success.

Perhaps the gifted by that was, and is, great on the literary side of life, may be a fine orator, and since we are both privileged to the fresh air with the animal servants, he and I could go to school, and be in line, allowing me to speak first. I would not hinder the gifted orator's speech, and, of course, he would not allow my speaking to come in his way. That farm orator had been brought up on the farm, and then later on became a preacher. Of course, men and women on the farm should be educatel as well as possible on literary lines, but farm economy is the thing for a farmer to think on every day. I may never be privileged to meet up with that wonderful man who was, and is, so gifted as to "educate" before reaching the age of 15 years, but if I do, I want to ask him to let me travel with him for a while, and I speak first. If he allows me only five or ten minutes, I will be content; and, too, I have learned that I can speak better at the beginning of a service, while the people are gathering in. My orator is so able that the people will not go out before he gets through with his speech—and so he has a great advantage.

My proposition, as it seems, would give us both enough of the "floor," and, for his sake, we might be invited to come again, and after he leaves our section I might possibly get invitation to get in, and occupy the floor for a whole half hour. If he comes and you and the liberal colored people take up a hat collection he will be welcome to all the liberality possible, and I will "throw in," too.

W. F. GRABS.

JUST WHY?

Can't the brethren send in their Credential Cards? I waited until a week later than usual to send them out, to make sure that all Third Quarterly Conferences would be held. The cards went out two weeks ago, and there are still 25 charges to be heard from. Why? Just why?

In the meantime the Secretary's Roll can't be made out; the President's list of Committees can't be completed; and the Entertainment Committee is tied up in its effort to make assignments of homes. Brethren, find that Delegate's Card, or if you can't find it, write the name, charge, and address on another cards and SEND IT IN.

AN URGENT APPEAL FROM CHINA

Showing how dire is the need of famine-stricken and homeless children in war-ridden China today, a cable has just come from Shanghai to Owen Roberts, chairman of China Child Welfare, Incorporated, 156 Fifth Ave., New York, sent by the National Child Welfare Association of China—its administrative committee in China—urging that immediate help be given the work of ministering to helpless and suffering little ones.

If ever a time existed when international friendship could prove "the friend in need" it exists today. China is passing through a fearful ordeal. It is easy to blame or chide her, but what she needs is help. Surely the least we can do is to save her children.

DR. ELLIS OFF TO EAST AGAIN

That veteran of much traveling in Asia, Dr. William T. Ellis, of Swarthmore, author of "Bible Lands Today" and of the Ellis syndicated Sunday school lessons, which appear in more than a hundred daily newspapers throughout the United States and Canada, sailed September 24 on the Bremen for Europe and the Near East. His especial objective this time is Arabia and Palestine, where he is in quest of an undivulged "big story."

On the way to the East, Dr. Ellis will interview many of the religious leaders of Europe, in preparation of a series of special newspaper articles upon present-day religious conditions in the Old World. Over Europe, and across the Balkans, Dr. Ellis will travel by air.

We are thankful for these gifts of money, so encouraging and so helpful at this pressing season. We ask you to note especially the gifts from Gibsonville, three in number, totalling $25.41, and adding the promise to clothe one of our boys at $5.00 per month.

We thank the president of our Conference, Dr. S. W. Taylor, for his kind reference to the Home and its work in his notes last week. We have made the appeal as strong as we know how to make it, and we confidently believe that we have people in every Sunday school and church in the Conference would gladly contribute to the Home monthly if the matter were presented. So we need the help of some leader in each community to see that this is done.

During September just 68 churches and Sunday schools have responded our appeals—68 out of 220! Where are the 152? We have also received 11 personal contributions during the month. We thank everybody who has contributed, and we are hoping to hear from the other 152 Sunday schools at an early date. May God bless and prosper you.

Clothing and Other Gifts

The gifts under this heading this week consist of a very fine donation from Saxapahaw Circuit, as follows: 4½ bushels of sweet potatoes, 3 bushels of Irish potatoes, 11 heads of cabbage, 1 bag of fresh corn, 1 bag of dry corn, 2 pumpkins, 8 bushels of wheat, 5 bushels of oats, 1½ bushels of barley, 312 quarts of fruits and vegetables, 1 pair pillow cases, 1 pair tennis slippers, 1 dress, 1 pair bloomers, 200 narcissus bulbs, 13 cakes of soap, 6 boxes oatmeal, 1 box grits, 2 pounds of coffee, 5 pounds of sugar, 1 boy's suit, 1 boy's overcoat, 1 girl's coat, 14 chickens. And $6.00 in money which is reported above in the cash contributions. Also a goodly number of Octagon coupons. This is one of the finest donations of its kind we have ever received. This all came about through a bit of organized effort on the part of pastor and people on this splendid charge. We sincerely thank Pastor Whitehead and his good people for their thoughtfulness of us.

We know of a few other circuits where united effort is being put forth to secure donations of similar supplies for the Home. We appreciate this and are looking forward to the reception of many other fine donations of produce this fall. You can help in this way without much sacrifice to yourselves, and it will prove a great blessing to us in caring for YOUR CHILDREN. Collect your produce into some one place on the circut, bring it to us if you can, and if not then please let us know, and we will send for it.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

—Dr. Louis Albert Banks is reported by The Christian Advocate, Pacific Edition, to be critically ill at his home in Roseburg, Ore., as the result of a paralytic stroke. Dr. Banks suffered a lighter stroke four years ago which necessitated his retirement from speaking activities. "Happily," says the Pacific, "his mind is still active."

We invite you to call and see us when you visit our city. A cordial welcome awaits you.

I hope the brethren will collect the full amount of their budgets, if possible, and send it to me before the Conference meets. Last year I was kept out of the Conference room some of the time working on my books in order to get my report in shape to have it acted upon before Conference adjourned. This ought not to be. I do not object to working all the year at my job; but I feel that I ought to have a little respite from my work during the sessions of the Conference.

I presume the report blanks will be in the hands of the pastors several week before Conference. May I suggest that each pastor take a day off and go over these blanks until he knows all about them and can fill them out correctly? This is important.

"Thou God Seest Me"

No raven cries but Thou dost hear,
No sparrow falls but Thou dost see:
Then surely I can hide nowhere
And keep Thine eye from seeing me.

Thou seest my purpose as my place,
Thou knowest the bent of my strong will:
Thou seest the aim before my face,
The strong desire I would fulfill.

Thou seest the crooked, ugly way
We'd choose to take if left alone:
O, leave us not, we humbly pray,
But lead us each in way Thine own!

Our Ministerial Loss This Year

Our conference sometimes passes through a whole year without losing a minister either by death or removal. This year we have already lost two by death, one to mission work in India, and will lose several to the seminary at the end of the year. A very large loss. There will be some anxiety until all charges are well supplied. All true ministers are sent of God. Pray that He may send us men for the work.

—Is prohibition simply a noble experiment? Our President said it was that. Some one, perhaps a wet, has recently explained the phrase as a compliment to the nation's goodness of purpose, with no reference to the adaptation of the means to secure the end. The President we presume is well aware that the effectiveness of means depends verly largely on the amount of vigor employed in the application of the means. Feeble enforcement of law is not enforcement at all. The men who carry on the liquor traffic will yield only to force. Prohibition not enforced is not prohibition at all. The situation calls on Mr. Hoover to make the experiment noble in achievement as well as in intention. We hope he will.

—Jesus told his disciples to be wise as serpents and harmless as doves. Some would-be reformers are as harmless as serpents and wise as doves, and wonder why they fail.

—We show our loyalty to Christ by hearty acceptance of His program. If we call Him Lord and do not the things He says, where is our loyalty?

—You may find no work just now in the industrial world, but there never comes a day when you can do no Christian tian work. And no other kind of work pays so well.

—The summer has passed and the harvest will soon be ended. Are you saved?

Enthusiasm In the Ministry

Ministers may and should be filled with enthusiasm. Not because they have been appointed to high position, though that is a condition favorable to the manifestation of enthusiasm. But because of the noble character of their work and its high value to those for whom they work. High officers of state cannot render such a service. Men skilled in treating bodily maladies cannot help so much. Ministers are called to help men in overcoming their greatest weaknesses and troubles which are spiritual in nature. Their work is not so easy as it looks to the spectator. It cannot be done by every man who mounts a pulpit. It takes more than a pair of lungs and a good voice to make a preacher. The minister has to diagnose in a case sure to be fatal unless the true remedy is prescribed to the sufferer and taken in time by the sufferer. The minister must give the true prescription and overcome the reluctance of the patient. To accomplish this great result requires more than the wisdom of the philosopher and the eloquence of the orator. It requires more than deep human sympathy. It requires an appreciation of God's value of souls. The minister must realize that God is about to lose something of priceless value to Him and that the minister is commissioned by God to save the soul in jeopardy. What a responsibility! What prayerful earnestness it demands! What power from above is required! No minister can measure up to the requirements of his work unless he is filled with the Holy Spirit. This is necessary to true enthusiasm. The Greeks meant when they said a man was filled with enthusiasm that God was in him. The Christian minister in order to be enthusiastic in the highest sense must have in him the Holy Spirit of God. He is not qualified for his task without this divine infillment. With it he will succeed in his work, his efforts will be owned and blessed of God. This divine influence is the unction from on high. Every minister called of God may have it and should have it.

—It is regarded a great sin to forge a man's name to a note, and it is. It is a false representation that the man will pay the note. It is an effort to obtain money under false pretense. If it succeeds, it makes another man the loser. The injury is great in proportion to the amount of money fraudulently obtained, other things being equal. But the act has painful moral aspects aside from the property involved. The man makes himself a criminal, an enemy to society. It is necessary to watch him and guard against him thereafter. But what shall we say of the man who tries to gain his selfish ends by misrepresentation in which he tries to make God appear as endorsing his schemes?

FIVE WORTHWHILE AMBITIONS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

By Rev. Luther K. Long

"Of late the pupils in my high school have been showing an unusually satisfactory interest in their work. The members of the senior class, and others, are manifesting an especially gratifying ambition to make the most possible out of themselves and their opportunities."

It was the principal of the high school was was speaking to his friend, the minister.

"There was an excellent response," continued the principal, "to the talk you gave last week to the entire school. Many have referred to it. They appreciated having an educated man from the outside take an interest in them and speak to them. Some have expressed the hope you might in the near future give them a Sunday night sermon, or address, dealing with things they might profitably have in mind as they are soon to leave school and begin some sort of outside work. Would you do that for the entire school?"

The minister was quite willing to accede to their request, for nothing pleased him more than to be in sympathetic relations with a student group. At first he thought he would enjoy discussing with them particular occupations, enterprises and plans. But, on the whole, it seemed better to make the discussion more inclusive.

At the time appointed, a large portion of the front half of the church auditorium was filled with members of the high school, their teachers being grouped just behind them, the remainder of the church being filled with parents and friends of the pupils.

The way these young people joined in the hymns and responsive readings, their reverent attention during prayer; their whole attitude to this service in the house of God—was a most gratifying visible and audible and spiritual demonstration of the fact that their hearts and minds were in the right place.

The minister announced as the scripture passage from which he was to make his start, Rev. 3:18—"I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich." Here in brief is the substance of what he had to say:

Though we may not be able to do or to attain everything in life according to schedule, a planned life is likely to be much more effective than one that is lived in a haphazard fashion. Certain important things are, at least in reasonable measure, within the reach of everyone. I am going to call your attention to five of them and I shall call them ambitions. The more able and fortunate you are, and the more persistent are your efforts, the more successful you are likely to be in gaining to the fullest extent these five things. And the more completely rich you will become.

1. The ambition to have a good home.. I speak of this first because it is so pre-eminently fundamental in life, and it seems to need emphasis in these times. The home includes the house and its furnishings and surroundings, the individuals that compose the family, the other folks who come in for a longer or shorter time, and the spirit that constitutes the invisible though very real superior quality of the home. Very early in life most of us begin cherishing the idea that we are to have homes for ourselves in later years. That home may be thought of as much like the one in which we are being brought up, though, because of the many changes in living conditions and locations due to one's occupation, it is quite likely that we shall find a house differing widely from the one in which we may now be living.

It is well to remember that a person may live in several houses that are not at all to his liking before he comes to the home he has been planning for through a period of years. It is also well to bear in mind that neither any particular size nor cost nor location is essential to a good home. A man and a woman with their children may live happily and usefully in almost any sort of a building located almost anywhere. The spirit has wonderful power to transform conditions.

At the same time, it is well worth one's time and effort to plan for and to secure an adequate and pleasant house in which to gather one's family—with pleasant surroundings, with grounds in which may be grown trees, shrubs and flowers in abundance.

2. The ambition to have a satisfactory occupation. The time has gone by when it should be taken for granted that boys will follow the occupation of their fathers, or that girls will stay at home and do the things their mothers have done. Though many still do this with satisfaction to themselves and profit to the community. It is fortunate, however, that many others prefer to launch out along other lines. Otherwise, what should we do for automobile mechanics, salesmen and drivers? How could growing business be supplied with clerks, stenographers, telephone operators and the promoters of new enterprises? Where could we look for the ever-increasing demand for teachers, nurses, flyers, etc.?

The school and the home should co-operate in discovering what is possible for boys and girls because of the talents they may show. They should be aided in discovering themselves, their powers and their possibilities. A boy may not find at once the thing for which he is best suited, the thing that will yield for him the greatest amount of satisfaction. It is a mistake to be in too much of a hurry to commit one's self definitely and irrevocably to any course of life.

Many occupations require special study and training for entrance, especially if one wants to rise and make the most out of the business. Time is not wasted in this special study and training. It is better to give a few years to study at the beginning of one's career rather than to be under the necessity of changing later on in life, or of plodding along at something in which one is not greatly interested and in which one finds but little profit.

3. The ambition to have good friends. The importance of this can scarcely be over-stated. In life one person alone is not much. But one person and a good friend, or a group of good friends, constitute a combination that insures power, comfort and happiness.

The book of Proverbs gives us two sayings that are well worth remembering. "He that would have friends must show himself friendly" is the first. Neither an offish manner nor an indifferent attitude is conducive to the development of friendships. We must learn to meet others at least half way—having in our hearts a real living interest, and showing it in our actions—if we are to draw them to us in friendship and to give that which will make our relations permanently pleasant and helpful. The other proverb is this: "Thy friend and thy father's friend forsake not." Those who have been true friends to us never should be forsaken. And family friends should not be forgotten. It requires many years to build up the intimate friendships of a family. As it takes a mighty sight of living to make a house a home, so it requires a mighty sight of living in loving relationships to make a collection of acquaintances into a solid group of real family friends. When either the home or the friendships are once made they should by all means be kept in thorough repair.

4. The ambition to possess a growing intellect. We cannot do without a body, some kind of a home, an occupation and friends—and the mind is of at least as much importance as any of these. The human intellect constitutes an important means of distinguishing men from the lower animals—and the development of the mind is a means of still further differentiating man from them.

The development of the mind from year to year through exercise in one's daily work should be supplemented by means of such studies and private thinking as will insure continued growth. Books and problems and special studies should not be neglected. One should frequently check up on one's progress.

Here are some good questions to ask from time to time: Am I satisfied with reading light stories, or do I hunger for at least an occasional strong work of fiction? Is my reading azines, or do I find myself reaching for well written books confined almost exclusively to the daily papers and light mag- that require close application to master? Am I satisfied with current discussions of religious and political and scientific questions, or do I find it necessary and interesting to look into well wrought out and scholarly volumes dealing with the great vital questions? Intimate association with books and people living on a little higher plane than that on which we commonly walk may require some special effort on our part, but such effort is well worth while and will yield satisfaction that can be found in no other way.

5. The ambition to possess a well-founded Christian hope. Religion has not wholly lost its place of high importance in human life, in spite of the evident fact that organized church activities are now suffering somewhat of an eclipse. Nothing else can successfully compete with Christianity as a means of satisfying the high religious longings of the human heart.

Men will always be seeking a wholesome faith in view of sin and the need for deliverance from the sense of guilt. They will always be crying out for help in times of life's disappointments, failures and distresses. And when the end of all things is approaching men will always be calling for something on which to base their hope for the life to come. Of all the things to which men have turned, nothing has yet been found to compare with Jesus and his gospel, and nothing else, as leading to a satisfactory way of life, compares with faith in Jesus and his way of living.

By means of conversation in your homes, through reading, and by attention to the sermons and addresses you are hearing from time to time, you are being brought into contact with a great variety of thoughts on religion. We are passing through a period of transition in Christian thinking and living. Nothing holds us merely because it is old or because an ancient creed or a pope has stamped it as true. Nothing satisfies us merely because it satisfies some one else. We are increasingly inclined to make a stagger at doing our own thinking—yielding ourselves fully only to those statements that bear the marks of truth.

There is nothing in this period of the world's history that may not be duplicated from some other period. Always changes are taking place. Always the new generations have to work out things for themselves. Truth is never really our own until we have gone over it and made it our own. A Christian hope is not satisfying to us until we have in deed, and in truth made it our own by thought and consecration and living. So I am saying as emphatically as I know how that your final ambition should be to attain to a well-founded Christian hope—a hope for this life and a hope for the life to come; a hope that is yours because you have given to the matter the necessary time and prayerful thought and earnest living to make it your own.

"That is as it should be," remarked the principal to the minister, as they watched the high school file out of the church at the close of the service.

"You didn't talk down to them," continued the principal. "You talked to them as to people, and they gave splendid attention. They have gone out in a thoughtful mood—and the end of this is not yet."

IN DEFENSE AND COMMENDATION OF THE BIG CHURCH

By Rev. E. Lester Ballard

Upon reading the title of this article, the first question aroused in the minds of some is, Why does the "Big" church need defending? If it has grown to be big, it does not require protection from assault verbally any more than a well-developed man needs protection physically under ordinary circumstances.

The point is well taken. The big church has become established and will hold its own or continue to grow as long as it performs the spiritual duties devolving upon it. But because of misunderstandings of various kinds, it may be helpful to speak in its behalf specifically. It is our purpose to help to create a more sympathetic attitude on the part of some individuals and church groups who are uninformed or misinformed.

First, let it be stated that the big church is in the limelight, and more is expected of it than smaller churches. This is true generally, whether an organization or individual is considered. More is expected of the larger conferences, of the men in higher positions, of the ministers occupying the pulpits of the more influential churches, etc. And when any of these seem to fail to measure up, the criticism is more severe. Consider it in the civic life of your own town, as an example. Let the mayor, the council, the police department make a serious mtisake or become negligent of duty, and immediately it becomes the subject of conversation in every group. So with the big church.

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Hon. W. C. Hammer

The passing of Congressman Hammer removes from our midst a man who for many years had been outstanding, both as a lawyer, and as a statesman. Being the son of a minister, he was naturally limited in his early life in means with which to acquire an education. But despite this, he found a way to go to school, and not only in those days, but all through life, he was a diligent student and a ready learner. He fitted himself well for his chosen profession, and for the various positions of responsibility, distinction, and honor to which he was elevated. The high esteem in which he was held as a man, and as a public servant, was attested by the thousands of people that crowded Asheboro on last Sunday to attend his funeral. He was in public life for forty years, and came down to his end with a career of marked usefulness to the State and to the nation, and with his record of public service untarnished. He was born, reared, and died, in the Methodist Protestant church. Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved family.

Burlington

On the 21st of September,—Sunday—it was our privilege and pleasure to be with Brother Gerringer and his people of the First church, and to preach in the 11 o'clock service. This was the beginning of a revival meeting, which we have understood since, was well attended. Brother Pritchard assisted in the meeting, beginning his work on Monday, and remaining until the death of Brother Hammer made it necessary for him to go back to Asheboro. We were glad to worship with this congregation again, and to see many friends that we learned to esteem during our pastorate there. Many, too, that we left there, are not now; for "God took them."

We noted improvements on the interior of the church that have been made in recent months. The effect was both pleasing and conducive to worship. The congregation has in contemplation a new church building diagonally across the street from the present location. A desirable corner lot has been purchased for this purpose; but there are no plans, as we understand, to attempt any building in the immediate future. This church has an unusual field for cultivation. Its membership is large, and made up of folks from the various walks of life; and the territory surrounding the church affords abounding opportunity for growth and development. Brother Gerringer is giving his best to the work, and is ably assisted by his efficient wife, and all of the organizations are active. We have no doubt but that a good showing will be made when the year ends, and we earnestly hope that pastor and people may be happy in the usual good report that this church sends up to conference. We greatly enjoyed the day here, as did Mrs. Taylor and S. W., Jr.

Gleanings That Gladden

"In spite of the depression, we are in excellent shape, and expect to be on the honor roll a hundred per cent. We have had a delightful, happy, and prosperous year." Rev. C. W. Bates.

"Haw River church thinks they can pay both G. C. and A. C. B. in full; we hope Glen Raven will do as well. Our special evangelistic efforts this summer resulted in 87 conversions, and 22 accessions to the church." Rev. O. C. Loy.

"In spite of hard times, we are making some progress financially." Reporter, Randleman charge.

"Our hope is that our delegate will have the best report that this charge has sent in for a number of years, in spite of the financial depression." Rev. D. D. Broome.

"Our Christian Endeavor has paid the Annual Conference Budget in full, and the Woman's Auxiliary has over paid its budget to date. It looks now as though we will meet all of our financial obligations in full this year." Rev. George R. Brown, D.D.

These are gleanings that gladden. More of the same sort, brethren, more of the same sort. It helps.

Boundary Committee

Dr. A. G. Dixon, the chairman, is giving notice this week of a meeting of this committee. All persons who are interested in boundary changes will please take notice of this meeting, and plan to be present. In the mean time, please send to me any requests for boundary changes. The committee is meeting at this time in order to have all of this work out of the way when conference meets. Please let us have full co-operation in order that the best and most satisfactory arrangements may be worked out in these necessary boundary changes.

Five More Sundays

That is all that remains of this conference year. Hardly seems possible, but it is true. Many churches will have only one or two more visits by pastors now; and that means that during these visits very faithful work should be done to meet the financial obligations of the year,—both salary and budgets. Much of this has been put off until this time; but it can not be put off longer without serious embarrassment to pastors and conference. We urge, therefore, that both pastors and church officials push collections, now, as these last appointments are met. We must not think of closing the year and going to conference without doing our best to discharge this obligation which is ours, as God's stewards. If we are faithful in this, his "well done" will be upon us. NOT A WEEK, NOW, IS TO BE LOST.

Revise the Register

This is to be done at the close of each conference year. However, we are not infrequently told that the register has not been revised for many years. This ought not so to be. The register of every church should be revised every year; otherwise, we have no way of counting our membership with any degree of accuracy. Pastors will please see that the church register is properly revised. This does not mean, of course, a wholesale dropping of members. The discipline lays down the conditions upon which members may be dropped, and until these conditions have been complied with, the name of no member should be taken from the roll. (See discipline, 1928 edition, pages 45-46). The names of all deceased members, and all members who have transferred by certificate should be dropped from the roll.

Denominational Day

This is Friday, November 7. We are planning for this to be a notable day of the conference, and it is much desired that large numbers of our people be present. We want at least 1,000 Methodist Protestants in Albemarle on th isoccasion. Pastors will please call attention to this from their pulpits and urge their people to attend this occasion. Rev. James H. Straughn, D.D., will have charge of the program.

Equal to Two Per Cent. of Pastor's Salary

It is understood now, of course, by every pastor and every church, that this is the amount we are raising to cover Herald deficit this year, of $1,200. We trust that all pastors will present the matter to their people promptly, and urge a liberal response. The Herald has rendered constant and valuable service, and we must certainly give due compensation in return. We hope to see a large list in the Herald very soon of churches and charges that have raised their quotas.

—Faith in Christ is not enough. There should also be devotion to Christ. Christians should be doers as well as believers. They show their faith by their works. If they never become workers men will doubt whether they were ever real believers.

—The world is not wanting in men disposed to make absurd proposals. Here is one of them proposing to substitute observance of the Lord's Supper for the sermon every Sunday in our Sunday morning church services!

—Someone will be dead tomorrow that you might reach today.

THE SECOND MILE

"And whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain," the Lord Jesus said in the Sermon on the Mount. The custom to which our Lord refers seems to deal with the rights of the king's officers in olden days to demand the free use of horses or men as they hastened on their way to deliver some royal decree. In our days and country the rights to demand such service may have disappeared, but the principle involved from the standpoint of the Christian must remain, because it is an expression of the love and good will of our Lord Himself.

The first mile belongs to law, the second to love. The first mile expresses duty and convinces the mind, the second breaks the opposition and wins the heart. The first mile brings Sinai into view, the second Calvary. The first reveals the servant, obedient and dutiful; the second shows the princely spirit of one who will sacrifice to seek the lost.

This is what brought our Saviour from heaven to earth. He was concerned about the second mile of redemption. True, the cross was promised from the days of the fall, and even anticipated before, but when the time came for the earthly career of Christ as the Man of Sorrows, He was here to travel that second mile, and that is why He is so anxious that His people should follow His example. Our Church will not travel very far unless there is to be found among us a fair number of "second mile" folks who are willing to "go with him twain."—Wesleyan Methodist.

HUMILITY

A curious story is told of Napoleon when was conferring with the leaders of Austria on some matters of state. At one end of the room was an elevated platform with a chair upon it. "Remove that chair," the great general is reported as saying; "I can never see an elevated chair without wanting to sit in it." His life story is full of evidence that the expression was true to fact, even though it may have been put into words by some ingenious writer. It reminds us of the place-seeking of a good many people, both in the church and out. How refreshing in contrast is the example of our Lord when He washed the feet of His followers on the night of His betrayal! The writer who quotes the incident concludes: "Both Jesus and Napoleon were consumed with a great passion; one to get the world for himself, and the other to give Himself for the world.—Wesleyan Methodist.

THE FAULTY EXCUSE

"The man who says he is kept away from the church by hypocrites is not influenced by them anywhere else. Business is full of them; but if he sees a chance to make money he doesn't stop for that. Society is crowded with them, and yet he never thinks of becoming a hermit. Married life is full of them, but that doesn't make him remain a bachelor. Hell is full of them, and yet he isn't doing a thing to keep from going there. He wants to have you think that he is trying to avoid the society of hypocrites; and yet he takes not a single step towards the only place where no hypocrites can go."—The Christian Sun.

We need to practice Christian charity in this regard as well as with our fellowman individually. Because the big church is larger, the problems are more complex and more difficult to solve. And many of these are only known to the minister, the officials, and a few other active members. Why the church does or does not do certain things is not a public, but a family affair.

Since it has been the writer's pleasure, privilege and profit to serve First Methodist Protestant church, High Point, as associate pastor and director of religious education for four years, may he be permitted to deal with that particular body?

As far as it has been the observation of the author of this article, First church, High Point, has made an honest endeavor to support all annual and general conference claims and demands. Would space permit, figures could be used to show the complete response it has made in payment of the annual and general conference budgets, the Centennial Gratitude Gift, various college campaigns, etc. Furthermore, a number of the men, with whom God has entrusted a larger portion of earthly goods than others, have contributed large sums or become endorsers of large notes to save or perpetuate different projects of the annual conference or the denomination.

In response to this, the rebuttal argues that it is the duty of those who have the means to give largely. Granted, we are to give as the Lord prospers us, but are all of us doing it, whether we possess little or much of this world's substance? Let us, then, give credit unto whom credit is due.

First church is not made up of many so-called rich folks, all assertions to the contrary notwithstanding. Nor is it composed of those who like to claim high social standing, and manifest it in flashy dress and haughty attitude. There are a number who hold high positions in the life of the city, some who may be called wealthy, as well as the clerk in office or store and the workman in factory and shop. As a whole, they mingle together in worship and work as fine as any group as large as they that I expect to see. Social distinction is not considered in the Lord's work in this church.

A characteristic that is a factor in the success of a church, which is possessed by First church, is its kindness to its pastors. No pastor, or any other preacher for that matter, delivers a helpful message from that pulpit without commendation from a number of the members. To be personal, it is said of Captain Rankin that he never heard a Methodist Protestant minister preach a poor sermon. A more appreciative membership of a pastor's work is hard to find. The fact that they keep their pastors a long time is evidence of the fact.

Not as large as, but as fine a group of children and young people as one may expect to find anywhere are members of First church. This includes the Children's Home family, too, about which I hope to find time to write later. The children are respectful and obedient, in the main. The young people are faithful and co-operative. To work with them is a pleasure.

Had Mrs. Ballard and I known before we made our decision to leave and further prepare for the great work of the kingdom that our feeble efforts were appreciated to the degree demonstrated by these good people just prior to our departure, it is a question whether or not we could have offered our resignation. Besides several substantial gifts, the innumerable kindly remarks were almost more than we could endure. Our heart-strings were strained to the limit. We shall never forget them for all their kindnesses, but shall always cherish their memory in the innermost recesses of our hearts.

And may I not take the space to speak a commendable word for him with whom I was associated in the work? "Roy," as I came to know him, showed a fine spirit of co-operation in the branch of the work in which I was particularly engaged. His was not a spirit of dominance, but of sympathetic co-operation. He played the part of a Christian brother. Our association with his entire family was pleasant and helpful.

May the God of us all richly bless such a church as this, and all others like it, who are earnestly striving to do the Lord's work. It is not perfect by any means. Faults are prevalent; mistakes are made; failures in service occur. But these are the short-comings; they are going to endeavor to overcome as they grow in grace in the service of their Master.

GREEK ORTHODOX SUNDAY SCHOOL IN JERUSALEM

In Jerusalem, where the children sang their praise song following the Triumphal Entry of Jesus, Sunday Schools are making steady progress. Report recently came to the World's Sunday School Association, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York City, of the fine work being done by the Greek Orthodox Sunday School in Jerusalem. This school meets near the well-known Jaffa gate. The school is divided into three classes with a total enrollment of 60 children. These pupils come together for the opening prayer and then separate into their classes where they are taught a scripture story, verses from the Bible and the words of hymns. Then they reassemble.

At Christmas time the school gave a very interesting program consisting of songs, recitations and the dramatic presentation of the Christmas story. The school repeated the story in Arabic and the familiar words took on a new meaning as related by these little children in the Land of the Book.

One of the outstanding features of this school is the enthusiasm with which the parents welcome this effort to teach their children the content and import of the Bible. This school exists as the result of the Daily Vacation Bible School that was held the previous summer. That school won the prize for the best handwork in the entire area of the Bible Lands Sunday School Union and the fundamental value of this D. V. B. S. is further proven by the worthy determination to carry on a school throughout the year. The Bible Lands Union expresses the hope that others may be inspired to take up this type of work in their own communities until there shall be a Daily Vacation Bible School throughout Syria and Palestine wherever there are children to join it and a registered Sunday School for everyone of these Daily Vacation Bible Schools.

FORGIVEN BY BOTH FATHERS

Some years ago an English farmer, William Dorset, was preaching in London. In the course of his sermon he said, "There is not a man in all London whom Christ cannot save." At the close of the meeting a lady missionary in London came to him and said, "Mr. Dorset, you say that there wasn't a man in all London that Jesus Christ cannot save?"

"Yes, madam, that is what I said."

"Well there is a man here in London I wish you would see. He says that he is beyond salvation."

"I will go and see him tomorrow morning," replied Mr. Dorset, "if you will take me to him." They started out early the next morning for East London, stopped before a high, wretched tenement building.

"You will find him," she said, "in the top story in the back room. You had better go up alone as he will talk more freely with you alone."

Mr. Dorset began to climb the stairs. Each flight of stairs seemed more wretched than the one that preceded it. At last he reached the top story and found the door hanging by one hinge which he pushed open as best he could. There was not a window in the room, but when his eye became accustomed to the darkness, over in the corner he saw a young man lying on a pile of filthy straw. He walked softly across the floor and leaned over the young man and said, "My friend."

The young man looked up with a start and said, "You are mistaken, sir, I am not your friend; you are not my friend. I haven't a friend in the world."

"Yes, you have," said Mr. Dorset, "I am your friend, and what is better, Jesus Christ is your Friend, too."

"No," he replied, "Jesus Christ is no Friend of mine. I have disobeyed His laws. I have trampled Him under foot all my life, and He is no Friend of mine."

"Yes, He is," insisted Mr. Dorset, and sat down by his side and from the Bible proved that Jesus Christ was the Friend of sinners and his Friend.

The young man listened to the story of redeeming love and at last put his trust in Jesus Christ and found pardon. Then he turned to Mr. Dorset and said, "My Heavenly Father has forgiven me. I could die happy if I knew my earthly father had forgiven me also."

"I will go and see him," said Mr. Dorset.

"No, I don't wish you to do that. You would only be insulted. My father does not allow my name to be mentioned in his presence."

"I will go and see him anyway," said Mr. Dorset. He secured his address, and hurried to the West End of London where the father lived.

"I have come to speak to you about your son Joseph," he said.

"I do not allow that young man's name to be mentioned in my presence. I have had it taken off the family register. I simply want to tell you if you have had anything to do with that young man, you are being deceived. Goodday." He turned upon his heel and started to leave the room. As he was about to cross the threshold Mr. Dorset said in a gentle voice," Well, he is your son anyway, but he won't be very long."

The father turned around quickly and said, "Is Joseph dying?"

"Yes, he is dying. I haven't come to ask you to do anything for him. I do not ask you to even pay his funeral expenses. I will gladly do that, but his Heavenly Father has forgiven him and he says he could die happy if only his earthly father would forgive him too."

"Forgive him," said the father, "I would have forgiven him long ago if he had only asked it. Take me to him." They hurried down to the wretched tenement in the East End of London, hurried up the stairs and to the dark room where the son lay dying.

As the father entered the door the son looked up and said, "Father, my Heavenly Father has forgiven me. I would die happy if you would forgive me too."

"Forgive you," cried the father as he hurried across the room. "I would have forgiven you long ago if you had only asked it."

The boy was too ill to be moved and the gentleman sank on the floor by his side and took his son's head upon his shoulder and he died happy, knowing that his Heavenly Father had forgiven him and his earthly father had forgiven him too.

God stands ready now to forgive any sinner, even the vilest and most hopeless who will trust Him.—Anecdotes and Illustrations.

WHAT'S A FRIEND FOR?

The low, red racing car with Fred Fulton at the wheel shot out of Fifth street into Main, skidded 'round the corner and headed straight for a truck that was coming along the street. With a desperate turn of the wheel, Fred managed to avoid a collision, clearing the front of the truck by a scant two feet. Then, scarcely slackening speed, he shot along oblivious to the angry shouts of the truck driver.

The passenger in Fred's machine, Joe Dennis, relaxed his grip on the seat of the car and breathed more easily. But his face was white and the hand with which he brushed back a rebellious lock of hair trembled visibly.

Fred, seeing his agitation, laughed carelessly. "Scared, old top?" he inquired cheerfully. "Twas rather a close call but a miss is as good as a mile."

Joe found his tongue at last. "Yes, that may be, Fred," he agreed. "But sometime you won't miss. Then they'll be carrying you home on a shovel. You'd better go light on that sort of business. Suppose a cop had seen you do that? Then you wouldn't be laughing quite as much as you are now."

Fred's only reply was to laugh still harder. "Cheer up, you old wet blanket," he rebuked. " A cop didn't see me. And, besides, suppose he had? What's a cop or two between friends? Besides, haven't I the son of the respected Police Commissioner himself for a friend? I fear no cop when you're at hand, old top. So cheer up. Let your father do the worrying about the traffic laws. Just you ride along with yours truly and forget the cares of state."

The friendship between Fred and Joe Dennis was only two or three months' standing. The boys had become acquainted through some school connection and the friendship had deepened. On Joe's side of Fred's recklessness and daring he was a likable chap and worth cultivating. Just what the friendship meant to Fred was revealed a little later.

It was about a week after the near accident that Joe rereceived a frantic telephone call from Fred.

"Say, Joe, I'm in a sweet little mess," Fred disclosed. "Went by a traffic officer's signal and he nailed me. Took me to the station and I'm here now. They say I've got to appear in court tomorrow morning. I can't do that for I have an important engagement somewhere else. I thought you could use your influence with your dad and get me out of it. I'll be everlastingly obliged to you if you'll do that."

"Where are you?" asked Joe.

"I'm at the Moore Street Station," Fred answered. "Make it snappy, won't you? I want to get home tonight in time for supper."

"I'll be right over," Joe replied.

Fifiteen minutes later Joe was at the Moore Street Station where Fred was impatiently awaiting him. As Joe entered the station Fred leaped to his feet with a happy smile. The officers nodded pleasantly, for Joe was known to all of them.

Joe returned their greetings and then turned to Fred, who was still waiting in anticipation. Joe's words were a shock to him.

"I'm not going to interfere, Fred," he announced quietly. "You'll have to take your medicine."

"What?' Fred almost screamed the word. He stared hard to Joe, trying to make out whether he might be joking. But there was no sign of joking in Joe's manner. He was deadly serious. Fred was at a loss for words once. His air of bravado had left him.

"I say that you'll have to take what's coming to you," Joe repeated. "I'm not going to call my father's attention to the case at all."

"But I tell you I can't appear in police court tomorrow morning," Fred insisted. "I must be somewhere else. It's important."

Joe's face was unyielding. "You should have thought of that before you broke the law," he declared.

Fred looked at him a moment in silence. Then his temper broke loose. Hot, stinging words he poured upon the head of Joe, who stood silent, though his face was chalk white.

"You're a healthy friend to have," he stormed. "Pose around and bleat about your friendship and all that, then when a fellow gets into a hole and you can get him out with half a dozen words you refuse to help. What do you think a friend's for, anyway? I'm through with you. Get that? You've called me friend for the last time. You're a traitor."

Here the officer at the desk called a halt and Fred choked down the remainder of his denunciation. Joe, without a word, but with misery stamped on every line of his face, turned and stumbled out.

Fred made no other attempt to avoid the consequences of his violation of the law. There was nothing else to be done. He appeared the next morning with the other offenders, heard the fine imposed and paid it. He spoke scarcely a word and his face was hard and set. As he left the courtroom he passed so close to Joe Dennis that he might have touched him. But he gave no more indication of his presence than if he were one of the posts that held up the roof of the building.

Joe half rose in his seat as though to follow Fred. Then he changed his mind. No, Fred was in too bitter a mood over what he considered Joe's base desertion of him to listen to reason. Joe left the room with the look of trouble still resting heavily on his face.

During the days that followed Joe saw Fred several times; but never once did the other show any sign that he had ever seen him before. Once the two met on the street, but Fred busied himself with looking into a window. In his eyes Joe had done the most despicable thing a fellow can do—turn against a friend when he is in trouble.

There was one thing as the days went on which Joe noticed with some satisfaction. Fred was driving with more care than he did before the police court episode. Whatever else that experience had done, it seemed to have taught him caution. No more did he try to beat a street car or to cut in ahead of another machine that had the right of way. His speed as well was cut down to a more reasonable figure.

So Joe looked upon this development as a silver lining to his cloud of trouble. But his heart was still heavy as he thought of the breaking of the friendship. If he only could have a chance to talk with Fred, to explain a bit, he believed that Fred might see his point of view.

Nearly a month went by and still Fred maintained his hostility to Joe. Then there came an afternoon when Fred was driving at a fair rate of speed along Main street. When he came opposite Fifth, the scene of his near accident that day more than a month ago, with Joe along, he saw a car dash out from Fifth street and try to go in front of him.

Alert, he acted quickly to avoid a collision which seemed inevitable. He twisted the wheel desperately. His car skidded, turned half around and brought up against a hydrant at the curb. There was a scream of fright in a childish voice. Looking around, Fred saw that the other machine, in turning to avoid the threatened collision, had knocked down a child who lay now in the center of the street.

Fred leaped from his car and ran toward the child. The frightened driver of the machine that had struck her, panic-stricken at sight of the limp body of the child, sped away from the scene.

Fred looked around at the crowd that was quickly gathering. "She must be taken to the hospital at once," he cried. "My machine's out of commission. Smashed against the hydrant. Where's a car, quick?"

"Here's the Commissioner's car," shouted someone. "Put her in that." As the big car of Commissioner Dennis drew up, Fred ran toward it He paid no attention to the driver. All he cared was that a car was near. "To the hospital, quick," he commanded.

The Commissioner was not alone on the front seat of the machine. Beside him was his son Joe. But Fred did not acknowledge his presence by any sign.

Before the car had quite stopped at the hospital he was out of it and up the steps with his precious burden. Bursting in, he thrust the child into the arms of the first person he saw, who happened to be one of the nurses.

"She was hit by an automobile," he explained. Then he sat down to await the verdict of the doctors. The police car did not wait, however, but hurried back to the scene of the accident.

It was half an hour later before Fred was reassured by the report that the child was not seriously injured and would be all right in a few days. Relieved, Fred walked back to see about having his car put in order again.

On the way he was very thoughtful and by the time he had reached the place where the car was still standing by the hydrant he had reached an important decision.

After making arrangements with a garage to take the car and put it in repair he walked over to Joe Dennis' house. Joe, it happened, was at home. He half expected Fred, for he had a feeling that the other would want to hear the details of the search for the runaway driver.

But it was not to learn about the search that Fred had come. His first words disclosed his purpose.

"Joe, I've got something to say to you," he began. "I—want to say that I'm sorry for the way I've treated you in the last month. This afternoon I've had my eyes opened. That fellow who smashed into me did exactly the same trick I did that day when you were with me. If it hadn't been for the lesson of caution that I learned on account of that court experience I might have been the runaway driver who is fleeing from the police.

"I was bitter against you because you wouldn't help me that day. The fact that you were a friend of mine made me careless. I believed that no matter if I did get into a scrape your pull would get me out, so I didn't care much whether I was careful or not. If you had used your pull and helped me I would never have learned my lesson. Because you refused to help me you have saved me perhaps from something very serious.

"I'm afraid my idea of what a friend is for has been rather wrong. I want to say that you were the best friend I could have even when I thought you were no friend at all. If you'll let me, I want to try friendship again."—Albert A. Rand in Kind Words.

In each case, the first person named is the chairman. We are publishing the list now, so all chairmen may have time to work on their reports, and have them as nearly ready as possible when conference convenes. We regret that names of delegates from several charges are not in yet, but it does not seem advisable to delay longer in making up this report. We have given given considerable time and thought to these committee assignments, and we trust that all persons named may find satisfaction and pleasure in working on their respective committees.

We have taken the liberty of naming a new committee, which we have designated, Financing the Church. Our hope is that this committee may bring to the conference some suggestions that will lead to better plans for raising our finances. There is a field here for study and development, and we should set ourselves seriously to the task, and not cease our efforts until an adequate financial system has been established on every charge.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

OCT. 12: MARKS OF A GOOD CITIZEN

Scripture Text: James 2:1-17

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Honesty. Psalm 26:1-12.
Tuesday—Obedience to law. I Peter 2:13-16.
Wednesday—Piety. Dan. 1:3-16.
Thursday—Fair dealing. Matt. 7:12.
Friday—Hard work. II Thess. 3:10-13.
Saturday—Practical Christian Living. Tit. 2:1-10.

Suggestions to the Leader

About a week before hand get one or two members of the C. E. society to prepare a brief essay on "The Ideal American," giving in their own language just what they think the ideal American should be. Have these essays read at a time during the meeting when you think they will be most effective. We do not want to lose our high ideals of Americanism and C. E. an help to hold these up.

These songs have been suggested: "America," "America the Beautiful," "The Victory May Depend on You," "I Would Be Like Jesus," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Leader's Talk

The marks of good citizens should be of great interest to everyone who loves America, for upon citizenschip, in all that it implies, rests the destiny of our great nation. Christian Endeavor believes in good citizenship. Citizenship was emphasized as one of the great objectives for the coming two years in the crusade program which was adopted at Kansas City. The "marks" of a good citizen do not change. Citizenship is not a thing of words but of deeds.

Discuss These

1. How can we teach young people citizenship?
2. What are some duties of citizens?
3. Suppose no one cared to be a citizen?
4. What marks of good citizenship do you find in the life of Lincoln?
5. What does every citizen owe his own country?
6. What can Christian Endeavor do to improve the character of our country's citizenship?
7. What should be done with those who come to our country for better opportunities, but refuse to obey our laws?

Poetry

"THE TREE"

The big tree stands where the little tree stood
  When that same big tree was small;
In that big tree's heart is the selfsame wood
  That was once the little tree's all.

In the big tree's top above the fields
  Its leaves count score on score,
But each little leaf that the big tree yields
  Is the same as the little tree bore.

The big tree roots in the same old earth,
  It basks in the same old sun;
It will crumble back in its place of birth
  When its growing days are done.

So the big tree stands and the winds may blow,
  It is rooted to all the land—
Of all the things on earth that grow,
  I think a tree most grand!

And I think a man, who has a place,
  Wherever that place may be,
Should stand on the earth and heaven face,
  Just like a big, sound tree.

—Roy Marshall Johnston.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF BOUNDARY COMMITTEE

After consultation with the president of our Conference, Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., it seems wise to hold a meeting of the Boundary Committee before Conference.

A meeting of this committee will be held in the First Methodist Protestant church, High Point, N. C., on Thursday, October 23rd, at 1:30 p. m. All members of the committee are urged to be present.

Any church or persons desiring boundary changes will please put their wishes in writing and mail to me or to Dr. S. W. Taylor by October 20th, and any persons desiring to do so may appear before the Boundary Committee at the above place and date. The members of the committee are George L. Curry, S. W. Taylor, Edward Suits, G. F. Millaway, R. N. Hauser and H. A. Garrett.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON, Chairman.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—At the close of the sermon Sunday, quite a goodly number took communion together. A brother and sister; all that are left of a Christian family, communed almost side, by side, at this Lord's table, who had not had this privilege in many a long year. This was indeed a happy experience in our old home church, where our own dear mother was one of the charter members.

After church, the pastor in his usual sociable way invited one and another to his home; it so happened that three members accepted the invitation. Mrs. Way, having had dental work done, did not attend the morning service.

Well, his guests motored to the parsonage, and were graciously received. But when lunch boxes were being taken from the car, (having been all prepared at home), it was a surprise, and pastor, and wife began to exclaim, "we have dinner ready." After the first surprise began to wane, and thoughts, and minds began to collect, the dinner was spread all together on the dining room table, and what a dinner; just a good old-fashioned, real home folks, dinner. And now lest you think we ate too much, I will say we all talked more than we eat, and enough was left to feed as many more people.

Folks, if you want to know and feel true happiness, just go and try this same plan some day soon.

And behold in the afternoon a big car came rolling up; it was some members, and friends of us all, fom East Bend, Yadkin county. I promise you this, that Sunday September 21, 1930, will be a never-to-be-forgotten day by a number of us.

I am not the reporter, but

GUESSS WHO?

Hickory Grove, Guilford Circuit.—We are very sorry indeed that we have neglected reporting for the church paper for quite a while.

Our Sunday school is progressing very nicely, however, we are somewhat crowded for space, and we are still holding Sunday school in a dwelling house.

Brother Peeler, our pastor, was with us last Sunday a week ago and preached a very helpful sermon. Subject: Occupy until I come. How much better we all would be if we wolud occupy our time more with spiritual things and less with worldly things. We appreciate and love to hear our pastor's inspiring sermons.

Our annual meeting was held the fourth Sunday in August. As Brother Peeler could not be with us for the morning service, Rev. Mr. Bowman delivered a splendid sermon Sunday morning and Rev. Taft White preached for us throughout the meeting.

We had a good meeting and a lot of interest was shown in our prayer services. Three new members were added to the church.

May we all be directed from God as to the erection of our new church in order that everything will be done to honor and glorify His name.

May the Lord bless each is our prayer.

REPORTER.

Siler City.—It has been some time since you have heard from this church, but we have been very much at work. Our pastor has filled all his appointments but one (on the third Sunday night). This was due to the special meeting at the Baptist church.

We are very sorry our pastor's wife, Mrs. Williams, has been sick so long but are glad she is improved enough to be up in her room. Hope she can soon be able to visit us again as we are always glad to welcome her in our church services and homes.

The Baraca class had a fish fry Friday night, September 26th, in the grove in front of Mr. J. E. Fox's home. They had as their guests the Men's Bible class. Each one reported a wonderful time, and all the fish, slaw, rolls and coffee they could hold. After all were filled they took up "several baskets-full of fragments" that nothing be wasted.

The Woman's Auxiliary met at the church Wednesday afternoon, September 24th. We had 12 members present, and were glad indeed to have our pastor with us in this meeting. We had an interesting program, such as Mrs. T. L. Smith always gives us. We are making progress on all lines of our missionary activities.

We have already realized a neat sum from our "diminishing teas," and we are still entertaining. Circles No. 1 and 2 met in the home of Mrs. J. E. Fox and had their last meeting. At the same time and place the Philathea class met and had a business meeting. After the business meeting of each, they enjoyed a social time together. The social committee served them with home-made ice cream and Sunshine cookies. Each one departed for home declaring it had been an evening well spent together.

The Philatheas have challenged the Baracas for the best average attendance for two months. At the end of that time the defeated will entertain the winners. The Philatheas are looking forward to that time, for we are already hungry and our name is not "Defeat."

Our play, "Sewing for the Heathen," was a decided success and was enjoyed by every one present. We presented it at Hope M. P. church, Bonlee, and made a neat little sum for us and for their Auxiliary.

We are very sorry that Mr. C. E. Brady, one of our members, is in the hospital at Greensboro, but glad to report he is getting along nicely.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Large congregations attended the three services at Harmony Grove church last Sunday, which was the beginning of our revival meeting there. The pastor administered the Lord's Supper at the morning service and preached at each of the three services. Dinner was enjoyed during the noon hour, being spread on the ground in the beautiful grove of the church. The afternoon service began at 2 o'clock and the evening service at 7:15 o'clock. Bro. Jerry Brown, of Guilford College, a former superintendent of the Sunday school at Harmony Grove, and his daughters were present for the morning and afternoon services. At the afternoon service the Browns rendered two beautiful selections of special music, and they proved to be good singers. Bro. C. G. Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, was present for the afternoon service and led in prayer. He made a brief talk to the church concerning the proposed increase in pastor's salary for next year, and the members present voted favorably on the proposition. The church was nearly filled at each service, there being many visitors from other churches.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree and Miss Olive Anderson, of Tobaccoville, who are members of Pleasant Hill church, have attended five services in succession on the West Forsyth charge during the past three Sundays, and the pastor was delighted to have them "follow him" at the appointments at four of the churches on the charge. They are planning to attend the services at the other two churches next Sunday, and complete the round of appointments on the West Forsyth charge. This is highly appreciated by the pastor and is a splendid example for other members to follow.

The pastor and family appreciate the donation of appropriate gifts of vegetables from Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, and Mrs. William North, of Baltimore church, since our last report. We enjoyed a pleasant visit from Mrs. North, her son, James, and daughter, Miss Iola, last Saturday afternoon.

We will meet our appointments with Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches next Sunday.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Matthew's Chapel, Greensville Charge.—Our hearts were made sad on Saturday, September 20, when we learned of the death of Rev. J. B. O'Briant, pastor of Greensville circuit. He died in Roanoke Rapids Hospital. The funeral service was conducted in his home. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Roanoke Rapids, N. C., in the presence of a large concourse of people.

Our Sunday school is very good at present. We expect to reorganize it in the near future.

Children's Day was observed the first Sunday morning in September with all-day service; preaching in the afternoon. The children rendered their parts well. There was a good crowd present.

We are still having our C. E. Society every Sunday night with very good attendance. Our pastor was with us last Sunday night, and we reorganized our society, giving the young people more work to do. By this we hope to have greater success in our meetings.

On September 26 Miss Louise Bowen and Mr. Lewis M. Wright were quietly married at the parsonage by her pastor, Rev. E. G. Cowan. We wish for them many years of happiness.

There will be preaching at Matthews the first Sunday afternoon and the last quarterly communion service will be held at that time.

REPORTER.

Philadelphia, Greensville Circuit.—We report this time with sad hearts, because of the death of our pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Briant. Mr. O'Briant had only been with us this year and it seemed hard to give him up—but not our will, but Thine, be done. Mr. O'Briant was one of the best of men. In dark and troubled hours he always wore a happy smile. He was a great lover and was loved by all that knew him. He was a servant of God that had kept the faith, finished his course, and I'm sure has entered into the joy of eternal living.

The funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church, Rosemary, N. C., by Dr. Johnson, assisted by several others. It was the largest crowd I ever saw or heard of to pay their last respects to the deceased. Mr. O'Briant was a great lover of flowers. If it were possible for him to see them I know he would have rejoiced.

Our heartfelt sympathies go out to his family, Mrs. O'Briant, sons, and niece, Alvarado. May our Heavenly Father keep them in their sadness.

We held our special meeting on the fifth Sunday in August with one of our former pastors, Rev. J. M. Morgan, as helper. We were glad indeed to have him with us again; also Rev. Mr. Morris, who accompanied him. Mr. Morris gave us a wonderful sermon Sunday afternoon. But I hope his wife doesn't see this, as he was supposed to rest the entire week on account of his health. We enjoyed his visit very much. We were also glad to have several other preachers. We feel that each one was a great help. All of you come again.

Mr. Morgan did some splendid preaching that week to a house about filled every day. The church was greatly revived and about seven new members were added. We are thankful for such a meeting and hope Mr. Morgan will help us again.

Sunday school will open the first Sunday in October. We need your prayers and cooperation that we may have a good school. Don't forget us.

First Church, Burlington.—The revival services which began Sunday, the 21st, came to a close last evening. Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., president of our conference, preached the sermon at 11 o'clock hour the first day. He delivered an appropriate message from the theme: "What Pentecost Means." An overflow congregation was present to greet and hear Dr. Taylor. The pastor and wife were glad to have Dr. and Mrs. Taylor and S. W., Jr., as guests in the parsonage.

Brother J. E. Pritched came on Monday and did the preaeching until after Friday night. It was his plan to be with us through Sunday but because of the death of Hon. W. C. Hammer he went home Friday night and did not return. Good attendance and earnest attention to the preaching characterized the meeting all the way through. Brother Pritchard preached in his usual earnest, enthusiastic manner and the people heard him gladly. Many of his former parishioners and friends of other churches were on hand to greet him. Miss Lula Riddle and the faithful members of the choir have our appreciation for faithful service. We want especially to thank Brother Gilbert Amick and the members of Fountain Place choir for their fine co-operation and service. Brother Amick was present for all services and directed the singing except the two 11 o'clock services. Brother Bethea, pastor of Fountain Place, was on hand for all week-day services. We thank him for the fine spirit manifested. Dr. Andrews was in one service, Dr. Buck, pastor of the First Baptist church, for one service, and Rev. Mr. Tanner, pastor of the Holiness church, for two services. We appreciated the presence of these ministers.

There were not many converts, but we are sure the church was greatly benefited by the earnest, plain, practical messages delivered by His servants. The attendance held up well to the end. The pastor preached to a well-filled house Sunday morning and then to an almost overflow congregation Sunday evening.

Next Sunday an opportunity will be given for those who wish to unite with the church. Some are expected on profession of faith and some by transfer.

These are to be busy days with us between now and conference. Next Sunday evening rally day services will be held at the evening hour. The election of officers will take place at the close of the 11 o'clock hour. Next Sunday is also "Pay-Up Day" for our church. Upon that day our people are asked to bring their offerings and pay their pledges at least up to date. Our financial condition is about the same as last year at this time. We are hoping to pay budgets in full.

October 12th is to be "Honor Sunday" with us. On that day our people are asked to come to the church prepared to make their pledges for next year's work.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held on Wednesday evening, October 8th.

I meant to have said above that we were delighted to have Brother Pritchard in our home during the week. It rminded us of former days when we were in school together and when we spent some of the summer vacation canvassing together. Brother Pritchard is enthusiastoc about whatever he undertakes and that makes him an agreeable person to be associated with. Brother and Sister E. S. Pugh have our thanks for furnishing Brother Pritchard meals free of charge during the time he was here.

With prayerful interest in all the work of the Conference, and trusting all our churches and pastors may have a good closing of the year's work. I am,

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Mecklenburg Charge.—For some time there has not appeared a report from Mecklenburg. It is true that we have not done sufficient to boast much to our conference friends; however, we have not ceased to exist, and have made some progress during the hot summer months. Our revival meetings have now closed. During these evangelistic services there have been 55 conversions and reclamations, and 22 additions to the churches.

Our Ladies' Auxiliary of Stallings church paid Beulah a visit by organizing another known as Circle No. 1.

We are looking forward to our Annual Conference, and our attention for the next few weeks will be centered on Conference benevolences.

Bro. H. B. Furr was elected delegate from Mecklenburg charge.

Q. L. JOYNER, Pastor.

Chapel Hill, Davidson Charge.—The camp meeting began the third Sunday in September. Rev. R. S. Troxler, of Lexington, was the pulpit help. Mr. Troxler brought us some fine messages. He made his sermons so plain a fool could not err therein. We believe he is a messenger sent from God and wish him Godspeed in his work. There were several conversions and one joined the church. Our pastor, Rev. W. D. Reed, gave us some good talks which we also appreciated. We had with us some former pastors. Rev. J. W. Hulin was with us one night; glad to see him back again also. Rev. Mr. Short and family from Roberta and Rev. C. E. Ridge and family from Cleveland charge were also with us. Mr. Short preached two fine sermons and he and Mr. Ridge helped out wonderfully in the song services, both being singing masters. We are always glad to have former pastors with us. Hope they feel at home. Come back again.

This Conference year is nearly over; let's all try to do our little bit to send our pastor to Conference with a good report.

MRS. HARRIS SMITH.

Gibsonville Church.—The members of the senior Christian Endeavor enjoyed a weiner roast on Tuesday evening of last week at the country home of Mr. Ed Summers. The Woman's Auxiliary sponsored a special program on last Sunday night. At this time Rev. N. G. Bethea gave a lecture on Jerusalem, which was very interesting. He used a large picture of the "Holy City" in pointing out places of interest in the city, which made the talk very effective. Mr. Walter Crabtree, of Burlington, sang "The Holy City," which added much to the program. We were glad to have a number of other out-of-town visitors, including Mr. Walter Crabtree and son, Carl, and Mrs. Ernest Wade, of Burlington, and Rev. J. L. Trollinger and wife of Brown Summit.

The Young Ladies' Bible class will serve supper to the Rotary members on Tuesday evening of this week.

The Young People's Missionary Society will meet on Friday evening of this week with Miss Hazel Woodard. All the young girls are especially urged to be present.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson Charge.—Our revival meeting began today, the fourth Sunday, with a large crowd present. We had Sunday school at 10 a. m. with church services following at 11 o'clock. Rev. H. L. Powell delivered a splendid sermon. His text was "Let us be responsible one unto another." God created us and preserved our lives. We are individually responsible for our lives and will have to give an account of what we have done on this earth. The saddest affair we have is "standing before the judgment bar of God." There are not many things that the Jews, for example, refuse to do. They refuse to eat meat. Bro. Powell spoke of an incident of being in the home of a Jew. They had goose for dinner. Bro. Powell said it seemed very strange to have goose meat, as he had never eaten any before. St. Paul says, "Then are each of you responsible unto God for your own acts and own character, and therefore don't put any stumbling blocks in the way of your brothers." There are many people that don't agree in political affairs, farming and business affairs; there is no reason why we should condemn people on account of their beliefs. Whatever a man does is a matter of confidence in your own mind. Just fear the Lord and let your conscience be your guide. Jeremiah was the first to preach this gospel, "Repent and turn to God." Jeremiah said he had a child himself, feeling his individuality. In Jeremiah's time there was a great oppression between people, that their fathers had eaten sour grapes, therefore their children's teeth were on edge, and the children suffered for what their parents had done before them. But, no, our own individual teeth will be on edge. We have our own individual responsibility. Jeremiah said, We are not going to say any more that the children's teeth are set on edge for what their parents have done. If we are not saved nobody will be to blame but our own selves. We can't tell God that the company we kept, kept us from living right and that someone caused us to backslide. We have our choice and we must do right. Put the blame where it belongs! Bro. Powell's closing words were: "We are going to Him to give an account unto Him."

Rev. M. P. Chambliss was with us in the evening service and preached a wonderful sermon. We are delighted to have him preach to us in this coming week, but he can't have a revival by himself. We must all co-operate and help him and if we do we will have a splendid revival. Services will be at 2:30 in the evenings and 7:30 at night. We are hoping for good congregations and we hope other churches will join with us in our revival.

On last Saturday afternoon the members of our church drove to a point known as Holton's Pool and held a picnic. Everybody seemed to enjoy the occasion greatly. There were 76 present. Dinner was served, which was enjoyed immensely by everyone present. We hope it will be our happy privilege to go again next year.

RUTH PAYNE, Reporter.

Ebenezer, Greensville Circuit.—Since death has claimed our beloved pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Briant, we were very fortunate to have Bro. E. G. Cowan with us and preach for us Sunday afternoon.

We are planning to have a Rally Day service the second Sunday in October. Wish every church on the charge could be represented. Everybody invited, all day service. Come and enjoy the day with us.

MRS. F. A. PEARSON.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Sunday, September 28, was Rally Day at our church. There were 200 present for Sunday school, and a large audience out for the Rally Day service. We were favored with several selections by the Teague quartet, also a duet by two ladies from our church. One of the special features of the services was an address by F. J. Blackwood. His talk was inspiring and left with us a desire to do bigger and better things and to rally to the needs of our church and the Sunday school. We are sure his talk was an inspiration to all who heard him. A short sermon by our pastor, Rev. W. F. Ashburn, closed the services, with everyone feeling that it was good to be there.

Two weeks ago last Sunday night the services were devoted to talks from members of the church. A special program was prepared. Mrs. Mary Seymore had charge of the program. Mr. G. H. May gave a talk on "Welcome." C. E. Wilson talke on music and the need of good singing in our churches and Sunday schools today. W. W. Oaks spoke on attendance. Miss Lenora Lineberry gave a good talk on being loyal to the church. The pastor had "Prayer" for his subject, and H. E. Oaks spoke on finances, as he is our church treasurer and has to speak on that subject very often.

Our third quarterly conference showed a good report, considering the hard times.

Mrs. N. Brittain has returned to the parsonage after a visit to her father and mother at Hickory.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Our Sunday school is moving along nicely under the leadership of our faithful superintendent, Mr. R. H. Arrington. The attendance and offering were more than double Sunday. We were very glad to have Miss Sue House join our Sunday school Sunday. She is teaching music at Hollister school.

Pastor Fogleman preached the best sermon Sunday morning he has preached since he has been on this charge, I think. The passage of scripture he used was I Cor. 3:9: "For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." I have heard a number of people complimenting this sermon. We were glad to have a number of visitors in the congregation Sunday. Come again. You are always welcome.

The revival meeting began at Ringwood church Sunday afternoon. Rev. Fred W. Paschall is assisting Brother Fogleman there this week. This is the last revival to be held on this charge for this year.

The fourth quarterly conference will convene at Bethesda church on Friday afternoon, October 24, 1930. We hope to have all official members present and any others that will come.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. E. L. Wood on Tuesday afternoon, September 16, 1930. The devotional services were conducted by Mrs W. E. Knight. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. L. Fogleman. There were thirteen members and five visitors present. Mr. Fogleman read a very interesting article on Law and Sabbath Observance. The question box was conducted by the secretary, Kathleen Shearin. During the social hour delicious refreshments were served by our hostess. Our next meeting is to be held with Mrs. J. L. Alston. The secretary was appointed to prepare the program for the next meeting.

First Church, High Point.—The annual thank offering service of the Woman's Auxiliary was observed on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. There was special music; a beautiful duet, "Lead, Kindly Light," was sung by Mrs. J. H. Allred and C. L. Gray, Jr., an anthem, "God Will Make All Things Right," was rendered by the choir, and a quartet, "Something for Thee," was sung very effectively by Messrs. Stelhgens, Gray, Mourane, and Fiddler. Rev. R. I. Farmer then delivered a splendid and stirring missionary sermon from the well known texts: "Go ye into all the world and preach my gospel;" "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few." He said in part: These texts are so much in line with the united missionary work of our church that I want us to learn the word merger, and that there is no difference between home and foreign missions. Robert Speer says that "wherever Christ Jesus is not known, there is a mission field." Through this message the love of God may be carried to all the world. There is too much of the world lying in darkness. To pray well is to work well. If you begin to pray for a neighbor or his child, you will soon be talking to him about his soul's salvation. Thou art the man or woman whom He calls to do His work. Among the twelve disciples Judas Iscariot was named last. In the Passion Play as presented in Greensboro last week it was interesting to note that Judas was the last to enter. We as Christions cannot afford to disobey this command. "Go ye into all the world." If our natures are spiritualized, we will always find something to do. We cannot be easy in conscience until we are heralds of Christ to all the world, for this is His explicit command. We would not be here today and occupy the position that we do if it were not for missions. We have no right to sit down and be idle, but we must get up and out to tell someone else the glad news. The greatest danger in the church is that the altar is kept at home. A native in a foreign land said to a missionary, "You pray 'our Father;' if that is true, we are brothers, and you have been so long in coming to tell us about Jesus." Dr. Walter L. Lingle, the president of Davidson College, in a recent address said that one trouble with the church today lies in the fact that there is to much beautiful statuary sitting around it, and perhaps that is the case here in the First Methodist Protestant church of High Point. The offering on this occasion amounted to $70.00.

At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock Miss Margaret Opal Neese sang "Rock of Ages," by Johnson, and Rev. Mr. Farmer delivered another fine sermon on "Interpreting the Fifth Gospel."

Miss Annabelle Thompson conducted the Junior church worship service Sunday morning. This very important phase of our work is being presided over by volunteers for the present.

The C. E. Society held a special program at their weekly meeting Monday evening in the form of a debate on the topic, "How May We Spend a Million Dollars on Missions?" Miss Dennyce McAdams was the leader.

In the mid-week prayer service Wednesday evening the minister will discuss "The Nearness of God." An increase in attendance was gladly noted last week, and if you want to make your minister happy, be sure and come to prayer meeting.

Preparatory to the evangelistic campaign, which will be inaugurated in the city next Sunday, October 5th, cottage prayer meetings will be held in the following homes this week: On Tuesday evening with Misses Ruth and Elizabeth Welch, 612 North Main Street, and with Mrs. E. L. Douglas, 611 Montlieu Avenue, Judge L. E. Teague leader. On Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. L. J. Diffee, 1103 Johnson Street, Dr. R. M. Andrews, leader and with Mrs. R. H. Shaw, 912 Montlieu avenue; Dr. S. W. Taylor, leader; and on Friday evening at the home of Mr. Lester B. Teague, 401 Sunset Drive, Miss Margaret Walton, leader; and also at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Spencer, 407 Lindsay street, Mr. Richard H. Shaw, leader. All members of the church. These services in their immediate neighborhood. "The effective, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Dr. S. W. Taylor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, Dr. S. S. Coe, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, Captain A. M. Rankin and Mr. Vernon W. Idol attended the funeral services for Congressman W. C. Hammer at Asheboro Sunday afternoon, at which there was an immense throng of sorrowing friends and admirers from every walk of life. Mr. Hammer was one of the most distinguished members of the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina, was the son and grandson of a minister of our denomination. He accomplished more for his native county of Randolph than any other man. The news of his sudden and untimely passing was received with great surprise and sadness by a host of friends here, and to Mrs. Hammer and daughter, Mrs. Walker, who are especially dear to the women of the church throughout North Carolina by reason of their unswerving devotion and loyalty to the Children's Home, the Missionary work, and all activities of church work through many years, our loving and cordial sympathy is extended, mingled with our tears and prayers.

Wilbur Pritchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, has returned to State college, Raleigh, to resume his studies. He is a sophomore this year. Mangum Harrell has also returned to State college, where he is in his junior year. He is a member of the college band.

Mr. and Mrs. June Gray had as their guests last Sunday the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hutchison of Charlotte.

We are pleased to note the improvement in the health of Mr. J. D. Koonce, who has been seriously ill. He was able to attend church services last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Rankin were guests of his uncle, Captain A. M. Rankin, and family last Monday.

Enfield.—There is to be a union revival service of all the churches of Enfield, beginning the first Sunday night. The services wil be held at the Methodist church and will run through the following Friday night week. A Rev. McLeese, a blind preacher of the Presbyterian church, is to do the preaching. I bespeak the hearty co-operation of all my people and Methodist Protestants in general in this endeavor to deepen the spiritual life of our community.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

Pleasant Grove.—Brother Williams gave us a very impressive sermon Sunday from 1st Peter 6:7 "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you."

At the evening service he brought us another stirring sermon in his usual earnest way from Mark 10:21: "One thing thou lackest." He said in part: There were five things Jesus told the young man to do, "go, sell, come follow me." We do not have to have great possessions as did this young man to keep what rightly belongs to God. Jesus wants us to be willing to make wrongs right, take up the cross and follow him.

Three of our young people are away in school. Miss Elda Clark is teaching at Lowell, Mr. Kermit Veach is teaching at Littleton and Carlass Kennedy is in school at Wake Forest.

We were glad to see Mrs. Homer Veach at church Sunday after a long absence. We hope her health is much improved and she will be able to attend church regularly again.

We welcome Mrs. Maynard Kennedy into our church. She came to us by letter from the Friends church in High Point.

Last Sunday, September 21, eight children were baptised by the pastor.

Mr. Ralph D. Williams of New York, is spending most of his three weeks' vacation with his father and mother. We were glad to have him worship with us Sunday.

The Brotherhood met last Saturday night with Mr. W. G. Myers. After the business session Mr. I. A. Teague made a very interesting talk. The next meeting will be held with Mr. W. P. Murphy. Delicious refreshments were served.

TABERNACLE TO CELEBRATE 100TH ANNIVERSARY

We are planning to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Tabernacle church next Sunday, October 5, with all-day services. Rev. S. W. Taylor, president of our conference, will preach the sermon at 11 a. m. and Dr. G. I. Humphreys, new president of High Point college, will deliver an address at 2:30 in the afternoon. Hon. C. P. Hinshaw, who is a member of Tabernacle church, is expected to be present and make an address. All former pastors and friends of this church are cordially invited to be present and help make the day a success. Special music will be rendered both morning and afternoon.

H. L. ISLEY, Pastor.

—One of our preachers named Bates was driving with three ladies in his car from Asheville to Greensboro. Night came on him and his lights went out. He stopped at a filling station two miles east of Lexington, hoping to get his lighting apparatus repaired. A young man came out into the darkness and asked what was wanted. Hardly waiting to hear, he rushed back into the filling station, slammed the door shut, locked it, and drew down the window curtains. We do not know which one of those ladies it was frightened the young man. There was nothing the preacher could do but drive back to Lexington and spend the night. Next morning when he passed that filling station he could have preached a sermon to that young man, but desisted, perhaps fearing the tactics of the night before might be repeated.

—Bro. W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, member of the House of Representatives for ten years up to his death, died suddenly at his home last Friday of heart failure. His funeral was held in the Methodist Protestant Church of Asheboro on Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. E. Pritchard, the pastor, assisted by President S. W. Taylor. There were addresses by Hon. Josephus Daniels, formerly Secretary of the Navy, and by Hon. R. L. Doughton, congressman from the eighth district. The attendance numbered thousands, far exceeding the capacity of the church. Bro. Hammer represented a large district, including perhaps 20 counties, and had many friends in each of them. Then the Asheboro people turned out almost en masse. Bro. Hammer was 66 years old. He had been unwell for some time, so that his sudden going was not a great surprise to those who knew him best. He was a son of Rev. W. C. Hammer of the North Carolina Conference. He studied and practiced law and was for years editor of the Randolph Courier.

—Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Ballard are already enjoying Boston atmosphere and, we presume, Boston beans. We hope to receive from them a transcript of some of their impressions of the "Intellectual Hub." They send regards to friends who read the Herald.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

O'Briant

Oh, our Heavenly Father saw fit to take from us our dear pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Briant.

It was so hard to give him up. I had never known him personally before he came on our charge last fall, but I had heard so much of him I felt like I had always known him. It was such a pleasure to have such a man to come in our home; he always wore a smile and when he would leave your home you would know that he was a man that walked close to God day by day. Oh, if this old world had more pastors and more men like him what a different world it would be. He preached one of the finest sermons on Sunday before he went to the hospital that night. I wish more church members could have heard him, he preached on tithing. He said he didn't believe he would ever have owned his own home if he had not paid God his part, the tenth, and he told how he thought when he was sent over here on Greensville charge, what a big year's work he was going to do; he wanted to go up to conference with every thing paid up, but when he got over here he found everything so different than what he thought. The first sermon he preached he said he felt like a dark cloud was hanging over him. No doubt his heart has been sad many a time this year, but through all that he has made many a soul happy this year by his short stay over here and I know he is gone to a place, where he will never be made sad again. Just before he was put to sleep the doctor asked him was he ready to lie down, he said "wait a few minutes" he wanted to pray first for himself and then for the doctor, the nurse said she had never heard such a prayer in all her life. He believed in prayer and that is one great thing this old world needs today is more praying men and women. So, loved ones, and preachers, and members, let us all try to live a life like his and meet him up in the beautiful home where there will be no more tears, no more sorrows, where we will part no more.

Gibson

Martha Jane Thompson, the wife of the late William C. Gibson, was born in Randolph county March 13, 1847, and died in High Point, N. C., August 26, 1930. On August 16, 1865, she was married to William C. Gibson who died October 3, 1925. Mrs. Gibson was the fond mother of five children, four sons and one daughter. The sons are I. C. Gibson, J. E. Gibson, L. R. Gibson, and R. K. Gibson. The daughter is Mrs. A. M. Vuncannon. J. E. Gibson and L. R. Gibson are deceased. I. C. Gibson, the oldest son, is a successful lawyer of Dewitt, Ark., and Mrs. Vuncannon the only daughter with her family reside at the Gibson home in High Point. The Gibson family lived in Randolph county until 1902 they moved to High Point.

In early life Mrs. Gibson accepted Christ and joined Mt. Ebal Methodist Protestant church. She was perhaps a charter member of this old historic church. On moving to High Point Welch Memorial Methodist Protestant church was just being organized and she with other members of her family became charter members of this church. Here she lived a loyal member and a consistent Christian until she was translated to the Church Triumphant. She was a true wife, a good mother, a kind friend and neighbor and she possesed an everlasting faith in her Master. Her going means that she is to be missed in her home, in her community, and in her church. Her living means that hers was a life of victory, and her going means a crown of glory. For with the righteous,

There is no death, the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in heaven's jewelled crown
They shine for evermore.

And ever near us though unseen
The dear immortal spirits tread,
For all the boundless universe
Is life—"There is no dead."

We speak of the end as death but with this dear saint of God it is not death. She still lives. She lives in the hearts and lives of those who learned to know her, for to know her was to love her. She lives in the beyond, with those who have gone on before. in the home the Lord has prepared for His own.

On August 27, the funeral was conducted in Welch Memorial church, in the presence of a large congregation of mourning relatives and friends. Besides the pastor, Rev. T. E. Pierce, a former pastor and Rev. Edwards, of the Christian church, a near neighbor, took part in the funeral services. The body was then laid to rest under profuse floral contributions in Oakwood cemetery, there to await the glorious resurrection of the saints.

Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won
Enter thy Master's joy.
The pains of death are past,
Labor and sorrow cease,
And life's long warfare closed at last,
Thy soul is found in peace.

Garmon

C. Mack Garmon departed this life September 25, 1930, aged 67 years, 10 months and 21 days. He was united in marriage to Miss Malinda Kiser August 2, 1885. To this union were born five children: R. S. and C. O. Garmon, Mrs. William Morris, Mrs. Littie Hemby, Mrs. May Matthews. One son, C. O. Garmon, preceded him to the great beyond six years ago. The four other children remain to mourn his departure.

Bro. Garmon professed Christ in early life and joined Mill Grove M. P. church. He later transferred his membership to Antioch church of Mecklenburg charge, of which he was a member until death. He served as an official member for 25 years. In his passing the church has lost a faithful member, the community a good neighbor, and the home a good father and husband. Among his last moments he called his family to his bed-side and bade them all good-bye, and told them to meet him on the other side of the river.

I can say as his pastor, I have never known a more loyal church member; if he was absent you could be assured he was sick. Bro. Garmon never had gifts as a public speaker, but his silence was a testimony, for he lived his convictions and there was no man that could put his finger on his spotless life.

Funeral service was conducted by Revs. Robert Short, of Roberta, N. M. Harrison, of Charlotte, J. W. Kennedy, of Weddington M. E. charge, Bro. Bridges of Nazarine church and Rev. Mr. Myers, a Baptist minister visiting from Mooresville, and pastor. Interment was at Matthews cemetery.

Lemmond

Mary Belle Lemmond, daughter of Charley and Annie Lee Lemmond, was born December 21, 1929, and died September 27, 1930. The funeral services were conducted at Beulah M. P. church, Mecklenburg charge, by the pastor.

Q. L. JOYNER.

Hartgrove

Mrs. Minnie Elizabeth Hartgrove, aged 75 years, passed into the great beyond September 23, 1930. She is survived by three children: J. R., T. R., and T. H. Hartgrove, one foster daughter, Mrs. Anne Hartgrove Griffin.

Mrs. Hartgrove united with Hickory Ridge M. P. church, Forsyth Charge, when only a small girl, and lived a noble and faithful Christian life.

Her home was known as the home of preachers and she delighted to have them read the Bible and pray with the family on all occasions.

She will be missed in the home, neighborhood and church.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, Rev. A. O. Lindley and Rev. Mr. Smoak, with services at the home and at Hickory Ridge church, and the body laid to rest in the church cemetery.

R. C. STUBBINS.

Walker

Hickory Ridge Methodist Protestant church and Forsythe charge has lost its oldest and one of its most honored members. On August 19, 1930, Mrs. Frances Thomasson Walker, aged 98 years and 21 days, passed from time into eternity.

Mrs. Walker united with Hickory Ridge church in early girlhood and remained a faithful and consecrated member. While she had been an invalid for long years, she never neglected to support and pray for her church. She was a devoted mother and wife, a kind neighbor and desired to be a friend to all.

She was lovingly and patiently cared for by the loved ones in the home during her days of suffering and she was always thoughtful in her expressions of appreciation.

She leaves behind one son, Willard A. Walker, and one grandson, Luther Walker.

Her pastor, the writer, being absent, the funeral was conducted by Revs. O. P. Ader, George Clements, and John Sprinkle. Services were held in the home, and at Marshall cemetery, where the body was laid to rest.

Our Home Saddened

Our hearts and the hearts of our children were deeply grieved, when we learned of the sudden passing of Congressman W. C. Hammer of Asheboro, N. C.

His wife and companion for so many years, familiarly known here as "Mother Hammer," has a big place in this Home, and she has the prayerful sympathy of all of us. May the dear Father bless and sustain and keep her and hers.

Yours in His service,
A. G. DIXON.

PINE RIGE LETTER

We wish to express our appreciation to the kind friends who are responding to our request for clothing. We need clothing of all kinds for both boys and girls of all ages.

We have recently been informed of folks in our mountain country writing to addresses as given in our Booster, requesting gifts of clothing sent direct to them. We hope such requests will be referred to us and we will certainly make investigation and give suitable aid.

Sample copies of our monthly paper, the "Pine Ridge Booster", have recently been sent to many of our friends. If you did not receive one and want it, please send us your address, we will gladly mail it to you.

Drought conditions with us are not improved. Thank the Lord our two wells are furnishing enough water for drinking and cooking, but we are hauling water for stock and general purposes.

Every seat in our dining room is now occupied. One hundred and twenty. Other students are applying almost every day and we will try to pack in a few more. Our entire enrollment now is very near two hundred.

Evangelistic meetings have been in progress the past week with splendid results. The Holy Spirit's power has been very definitely manifest and our boys and girls have made a fine response.

THOS. R. WOODFORD, Supt.

A FRIEND INDEED

(This little poem came to me in a letter at a time when its message brought real comfort. May it do the same for others. I do not know the author.—Luther K. Long.)

At times it seems we're all alone,
While dark clouds lower and storm winds moan,
And hearts are torn with grief.
But there is one who knows and cares,
Who listens to our inmost prayers,
And seeks to give relief.

And He in all our sorroys mourns,
For He has known a crown of thorns,
And felt the painful cross.
And His strong hand is seeking thine,
To give you of His love divine,
And help you bear your loss.

Tabernacle Church—One Hundred Years Old

1830-1841

Little log church on the side of a hill,
Boasting no steeple, ringing no bell,
Yet calling aloud to the sons of men
And into their hearts the good seeds fell.

1841-1888

Little white church by the side of the road,
Lifting thy voice in praise of the Lord,
Bearing strong witness to the grace of God,
Shouting aloud the truth of His Word.

1888-1930

Stately white church on the top of the hill,
To thy goodly courts the throngs go up.
They bow themselves down to the Father of all
And own Him one Lord with a common cup.

1930-——

Thou grand old church in the length of thy years,
Ever led on by Ancient of Days.
Rejoice in His light, ever do His will,
And thou shalt be blessed with Heaven's high praise.

"Unseemly Dispute"

In the court decision which we print this week the most significant thing to us is the rebuke administered by the court in the phrase "unseemly dispute." The rebuke is found mainly in the first word, "unseemly." The word "dispute" implies difference of opinion, but that may be blameless on both sides, since men and women are so limited in knowledge. Honest people do not always think alike. But there is a seemly and unseemly way of treating people who disagree with us. Those Pittsburgh judges went out of their way to say that somebody had acted in an unseemly manner in the controversy over mission work. We heard of a quarrel between two old people in Michigan about which was best prepared for death. It was a question in the minds of those who heard whether either of them was prepared. Perhaps the thought in the minds of the judges was this: If you will treat in an unseemly manner fellow Christians in America, how can you treat in a seemly manner those who are not Christians in Asia and Africa? But the judges do not go far enough out of their way to describe the unseemliness or to point out those guilty of it. They leave the main question in the air. In this situation it devolves upon all the actors, including the members of the General Conference, to ask, Is it I?

Tabernacle's Celebration

Tabernacle's celebration of its founding a hundred years ago came off last Sunday almost according to program. Hon. Mr. Hinshaw was not able to be present. President Taylor made an appropriate address in the forenoon and President Humphreys another in the afternoon. Lack of local touch did not seem to embarrass either of these brethren. Revs. W. F. Kennett, T. F. McCulloch, and the editor of the HERALD, all sons of Tabernacle church, availed themselves of the privilege of speaking briefly. Perhaps the largest event of the day was the vote of church members to build Sunday School rooms. This has been in discussion for some time, and the time for action seems to have come. Brother Clark Kirkman had had some plans drawn which seemed to eliminate all objections as to location. Pastor Isley does not try to drive, but has patience and makes a good leader. We were impressed Sunday morning with the excellence of the work done in Sunday School, but with the use of the new rooms the work can be much improved. Tabernacle starts its second centenary with greatly improved prospects as compared with its first in the little log house.

NOTICE OF THE MEETING OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The 103rd session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church will convene in the First church, Albemarle, on the fifth day of November, 1930, at 9:30 in the morning.

We are taking the liberty of urging all the ministerial and lay members of conference to be present at the first session and remain to the close.

Let us come in the spirit of prayer, and with an earnest desire that in all our deliberations we may have the guidance and the inspiration of the Holy Spirit.

S. W. TAYLOR, President.

NOTICE OF PASTORS

New report blanks are being printed, and will be in your hands some time next week. A few changes will be made in them, all, we hope, in the direction of simplicity.

Please get your facts together, and let us make the information asked for in the blanks as accurate as possible.

I am anxious to settle with the printer for the 1929 Journal. Those of you who have not remitted, please send me a check for the amount due from your charge. And make your check to C. W. Bates, Secretary. Thanks.

COMPARISON OF FACTS AND FIGURES

In March, 1929, the Executive Committee of the Board of Missions published in the church papers an article headed "Overhead Expenses of the Woman's Missionary Work." Its opening sentence was: "In view of considerable speculation and many questions which have come to us concerning the overhead expenses of the present Board of Missions as compared with the former administration, the Executive Committee has decided to publish the following statement of facts in the case, which statement speaks for itself."

This "statement of facts" consisted of estimated cost of the Woman's department, Board of Missions; which estimates could not properly be classed as facts unless reports showed that they tallied with the actual expenditures. The estimate for overhead expense of the new Woman's department was figured to be $6.477. (Missionary Record, May 1929, page 4).

Let us see how this compares with the actual expenses, as shown by the annual reports in the Missionary Record for July, 1930, pages 28 to 30.

Estimate: Miss Shaffer, $1,110; Mrs. Thompson, $2,300; printing, $150; stationery, $25; convention, $500. Actual: Miss Shaffer, $1403.76; Mrs. Thompson, $2484.90; printing, $698.34; stationery, $137.13; convention, $664.23.

Other expenses not estimated: Charter, $412.50; expense of committees, $195.48; extra office help, $355.50; general expenses, $282.52; office expenses, $125.74; and so on.

By departments the totals are as follows:

Woman's foreign department, total disbursements	$51,804.96
Deducting funds sent to Japan, China, India, Miss Forrest, Miss Coates, Student Loan Fund, etc...	41,084.38
Overhead, foreign department	$10,720.58
Woman's home department, total disbursements	$22,760.61
Deducting funds sent to Bethel Home, Pine Ridge, Ohio and Pittsburgh Missions, Girls' Home (Baltimore), etc.	15,456.05
Overhead, home department	$ 7,304.56

Total overhead—estimated, $6,477.00. Actual, $18,025.14.

"This Statement of Facts Speaks for Itself"

There are other facts brought out in this annual report. Branch reports show that only Alabama, North Carolina, and Seattle raised their apportionments. "Every woman in every church back of every interest of the church," only sent the General Conference Treasurer, $70,156.33 for the year. Maryland, the branch of which it was said, "Every woman wants the merger" has 140 churches but only 81 auxiliaries; Ohio, 125 churches but only 80 auxiliaries; Michigan, 63 churches, 32 auxiliaries; Indiana, 108 churches, 47 auxiliaries.

Very soon after the May meeting 1929, the secretary of the Board of Missions, Rev. Dr. J. W. Hawley, sent out instructions to presidents of annual conferences and pastors of churches "or some other person," "to call a general meeting of women of the churches without reference to the W. H. M. S. or the W. F. M. S. and adopt the constitution and by-laws provided by the Board of Missions."

Rules on "How to Organize" were provided. One was—"The co-operation of the majority of the women having been secured, do away with all existing organizations, wipe the slate clean, and begin all over again with a new woman's society, the basis of which shall be the entire woman and girl membership of the church."

In the Methodist Protestant Recorder of May 6, 1930, page 6, we have the report of the denominational treasurer, Dr. J. H. Straughn, for the fiscal year May 1, 1929 to April 30, 1930—an entire year. He reports the receipts from the new woman's society, theoretically including all church women, as well as W. F. M. S., Ladies Aids, etc., to be $70,609.36. Receipts for the year immediately preceding the merger of 1928, show that the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society sent in $59,440.89; the Woman's Home Missionary Society sent in $24,602.83; 506 Ladies Aid Societies sent in $98,073.00; total receipts for the year preceding the merger, $182,116.72.

Total receipts of the New Woman's department composed theoretically of all woman's societies, and the entire woman and girl membership of the denomination, for the second year after the merger as reported by denominational treasurer, Dr. J. H. Straughn, were, $70,607.36; a falling off in receipts of $111,507.36.

Is the merger a success or a failure? Does not the great increase in overhead expense, and the alarming falling off in receipts, spell disaster to the church?

COURT DECISION IN OUR MISSIONS CONTROVERSY

(Published by request of Dr. G. W. Haddaway, Exec. Sec.)

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA—IN EQUITY

Lida K. East, Flora B. Sturgeon and Martha A. Miller, plaintiffs, vs. Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant Church, a corporation, defendant—No. 577, July Term, 1929.

Before Martin and Patterson, JJ.

Opinion

To the bill filed in this case, defendants entered preliminary objections, which on argument were sustained and plaintiffs permitted to amend. To the amended bill defendants have again raised preliminary objections and added a motion to dismiss. These are now before us for disposition. Assuming as we must, at this time, the truth of the averments in the amended bill, we gather the facts to be as follows:

The plaintiffs are members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant Church, one of these, Lida K. East, being the duly elected treasurer. Said Missionary Society is named as defendant, and is a corporation of the first class, incorporated in 1882 by decree of the Common Please Court of Allegheny County. Since its organization the corporate defendant has subsisted upon dues, gifts and offerings, perpetual memberships and the sale of annuity bonds, the holders of which become entitled to a life income. It has various branches and auxiliaries, maintains its denominational missionaries in foreign lands and has acquired considerable real estate. Its affairs are managed by an executive committee of thirteen members, elected annually.

In 1928 the Methodist Protestant Church, at a meeting in Baltimore. Maryland, decided that all missionary activities of that denomination should be governed by a Board of Missions to be appointed and elected by the church body. The officials of the Methodist Protestant Church desired the defendant corporation to unite with the new Board of Missions, sponsored by the Church organization, to surrender its separate charter and to turn over its assets. The defendant corporation held a meeting, and a vote upon the proposed amalgamation of missionary activities resulted in a pronounced majority against the proposal. The Methodist Protestant Church General Conference thereupon notified members of the defendant corporation and its auxiliaries to send their dues to a treasurer designated by the Conference officials, likewise notifying the foreign missionaries of defendant corporation to return to the Church officials funds sent to them by defendant corporation. Large sums of money have been received by said Church officials in response to such notices.

The Methodist Protestant Church has given some members of the defendant corporation's executive committee membership in the new Board of Missions, and the President of defendant corporation and other members of the executive committee, some of whom are also members of the Board of Missions, have agreed to surrender defendant's charter, have transferred part of defendant's assets to the Board of Missions and are attempting to transfer the balance. The officials of the Methodist Protestant Church, it is alleged, have dominated the meetings of the defendant corporation to such an extent that the majority of the executive committee is unwilling to join in an action to enjoin the Church from interferring with the defendant, and while plaintiffs have made vigorous protests to defendant's officers and at meeting of the executive committee against the encroachments of the Church body, they aver that by reason of the defection of a majority of the Executive committee there are no officers sufficiently loyal to defendant corporation to proceed against the Church officials, and that demand so to do would be useless. The bill prays for the appointment of a receiver, and after payment of debts and outstanding bonds and perpetual memberships, for distribution of the assets to members in good standing, with the usual prayers for an accounting and restraining order.

Defendant's motion to dismiss is based upon the theory that plaintiffs have not properly amended, and on the same theory have renewed their preliminary objections. The essential questions for the disposition of both matters are raised by the fourth objection, and we need consider no others. They may be epitomized and stated as follows: first, the plaintiffs are without right to the relief prayed for; and second, no antecedent demand was made upon the defendant corporation to institute proceedings. If we concede either, the bill must be dismissed because they are defects beyond the reach of amendment.

These plaintiffs have no personal interest in the assets of the defendant corporation which will sustain an individual action on the part of them or any of them. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant Church is unquestionably a charity under all the definitions of all judicial minds.

Betts v. Y. M. C. A., 83 Sup. Ct., 545.
Gable v. Sisters of St. Francis, 227 Pa., 254.
Philadelphia v. Christian Assoc., 125 Pa., 572-579.
Donohugh's Appeal, 86 Pa .,306.
Bethlehem Borough v. Fire Company, 81 Pa., 445.

The defendant corporation was sustained by public contribution, gifts, offerings, dues and the sale of perpetual memberships and annuities, all in the interest of a great humanitarian work of spreading the gospel in foreign lands, and no member ever joined in expectation of reward by way of dividends. Since it is a charitable organization then, no individual member has, nor can he acquire, any individual rights in the assets. A charity, incorporated or unincorporated, is a public benefaction and its property is held in trust for that public.

Thomas v. Ellmaker, 1 parsons, 98.
Schnorr's Appeal, 67 Pa., 138-146.
Fire Company's Appeal, 88 Pa., 389-392.
Hempstead v. Theological Seminary, 284 Pa., 143-153.

In the last case cited the Court disposed of the question involved on the merits, but strongly indicated that defendants should have challenged the right of plaintiffs to maintain the bill.

It might be argued that the bill is found by plaintiffs in behalf of themselves or any other members of the corporation who may desire to join. This can be of no avail, for the rights of others would be no greater than the rights of the plaintiffs named. For this reason alone, therefore, the bill might well be dismissed.

Coming to the second question, however, a careful scrutiny of the pleading indicates the complaint to be, and a restraining order is sought against the officials of the Methodist Protestant Church, naming John C. Broomfield, Chairman of the General Conference. Neither the official named, nor any other official, nor the Church body itself is named as defendant. Obviously, they are necessary parties and the relief prayed for against them cannot be granted any more than the distribution of assets sought by plaintiffs.

Again it is complained that a majority of the executive committee of defendant corporation allied with the General Church Conference in the matters complained of. If these officials of the defendant corporation are delinquent or guilty of misfeasance, they are essential parties. No corporate act of fraud, or other corporate grievance is averred, yet only the corporation is named as defendant. If there is any cause of action at all it seems to us that the grave men thereof is the alienation of members and officials of the defendant corporation by Methodist Protestant Church officials. Plainly then, the harm is to the corporation, not to the plaintiffs or any other members for they have no individual interest. The bill, if it is to lie at all, should be by the defendant corporation against the Church body and the offending officials of both the Church and the defendant corporation. Therefore, it could be filed only by the plaintiffs if demand were first made upon the corporation. An amendment as to parties would be futile. The reason for the rule as to antecedent demand before bringing suit in behalf of the corporation, obviously is that a corporation is not to be subjected to the hazards of improvident litigation by disappointed stockhloders or members.

Passmore v. R. T. Co., 267 Pa., 356-359.
Kelly v. Thomas, 234 Pa., 419-427.
McCloskey v. Snowden, 212 Pa., 249.

The only way in which this antecedent requirement may be avoided is by showing in the bill that nothing was left undone which might have been done to prevail upon the corporation to institute proceedings for equitable relief. In the case of Kelly v. Thomas, supra, the bill averred no demand because misfeasance of the officers and directors was involved and such demand would have been useless. In the bill before us it is averred that no antecedent demand was made because the officers and members of the executive committee were disloyal. So we conclude that the parties, having no litigible interest: that the bill should lie at the instance of defendant corporation against the Methodist Protestant Church officials and disloyal officials of the defendant corporation, if it may lie at all, and that no demand was made on defendant corporation to bring such suit, and therefore the bill must be dismissed.

Plaintiffs contend that the authority of Schnorr's Appeal, supra, justifies their positions. That case is plainly distinguishable from the case at bar, in as much as these one set of members of a congregation filed a bill against other members of the congregation, alleging a diversion of the Church property from the purposes for which the church was incorporated, and for which the property was contributed. The Court properly held that the Church property was a public trust and could not be diverted from the purposes of the trust. We have no such situation here, where it is merely a question of through what channels the funds may be applied to the purposes for which they were raised.

In this unseemly dispute between a church body and a missionary organization of that church, we deem it proper to call attention to the outstanding rights of annuitants under the facts averred in the bill. It may well be that if the corporate action, or the action of corporate officials of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant Church shall in any way prejudice or jeopardize the rights of such annuitants, a bill might well lie against the agencies through which such prejudice or jeopardy is effectuated at the instance of annuitants. The Church body and the officials thereof are without authority to so appropriate to its own mission purposes the funds, assets and property of the defendant corporation to the prejudice of any individual right, and upon a bill which discloses such a state of facts, equity might well give its aid to a proper adjustment. Upon the record before us, however, the bill must be dismissed.

Order

And now, to wit, July 25, 1930, the motion to dismiss the bill filed in the above entitled case is granted, and the said bill is dismissed at the cost of the plaintiffs.

CONCENTRATION

Concentration is a great distinguishing faculty of men of high purpose. The ability to apply your mind steadily and exclusively to one subject at a time is a mark of superior power and essential to really great achievement. Concentration can be cultivated by regular and conscientious practice.

When you detect your mind wandering, instantly substitute the desired subject for the intrusive one. Repeated efforts of this kind will rapidly remedy the fault. Guard against mind-wandering and idle day-dreaming as enemies of culture and progress. Be deeply interested in what you are doing, and ignore vagrant ideas. Concentration will rapidly build your mental power. It is vital to large mental growth and personal advancement.

There are occasions when you must will strongly and decisively. To believe yourself able and efficient is a prerequisite to large accomplishment. The happiness and prosperity of many men have been due largely to courage and confidence, based upon well-established habits of decision, purpose, and constancy.

The activities, duties, and problems of your daily life may make severe demands upon you; but you will be equal to every demand if your character is based upon principle. The ability to make sound decisions and to put them promptly into execution has been a leading characteristic of distinguished men. Choose your course wisely; then go forward with unflinching purpose.—Grenville Kleiser.

TOO BUSY TO PRAY

Jesus appears to have devoted Himself specially to prayer at times when His life was unusually full of work and excitement. His was a very busy life; there were nearly always 'many coming and going' about Him. At times, however, there was such a congestion of thronging objects that he had scarcely time to eat. But even then He found time to pray. Indeed, these appear to have been with Him seasons of more prolonged prayer than usual. Thus we read: "So much the more went there a fame abroad of Him, and great multitudes came together to hear and be healed by Him of their infirmities, but He withdrew Himself into the wilderness and prayed."

Many in our day know what this congestion of occupations is—they are swept off their feet with their engagements, and can scarcely find time to eat. We make this a reason for not praying. Is there any doubt which is the better course? Many of the wisest have in this respect done as Jesus did. When Luther had a specially busy and exciting day, he allowed himself longer time than usual for prayer beforehand. A wise man once said that he was too busy to be in a hurry; he meant that if he allowed himself to become hurried, he could not do all he had to do. There is nothing like prayer for producing this calm, self-possession. When the dust of business so fills your room that it threatens to choke you, sprinkle it with the water of prayer, and then you can cleanse it out with comfort and expedition.—Publisher Unknown.

All Things Through Christ

Please Note This

Owing to a conflict in dates, the time for the meeting of the Boundary Committee is changed from October 23 to October 24. The hour is the same, 1:30 p. m., and the place is the same, First church, High Point. Let us insist again that all persons who have business with this committee, be present on this date, or send to me or to Dr. Dixon a written statement of what they desire. The committee will give every possible consideration to the wishes of the charges, but final jurisdiction, of course, is with the annual conference.

Tabernacle Church

This is Tabernacle church on the charge of this name. One hundred years ago a place of worship was built in the woods at this place, and called "The Tabernacle." The present church, no doubt, takes its name from that fact. Our visit here at this time, Sunday, October 5, was to participate in the Centennial observance of this church. The records show that the present church was organized in 1830,—just one hundred years ago. The original church undertaking here was Methodist Episcopal. This was superseded by the reform movement that early became dominant in that community. The present building is the third that has occupied this sacred ground. There has been a vast improvement in architecture since the first log "Tabernacle," was erected. The present building is one of the best of our rural churches, and plans are on now to add a two-story Sunday School building. Work on this will most likely be started within the very near future. The church has also made good progress numerically and spiritually. It now has a membership of about 300, and has been giving off all through the years many members to nearby Methodist Protestant churches, besides the host that has gone on to heaven from its sacred precincts. It would be interesting to know how many people have been members of this church during its century of existence. The congregation numbers now, and we dare say that this has been true always, the leading citizens of the community in its membership. It is worthy of note, too, that eleven ministers have gone out from this church, and have served with honor and distinction in our conference. Three of them, Dr. J. F. McCulloch, Rev. T. F. McCulloch, and Rev. W. F. Kennett, were present and spoke in the afternoon. Dr. Gideon Ireland Humphreys, president of High Point College, shared with these brethren in the afternoon program. We most heartily congratulate this church upon its first Centennial. It was a great pleasure to us to be with them in the celebration, and we hope and pray for them increasing growth and prosperity, as the years of another century file up. The pastor, Rev. H. F. Isley, was in charge of the program throughout the day.

Siler City

On Sunday night, we were privileged to be with Brother Williams and his congregation at this place. We enjoyed preaching and worshiping with them, and likewise, their good fellowship. We enjoyed a brief visit in the home of Brother L. L. Wrenn. His son is convalescing from an appendicitis operation. We trust that he may soon be entirely well. We also enjoyed the hospitality of Brother and Sister Woody (Sorry not to be able to give initials), where we were entertained at supper. Our congregation at this place is dependable and earnest, though not large. The church is well organized, and all organizations are functioning with normal effectiveness. The salary will be paid, we are sure, and a goodly amount on budgets and "Dollar a Member." (Our impression is that "Dollar a Member" has already been paid in full). This church desires to be on the honor roll in everything, and we trust that some arrangements may be worked out for them by which they can realize this good end. We were not able to be with the Liberty church on this visit to the charge. Brother Williams is pressing the work with his accustomed faithfulness and zeal, and will continue to do his best to close the year well in every particular. These are good churches, and we earnestly hope for them increasing measures of usefulness. We enjoyed the fellowship of Brother and Sister Williams and the kind hospitality of their home.

Church Officers

It will not be informing to say that church officers sustain a determining relationship to the success of the church. The most superficial knowledge of church management confirms this. The policy and the progress of a church are always vitally affected by the attitude of its officers. If they are active, zealous, and progressive, the church goes forward; if they are not, the church lags. It is practically impossible for a church to succeed beyond the support it receives from its official boards. In saying this, I do not, of course, minimize the importance of the pastor. Every one understands that he is indispensable to the church's progress. But there is but little that he can do without the active and earnest support of his official boards. And just now, when we are so near to the meeting of our annual conference, the wisdom, zeal, and co-operation of our church officers is so urgently needed. The work of this year is to be closed, and plans are to be laid for the year ahead. Our success in closing this year, and planning for the next, depends in no small measure, upon the way our officials face up with the task.

We are appealing to them, therefore, to give themselves unitedly and with much earnestness and prayer to the work that must be done during these remaining four weeks, if we close the year with worthy results, and plan wisely and well for the year ahead.

Please let me urge you, brethren of the officiary, to see that salaries and other financial obligations of your respective churches are met. Acquaint yourselves with the itemized amounts of your respective churches, and then make a very faithful effort to have the total paid. See to it, also, that the required financial arrangements for next year are properly made. We are counting big on our officials for these closing weeks.

More Gleanings That Gladden

"Have had a good year. 'Dollar a Member' will be paid in full. Salary will be paid in full. A good amount will be paid on budgets." Rev. M. P. Chambliss.

"State Street will pay all claims in full. Elbaville will pay A. C. B. Yadkin College has paid budgets in full."

"Our revival meetings have all been held, with 55 conversions and reclamations, and 22 additions to the churches. Our attention for the next few weeks will be centered on conference benevolences." Rev. Q. L. Joyner.

"Next Sunday is 'Pay Up' day for our church. Upon that day our people are asked to bring their offerings and pay their pledges, at least up-to-date. Our financial condition is about the same as last year at this time. We are hoping to pay budgets in full." Rev. L. W. Gerringer.

"South Winston will pay one hundred per cent. Fairview will pay salary, and an urgent effort will be made for full budget." Rev. O. B. Williams.

Pass the good word along, brethren, pass it along! It's contagious.

This One Thing Do

Collect that small allotment from the Sunday Schools and C. E. societies for the support of our Conference Council of Religious Education (Board of Young People's Work) and send the amount to Rev. J. C. Auman, treasurer, Enfield, N. C. Brother Auman reported last week that 66 Sunday Schools have paid, and seven C. E. societies. This leaves 158 Sunday Schools and 70 C. E .societies. Won't you push this, superintendents? Won't you push it, C. E. presidents? Won't you push it, pastors? Please do. Please do. See the allotment in Herald this week.

IMPROVING OUR SPEECH—A WORD TO YOUNG PEOPLE

By Rev. Luther K. Long

President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, has listed five evidences of a good education:

1. Correctness and precision in the use of the mother-tongue.
2. Refined and gentle manners, which are the expression of fixed habits of thought and action.
3. The power and habit of reflection.
4. The power of growth.
5. Efficiency, or the power to do.

Some years ago George Albert Palmer, the veteran professor of English in Harvard University, gave the commencement address at the University of Michigan. His subject was "Self-Cultivation in English." His treatment of the subject showed that he agreed with President Butler, and with other leading educators, as to the importance of correctness and precision in the use of the mother-tongue in the making of an educated person.

The girls in a normal school for colored young people looked well and could make a pleasing appearance so far as dress and manners were concerned. But the principal said that they betrayed themselves when they spoke. True, their conversation was interesting, and their dialect was at times quite quaint and pleasing. But the English was very defective. One of the girls regretted this: "I know we don't speak well, but," she continued, "how else can we do? This is the sort of language we hear at home and among the people we associate with."

But some colored folks are very correct in their use of English. And their voices, when cultivated and controlled, add to the attractiveness and impressiveness of their speech. The racial origin of the speaker need not be concealed, but the English uttered should be of the purest and highest type.

In this country of ours the people are a mixture of English, Scotch, Irish, German, French, Italian, Scandinavian, and many other sorts of peoples with their varied languages and dialects—to say nothing of the differences we ourselves have developed in the North, South, East and West. It is to be hoped, however, that eventually our language will be one—with many slightly differing tones and accents—but always used correctly, and accurately expressing the clear thoughts and refined feelings of the people.

How may you, individually, improve your English—at the same time helping to raise the general standard? Here are a few suggestions:

1. Watch your talk. I do not say "Speech," for you might retort, "I never make a speech." I am referring to the talk you use at home, at school, at work, or on the street. Whenever you say anything endeavor to choose words and form sentences with your best possible skill and taste. Be your own critic. Write down your faults as you detect them, and make a note of the good habits you are determined to acquire.

2. Read good English—and think about it. When you come across an unfamiliar word that favorably impresses you, study it, fix it in memory, and find a suitable time and place to use it. When you come across an especially clear, or significant, or striking expression, stop. Make it as much your own as possible, and find a fit place in which to use it.

3. Hear good speaking. Note the good points and absorb them. You have more time when reading a book. You can stop and review for as long a time as necessary anything that impresses you. But there are advantages in studying the spoken word and sentence. You hear the voice, get the pronunciation, and see the effects of the language on others. It is a more living way, even though it has its limitations, in studying language and improving your use of it.

4. Write and speak carefully. Let everyone of your friendly letters be an exercise in English composition. This may seem difficult and formal at the beginning. But it will become easier later on, and it will yield much benefit as the years go by. I happen to know that the editor of the HERALD greatly profited by the practice of this method in college days.

When you have occasion to speak at a church or school or any sort of community gathering, or to write a paper or report of any kind, the same care should be used in the choice and arrangement of your language as when you are writing an important letter. The church or community that has in it several men and women who can, on short notice, stand up and speak a few well chosen words in support of a good measure, or in opposition to an unwise proposition, is indeed fortunate. The man or the woman who can write a public letter on a question that is of vital interest to the community—setting forth objections to a certain course of action, and advocating what seems to be preferable—may be doing far more good, and in a better way, than the one who stands ready to contribute many dollars for the cause of which he approves.

As a means of increasing the power of the spoken word—the word that is well chosen, accurately expressing your thought—I wish to emphasize the importance of cultivating a good speaking voice. The qualities of the voice may greatly detract from or add to the value of the spoken word. A good speaking voice is clear and distinct. It should be medium to low in register. The utterance should be slow or rapid, the inflection rising or falling, the tone loud or soft, as required. Shrieking, yelling and screaming may once in a great while be needed; though they are usually marks of weakness rather than indications of strength. Colored folks, and many others from the South, have a smoothness of utterance that contrasts pleasantly with the harsher voices to be heard in the North and West.

SUMMARY OF WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOL STATISTICS

Tabulation is made of the Sunday School membership throughout the world every four years by the World's Sunday School Association for presentation at its quadrennial convention. When the figures were submitted at the Tenth Convention which was held in Los Angeles, July, 1928, it was impossible to obtain recent figures for the United States and those presented at the Convention in Glasgow, in 1924, were used. Since current figures for the United States and Canada were submitted at the Convention of the International Council of Religious Education which was held in Toronto last June, it is possible to give the following corrected tabulation of the world:

Grand Divisions	No. of S. S.	No. Officers and Teachers	No. Sch'lars	Total E'rollm't
North America	159,817	2,179,312	21,851,027	24,030,339
Central America ...	381	1,832	19,098	20,930
South America	2,976	11,695	159,160	170,855
West Indies	1,930	17,364	171,330	188,694
Europe	90,621	854,905	8,462,845	9,317,750
Asia	37,427	96,564	1,470,818	1,567,382
Africa	13,148	63,477	726,181	789,658
Malaysia	1,422	8,161	100,463	108,624
Oceania	12,898	89,720	790,710	880,430
	320,620	3,323,030	33,751,631	37,074,662

Statistics covering the world will again be compiled and reported at the Eleventh Convention of the World's Sunday School Association which will be held in Rio de Janeiro during the summer of 1932. The office of the World's Sunday School Association is 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York City. The increase since 1924 is significant: Scholars, 4,594,213, and total enrollment, 4,397,051.

"I WANT TO TELL JESUS MY PA PRAYS"

A farmer lived near a little running brook. In one corner of the fence near by his little eight year old girl had built a play-house where she spent many happy hours by the side of the brook. Her father was not a praying man, but he dearly loved her. She was taken sick, and when near the close of life, she felt a strong desire to see her play house again and asked her father to take her there.

"My dear, you are too sick to go there." But she insisted, and he finally took her carefully in his arms and carried her down to her play-house, and sat down with her. She gazed a long time at the place she had so often visited, and then, turning toward her father, said:—

"Pa, I wish you would pray."

"Why do you want me to pray, my dear?"

"I want to tell Jesus my pa prays."

He turned his face away for a moment to hide the starting tears, and when he turned again to look at her, the gentle spirit had flown.

He carefully lifted the loved form and carried her back to her bed, but those words, "I want to tell Jesus my pa prays," kept ringing in his ears, until he fell upon his knees and became a praying man. "A little child shall lead them."—Publisher Unknown.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE TANGERINE SWEATER

It was the week before Christmas, and Ruth was in her room tying up packages when she heard the sound of familiar laughter and caught a glimpse of Mrs. Ellison's bright face passing on the street below.

"Are you in a big hurry, Aunt Mildred?" the girl called, running to the window. "I want to ask your advice about something if you have time to stop."

"You know I always have time to talk to you, Ruth," her aunt replied with a smile. "O," she cried a minute later, as Ruth opened the door on a medley of boxes, gay paper, and tinseled ribbon, "you're helping Santa Claus, aren't you? How pretty your packages look!"

"Yes, I'm trying to make Christmas beautiful this year," the girl answered solemnly. "It's the one season when everybody ought to have a release from the drag practicality of life."

"Who is it you are quoting, Ruth?" Mrs. Ellison's eyes twinkled.

Ruth laughed and blushed. "I guess I'm echoing the lecture I heard at our girls' club the other night. We had a wonderfully eloquent lady who spoke on the "True Spirit of Christmas." She said that at Christmas we ought never to count cost or consult prudence, that it was the time for glorious extravagance and lavish beauty. It's too bad we girls didn't hear the lecture sooner, for we had made or bought of our presents already."

"What did she think were suitable gifts?"

"O, she said that flowers and toys and lovely things that the people we give to would never dream of buying for themselves, were what expressed the real spirit of Christmas. She said poor children would remember dolls and pictures long after they had forgotten food and clothes. We all felt dreadfully ashamed of the commonplace presents we'd planned to give. Several of the girls are going to take back the gifts they had bought and exchange them for truly Christmasy things. That's what I wanted to ask you about, Aunt Mildred."

Ruth took the largest package and, untying it, drew out a girl's sweater of soft knitted wool. It was of a brilliant tangerine color, and the knot of black velvet ribbon at the neck only emphasized the glowing warmth of hue.

"What a pretty sweater, Ruth!" her aunt exclaimed. "Whom is it for?"

"I meant it for Janie Riley, our wash-woman's little girl. She belongs to my Sunday School class, and she looks so funny and so shamefaced when she comes in wearing a made-over old coat of her mother's. I thought she'd like the sweater; but the lecturer told us how all little girls delight so in dolls. I've been wondering if Janie wouldn't rather have a really beautiful doll than the sweater. I can't afford to give both."

"Can't her father and mother buy her a wrap?"

"Her father could if he would work. But he's temperamental, and jobs are so hard to get that he seems to have become discouraged and quit trying. And Mrs. Riley with her washing can hardly buy food for her swarm of children, much less clothes."

Mrs. Ellison smiled queerly as she patted the gay woolen folds. "I believe, Ruth, if I were you I'd go on and give the little girl her sweater, and risk its violating the Christmas spirit. It seems to me that it's as pretty in its way as a picture or a toy would be in theirs, and incidentally it will keep the child warm."

Ruth did not answer, but still gazed at the garment with doubtful eyes. Her aunt hurried away, and the matter was not mentioned again till two or three weeks later. Then, when the two were spending a snowy afternoon together in Mrs. Ellison's cheerful living-room, the older woman asked:

"Ruth, did you give little Janie the tangerine swearter?"

"Yes, I did, Aunt Mildred, though I didn't much want to. I was afraid it wasn't festal enough."

"Was Janie disappointed because you didn't give her a doll instead?"

"O, no," the girl shook her head, then laughed gayly. "I stopped to see Mrs. Riley this morning, and she told me all about their Christmas gifts. She was busy and flustered, putting her house to rights after starting the children to school. 'I'm havin' a hard time this mornin' reddin' things up,' she informed me. 'The kids got so many toys this Christmas that I can't step for fear of trampin' on 'em. And candy, my sakes! they've eat so much they're all half-sick and so fretful I'm glad to get 'em off to school once more. 'Most all the ladies I wash for sent dolls and candy and gew-gaws this year.' 'Don't you like the sweets and toys and pretty things, Mrs. Riley?' I asked, surprised at her tone. 'O, they seem mighty nice at first, but they've got no stayin' power,' she answered. 'Look at that there Christmas tree, all tinseled up: little Johnny and Betty and Tommy went wild over it Christmas mornin,' but they don't pay much attention to it now. They might not have hollored so loud over a pair of new shoes, but shoes would have lasted longer. Suddenly her face brightened. 'Miss Ruth, you ought to see Janie in that yaller sweater you gave her! She's as proud as a peacock! I had hard work to get her to go to school before Christmas, for she thought the school children made fun of her clothes. But this morning she went off ahead of all the rest. The funniest thing was the way her pap did. He stood lookin' after her till she was clear out of sight; then he says slow and thoughtful-like, "With them black eyes and black curls our Janie would be handsome as anybody's gal if she was fixed up nice." With that he picked up his hat and started out to hunt work agin; and it's the gospel truth, Miss Ruth, he got the first job he asked for! So it's turned out to be a happy Christmas for us after all.' "

Ruth gave a perplexed sigh. "I've been thinking about the lady who lectured on the true spirit of Christmas. Her theory about glorious imprudence and unpractical beauty was fine, but it didn't seem to work, from Mrs. Riley's viewpoint."

"I'm afraid Mrs. Riley's viewpoint was just what your eloquent lecturer failed to consider," Mrs. Ellison replied.

"Christmas giving is an art which requires imagination. Of course we ought to give beautiful presents, so far as we can; but the flowers and frivolities which might have pleased you girls in your comfortable homes would have seemed a mockery to Mrs. Riley in her desperate struggle for a living. I've noticed that people who scorn 'useful gifts' are usually those who have never known hunger and cold."—Selected.

A BIBLE TEXT THAT WORKED A BUSINESS MIRACLE

The late Arthur Nash, president of the A. Nash Company, Inc., of Cincinnati, tells the story of his Golden Rule factory in the American Magazine. He says:

One afternoon several months ago a man came into my office. "I've heard a lot about your 'Golden Rule factory'," he said. "Will you show me through it?"

"Certainly! We'll take the elevator to the sixth floor, and walk down."

We stepped out into a big room where scores of girls were busy at their machines. "Let's go through here," I said, walking along. Then I saw I was talking to myself. The visitor was standing a few feet away from the door to the elevator shaft, his face curiously puzzled.

"I've never seen people working so fast before," he remarked. "They're all piece-workers, of course."

"No. Every one in this room is on a weekly wage."

He eyed me sharply. "You're talking to an experienced factory man, Mr. Nash. Don't try to make me believe that!"

"Ask them," I suggested. He did.

Presently we reached the third floor—where all our clothing is cut. This is a job that should have the utmost care.

"What a contrast here!" exclaimed my visitor. "The men at the tables act as though they had oceans of time in which to finish their jobs."

"They're taking pains," I explained.

"Of course they are paid by the week, too."

"No. They are the only piece-workers in the plant."

"You mean to tell me that all those upstairs, who are working at top speed, are weekly wage earners; and that these men here are paid by the piece?"

There was plain disbelief in his eyes, so I told him the story how our present plan started and how its amazing results had surprised me as much as any one else. As we walked along he stopped occasionally to speak to one of the operators.

"I have never seen so happy a bunch of workers," he remarked, as we came back into the office.

"Yes. They are very happy. And so am I."

After a moment he said, "I want you to know that I would rather have done what you have done here than to have made all the money in the world."

I learned later that the visitor was a great manufacturer and financier of a Southern State. Today he is one of my close friends.

In all that has been said and written in the past year or two about our so-called "Golden Rule factory," I feel that too much credit has been given to my part in it. I have merely furnished a chance—a free and honest chance—for the operation in industry of the principle pronounced by the Teacher of Galilee: "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."—Selected.

GLORY IN THE LORD

There are many things that people of the world glory in because they do not know any better. But we who love the Lord Jesus are told to glory only in Him. Everything else will pass away, and then in the end we will be fooled: we will find that we have trusted in the wrong thing.

Some people glory in a lovely home, but then in a moment of time it is destroyed by fire, water, or something else. Then their hearts are sad because they have trusted in that which will surely pass away.

Some people glory in a very dear friend. That friend may never have disappointed them while he lived, but in a moment of time that friend is called away by death. Then again their hearts are made sad and they have nothing more to glory in.

But when we glory in the Lord we are always safe. He will never fool us, fail us nor forsake us. He will never die, and He will never turn us away from Him no matter how weak we are. His mercy endureth for ever.

We are told in the Bible that "no flesh should glory in His (the Lord's) presence. * * * That, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord." (1 Cor. 1:29, 31; II Cor. 10:17). Jeremiah, the Prophet, says, "Give glory to the Lord your God" (Jer. 13:16). The Psalmist also says, "Give unto the Lord the glory due unto His Name; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness" (Ps. 29:2), for "great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised" (I Chron. 16:25).

The Lord is worthy of more praise and glory than we can give Him. So let us give Him all the glory and praise we can. Of course our little life is too short in which to praise Him, but if we belong to Him we will have all eternity in which to praise and honor Him. However, it is well to begin here already. We are never too young to begin to praise the Lord and to glory in Him.—Selected.

A SHEEP OR A GOAT?

The mother had just read the story of the sheep and the goats (Matt. 25:33), which tells of the sheep being placed on the right hand and the goats on the left. Unknown to the family the father had returned from the tavern earlier than usual, and was listening at the door.

"Will father be a goat?" little Tom asked, as he looked up into his mother's face with serious concern about the father whom he loved. The question touched the sinner's heart, led him to see his portion now and then, urged him to "flee from the wrath to come" (Matt. 3:7), and find refuge in the Lord Jesus Christ. Have you ever thought: "Will I be a sheep or a goat?" As you accept or reject the Lord Jesus Christ now, so will your place be then.—The Life Line.

—We become new creatures in Christ Jesus is not only the doctrine of the Bible but also a fact of human experience.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By J. T. BOWMAN

President C. E. Society, High Point College

OCT. 19: CHRISTIANS AND SUNDAYS

Scripture Text: Matt. 12:1-8.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Christian worship. Acts 20:4-12.

Tuesday—Christian meditation. Rev. 1:9-20.

Wednesday—Church-attendance. Heb 10: 23-25.

Thursday—Christian helpfulness. Luke 14:1-6.

Friday—Follow Jesus' custom. Luke 4:16-22.

Saturday—A day of rest. Exodus 20:8-11.

Suggestions to the Leader

You might call this a "right and wrong" meeting. Several days before the meeting ask three people to make a survey in which they will set forth the wrong use of Sunday. This should be drawn as much as possible from actual observation. Then ask three people to make a survey in which they will set for the right use of Sunday.

Suitable songs: "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "Some One Is Watching Your Light," "Faith of Our Fathers," "If Your Life Rings True," and "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord."

Leader's Talk

Sunday desecration is growing and Christian Endeavor must help to halt its spread. The world at large is going pleasure mad, and in the stampede there is danger that the "flock of God" may join.

The Sabbath was made for man, for his needs, spiritual and physical. Sunday is a day of rest, of freedom from business, an opportunity to worship God. Sunday is God's day; a time of happiness, not a period of woe. All that is innocent and sweet, all that does not obscure the soul's highest interest, is right on Sunday.

To break down Sunday's laws is like tearing down fences that protect our best interests. They used to bring out once a week the mules that lived in the mines of Pennsylvania in order to keep them from going blind. Without Sunday man would soon grow spiritually blind.

Questions to Be Discussed

1. How may we know what things are "Christian" to do on Sunday?
2. How do you like to spend Sunday?
3. Explain the difference between the Sabbath and the Lord's Day.
4. How do you think Christ would spend or use Sunday if He were here in the flesh?
5. Name some of the things which you think are the most dangerous enemies of the Lord's Day.
6. Name some of the great benefits which the proper use of Sunday confers upon the Christian.
7. What does the world think when it sees professing Christians desecrating the Sabbath Day?
8. What influence upon the church does the proper use of the Lord's Day have? What is the result of the improper use?

Poetry

IT PAYS

It pays to be a Christian,
It pays to take a stand;
It pays to do your duty
On the sea and on the land.
It pays to be a worker
In the vineyard of the Lord;
It pays to do your duty,
E'en though the work is hard.

It pays to face the trial,
It pays to do your best;
It pays to work for Jesus
In the white fields with the rest.
It pays to help a brother,
It pays to life his load;
It pays to be a lifter
Along life's weary road.

It pays to look for others
Who are now down deep in sin;
It pays to tell the story
That will save and bring them in.
It pays to tell them daily—
Not on Sunday just alone;
It pays to give the message
That will help to bring them home.

It pays to be a sharer
In the victory of our Lord;
It pays to win the blessing
And a crown as our reward.
It pays to have the Master's smile
And hear Him say, "Well done;"
It pays to have Him say to us,
"A faithful race you've run."

HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

◆

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

◆

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

TEMPERANCE PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

At the request of the executive committee I am submitting the following suggestive program for the opening exercise of Sunday school on World's Temperance Sunday, October 26, 1930:

Quiet music—"I Would Be True."
Song—"America."
Responsive reading—Gal. 5:13-26 (S. S. lesson.)
Talk by pastor or some other speaker (five minutes.)
Special music.
Temperance recitation—("Two Glasses," or any other appropriate one).
Song—"Yield Not to Temptation."

You may have already planned a much better program than this, and if so, use it, but have some kind if special exercise on that day if possible.

VELNA McCULLOCH,
Sec'y Temperance and Moral Reform.

TO MRS. W. C. HAMMER

President of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The members of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work, all of whom feel a profound loss in the passing of Mr. Wm. C. Hammer, wish to express to her whom he loved, and whom we love, our tenderest sympathy.

While many of our number had not the privilege of personal friendship with Mr. Hammer, our love and esteem for Mrs. Hammer make us feel keenly his passing.

Someone has spoken of sorrow as God's music lesson which trains us for the "Choir Invisible" and enables us to reach the depths and heights which we only thus can take in His great symphony.

We pray that our beloved president shall receive more strength and beauty through the tuning and the minor chords of the valley of sorrow in God's music lesson.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, N. C. BRANCH OF WOMEN'S WORK

Since the request came to me from the recent committee meeting to "wind up the works of the Woman's work in N. C. so it will make a noise once a week for the next quarter," I make hold to make the first stroke.

I am sure each officer of the Branch has a heart full of utterances she would like to "get over" to each auxiliary, so I am making the suggestion again that you speak through the Methodist Protestant Herald, setting forth your ambitions and setting tasks for departmental secretaries in the auxiliaries.

In order that all may not speak at once, I am assigning the following dates to the members of this committee with the request that you mail your "speech" to Miss Mary C. McCulloch on these dates opposite your names:

October 13—Mrs. H. G. Paschall, secretary of Spiritual Life.
October 27—Mrs. D. S. Coltrane, secretary of Thank Offering.
November 3—Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, secretary of Children's Home.
November 10—Miss Pearl McCulloch, secretary of Literature.
November 17—Miss Velna McCulloch, secretary of Temperance and Moral Reform.
November 24—Dr. Harris Glascock, secretary Benevolences.
December 1—Mrs. Samuel R. Harris, secretary Life, Memorial, and Perpetual Members.
December 8—Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, secretary High Point College Student Loan Fund.
December 15—Mrs. F. W. Paschall, secretary Bethel Home.
December 22—Mrs. H. W. Maier, secretary Christian Education.

I trust that other members of the executive committee will have something to say at other times, and that each of these to whom I have assigned dates will use her privilege of speaking more than once.

Yours for a full column each week,
MRS. R. M. ANDREWS.

REPORT OF THE QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The thought of Bethel Home is linked with warm-hearted hospitality. This hospitality not only includes the people who go there for healing and strength, but it includes all friends who may cross its threshold for a brief or longer visit.

Each year the Executive Committee of the Branch holds one of its quarterly meetings at Bethel Home. Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Bates, the only preacher folks in our conference who own a summer home, throw open their house for the use of the women who attend, and the Weaverville Auxiliary always gives a substantial welcome.

The members of the committee who could not attend the meeting missed a great treat this year. On our arrival at the cottage we found a group of women from the Auxiliary awaiting us with smiling faces and hearty greetings, and a most satisfying supper served in a setting of beautiful flowers. Miss Velna said there were 16 varieties of food, not to mention the freezer of delicious ice cream sent down by Mr. Altman, and the immense slices of toothsome country ham sent by Mr. Casto for our breakfast.

Wednesday morning we went up to Bethel Home and held our business meeting in the reception room of the new four-room log bungalow just back of the Home. This was erected during the past year, the logs being given from an old house some distance away. It is quite attractive with its steps and entrance platform of stone, and with its knocker and curtain rods of hand-wrought iron. Adorned with flowers and vines, it presented a beautiful, homelike appearance.

First, we were greeted by Mr. Altman, the "Cheerio" of Bethel Home, who insisted on taking our pictures. The business of the day was then taken up, and the questions and problems pertaining to our missionary work were seriously studied and discussed.

We were delighted to have reports, either in person or by letter, from all but two of our thirteen departmental secretaries, and from four district chairmen. The general chairman of districts, Mrs. C. W. Bates, made a report that showed much activity on her part during the quarter. The corresponding secretary reported that she had sent to auxiliaries 70 report blanks, and that 44 had been returned in time for the meeting. Some report splendid progress, some having a struggle to keep the work up to par, and some few are a little bit discouraged; but as a whole we are gaining ground, having added several new members, and a number of new Record subscribers, and organized two or there new auxiliaries.

A recommendation that our missionary year be divided into four equal quarters was adopted, and our meetings in the future will be held in July, October, January and April. Attention was called to question four on the Efficiency Chart, as referring to the return of report blanks since they are official communications.

The treasurer's report was received with acclamation since it showed quite a gain over the receipts at this time last year. It will appear in the Herald. The reports of all secretaries were received and adopted, and suitable recommendations were made as to suggestions offered for future work, and the secretary was asked to write those who could not be present.

It was with keen regret that the resignation of Mrs. E. Lester Ballard, secretary of Missionary Education, was accepted, and a committee was appointed to find someone to serve in her place until Branch meeting. Two auxiliaries reported having prepared programs for missionary instruction in the Sunday school, and they were requested to have these programs published in the Herald for the use of others. Mrs. Ballard did not give the names of these auxiliaries, but we hope to get them soon. We should appreciate it if Mrs. Ballard's street address can be printed in the Herald.

Committees were appointed to prepare a page to be printed in the Conference Journal, to plan for raising the salary of Mr. Minnis, partly from young people's organizations, to get out a leaflet to be given to preachers and laymen at Conference explaining and emphasizing the women's work in the local churches.

An important action of the committee was that auxiliaries should carry out the plan to raise two per cent of the pastors' salaries for the support of the Herald, and that District Chairmen should endeavor to find women to do this in churches having no auxiliaries.

Mr. Casto gave report of the condition of Bethel Home. There have been more patients needing help the past summer than ever before, but with the aid of the Duke Foundation, the missionary organization and friends, he has been able to meet these needs, and the Home is in good shape financially at present. A "shower" of canned goods, preserves and jellies was given the Home by members of the Executive Committee and others, and two members presented two much-needed fire extinguishers to the Home. At noon the committee was refreshed with a delicious dinner served in the dining room of the Home, appetites being sharpened by the lovely and Kannapolis Church.—It has been some time since the Kannapolis church has been heard from, but we are always interested in reading the letters from the other churches, and note the progress they are making. We are not desirous of blowing our trumpets in the streets to be recognized, yet we do want it known that we are interested, not only in our particular church, but all at large.

We are nearing the end of our Conference year and trying to get things in shape for better progress for the incoming year. We certainly have nothing to complain of in this year's work. The Lord has wonderfully blessed and strengthened us materially, as well as spiritually, and we are grateful. Yet there is so much to be done that we have been hindered in doing. We are in much better position numerically, financially, and we trust spiritually to go forward.

I wish to take this occasion to express my appreciation to the people of this work (as well as other friends) for their splendid cooperation, and devotion they have exemplified, by their untiring efforts and sacrifice to the work. We have received several liberal poundings this year, and "believe it or not!" Pounding of this nature does not hurt. But the spirit behind them always touches and inspires the pastor, to a desire for greater service. Through the co-operation, and I suspect sacrifice of Bro. D. A. McLaurin, and the persistent determination of our people, we have a much more comfortable building to worship in than last year. I would suggest that you people who are intending to paint, read again D. A.'s advertisement in last week's Herald. Patronize those who are willing to help the cause. He doesn't know that I was going to say this either.

May the Lord richly bless all who have helped contribute to our cause.

J. L. LOVE, Pastor.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—We are still trying to press onward. Our Sunday school is moving forward in number and interest. Each pupil seems to manifest more interest in Sunday school.

Our pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, has filled his regular appointments since our revival. The Lord's Supper was administered at the last morning service to a good number. The afternoon service yesterday was interesting. Brother Ferree used for his subject, "Religion and Christianity." We find a vast difference between the two.

We realize this Conference year is fast coming to a close. We are behind with various means, which we hope to be able to collect. We want to say that we feel that Rev. G. B. Ferree has done his part well.

LEONA HENDRIX.

Tabernacle Charge.—Last Sunday, October 5, proved to be a day of sacred memories and hallowed associations to the large group of people who assembled at Tabernacle to commemorate the close of 100 years of continuous existence of this church. A train of hallowed memories clusters around the building. Great life decisions have been made at the altars. Weddings, baptisms, and "big" meetings have taken place within the walls. "Up the aisles the faltering footsteps of sorrowing families have followed their loved ones."

The weather was ideal, the music was uplifting, and the sermons and addresses were instructive and inspiring. The speakers were: Drs. S. W. Taylor, G. I. Humphreys, J. F. McCulloch, and Revs. W. F. Kennett and T. F. McCulloch. It was good to be there.

May God shower His blessings on this church and congregation as they commence the work of the second century.

H. L. ISLEY.

Fairfield Church, Guilford Circuit.—The series of revival meetings closed at our church Friday, September 26th. T. Glenn Madison, from Thomasville, N. C., delivered a series of sermons which were beyond reproach. Although there were no great number of conversions, the meeting, we feel, was very successful, in that the professed followers were built up in the faith and grew in the knowledge and likeness of the Master. We hope that much and lasting good was accomplished and that the revival spirit will continue throughout the whole year. The doors of the church were opened at the close of the meeting and three new members were taken in. The Roseville quartet rendered some special numbers during the services while Mrs. Mendenhall and Miss Davis, teachers of the Allen Jay School, sang a duet.

Mrs. Strader's and Mr. Ingram's classes went to the Guilford Battlegrounds on a picnic Saturday afternoon, September 27th. A good number attended and all had a pleasant time.

A large number attended Sunday school and also the meeting for worship last Sunday. Of the 106 on roll at Sunday school 93 were present. Mr. R. C. Harris, principal of the Allen Jay School, and also Miss Davis, Miss Hatton, Mrs. Mendenhall, teachers at the same school, were visitors. Rev. Peeler delivered an appropriate message on the text, "We shall fade as the leaf," and used for a topic, "Seeing God in Nature."

The Sunday school institute of Jamestown Township met at the church Sunday afternoon with a large crowd attending. Dr McCracken was the principal speaker. He delivered an interesting address on the importance of organization of local as well as township Sunday schools. Mr. Thomas, the county president, and Mr. Boiles, township superintendent, made short talks on the possibilities of the Sunday school.

Community prayer meeting was held at the church Sunday evening.

J. VAN CASHATT, Reporter.

Siler City.—Yesterday was a full day for us, having 110 in Sunday school. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Mr. Sharpe, our superintendent. The committee, Mrs. T. L. Smith, and Miss Sallie Smith, are preparing a thank-offering program to be given on the third Sunday night.

Dr. Williams filled the pulpit at the morning hour yesterday with another one of his most wonderful messages. He always brings us such good sermons. We heard quite a few remarks about its being a great sermon. At the evening hour our president, Dr. S. W. Taylor, was with us and preached a most interesting sermon. We are sorry the church could not be full to hear this good sermon. We are always glad to welcome our President in our midst.

We are glad to know that William Wrenn, one of our members, has sufficiently recovered to return home ofter undergoing an operation for appendicitis at Watts Hospital, Durham, N. C.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

Why Not Charge.—Our meeting began at New Zion the fourth Sunday, and closed the following Friday night. We had an extra good meeting. There were 14 professions and four accessions. Rev. E. A. Bingham preached every sermon from beginning to close. He did his part well. Everybody, I think, was highly pleased with our helper.

The ladies of the church deserve praise for floral display, and for the tidiness of the church.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Flag Springs church on Saturday, the 18th, at 1 p. m. President Taylor will preside.

Wm. H. NEESE, Pastor.

Mount Pleasant, North Davidson Charge.—The revival services closed on Thursday night of last week. We had a good revival, and seven people were united with the church. We were indeed glad to have Rev. M. P. Chambliss speak to us during the week, and we hope we will be fortunate enough to have him preach to us again.

The C. E. Society met today, which is the first Sunday, with a good number present. We had a splendid program, with Miss Delphine Welborn as leader. Miss Ruth Green will act as leader for the next meeting, which will be the third Sunday in October. We are looking forward for a splendid program, and we urge every member of the C. E. Society to be present at this time.

We are indeed glad to report that Mrs. G. W. Hayworth is very much better than she has been and we are very anxious for her recovery.

Let us urge every official and member of the church to be present the fourth Sunday in October, because this will be the end of the Conference year. Of course everyone wants to hear the last message that our beloved pastor, Rev. H. L. Powell, will deliver this Conference year, and would be indeed glad to have him returned to us the coming year, if it be possible. Let us say to our delegate of the Annual Conference, "Bring Bro. Powell back to us if it be possible."

Our fourth quarterly conference will convene on Thursday before the third Sunday in October, which will be held at Canaan church. Rev. S. W. Taylor will be with this people on this day. We are always glad to have our president with us. There will be preaching at 11 o'clock and dinner on the grounds. Immediately after lunch the business of the conference will be transacted. Let us urge every official to be present at this time, and also all the other members than can be present.

As a new Conference year is at hand, let us make it one of the best Conference years we've had in a long time.

RUTH PAYNE, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Our revival meeting at Harmony Grove church closed on Friday night of last week. We did not have any day services but had a service each night last week. The attendance and interest at all of the services was good. There were many visitors in the services during the meeting, and the members co-operated in a splendid manner. Song and prayer services were held each night for fiften minutes before the regular service, and these services meant much to the success of the meeting. The pastor did all of the preeaching during the meeting, there being a total of eight services held. There were nine conversions and two relamations. At the last service ten members were received, two coming by transfer from the M. E. Church, South, and eight by profession of faith.

Our service at Baltimore church last Sunday morning was largely attended and the people were very attentive to the sermon by the pastor. We were glad to have visitors in the service. Among the visitors present were Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree and Miss Olive Anderson, of Tobaccoville, who are members of Pleasant Hill church. These good people completed a schedule of visits to all six of the churches on West Forsyth charge with the services at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches last Sunday. We appreciate very much this unusual accomplishment and their presence at all of our churches during the last four Sundays was an inspiration.

A funeral service was held at Stony Knoll church last Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, and the regular preaching service was omitted. Junius Randleman, aged 14 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Randleman, of Yadkin county, who died about noon last Saturday, was buried at Stony Knoll cemetery Sunday afternoon. The pastor conducted the funeral service in the church in the presence of a large congregation, which completely filled the church. The deceased united with Stony Knoll Methodist Protestant church four years ago along with two of his broththers. An obituary will appear later.

The people of Tabernacle church put on a supper occasion in the grove of the church last Saturday night. Lunches, hot coffee, lemonade, ice cream and cake were served at a nominal charge. A fairly large crowd was present for the occasion. The proceeds of the present for the occasion. The proceeds of the cover the church. Decision to put a new roof on the church building was made several months ago. As an entertaining feature of the occasion a male quartet from Winston-Salem, headed by Marley Vestal, an experienced music teacher, rendered several selections in the church and on the outside. An auction sale of boxes of lunch proved quite interesting to the young men, who purchased the boxes which were prepared by the young ladies. Quite a good sum was realized from the sale of these boxes.

The pastor has made announcement of the meeting of the fourth quarterly conference, which is to be held at Stony Knoll church on Friday, October 24. The program will be as usual, with a sermon at 11 a. m., dinner at the church, and the business session in the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. This is a very important quarterly conference and we are expecting a good attendance of the official members from all of the churches.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be with Tabernacle and Union Hill churches. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be administered at each church, completing the required number of times for the year.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Friendship and Porter Stations.—It has been quite a while since I have reported. Everything has gone well except the finances. The farmers have had two bad crop years, and the finances are considerably behind, but my people will do all they can to pay up in full. My people are making preparations to help entertain the Conference. Those of you who had rather have homes in the country, just notify Rev. J. R. Anderson, Albemarle, N. C. My people live from three to five miles out of town. Some are on hard surface.

We held our revival meeting at Friendship beginning the first Sunday in August, with Rev. Joel B. Trogdon doing the preaching. He delivered some wonderful messages, which were enjoyed by all. There were six conversions and four additions to the church. The church was greatly revived.

The meeting began the fourth Sunday in August at Porter. By request I did the preaching. The church was wonderfully revived. One addition was made to the church. The membership of this church has almost doubled in four years. Both churches are in fine shape spiritually, but could be better.

I am winding up the fourth year here with this good people. They have stood by us with their prayers and means, for which they have our heart-felt thanks, but I feel the Lord would have me move on to a new field. It is a sad thing to serve a people for four years, and then have to part, but I trust our parting will not be forever. Let us be faithful to the end, then we will meet where there will be no parting.

C. H. HILL, Pastor.

Harmony Grove.—A series of revival meetings began last Sunday with a good attendance at the morning and afternoon services. Quite a number took communion. At the noon hour, dinner was spread on the soft, green grass, in the church yard beneath the spreading shade trees. Those who have never been to this church, and enjoyed their hospitality and splendid dinners have missed a rare treat indeed. May God grant richest blessings upon this band of Christian workers, who, few in numbers, are great in heart. By request of the members, Pastor Way will do the preaching himself. May this be the means of more good being done, inasmuch as a new preacher would not feel quit so close to them; this may make the work harder for the pastor, but we feel assured the Christians will hold up his hands by prayer and earnest work and a revival will be result.

A Mr. Brown and family (part of his family) who live at Guilford College, came to worship again with the congregation, where once they worshiped. Mr. Brown at the organ played and sang, accompanied by his daughters, two sweet songs, which were much enjoyed. Very few families can sing and play as they did.

GUESS WHO.

Asheborc.—The Sunday school attendance for the past two Sundays has been 271 and 269, respectively. A week ago we had Promotion Day and yesterday we had Rally Day. A splendid program had been prepared for the school on yesterday and it was used during the Sunday school hour, the classes going to their rooms after the program long enough to get a record of attendance.

Fair congregations were present, both morning and evening, yesterday. At the morning hour one new member was received on profession of faith, this being Ann Harrison Ridge, the precious little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ridge.

A week ago yesterday Rev. N. M. Harrison, of Charlotte, was present and preached at the morning hour a very helpful sermon. He had been engaged to preach twice during the day while the pastor was supposed to be assisting Brother Gerringer at Burlington in a meeting; however, on account of the death of Congressman Hammer and the fact that the funeral was held in our church on Sunday afternoon, we did not have any evening service. Brother Harrison is well known here, having come here to claim his bride, and our people are always glad to hear him.

Next Sunday morning we are hoping to receive several new members, some of them coming to us by letter. We have already received about thirty new members during this Conference year.

New officers for the Sunday school were elected yesterday. Bro. J. D. Ross continues as general superintendent for another year. He has done fine work and there is general satisfaction at the prospect of having him again.

First Church, High Point.—In the church school on last Sunday morning Rally Day was observed with appropriate exercises. A committee, of which Mrs. L. R. Peacock was the efficient chairman, had sent out an effective letter to every family of the congregation, and had prepared an interesting program. The offering on this occasion amounted to $33.00, which goes to the Board of Christian Education. The different departments of the church school held their promotion exercises at the same time.

Our evangelistic campaign and revival made a very auspicious beginning, there being good congregations at both services on Sunday. Cottage prayer meetings had been held in different parts of the city during last week. In the Sunday morning service Mrs. J. H. Allred and Mr. Arthur Fidler sang a lovely duet, "In the Cross of Christ," and the beautiful anthem, "O, Master Let Me Walk With Thee," was rendered by the choir. The minister announced that copies of the Gospel of St. John, furnished by the C. E. Society, Mrs. Rankin's Circle of the Woman's Auxiliary, and a few individuals, are being presented to all who wish to take them. Rev. Mr. Farmer then delivered a very eloquent and effective sermon from Matt. 12:30, "He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad." He said in part: In the beginning of any revival season, the Christian people should be sure that they are consecrated and attune with Christ. This text is dynamic, incisive, not easily misunderstood, not a man-made judgment, but God's own statement. Jesus did not usually argue with people; on one occasion a woman came into Simon's house to see and talk with Jesus, and Simon was quite shocked and indignant because she was not wearing a veil, but Jesus forgave her sins. Simon was more interested in the external affairs than in the salvation of souls. The soul that has been swept of evil should be filled with the spirit of God. It is not enough to cleanse our lives of unrighteousness, but they should bring forth good fruits. His work is here for us to dispose of, and we must be alert and anxious about the Father's business. There are too many people in High Point who will not work with each other. It is a big thing to be able to keep step with others. In the American army of the World War there was "an awkward squad," and the minister said that it kept him "on his toes" all the time lest he be relegated to that unfortunate and dreaded line. Are you winning folks to Christ? He who refuses to live up with the cause of Christ adds to the sum total of the world's destruction, and he who aligns himself with God's children contributes to the sum total of the world's blessing and prosperity. There is no middle ground; one contributes either to the positive or negative side of life.

At the evening service Miss Margaret Neese and C. L. Gray, Jr., sang very beautifully a duet, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and a quartet, composed of Mrs. J. H. Walker, Miss Elizabeth Welch, Messrs. Gray and Mourane, sang "Nearer, Still Nearer." The minister delivered a splendid sermon on "The Failure of Christ as a Preacher."

On Sunday morning the service of the Junior church was conducted by Dr. A. G. Dixon, and it was Decision Day for this group.

The executive committee of the Woman's Auxiliary met at the church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, made an inspirational talk to the Baraca class at Sunday school, after which he left for Tabernacle church, 10 miles south of Greensboro, where he delivered an address at the one-hundredth anniversary celebration. President S. W. Taylor was present also, and preached very eloquently and effectively from the text, "How Old Art Thou?" We wish to congratulate this church upon celebrating the completion of a century's service and usefulness, and the congregation voted to begin the new century's work by building six new Sunday school rooms.

Services will be held every evening this week (except Saturday) at 7:30 o'clock, and the minister is presenting clear and thoughtful gospel messages. On Monday evening he talked from the text in Psalm 107: "Let the Redeemed of the Lord Say So," and entreated us to give testimony to the goodness of God on all occasions as presented. It makes us feel better to herald the glad news of God's blessings in our lives, it may win others to Christ, and it is a duty we owe to our Heavenly Father, "who loadeth us with benefits" so richly and profusely. He said that earnestness cannot be dumb, and what Christianity needs is not more preaching, but more sincere testimony of our lives and lips. Noonday shop meetings are being held at various furniture factories, hosiery mills, and overall factories; also, at the Broadhurst theatre, where Rev. R. I. Farmer will be the speaker tomorrow (Wednesday), and at the schools of the city each morning services will be conducted. This evangelistic campaign is being sponsored by the High Point Ministers' Association, and nearly all churches of the city are co-operating in these simultaneous meetings. We pray that our city, so fair and prosperous in a material way, may have a great spiritual awakening as she has never enjoyed before.

We are pleased to note that Miss Clara Hough, daughter of Mrs. A. G. Hough, Willowbrook street, who has been ill for the past several weeks, is much improved, and is able to be up in the house.

Lexington, State Street.—Last Sunday our pastor, Rev. H. G. Hendry, filled his regular appointment at Elbaville. Rev. B. F. Clark, at the request of Mr. Hendry, gave us a splendid address at the hour for morning worship. His address was on the importance of stewardship, as has been the subject used by Mr. Hendry the past two Sunday mornings. Mr. Clark is a minister and a friend of our pastor. He came to Lexington just recently with his family and is at present working with a local grocery store, giving his throat a much-needed rest from regular public speaking. Lexington is glad to welcome this fine family here.

We were glad to receive four new members Sunday evening: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Orrall and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Lewis. Mr. Lewis has recently moved here from Concord and they were members of the Concord M. P. church. They are all gladly received into the church and into the town.

Everything is rapidly moving foward the winding up of the year's work. This is being done in a harmonious and efficient way, and we hope to be able to send in a good report. Mr. J. A. Walser is our delegate to Conference and we feel sure he will make us a good representative. Many others of our folk are planning to attend as much as possible.

Randleman.—I was at Mount Lebanon Sunday at 11 o'clock; had a very good service. There was a special song, "It Pays to Serve Jesus," by Miss Rose Parrish, with Miss Arman at the piano; they are two of our school teachers. Just after preaching Mr. J. F. Dorsett was received in the church.

We went to New Salem in the afternoon with a large crowd. Took in three new members and are hoping to receive several more. We closed our meeting here about a week ago with Rev. M. C. Henderson as help; had 14 conversions and reclamations. He was also our help at Level Cross, starting the first Sunday in September; had 35 conversions and reclamations. We were indeed glad to have him with us again. He is fine in revival work.

Our fourth quarterly meeting will be held at Mount Lebanon next Saturday evening at 7:30. A large attendance is much desired. Our Conference year is coming to a close. It has not been just what we had hoped for, but I guess as good as the average considering the mill conditions.

On Friday of our meeting at New Salem the good people gave the pastor a nice pounding. Will not try to mention all received but will say there were only nine fine fryers; so you see they are feeding us on chicken. We are very grateful to each of them for their thoughtfulness of us, and may the Lord richly bless them. T. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Mount Hermon, Mount Herman Charge.—It was a pleasure to hear Dr. Dixon from the Children's Home tell of the work of the home and present some of the needs. Fourteen of the children gave a splendid program of music, readings, etc. The offering was good for this year.

This is the first time since High Point College opened that this church has not been represented by more than one of our girls. We have only one there this year. Seven have attended, four have graduated, three of the four are teaching.

The Woman's Auxiliary held the thank-offering program in the church. The program as given in the M. P. Herald was followed, after which sixteen girls gave a pageant. The offering was $14.30. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Carroll, was present and made a very interesting talk.

The township Sunday school convention was held at this church October 5. Rev. George W. Holmes, Messrs. Williams and Rhodes were the speakers.

The Sunday school had promotion exercise the first Sunday; a number of children were made happy by the beautiful certificates and moving into a higher class. Several babies were enrolled on the Cradle Roll.

The pastor gave a very helpful sermon to a large congregation. His talk to the children made a deep impression on them, because he gave a little (?) incident in his own life about getting "hitched up right." The offering was the best for some time.

First Church, Winston-Salem.—Promotion Day again. Quite a number received the certificates of promotion from one department to another Sunday morning. A talk was given to these young students by Dr. Andrews. A short program was given by the Primary Department. They sang "This Is God's House," then repeated the 23rd Psalm and then sang "Can a Little Child Like Me," singing the chorus as a little prayer. All of the children to whom certificates were given seemed very proud of them.

We were very glad and also very fortunate to have had with us for the past two Sabbath mornings two men whom we are always glad to welcome to our midst. Dr. Dixon was with us last Sunday and his sermon was most inspiring and helpful. Dr. Andrews came to us this Sabbath with a message that should, and, we feel, did, touch most especially the hearts of our youth. A splendid message it was.

On Wednesday evenings the weekly prayer services are held and rehearsal of the choir directly following.

Next Sunday is Rally Day. A good program is anticipated, and a speaker is also going to be with us. We hope to have a large attendance.

New officers of the Sunday school assume their responsibilities and tasks next Sunday. May they have all the support and kindness they need from the others.

—Funeral services for Mr. William H. Parrish, father of Mrs. J. Clyde Auman, were conducted Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the O'Kelley's Christian church, of which he was a member for more than 50 years. He had lived to the ripe old age of 77 years. He leaves his widow and five children, two boys and three girls. Dr. Harrell, pastor of the First Christian church of Durham, conducted the funeral. J. CLYDE AUMAN.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Hammer

William Cicero Hammer, son of the late Rev. W. C. Hammer and Hannah Burrow Hammer, was born near Asheboro, Randolph County, N. C., March 24, 1863, and departed this life suddenly at his home in Asheboro September 26, 1930. Not only was his father a minister, but his grandfather also was a minister. Born in a Godly home, brought up to cherish the highest ideals in life, it is no wonder that his career was an unusual one. He was educated in the public schools, Yadkin Cillege, Western Maryland College and the University of North Carolina. He was admitted to the bar in 1891, taught school for a while, was County Superintendent of Schools, was a member of the city council and Mayor of Asheboro, was solicitor of the 13th Judicial District from 1902 to 1914, was District Attorney for the Western N. C. District from 1914 to 1920, In 1920 he was elected to the Congress of the United States from the seventh North Carolina District. He had been re-elected to his high position from time to time and at the time of his death was a candidate to succeed himself in this high office.

On December 21, 1893, he was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Hancock, who survives him and who is so well known throughout the Methodist Protestant Church.

In early life Mr. Hammer was converted and united with the Methodist Protestant Church at Brower's Chapel, near Asheboro. When the Methodist Protestant Church was organized in Asheboro in 1892 he became a charter member and remained a loyal supporter of the church until his death.

Physically, Mr. Hammer was a giant, standing head and shoulders above the average man. Morally and religiously, he was even more a giant. In his own home community he stood for the things that are right. In his church relationships, he never became ashamed of his denomination, even though it could not count numbers with some others. He loved his church and was proud of its teachings. In the Congress of the United States his ability had been recognized and at the time of his death he was a member of the Judiciary Committee, one of the most important committee assignments in Congress. Whether in Congress or private life, no one was ever at a loss to know where he stood on all moral questions. He was classified in Congress as a Dry and was proud of it. He was a staunch supporter of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution and just one week before his death, while speaking to the Asheboro Rotary Club, he pledged himself to stand by the Eighteenth Amendment to the last. He was cut down at a time when the moral forces of the nation needed him most. But his influence will continue to be felt even though he has passed into the great beyond.

The funeral was held in the Asheboro Methodist Protestant church Sunday afternoon, September 28, and was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. S. W. Taylor, D. D., president of the N. C. Annual Conference, Methodist Protestant Church; the Hon. Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., who was Secretary of the Navy during President Wilson's administration, and by the Hon. R. L. Doughton, representative in Congress from the Eighth N. C. District. Mr. Daniels brought a beautiful tribute from the N. C. Press Association, and Mr. Doughton spoke for his colleagues in Congress. Those who ought to know say that never before had such a throng of people attended a funeral in North Carolina, the number being estimated from ten to fifteen thousand people. The body lay in state in the church for an hour and a half before the funeral and the thousands, rich and poor, white and colored, passed by to take the last look at their friend. When the time came for the funeral the line had to be cut and thousands more had to be turned away. One would have to search a long time to find a more cosmopolitan throng than that made up in the congregation. In this vast concourse of people were the Congressional delegation appointed by the Speaker of the House, one United States Senator, almost the entire North Carolina delegation in Congress, the Lieutenant-Governor of the State, almost all of the official family of the Governor, and literally hundreds of the leading lawyers, physicians and newspaper people of the state, as well as the humble poor, both white and colored, who had been befriended by this great man.

In addition to his widow, who is a member of the executive committee of the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, Mr. Hammer is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Harriet Hammer Walker, two grandchildren, Hal Hammer Walker and Jane Page Walker, three sisters, Mrs. Ivey Clark, of Compton, Cal., Mrs. W. F. Redding and Mrs. Louella Lovett, of Asheboro, and by one brother, Mrs. S. B. Hammer, of Lynchburg, Va. All of these have the sympathy of the church and the state in this their great loss, but they have the consciousness that their loved one died in the faith and is gone to be with our Lord forever.

"Servant of God, well done,
 Thy glorious warfare's past,
The battle's fought, the vict'ry's won,
 And thou art crowned at last."

J. E. PRITCHARD, Pastor.

Wood

It is with hearts of sadness that we, the members of Moriah church and of the community, record the death of one of our most consecrated and faithful members, Mrs. J. S. Wood.

In her passing the Christian Endeavor has lost a Christian leader, the Missionary Society a faithful member, the church a loyal member, the home a loving wife and mother. Mrs. Wood will be missed by every one who knew her.

We extend to the members of her immediate family and relatives our heartfelt sympathy. We can't understand just why she was taken from our midst, but God knows best, and doeth all things well.

MRS. B. H. KIMREY.

Trogdon

Otis Raper Trogdon, son of E. P. and Emma Della Trogdon, was born May 14, 1895, departed this life September 26, 1930. He was married to Miss Pearl Hughes of Randleman May 6, 1917. To this union three children were born, one having preceded him. He is survived by his widow and two children, Anna Lewis, and Otis Raper; three sisters and four brothers; also father, mother, and a host of relatives to mourn his passing. He had been a member of New Salem for several years.

May the Lord bless the bereaved.

The funeral was conducted on Sunday afternoon, September 28, at New Salem by the writer and Rev. J. B. Trogdon, uncle of the deceased, in the presence of a large congregation, and the body was laid to rest in the church cemetery.

T. A. WILLIAMS.

DEATH OF J. S. RIDDLE

Friday, Rev. J. S. Riddle was carried to the Martinsville hospital. They operated on him Saturday morning and found his appendix burst. He died this morning, Monday, at 6:55.

His funeral will be at the M. P. church of Draper tomorrow at 2:30, conducted by Dr. McCabe, pastor of the First Baptist church of Martinsville, assisted by Rev. Mr. White, pastor of the M. E. church of Draper, and by the writer.

useful favors placed at each plate by Mr. Altman. At the close of the business session another surprise awaited us. Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams, of Asheville, came with well-filled baskets to carry out a plan they had made with Mr. Casto to bring us to "the end of a perfect day."

We drove fifteen miles out into the deep, solemn stillness of Pisgah Forest and enjoyed a picnic supper. Ham and coffee cooked over a camp-fire, sandwiches and other good things, with good fellowship for a digestive made it an occasion not soon forgotten. Our only regret was that Mrs. Hammer and Mrs. Coltrane had to miss it. Thus were business and pleasure combined on our visit to Weaverville. May the business that was transacted be profitable, and may each one who contributed to our pleasure be richly blessed.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. Shoaf, Shady Grove, 1 bag of pears and 1 bag of sweet potatoes.

Mrs. J. W. Smith, Ligonier, Pa., 5 dresses for girls, 2 coats for boys, 1 pair pantaloons, 1 shirt, 1 pair shoes and 1 pair socks.

We are thankful for these gifts of money and substance.

Things are going well at the Home. The children are well and hearty, and are all in school except four little ones, who are not yet six years old.

Poundings

Every preacher knows what a benefit a pounding brings to him and his. Well, we are looking to our pastors and leaders to plan that circuit pounding for the Home. We know some of you are doing just that and we thank you.

Good Clothing

Today we received a box of good clothing from Ligonier, Pa.—second hand clothing, to be sure, but it was clean and in good condition and will be very useful. It is clothing such as the sender would have continued to use if her own children had not outgrow them. We are glad she thought of us and sent along the clothing.

In many Methodist Protestant homes there is doubtless good clothing, which your children have outgrown and which you would continue to use if they were not too small. Won't you please gather them up and mail them to us real soon. You will thus help us to keep our children warmly clad for the winter. The children are glad to get such clothing if they are in good condition, and of course no one will send us clothing that they would not use themselves. Clothing or shoes for either boys or girls, in which there is good wear will be gladly received.

Please send these to us early so we may have the benefit of them in fitting out our children for the winter.

Thanksgiving and Christmas

Of course bixes of clothing, such as referred to above, will be thankfully received at any time, but other needs of this Home are so great, so pressing just now that we are going to ask every church and Sunday school in the denomination to make an offering of money to the Home at Thanksgiving and Christmas. In planning your "White Gifts for the King," be sure to remember His little ones gathered out of destitute places into this Home. We know you will, and we thank you.

Our Farm

Our farmer, Mr. J. A. Dixon, and the boys put into our basements lost week 193 gallons of molasses, made on our own farm. They will be gathering in the corn this week, and will soon be gathering in the sweet potatoes and the fall crop of Irish potatoes. The turnip patch is yielding all the greens we need, and our hens are beginning to lay pretty well. The cows are faithful and are yielding 30 and more gallons of milk per day. We will also have quite a bit of meat, both beef and pork, this fall.

We do all we can to care for ourselves and yet we continually need you and your prayerful help.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON.

A Very Great Day

The world's brought forth some strange events,
Most passing strange to human sense:
No man or beast could these foresee,
Not even he in tallest tree.

Of all queer things that came to pass,
Provoking thought both keen and crass,
Think of a greater if you can
Than Notman turning into Man.

Nobody knows just how 'twas done;
In guessing how there's lots of fun.
How Notman came to state of man,—
Just tell us quickly, if you can!

Some say it took ten million years
And filled the deep with briny tears;
But others say a second's enough
For One who knows that kind of stuff.

How long or short was that great day
When clear-cut man came forth to stay,
No one of human kind can say,
But sure it was a glorious day.

"Woman, What Have I To Do With Thee?"

These words of Jesus to his mother at the marriage feast in Cana surprise us and somewhat shock us. It is no doubt because we do not fully understand his meaning. Mark you, he does not say, What have you to do with me? We could scarcely justify that. Mary had been his loving mother all his earthly life. She had no doubt found him resourceful and helpful in many times of embarrassment. Now that their hosts were painfully embarrassed by the exhaustion of the supply of wine it was very natural for her to turn to him with the whispered communication, "They have no wine." It showed her reliance on him and her hope that he might find some way to relieve the situation. If Jesus' reply sounds harsh, surely it is because in our misunderstanding of it we put into it a spirit it does not contain. Mary did not feel rebuffed but encouraged. Hopefully she said to the servants, "Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it."

Had Jesus said to Mary, What have you to do with me? it would have been a question for her to answer. But when he says, What have I to do with thee? it is a question for him to answer. It was a soliloquy. When he proceeds to say, "My hour has not yet come," it is evident that his thought is moving at a great depth. She does not ask him, What hour? but recalls the predictions made in his childhood and is aware that a great change is imminent of which he is more and more keenly conscious. While he said, My hour has not yet come, he felt that it was drawing very near. When that hour came he would enter into a new relationship. Instead of moving in a common sphere with his mother he would move in a separate sphere which he must fill alone. He seems to be breaking the news gently to his mother, to prepare her for the inevitable separation.

The question, What have I to do with thee? may mean, What can you and I do working together to supply the lack? (for my hour has not yet come). But his hour was coming swiftly, and before mere human device could solve the problem, his hour had come. In working this first miracle in Galilee he honored his mother by accepting her suggestion that the menial servants be allowed to have a part in it. Perhaps Jesus aimed to teach his mother that there are some things he must do for her wholly without her co-operation. Surely as the Son of God he had powers that did not belong to him as the Son of Man.

New President of High Point College

President Humphreys has been in office long enough to see two things: the condition of High Point college and the measures necessary to enable the institution to go forward successfully with its great and important work. In an address yesterday before a joint meeting of the Board of Trustees and the Board of Education he outlined his conclusions. He is hopeful for the college because he believes it has a real need to meet and because our people have shown such splendid devotion in doing what they have done. He will not believe that the success already achieved will not inspire to go forward to the complete realization of the hopes with which the institution began its career. His hope and his vision will go far to beget in us larger hope and clearer vision and higher appreciation of what we have and may yet have, and here is hoping that Dr. Humphreys' faith will hold out until we all not only find ourselves believing, but working. Let us go forward with President Humphreys!

GIVE PROHIBITION A CHANCE

It took more than three hundred years to lead the people of Israel from the worship of idols back again to the worship of Jehovah. A few months ago a group of men were sent to the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for counterfeiting money. This was 139 years after such an action became a statutory crime. It took more than forty years for the American people to stop the slave trade after Congress had made it unlawful. It has now been only eight years since the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect. Eight against three hundred. Eight against 139. Eight against 47. Yet a quartet, composed of Milwaukee on the north, Miami on the South, New York City on the east, San Francisco on the west, sings with voices choking with emotion and beer: "Prohibition is a failure!"

But has prohibition been such a failure that this dismal quartet should sing so gleefully? I say it has not. Look back into history, and you will see that no great reform has ever been accomplished in a moment. It is only through a gradual process that the minds of a generation can be changed. Foot-binding in China has existed as an established custom for centuries, and only gradually is it being done away with. In the onward march of civilization progressive China has realized the evils of this practice. Breaking away from the tradition, the folklore, and custom of its ancient civilization, she is slowly emancipating her women.

In India there is another tradition which is gradually being abolished, child marriages, twelve-year-old mothers. In our nation today we listen to such a statement with the faith of a doubting Thomas. But nevertheless we have to face the fact, since such conditions are existing. Slowly but surely, with time, this custom of child marriage will be a thing of the past. But this stage of change must be gone through. Therein lies the crucial point. Will our faith in its goodness endure? Only the people can answer. It lies within their hands what they will do.

Here in our own country pistol-toting was outlawed years ago. And yet we read of trials where men have testified that they have been carrying a pistol, contrary to law, for several years. Years ago traffic in narcotics was forbidden by Federal law. A short time ago the citizens of Nashville were humiliated when the Rockefeller Commission testified that Nashville, our own Athens of the South, was one of the central distributing points for cocaine and other narcotic drugs. From these few examples that I have brought to your attention, is it not obvious that reforms cannot be accomplished in a moment? Applying this same principle to prohibition, is it not unreasonable to condemn it after only an eight year's trial? Prohibition is yet a child in its swaddling clothes, and only through the fostering care of the millions of men and women who have fought for three-quarters of a century to outlaw the liquor traffic in this country can it grow to the stature of adult manhood. From north to south, from east to west, the country is aroused over the problem of reducing infant mortality. Let us make it our business to see that prohibition is among the infants whose life shall be preserved and fostered.

Have they who denounce it a failure considered the results which have accrued from this eight years' trial? What are some of the things prohibition has accomplished? Our most dynamic men of today realize the benefits from prohibition. President Hoover, as United States Secretary of Commerce, was in a position of vantage to estimate accurately the value of prohibition. He found that the operation of the Volstead Act has already been pre-eminnetly successful. He made the following statement: "The material prosperity of the United States, unequaled in history, is indissolubly connected with the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment." The material prosperity he speaks of is evident in the economic world. The labor class, which forms the base of this economic structure, must be considered. Prohibition considers them. Laborers are now entering the capitalist class. The investments of wage workers in the shares of a corporation are increasing so rapidly that all statistics are out of date before they can even be published. Through prohibition, labor productivity has been increased ten per cent. Therefore, in the long process of economic competition, the country that saves its man power through sobriety—even enforced sobriety—will gain over a rival that wastes its man power in drunkenness. What concern wants to employ a dissipated man with a drink-befuddled brain? Not one! Drink and machinery simply do not go together. Employers cannot permit drunken or unsteady hands to guide their costly and dangerous machines. Long before we had national prohibition Rule G was in operation on ever Class I railroad. It reads as follows: "The use of intoxicants by employees on duty is prohibited; their use, or the frequenting of places where they are sold, is sufficient cause for dismissal."

With the coming of prohibition, wages suddenly rose from their old level which they had kept, without much change, for over a quarter of a century, to a new level where it is now is, a third higher than the old. Instead of squandering their wages on alcohol they are investing them in banks, taking out insurance, building their own homes, wearing better clothes. In a nutshell prohibition saves five per cent of the income which used to be wasted and adds another five per cent into the bargain.

The labor class has not alone benefited from prohibition. Drinking on the whole has been decreased from seventy to eighty per cent. The arrests for drunkenness have been reduced more than half. We have proof of this in Nashville. One of the oldest members of the police force was asked: "Do you make as many arrests for drunkenness now as you did in the days before State-wide prohibition?" He answered: "No, indeed; nothing like it. Before prohibition I used to arrest from twenty to thirty drunks every month, and anybody who was sober enough to stand on his feet was passed up. Now I don't arrest one a month, and we have orders to arrest anybody who even looks suspicious." This, of course, is the testimony of but one man; but if you doubt the success of prohibition select ten middle-aged people who knew the conditions in the days when the liquor traffic was legalized and ask them how much drinking has decreased under prohibition. Alcoholic insanity has decreased sixty-six per cent. annually. Prohibition has materially cut down the population of State penal farms, prisons, poorhouses, releasing thousands of citizens for useful work. The saloon has gone. About one hundred and seventy-five thousand public drinking places, which daily fed an active poison to the youth of the land, offered hourly temptation to the weak, impoverished the home of the meager or moderate income, have been outlawed. Their swinging doors and close-drawn blinds have been torn away to make way for sound business enterprises. Anti-prohibitionists retaliate by saying: "Look at the speak easies." Very well, let us look at them, but also look at the number of murderers in Chicago and New York who have escaped unpunished. The subjugation of the liquor traffic and the liquor habit is going to take a long bitter fight; but we need not be discouraged on that account. We can console ourselves by quoting a passage from the greatest book in the world: "Be sure your sins will find you out." With a sympathetic police force back of the movement and the minds of the people attuned to prohibition the speak easies will exist only in memories. Such a day then forms a goal to strive for.

Behind us are the days of the open saloon, the days of the common drunkard, the days of wretched mothers and terrified children, the days of dishonored life and a drunkard's grave. At hand are the days of difficult enforcement, of incomplete realization of our dreams, of wails of agony from the adherents of the liquor traffic, who are realizing the hopelessness of their struggle. Before us are the days of practical enforcement, the days of sober men, happy women, and joyous children. Fellow soldiers in this great battle for the soul of the nation, take courage. Dark and gloomy clouds have hovered over us, wild winds of opposition have threatened us, thick mists of uncertainty have disheartened us. But the clouds are clearing away, the sun is setting crimson, in the western skies —we shall have a pleasant day tomorrow.—Margaret Booth Rawls.

THREE MORE PSALMS

Arranged by Rev. Luther K. Long

The songs of a people are expressions of their thoughts and feelings, their hopes and aspirations at that particular period in history. Some of the singers are much ahead of the general crowd, while others are far behind.

There has always been more or less changing of songs to make them conform to the changed ideas of particular indivuals or groups, or to bring the progresisve songs down to the old level.

Dr. Samuel Francis Smith's great hymn, America, did not entirely satisfy Dr. Henry Van Dyke. It was written in New England, and the "rocks and rills," the "woods and templed hills," sung of, all belong in that part of the country. But there are also in this broad country of ours great rivers and extensive plains beyond the high mountain ranges and "The golden gate that fronts the west," and the great sea farther on. So Dr. Van Dyke inserted three stanzas to cover that part of the country—thus greatly enlarging and improving the hymn.

In Frederic W. Faber's fine hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," he wrote:

"Our fathers, chained in prisons dark,
Were still in heart and conscience free:
How sweet would be their children's fate,
If they, like them, could die for thee!"

Christians are not now longing for a martyr's death. Though many, no doubt, are suffering a living martyrdom in the interest of Christ's work, and others are facing the possibility of death in the line of duty, though not courting such a death. So we do not like to sing the stanza as it was written. We are grateful that some of the hymnals are now printing it:

"Our fathers, chained in prisons dark,
Were still in heart and conscience free:
And sweet would be their children's fate,
Though they, like them, should die for thee!"

Psalm 51 culminates in verses 16 and 17—one of the highest peaks in the Old Testament:

"For thou delightest not in sacrifice; else would I give it:
Thou hast no pleasure in burnt-offering.
The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit:
A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."

A later writer, looking over this Psalm, seems to have felt that it ended too much in the air. He couldn't think it quite safe to teach that a broken spirit and a contrite heart are sufficient on the part of the sinner. He couldn't leave out the altar and the flowing blood of slain beasts. So he, in the spirit which the original author of the Psalm had out-grown, adds verses 18 and 19:

"Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion:
Build thou the walls of Jerusalem.
Then wilt thou delight in the sacrifices of righteousness,
In burnt-offering and whole burnt-offering:
Then will they offer bullocks upon thine altar."

Of the following three Psalms, which I have arranged, the first is Psalm 8 with only two changes—the omission of the second verse and the substitution at the beginning of the fourth verse of "How wonderful is man!" for "What is man?"

The second is from the latter part of Psalm 37. The rearranging is in the interest of greater clearness.

The third is from Psalm 104. Here there have been several omissions and some changes of order. In two instances parts of verses have been brought from other Psalms. To be specially noted are the changes from the third to the second person. This gives a consistency of expression favorable to smoothness and greater facility in reading.

THE DIGNITY AND GREATNESS OF MAN

O Lord, our Lord,
How excellent is thy name in all the earth,
Thou who hast written thy glory upon the heavens!
When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers,
The moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;
How wonderful is man, that thou art mindful of him?
And the son of man that thou visitest him?
For thou hast made him but little lower than God,
And crownest him with glory and honor.
Thou makest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands;
Thou hast put all things under his feet:
All sheep and oxen.

Yea, and the beasts of the field,
The birds of the heavens, and the fish of the sea,
Whatsoever passeth through the paths of the sea.
O Lord, our Lord,
How excellent is thy name in all the earth!

THE WICKED AND THE RIGHTEOUS—CONTRASTS

The wicked borroweth, and payeth not again;
But the righteous dealeth graciously and giveth.
For such as are blessed of him shall inherit the land;
And they that are disapproved of him shall be cut off.
A good man's goings are established of the Lord;
And he delighteth in his way.
Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down;
For he upholdeth him with his hand.
All the day long he dealt graciously, and lendeth;
And his seed is blessed.

The Lord loveth juctice,
And forsaketh not his saints;
They are preserved forever:
But the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.
The righteous shall inherit the land,
And shall dwell therein forever.
The mouth of the righteous talketh of wisdom,
And his tongue speaketh of justice.
The law of God is in his heart;
None of his steps shall slide.

I have seen the wicked in great power,
And spreading himself like a green tree in its native soil.
Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not:
Yea, I sought him, but he could not be found.
Such is the fate of the wicked, a little while, and he shall not be:
Yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and he shall not be found.
Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright;
For there is a happy end to the man of peace.

GOD IS INTERESTED IN ALL HIS WORKS

O Lord my God, thou art very great;
Thou art clothed with honor and majesty.
Thou coverest thyself with light as with a garment;
Thou stretchest out the heavens like a curtain;
Thou layest the beams of thy chambers in the waters.
Thou walkest upon the wings of the wind.
Thou makest winds thy messengers;
Flames of fire thy ministers.
Thou hast laid the foundations of the earth,
That it should not be moved forever.
Thou hast covered it with the deep as with a vesture;
The waters stood above the mountains.
At thy rebuke they fled;
At the voice of thy thunder they hasted away
Unto the place which thou hast founded for them.
Thou hast set a bound that they may not pass over;
That they turn not again to cover the earth.

Thou hast sent forth springs into the valleys;
They run among the mountains.
They give drink to every beast of the field;
The wild asses quench their thirst.
By them the birds of the heavens have their habitation;
They sing among the branches.
Thou waterest the mountains from thy chambers.
Thou hast caused the grass to grow for the cattle;
And herbs for the service of man;
That he may bring forth food out of the earth.
The earth is filled with the fruit of thy works.

The trees, O Lord, are filled with sap,
The cedars of Lebanon, which thou hast planted;
Where the birds make their nests.
As for the stork, the fir-trees are her house.
The high mountains are for the wild goats;
The rocks are a refuge for the conies.

Thou hast appointed the moon for seasons:
The sun knoweth his going down.
Thou makest darkness, and it is night,
Wherein all the beasts of the forest creep forth.
The young lions roar after their prey,
And seek their food from God.
The sun riseth, they get them away,
And lay them down in their dens.

All living things wait for thee,
That thou mayst give them their food in due season.
What thou givest unto them, they gather.
Thou openest thy hand, they are satisfied with good.
Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled.
Thou takest away their breath, they die.
Thou sendest forth thy Spirit, they are created;
And thou renewest the face of the ground.

O Lord, how manifold are thy works!
In wisdom hast thou made them all.
The earth is full of thy creatures.
Let thy glory, O Lord, endure forever,
And thy dominion throughout all generations.
I will sing unto thee, O Lord, as long as I live.
I will sing praise unto my God while I have any being.
Praise ye the Lord.

ON TO THE GOAL!

On to the goal! Press on!
  Alone, yet unafraid;
He cut the path Who beckons thee,
  On then, and undismayed.

On to the goal! Press on!
  The Eyes that are a flame
Are watching thee: what then are men?
What matter praise or blame?

On to the goal! Press on!
  Look not behind thee now,
When just ahead lies His "Well done,"
  And crowns await thy brow.

On to the goal! Press on!
  Blind, deaf and sometimes dumb,
Along the uphill, blood-marked road,
  Hard after Christ, press on!

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Ranks Invaded Again

Death has again invaded our ranks. On Monday, October 6, Rev. J. S. Riddle passed to his reward. The end came in a hospital in Martinsville, Va., where he had undergone an operation for appendicitis. The funeral service was held in our church in Draper, and interment followed there. Brother Riddle was a good man, and we have no doubt that he died in the faith. Our tenderest sympathies are extended to the family.

Attention Pastors

If your report blank calls for a return on October 13, please change to October 30. That is the date meant. The blanks were made out on typewriter, and the 13th seems to have gotten on some sheets by error.

We trust that pastors will give careful attention to all questions, and make answers as complete and accurate as possible, as we will gather from these reports detailed information for our message to the annual conference. The date given for the return is the latest that we could possibly allow in order to get this information for our annual report. We are praying that these reports may be gratifying, even beyond our fondest hopes.

100 Per Cent Giving

We often hear it said, "So many of our members do not pay," and this is urged as an explanation of the difficulty experienced in raising the finances of the church. We realize that there is much truth in this, and it would certainly be a great satisfaction to all of us if some way could be found by which this difficulty could be removed. If all churh members would pay to the church, and pay according to their ability, very few churches would be over-burdened financially. Even small amounts from many people, paid weekly or monthly, over a period of twelve months, results in large aggregates. For instance, 200 people, paying an average of 10c per week, will raise a total sum in twelve months of $1,040. At 25c a week, the same number, in the same time, would raise $2,600. Either one of these sums, borne by a few, might become a pleasure, as all giving for God's purposes should be. Of course we can not compel people to give to the church; and it would not be right to do it if we could. This is not God's way. He loves a "cheerful giver." But we can, and should, persuade people to give; and if we would adopt a 100 per cent membership goal in giving, and insist upon it, and then make allotments in amounts that all would be willing to accept, perhaps we would ultimately approach this goal, and may be, entirely realize it. It is not an impossible thing, and we believe that it is worth trying.

"This I Say, Brethren, the Time Is Short"

Just three more Sundays, and conference will be here. Are you ready for it? Hardly, for "there is much land yet to be taken." Much on salaries is yet to be paid; much on budgets still to be raised, and some revivals are yet to be held. And the time in which to do all of this is short. But much can be done during these three remaining weeks. It is our custom—unfortunately so—to put off a large part of our conference work until the very last, particularly our finances. We are in that "very last" now, and can't put off any longer. Now brethren, for a prayerful, earnest, united effort during these closing weeks. We must not send a report to conference that does not represent our best. We urge every pastor and every charge to insist upon that. It is God's work that we are doing, and we must be faithful workers, if we have his "well done."

Two Per Cent for Herald

We trust that pastors are presenting this matter to their people, and urging payment. A few more contributions like that of the North Carolina Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, and this present emergency would be met. Some churches have also done well. This is a worthy appeal, and we trust that it may have a like response. The HERALD is an invaluable aid to our work, and certainly merits our ready support.

—"The Church has always been the means of supplying strength, inspiration and courage with which to bravely face the future. Shall we not deem it worthy of our most loyal attendance and support? Let us not put the Church off with the crumbs of our time and pocketbooks, but rather give of the first fruits of our efforts." The above is a notation from an active and efficient Church treasurer to the individuals of her local Church.

—In 1928, the presidential year, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment spent $117,453.18. Of this the Du Ponts paid over $60,000, and sixteen multimillionaires put in $247,544.28, or more than half. What for?

CONFERENCE PROGRAM

We give below the program of the conference, as it has been arranged by the Committee. It is subject, of course, to necessary final revision.

Wednesday, Nevember 5

Morning Session

9:30—Conference Hymn, "Stand Up and Bless the Lord."
Conference called to order. Roll call.
Worship, conducted by the President of the Conference, Rev. S. W. Taylor.

10:30—Conference sermon, to be preached by Rev. H. F. Fogleman, pastor of Halifax charge.

11:30—Roll call of our honored dead (conference standing). The Lord's Supper, with Rev. L. W. Gerringer, pastor of First Church, Burlington, in charge. (This is a most beautiful and helpful ordinance, and is to be observed orderly, and without haste; and in the spirit of glad devotion to Him who did institute it.)

12:30—Adjournment.

Afternoon Session

1:30—Conference Hymn.
Conference called to order. Roll call.
Worship, in charge of Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.

Our Soldier Boys

Twice in the last two weeks a company of United States soldiers has camped within a stone's throw of the HERALD office. (They were from Fort Bragg going to and returning from the Winston fair.) This gave us an opportunity to see a little of their manner of living and to learn about their feeling. Their life cannot be said to be one of physical hardship in time of peace. Boys on farms and in shops and factories have to work harder than soldiers do, yet the soldiers have to endure confinement and adherence to prescribed rules that would be unpleasant to people in civilian service. Then when war comes the soldiers have to face a condition which General Sherman compared to hell. We believe our soldiers are making for us a personal sacrifice greater than we appreciate or realize. Then they have special enticements to evil. Let the soldiers be added to our prayer lists and be prayed for daily.

MISLEADING

The article in last week's HERALD, entitled "Comparison of Facts and Figures," is misleading in one particular at least. Money raised by Ladies' Aid Societies is used throughout the denomination for local purposes, and is not handled by the general treasurer, and therefore can not be charged against his account. It is misleading, therefore, for any one to use these figures in making comparisons with receipts in 1928 and 1929-30.

The writer of this article was opposed to the merger adopted by the last General Conference; but after it was adopted it became his imperative duty to do all in his power to make the plan a success, and it would little become him to "throw a monkey wrench" in the machinery and destroy its efficiency and usefulness. It would be doubly reprehensible if after he had thrown the wrench he should do nothing but stand aside and jeer at those who were conscientiously endeavoring to run the damaged machine to the glory of God in saving lost souls.

Such articles are not written for the purpose of helping the denomination in its God-given task of disseminating religious truth at home and abroad, and should never be given a place in the columns of our church papers.

GEO. R. BROWN.

LEARN TO WAIT

"Learn to wait"—life's hardest lesson,
Conned, perchance, through blinding tears,
While the heart-throbs sadly echo
To the tread of passing years.

Learn to wait hope's slow fruition;
Faint not though the way seem long;
There is joy in each condition—
Hearts, though suffering, may grow strong.

Human strength and human greatness
Spring not from life's sunny side;
Heroes must be more than driftwood
Floating on a waveless tide.

PERPETUITY OF THE BIBLE

The empire of Caesar is gone; the legions of Rome are moldering in the dust; the avalanches that Napoleon hurled upon Europe have melted away; the pride of the Pharaohs is fallen; the Pyramids they raised to be their tombs are sinking every day in the desert sands; Tyre is a rock for bleaching fishermen's nets; Sidon has scarcely left wreck behind; but the Word of God still survives. All things that threatened to extinguish it have only aided it; and it proves every day how transient is the noblest monument that man can build—how enduring is the least word that God has spoken. Tradition has dug for it a grave, intolerance has lighted for it many a fagot; many a Judas has betrayed it with a kiss; many a Peter has denied it with an oath; many a Demas has forsaken it, but the Word of God still endures.—Selected.

OUR STORY PAGE

AN OLD NOR'WESTER

"What keeps you men out in this God forsaken country? I should think you and your wives would die of loneliness," remarked my friend from the East. "There is nothing here but waste land, buttes and coulees, scoria and gumbo."

"Well," I replied, "it is not the things you see that count so much as the things you don't see. Out here we live on an indomitable faith in 'Mighty Montana in the Making.' Those hills to the north were named 'Bad Lands' by the Indians, because they are so hard to cross. Yet those very hills are best grazing land to be found anywhere. In them are wide stretches of buffalo grass, which is the most wholesome grazing food for stock. The coulees are a natural protection for the stock in the winter. The snowfall is light. It is the wind that is severe. Down in one of those pockets with the bright sunshine the stock will thrive through the coldest weather. Take up the range 'critter' and put her in the best barn out of the sun and she will chill to death.

"If you go over and examine those hills you will find them underlaid with coal. It is lignite, to be sure, but it is of the highest grade. The Northern Pacific has been using it in locomotives for five years. They have just opened a surface mine near Forsyth. The vein is 27 feet thick and covers 700 square miles. But I am not trying to sell grazing land nor coal mines."

"Yes, I can see why men stay out here for profits, but why do you stay for mission work?" retorted my friend.

"What keeps any man in mission work in any land?" I asked. "It is hard work. It calls for more initiative and energy than any other phase of church work. The outstanding feature that makes it attractive is the people you meet. You never know whether you are meeting a count or a crook until you have discovered him.

"As a student I came to Montana for summer work. It was my privilege to make the G-P ranch one of my stopping places. This particular ranch runs sheep. The outfit has about 18,000 acres under lease and deed and runs from three to five bands. They have a large crew in the summer who prepare the hay for winter feeding. Some of the men are 'floaters,' while others stay on year after year. They make their homes in the clutter of bunk houses.

"One old chap I observed was not a floater, neither did he seem to have a band of sheep. He was of medium height, probably sixty years young, bald as the proverbial old billard ball, and spoke with a broad Scotch accent. His hands seemed to have a peculiar shape but were not deformed. Otherwise he would pass as an average sheep-herder. But I never saw him with a band of sheep. I wondered what 'Old Ross' did for a living.

"One day I broached the question to the mistress of the ranch. Mrs. Law was a matron with two grown sons. Young giants they were, standing more than six feet two, and handsomely proportioned. Mrs. Law was born near Boston. Throughout the years of hard ranch life in a log cabin she had maintained the culture of her girlhood environment. She is a beautiful Christian character. She made no direct reply to my query and I felt as if I had touched on a sacred memory from out the past.

"A few weeks later I was calling at the ranch. We were seated in the commodious living room. 'Old Ross' was mentioned again and this is the story Mrs. Law told me:

" 'Old Ross' had been tending a band of twenty-six hundred sheep out on the flat. An old nor-wester came up, full of snow and with a cold wave. No houses or buildings of any kind was near; no buttes or coulees for protection; night was falling; they were caught. The camptender started from the ranch to carry aid, but he was forced to turn back. Searching parties were organized but were helpless against so violent a storm. 'Old Ross' and his band were miles away.

"Meanwhile, the herder and his faithful dog had rounded up the band and prevented a stampede. When sheep get cold they huddle together. So large a band, all pushing toward the middle, became a solid mass of wool and mutton. In a storm the wind blows the snow in around the enmassed sheep and make a drift that smothers them. To prevent this, it is necessary for the herder to go around and around the outside of the band, catching the sheep one by one by the wool and and throwing them apart from the bunch. Before they can recover and return the wind blows the snow from around them. Thus 'Old Ross,' out on the flat, fought the storm, going round and round the band 'pulling the sheep' to save their lives. He fought hour after hour a seemingly losing fight without rest, food or drink.

"Next day help arrived. 'Old Ross' dropped of exhaustion. But the band was saved.

"It was weeks before 'Old Ross' recovered. It was found that in 'pulling the sheep' over so long a period he had worn the flesh from the ends of all his fingers down beyond the first joint. It was necessary to have the bones removed that far. 'Old Ross' had given his fingers for the life of the sheep. And," added Mrs. Law, "so long as this ranch is running 'Old Ross' will have a home and friends."

"Yes," I exclaimed, "isn't there a verse that says, 'I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep?"

"Now," said I to my friend, "Mrs. Law, the boys and 'Old Ross' are three reasons why I, for one, have stayed on the mission field."—H. Roy Phillippi in the Congregationalist.

JESUS ALONE

I have looked the whole planet over and I see no man but Jesus only who is able to take away the sin of the world. I have sat at the feet of the world's religious leaders, and I know that it is Christ or nobody. More and more He is to me, as to Saul, "the Image of the invisible God." More and more He is to me what He was to John the Beloved—"God made manifest in the flesh." More and more He is to me what He Himself claimed to be—the eternal Son of the living God. To know Him is indeed life eternal. To work with Him in establishing on this earth the kingdom of righteousness and peace and joy—this is what makes my life more and more worth living.—Charles E. Jefferson.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By J. T. BOWMAN

Pres. High Point College C. E. Society

OCT. 26—MAKING AMERICA CHRISTIAN

Scripture Text—Mark 5:1-20

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Preaching to Foreigners. Acts 10:1-6, 34.

Tuesday—Preaching the Word. Romans 1:13-16.

Wednesday—Preaching Christ. 1 Cor. 2:1-5.

Thursday—Home Missions. Matt. 9:36-38; 10:5.

Friday—Building Up Citizens. 1 Peter 3:8-13.

Saturday—The Christian Ideal. 1 Cor. 13:1-13.

To the Leader

America is today and has ever been a land of great challenges and the answer of these challenges has made of her people a great nation. To our Pilgrim Fathers came the challenge of hardships, privation and danger but when answered transformed a wilderness into a beautiful country of prosperous cities and peaceful farm homes. More challenges came, needs multiplied and industry answered with the hum of busy factories.

But America offers another challenge, one that is as great as any in the past—the challenge to make America Christian. Isaiah in his prophetic vision saw a "highway for our God." The nineteenth century saw the blazing of the Santa Fe and Oregon trails; let the twentieth build not only the Lincoln and Roosevelt highways, but also that spiritual highway over which shall pass a hundred million of the redeemed of the Lord.

Suitable Songs: "He's a Wonderful Savior to Me," "Win the One Next to You," "America the Beautiful," "You Ought to Know Him," "Bringing in the Sheaves," "Tell It Everywhere You Go," "As a Volunteer," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations."

Discuss These

1. What does it mean to be a Christian anywhere?
2. In most homes who is it that shows the most beautiful Christian character? Why?
3. Is America a Christian nation? When can she be properly called a Christian nation?
4. What can Christian Endeavorers do to make America Christian?
5. What are the greatest hindrances to making America Christian?
6. What kind of a gospel does America need the one used for nineteen hundred years, or something new?

Poetry

LEAD ON, O KING ETERNAL

"Lead on, O King eternal, the day of march has come;
Henceforth in fields of conquest Thy tents shall be our home.
Through days of preparation Thy grace has made us strong,
And now, O King Eternal, we lift our battle song.

"Lead on, O King Eternal, till sin's fierce war shall cease,
And holiness shall whisper the sweet amen of peace;
For not with swords' loud clashing, nor roll of stirring drums,
With deeds of love and mercy, the heavenly kingdom comes.

"Lead on, O King Eternal; we follow, not with fears,
For gladness breaks like morning where'er Thy face appears;
Thy cross is lifted o'er us; we journey in the light;
The crown awaits the conquest; lead on, O God of might."

NOTICE TO PASTORS AND AUXILIARY TREASURERS

In making up your report for conference, please remember that nothing that goes for North Carolina interests counts on your general conference budget. Most of the auxiliary treasurers when sending in money, send some on both budgets and they are given a receipt for the total amount, but in making up your conference report the N. C. credits must be deducted.

The Branch Treasurer makes her report to the Conference Treasurer and we are all very anxious that pastors' reports and Branch Treasurers' reports agree.

Thank you for your help.

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treas.

Woman's Missionary Department

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

The Branch treasurer is preparing a report of the money raised by the women of the North Carolina Conference which will be printed and distributed on Denominational Day at the Annual Conference.

There will be three parts to that report. One column will be given to the New Century Service, one to North Carolina work and one to local work. Mrs. Taylor has the correct report of the first two named, but if there is anything in the third column you will have to supply it. There has never been any report made that has included all the money raised by the women of the North Carolina Conference, because no complete report of local money has been given. Please report to your district chairman or to me the amount you have raised for local work from November 1, 1929, to November 1, 1930, so that your church may have the credit due it and the women of the North Carolina Conference may have a complete report.

MRS. C. W. BATES.

AUXILIARIES, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

Conference is almost here, and of course you want every dollar possible to count on your year's work. Please send in all money not later than October 25, as I must make my report at that time.

We have much to encourage us in our work, and the future looks more hopeful than at any time since I have been your treasurer.

From April 1 to October 1 of this year we have sent to the executive treasurer $852.46 more than we sent for the same period last year.

More Auxiliaries are paying monthly than ever before, and new Auxiliaries are constantly being organized.

More women are taking part in the work than ever before and seem to find much joy in doing it.

Come on, now, and let's see what we can do by the 25th of October. Last October we sent to the executive treasurer $1,385.71. Let's make it $2,500 this October. May every Auxiliary in the Branch have sent in a remittance, if only a small one, by the 25th.

I am watching anxiously every day now for the postman to see just how much he is going to bring me. Please don't disappoint me.

Yours to serve,
MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treas.

ATTENTION, MISSIONARY SOCIETIES

Does your society have a Secretary of Young People's Work? If so, what is she doing to educate the young people in your church in missions?

Do you have the children organized in the various missionary age groups?

Are missions taught regularly and systematically in your Sunday school?

Do they have the monthly missionary instruction in your C. E. Society?

Are you using the material that is so beau-

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Concord.—The Sunday school attendance for the past two Sundays was 438 and 334. The Lord's Supper was observed at the morning hour on the first Sunday, and a good number communed.

Promotion Day was observed last Sunday, and was a very busy day for the Supt. Mr. Ralph Waddell.

At the service Sunady, our pastor presented the matter of our part of the Superannuate Fund which was $25.00 and the Herald Fund of $40.00 which was raised in about fifteen minutes.

We received a check from the Locke Cotton mills for $100.00 last week for which we are thankful. This company remembers us every year with this amount, and it is greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murray and two children of New Casle, Ind., are visiting in the city, and were present at the services Sunday. They were formerly members of our church.

Miss Versie Nash of the Shriner's hospital, Philadelphia, is spending a month's vacation with her sister, Mrs. D. A. McLaurin.

Little Maxine Litaker, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Litaker, is critically ill in a Charlotte hospital, and but little hope is held for her recovery.

Mrs. Harvey Wilson and little son left last week for Savannah, Ga., to make their home. Mr. Wilson is with the marines, and stationed there.

A wedding of unusual beauty and simplicity was that of Miss Inez Hamilton and Howard Hammett, which was solemnized at the home of the bride on Kerr street Saturday evening October 4,. The vows were spoken in the living room before an improvised altar of banked ferns, ivy, and gladiolas. Dr. R. M. Andrews of High Point united the young couple, using the beautiful ring ceremony.

The nuptial music was rendered by Misses Delphia and Violet Propst. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Violet Propst sang "I Love You Truly," and the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was played by Miss Delphia Propst.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hammet left by motor for St. Petersburg, Fla., where they will be the guests of relatives of the groom. Upon their return they will be at home at 224 Kerr street, this city.

The bride who is the daughter of Mrs. Fannie Gorman of this city is a young woman of ability and agreeable personality. She received her education in the Concord high school and at the N. C. C. W. in Greensboro.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hammett, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and holds a responsible position with the Western Electric company in Charlotte.

Roberta Station.—Our Sunday school was as good Sunday as it has been. There were 257 present. Collection was something over $27.00. With the co-operation of our good superintendent we hope to have 300 by next Sunday.

A play, the title of which we didn't learn, was given at the Roberta church last night.

Rev. Mr. Short brought us a very inspiring sermon yesterday. There was a large crowd present. All enjoyed it very much.

Spring Hill, North Davidson.—There were 142 present at Sunday school today. The Sunday school is growing, we are glad to report.

Our revival meeting closed Friday night with a great success. W. M. Loy was the pulpit help. Each time he brought inspiring messages. During the meeting there were about forty-seven converts. Forty-five of these were united with the church, but two of these will probably move their names to some other churches.

Not only were we glad to have Brother Loy's help in the meeting but were delighted to have hime in our homes. During the time he served us as pastor he won a place in the hearts of the people that has never been forgotten. The church extends to him a very hearty welcome at all times.

Last Saturday night the C. E. society gave a special program and took an offering for the Annual Conference Budget. Brother Powell made a talk on the subject, "What I can do to help the folks of my community."

There will be preaching next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon we are planning to meet and organize a junior C. E. society. Since there were so many boys and girls joined the church it is hoped the society will keep them in close connection with church work.

We were glad to have Mrs. W. R. Craven and Mrs. Stasil Cecil, who have been sick for some time, back at church the past week.

The people of the community met a few weeks ago and cleaned the church grounds and the cemetery.

Miss Athalene Craven and Mr. Roby Proctor were united in marriage at Danville, Va., October 4. May their life be one of joy and happiness.

The Ladies' Aid met two weeks ago at Mrs. H. T .Jones'. Mrs. Jones is not able to be out and has not been for some time. She enjoyed the meeting very much.

One of our old church members, Mr. T. J. Jones, has been in a serious condition but is improving now. REPORTER.

Orange Charge.—The Fourth Quarterly Conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge church, Saturday October 27, 2:00 p. m.

This is a very important conference, to officials, please be there promptly at 2:00 o'clock p. m.

President Taylor will be with us and preside over this conference.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—It has been some time since I have sent in a report, although Stallings church has been real active. We held our revival meetings the first Sunday in September. Rev. Fred Love of Lincolnton was the pulpit help. We had a good meeting; the whole church was revived and I for one received a great blessing. There were a number of conversions and reclamations, also a good number joined the church. We were well pleased with our meeting and hated to see Mr. and Mrs. Love and baby leave.

Brother Joyner delivered a soul-stirring sermon the first Sunday of this month, we also had the Lord's Supper. This was his last sermon before going away to conference. We are expecting him back. We hope all the churches will put forth a great effort that he can go to conference with his report marked "paid in full."

Our fourth Quarterly Conference will be at Stallings church the fourth Saturday in this month.

Our Ladies' Aid has been doing real active service since my last report. We met with Mrs. John Garmon last Thursday. Sorry that some of the members were absent, for we had a real good time. Mrs. M. L. Stallings read the scripture lesson and made a very interesting talk. Bro. Joyner explained the lesson which was very helpful to us. We had several good pieces read. We then had roll call and dues paid. After the usual business was attended to Mrs. Garmon served delicious refreshments. This was Mrs. Garmon's birthday. She received a number of useful presents. We will have our next meeting at the church the last Thursday of this month. All members are urged to be present, for this is an important meeting.

Our president, Mrs. M. L. Stallings, and several of the members went over to Beulah church and helped them to reorganize their Ladies' Aid. May the Lord richly bless them!

The ladies will have a variety supper consisting of chicken stew, all kinds of sandwiches, hot dogs, and ice cream Saturday night, October 18th, at the home of Mr. P. D. Drye. Everybody is cordially invited to be present. MRS. PAUL CURLEE, Reporter.

Welch Memorial.—The last two Sundays have been red-letter days at Welch Memorial. Some time ago the Sunday school was graded and October 5 was the first Promotion Day. The pupils in the various grades were advanced to the next higher grade. A very beautiful and appropriate program had been prepared which was used as a part of the promotion service. Those advanced from one department to the other were given graduation certificates. Since the school has been graded attendance has been better and the work and conduct has greatly improved. The work now being done is very much appreciated by our people. On October 12 we held Rally Day. It had been decided to make it a day to rally all departments. The financial department of the church had designated the day as Pay-Up Day. While all deficits were not cleared up the situation was very materially improved. At 9:30 after the various classes had a very short period the elementary division rendered a very beautiful program which was very helpful to all present. At the 11 o'clock hour President Humphreys of High Point College brought us the Rally Day message. We were delighted to have Dr. Humphreys with us and the great sermon he brought us will long be remembered by those who heard him. At the evening service the beautiful pageant, "Columbia's Concern for Her Country," was rendered by the young people of the church. This was very impressive and helpful. All the services of the day were well attended. We were glad to have in the congregation Mr. and Mrs. Satterwhite and Mrs. Green from Chestertown, Md. They are the friends of Dr. Humphreys.

We are now in our fall revival. Rev. J. D. Williams is the preacher. He, as usual, is bringing us fine messages. We are expecting great things from this revival. Pray for us.

GEO. L. CURRY.

Davidson.—We are rapidly coming to the close of another year on this charge, and while we have not turned the world up-side down, still there is much to make our hearts glad.

We have had good revivals at all the churches. As co-workers we have had with us Bro. Bell, Short, Suits, Trollinger, J. L., and Troxler. All of these brethren did fine work and greatly endeared themselves to the people. The most tragic thing of all is that this work is so large and the season for holding meetings so short that we are forced to close just as the meetings get started. It is tragic, indeed, to close a meeting with the altar full of seekers. I hope some day this handicap can be removed.

A new piano has been placed in Lineberry church; an organ that has 318 reeds has been put in Alleghany church. This church also is receiving a new coat of paint inside and out. There is a bright prospect of an organ being placed in Pine Hill church in the near future.

These instruments are coming from Bro. W. I. Maynard, of Greensboro. He is one of the most charitable men in his line that I know. In the last two charges I have served he has saved for us in price more than $500.

Finances are somewhat behind owing to the two hard crop years in this section, but the good people of the charge are putting forth an heroic effort to bring the best results possible.

Without ceasing the people are remembering us with good things for the table and in other ways to make us comfortable.

The Christian Endeavor at Lineberry is still going strong. They raised their assessment for Young People's Work last night by a single collection.

Our good brother, Madison Taylor, is real sick. We pray for his recovery.

W. D. REED.

West Forsyth.—We had a splendid attendance at Tabernacle and Union Hill churches last Sunday. The people were very attentive to the efforts of the pastor in the delivery of the messages. The Lord's Supper was observed at each church, completing the observance of this ordinance for the present Conference year at these churches.

Bro. C. G. Hunter and Mrs. Hunter were present at Tabernacle church last Sunday. Bro. Hunter came as a committeeman from the quarterly conference to present the matter of an increase in the pastor's salary for the coming year. The proposed increase of 20 per cent of the present apportionment for Tabernacle was discussed and when a vote was taken the majority were for the increase. This will increase Tabernacle's apportionment only $21 for the year. With a total of 82 members, this slight increase should be easily raised.

We were glad to have Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, of Mocksville, at our service at Tabernacle last Sunday morning. Mrs. Anderson is a daughter of Mrs. Amelia Reid, one of our members at Tabernacle.

After the service at Tabernacle the pastor hurried away to meet an engagement for dinner at the home of Bro. Julius Whitman, member of Pleasant Hill church, which was a surprise birthday occasion. About 75 people were present and enjoyed the splendid dinner spread on a large table on the lawn of the home.

We were at Union Hill at 3 o'clock last Sunday afternoon for the regular service there, and there was the usual congregation present. After the service the pastor went to the splendid home of Bro. J. W. P. Baker, who is class leader and one of the oldest members of Union Hill. We enjoyed a most sumptuous supper with Bro. Baker and family. Other visitors for the supper were Bro. J. E. Douglass, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Bro. J. H. Long, of the Pleasant Hill community.

The pastor and family are thankful for appropriate gifts from some of the people since our last report. We thank Bro. H. A. Warner, of Harmony Grove church, for the gift of a nice supply of sweet potatoes. Mrs. W. W. Whitman, of Tabernacle church, has our thanks for a package of gifts brought to the church last Sunday morning. This has been her practice for several months, to bring appropriate gifts to the church and place them in our car. Others who have remembered us with donations are the following: Mrs. Arthur Long, a neighbor; Mrs. Pearson Sprinkle, another neighbor; Mrs. William A. Long, of Pleasant Hill church.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Thomas and children and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hargrove, of Burlington, were visitors at the parsonage last Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Hargrove are brother and sister, respectively, of Mrs. Way.

The annual revival meeting will begin at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday, with three services during the first day. The pastor will preach at the morning and afternoon services and Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, who is to do the preaching during the meeting, will arrive in time to preach at the night service. We are expecting a male chorus to sing at the afternoon service and a mixed chorus to be present and sing at the night service. The day services will be held probably in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock commencing Monday afternoon.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Friendship Station.—Mr. Hill filled the pulpit last Sunday with another of his wonderful messages. He always brings us good sermons.

The fourth quarterly meeting for Porter and Friendship will be a joint meeting at Friendship next Saturday evening at 6:30. A large attendance is desired. The Conference year has not been what we had expected it to be.

The Annual Conference will convene about five miles from us. We are going to send one of our aged men, Mr. W. L. Hatley, as our delegate. We feel sure he will make us a good representative. We welcome pastors and people into our midst during the Conference and we are planning to help entertain the pastors and delegates to the best of our ability. We are hoping to make the Conference a success by attending the services every day and night.

With best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MARIE HATLEY, Ass't Reporter.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Having been re-elected reporter, I will try to fulfil my duties as best I can.

We had a very large crowd at preaching Sunday at 11 a. m. Our pastor, Mr. Williams, delivered a fine sermon. His subject was, "The Crooked Shall Be Made Straight." Luke 3:5.

Church officers were elected for the coming year as follows: Class leaders, J. S. Faucett, S. E. Holmes, W. S. Sykes, G. W. Sykes, C. H. Pender, Mrs. C. A. Sykes.

Trustees, J. E. Thompson, C. A. Sykes, W. S. Dodson, D. M. Sykes, D. F. Tapp, S. H. Squires, S. N. Hayes, R. C. Minnis, E. C. Sykes.

Stewards, W. A. Moore, Morgan Minnis, D. A. Pender, C. H. Jones, J. F. Holmes, J. C. Dodson, Mrs. L. E. Sykes, O. F. Jones, C. H. Sykes.

Church treasurer, C. H. Jones.

Sunday school superintendent, J. T. Hobbs.

We have only one more appointment before Conference. Much is yet to be accomplished if our Conference year ends as we would like to have it.

We are hoping Conference will be so kind as to send our present pastor back to us. He has served us faithfully for six years and we would be very sorry to give him up.

The fourth quarterly conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 25, at 2 p. m. We are especially anxious to have a good attendance at this conference. Rev. S. W. Taylor, president of the Annual Conference, will be present at this meeting.

ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

First Church, Thomasville.—Among the leading events of the year for us was our "Home-Coming Day" on October 5. At the 11 o'clock hour Rev. R. S. Troxler, pastor of Shiloh charge, delivered a very forceful Gospel message, which we all appreciated. It was just the kind of preaching we need so much.

At the noon hour a large number of hungry faces were assembled, looking toward the center of the lawn upon a well-filled table, and after Rev. G. L. Reynolds had said grace we enjoyed a delightful dinner which had been prepared by the members and friends of this church. We did not feed five thousand, but we did take up a few baskets of the fragments which were left after all had eaten. Words were not necessary to express the fact that we all enjoyed the dinner.

In the afternoon service Dr. H. W. Maier conducted a very interesting devotional exercise. Mr. D. R. Connell gave a short speech of welcome and Mrs. J. W. Boyles gave a response. Both were good. As ex-pastors of this church we were glad to have Revs. J. E. Pritchard, J. H. Abernethy, G. L. Reynolds and R. S. Troxler. They all gave us short but interesting talks. Also Rev. D. R. Williams of Mount Pleasant church and Rev. Mr. Newton, a local minister, spoke briefly. We were glad to have them all and only wish all of the ex-pastors could have been here.

Special music was rendered by the Fisher quartet of Winston-Salem and our local male quartet. Also Rev. R. S. Troxler and his family gave us a special number.

We were happy indeed to have all of these good folk enjoy the day with us.

As a whole our church work is moving along very nicely. We are glad to report that we have raised in full our General Conference budget, Annual Conference budget, special for Superannuates and Gratitude Gift Deficit. We are hoping to raise the remainder of all our financial obligations before Conference.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Circuit.—Our C. E. meeting is coming right on under the president, Miss Bertha Woodruff. She has a new plan for answering "Present." If you answer "100" the C. E. may know you have done your duty.

Glad to have Mr. V. C. Matthew, the professor of Tabor school, and his family and other visitors the fourth Sunday p. m.

Much business was to come before the church Sunday as the new year is drawing near. I will not name the officers' places; some were elected new; some hold their same places. Pastor Smith brought a very inspiring message afterwards.

The third Sunday night will be his last time during the Conference year. Pastor Smith can preach some good sermons. If the Conference does not send him back he and his family will not be forgotten.

Our fourth quarterly conference will meet Thursday before the fourth Sunday at Littleton at 1 o'clock.

Very, very sad news swept the community when we heard of the death of Brother O'Briant. He was once our pastor. It's sad but true God called a soul from us like that. When on your sick bed when he would come in his face brought sunshine which made you feel so much better.

Mr. E. B. Pair held prayer service the first Sunday which was enjoyed, and very helpful, too. Am sorry to say he is sick now.

Mr. Smith was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Baldy Green Sunday.

Mrs. Willie Hawkins and little daughter are spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, in Surry, Va.

Mrs. Georgie Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Green had a few people invited to her parents' birthday dinner.

Miss Gaynelle Green is in Gastonia, N. C., for a few days.

One of our church members was recently married: Miss Nettie Hawkins to Mr. Tom Carpenter. Their wedding took place at Emporia September 26. They are making their home in Rosemary, as Mr. Carpenter works with the Power Company.

Glen Raven.—On Saturday night, October 4th, at the church, the Ladies' Aid and Auxiliary gave a chicken pie and oyster stew supper to raise money for the benefit of the church. Everything was favorable in getting up this supper and they cleared around $40. We wish to thank every person who made donations or helped in any way to make this supper a success.

On Sunday morning the Sunday school and church elected their new officers for the coming year. Mr. P. E. Troxler was re-elected by a unanimous vote as Sunday school superintndent; Mr. Bookout as Sunday school secretary and treasurer; Mr. Cozart, choir director and Miss Geneva Dixon, pianist. Mr. McBoone was elected church secretary and treasurer. The board of stewards and junior board of stewards had several of the old members re-elected.

Rev. O. C. Loy preached his last sermon at our church last Sunday night. He and Mrs. Loy have been very faithful workers here all the year and we all regret very much to give them up for the two years which they will spend at the Seminary in Maryland. But their ambitions are laudable, and we can not but bid them Godspeed. Our esteem and prayers will follow them and a warm welcome will await their return. May God richly bless them in their new endeavors and send them out better fitted for their future life.

The Christian Endeavor Society has shown much interest and has been geratly improved since the special campaign for new members. We have not reached our goal, but our campaign is still going on and our active members are still working faithfully in this campaign.

Since the weather has gotten more favorable there seems to be a geenral increase in all attendance, Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, and prayer meeting. We hope for this to continue to improve until our church will be filled to its capacity.

South Lexington.—Work is making good progress. Our Sunday school is still holding up over the 200 mark, which we are very glad to note.

On next Sunday evening at 7:30 we will have our Rally Day program, which Bro. Koonts and the children have been preparing for a good while, and a good program is expected.

Our revival meeting, which has been going on for a week, came to a close Sunday night. We had good crowds for each service and Rev. D. I. Garner did some wonderful preaching. There were only four conversions and five joined our church, some by letter and others by profession of Christ. And we know the angels rejoiced over them, for we are taught that angels rejoice over one soul being brought to Christ, and for this we are very thankful.

We are trying to end up the year in the best manner possible. We are trying to pay up all of our claims if possible so we may go to Conference with a good report.

Our fourth quarterly conference will be held Tuesday night of this week at Mount Carmel church.

Winston.—A surprise! Last Sabbath morning we had with us again Dr. Andrews. We were very sorry indeed that the preacher that was scheduled to come could not be with us, but were glad to have Dr. Andrews preach for us. His sermon was enjoyed by all, and was most beneficial. Some of the points that are essential for a successful life were discussed at this time.

During the morning worship a quartet was given by Mrs. J. B. Winecoff, Miss Sybil Davis, Messrs. F. D. Voss and W. W. Weatherman, "Watch in the Garden With Him." This was very effective and very beautiful.

After the service a meeting of the local congregation was held and church officers voted on. The list was read by Mr. L. P. Burns, chairman of the nominating committee. The list was accepted as a whole, and elected.

Prayer meeting will be held Wednesday night and choir rehearsal directly afterward. The board of stewards will also hold a meeting during the choir rehearsal.

Last Sunday a week ago was Rally Day. Mr. Raymond Smith from Centenary West End church gave us a splendid talk on "Rally Day." A program was given by the children, Miss Pearl Sapp and Mrs. J. B. Winecoff sponsoring this program. The entire service was very good and a large number attended.

Our new Sunday school officers are starting the new year splendidly. The teachers are doing a good work. Some new teachers are getting adapted, and the old ones doing better than ever.

The Booster class held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Miss Ellen Wakefield on North Liberty street. This class is the young men and women of our church. A piano has been purchased for their department and they are paying for it now.

The Auxiliary will meet next week. Half of the year has passed and the circles seem to have done very well so far.

State Street, Lexington.—Last Sunday was a full day with us. There were the usual Sunday services. Sunday school, 11 o'clock worship service, meeting of the C. E. Society and evening address by the pastor and a meeting of the quarterly conference at Yadkin College and a meeting of the Workers' Council. Seldom is one day so filled with activities.

The children ready for promotion from the different departments of the Sunday school have been properly placed. About three new classes were made, owing to the increase in attendance among the children. The new teachers elected were Mrs. Neal, Mrs. Lemmons, and Mrs. Gladys Koonts. Other officers and teachers for the coming year for both church and Sunday school have been nominated. The closing of the year's work is being satisfactorily accomplished in every respect. Our growth in numbers this year has not been so remarkable, but we have gained some fine workers. We feel that what we have gained makes up in quality for any shortage in numbers.

The Missionary Society and C. E. have joined forces in preparing for an oyster supper to be given in the church dining room Friday night.

Mr. J. W. Lindsay is not so well the last few days, we are sorry to note.

North Davidson Charge.—I am now bringing to the attention of the readers of this paper some very fine news. The last half of my revivals have been held with very fine results.

On the fourth Sunday in August we commenced our special meeting at Mount Pleasant. The pastor preached at 11 o'clock to a large congregation. Rev. M. P. Chambliss came in time to preach in the afternoon. Bro. Chambliss did all the preaching from then on and did it well, and, I think, did it to the satisfaction of every one who heard him. We had some great services. The weather was ideal and the people attended very well, both evening and night. There were several reclamations, 13 accepted Christ and seven joined the church and Christians stepped to higher ground. Bro. Chambliss greatly endeared himself to this people, both in the pulpit as he preached the Word and in the homes. Come again, Bro. Chambliss; we will always be glad to see you!

On the first Sunday in October we commenced our revival at Spring Hill. Te pastor preached in the morning and afternoon. The young people gave an interesting program Sunday night. On Monday afternoon Rev. William Loy, of Mebane, came to us and did all the preaching from then till the meeting closed on Friday night. Bro. Loy was pastor here for three years. During this time he endeared himself to this people. We were all glad to see him. He seemd to be at his best, preaching the Word straight and effectively, which seemed to take hold upon saint and sinner. On Tuesday night one conversion; on Wednesday night 31 professed faith in Christ; on Thursday night 20 or more accepted the Savior. The pastor opened the door of the church for those who had professed to join the church. Thirty offered themselves for membership. I baptized a class of 30 and received them into full membership. On Friday night 12 professod faith in Christ. Pastor again gave opportunity for others to join the church and 15 offered themselves for baptism and church membership. More than 60 conversions and reclamations; 45 united with the church, others to join later. It was a quiet meeting, but I think every one was conscious of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. It was, indeed, one of the greatest meetings I have been privileged to be in in many years. I have never been privileged to baptize a class of 30 at one time before. My heart is still overflowing with joy. This is the good news I had to tell you. By Conference I will have received over 70 members on this charge. Bro. Loy will always have a warm place in our hearts.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—We may not have been heard from lately, but we are still on the map. Things have been moving along quietly, but smoothly, with us. This has been a good year for us in some respects and yet it has been sad, for we have lost four of our oldest and most faithful members.

On the second Sunday in September our pastor received five members into the church, Mrs. D. T. Vestal moving her membership from May's Chapel Baptist church, and four boys and girls joining on profession of faith.

Sunday school has been re-organized and is getting lined up for what we hope may be a good year for us. The old officers were reelected. Some changes were made in teachers. On next Sunday night church officers will be elected.

It makes us tremble to think of Conference being so near at hand and our financial obligations not all met; however, we hope to be able to make at least a fair report.

Rev. A. O. Lindley certainly brought us a good sermon Sunday. At the close of the service the Lord's Supper was taken. A large number participated in this part of the service.

KARA ANDREW, Reporter.

◆

Laurel Hill.—Our Sunday school attendance has been good for the past while. Each teacher seems very much interested in his own class.

A signboard has been placed in front of the church by some of our hard-working members. The sign reads, "Laurel Hill M. P. Church. Welcome."

Sunday, Communion service was partaken of at 11; at this time our pastor preached a very effective sermon bearing out the idea that "Nothing is successful that is planned without God." God will bless what He is in, and what He isn't in He cannot bless.

We were very glad to have several visiting friends to worship with us Sunday.

Officers were elected for the coming year Sunday morning. The same board of class leaders, stewards and trustees were retained. Our same superintendent, church reporter and secretary and treasurer were re-elected. Mr. J. W. Allran was elected assistant superintendent.

Don't forget the last quarterly conference for this year will be held at Hebron church on Saturday before the first Sunday in November.

The third Sunday evening in this month (next Sunday evening) we will have preaching at 7:30. At this time the class books will be revised.

Rev. Mr. Morgan was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Sain Sunday.

One of our Sunday school boys, Mr. Clyde Willis, left last week for Tnnessee, where he will attend an embalming college.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Union Grove, Mocksville Charge.—At the request of our pastor I shall write briefly. Our evergreen Sunday school is still doing good work. Mr. Ferree has met every appointment with a good sermon. On October 5 he administered the Lord's Supper to a goodly number of brethren and sisters.

We are still behind with our finances but do not lay the blame on our pastor. We are indeed glad for what he has been able to accomplish during the year. Souls have been led to Christ not only in our home church but also in the other churches of Mocksville charge. Though in some respects we have fallen short of our goal we feel that something worth while has been accomplished.

The choirs of a number of churches in North Iredell have organized a fifth Sunday singing convention. The organization is to meet with us the 1fth Sunday in November and any choir or any quartet of any denomination is invited to take part. Come and worship with us in song. But whether or not you bring a choir we shall be glad to have you with us.

Randolph Charge.—We have held our four revival meetings with good results. We had our first meeting at Shiloh church. This is one of my strongest churches. Rev. C. G. Isley was the pulpit help. He came to us on the second Sunday in August and remained throughout the meeting. We had a good meeting with 14 conversions and two united with the church. Am hoping others will unite with the church later. Rev. Isley did some forceful and uplifting preaching throughout the meeting.

Our second meeting began at Bethel on the third Sunday in August with Rev. N. G. Bethea as pulpit help. He did some splendid preaching, which the people enjoyed very much and resutled in 40 conversions and reclamations, and 14 united with the church. He endeared himself to these people with his interesting messages.

This church is planning to build Sunday school rooms immediately whch are needed very badly. These people are preparing themselves for better work in Sunday school and church.

The revival began at Bethany the first Sunday in September with Brother C. G. Isley assisting in the meeting. Brother Isley's preaching was Biblical, pointed, convincing and inspiring. Every message was delivered with a remarkable degree of enthusiasm. There were 11 professions and three united with the church. The ladies of this church have secured new gas lamps, which are a great help for the revival meeting. We want to thank these good ladies for what they are doing.

Our revival meeting has just closed at Gray's Chapel. The whole church has been made better as a result of these services. There were 14 professions and reclamations, two uniting with the church. Rev. O. C. Loy did the preaching and I am sure I voice the sentiment of the people who were fortunate enough to hear him that he is one of our best young preachers. His sermons were just fine, and it can truly be said of him he is a man of God. One who is putting his all into his work.

We were glad to have Mrs. Loy with us in the meeting.

If you have been on Highway No. 62, running from Asheboro to Liberty, in the last few weeks you have observed that we have erected a splendid marker to this church.

We are hoping to end the year with a good report.

D. I. GARNER, Pastor.

Roberta.—It is supposed that thunder always follows lightning, but something has struck Roberta and but little noise has been heard. It was my privilege to drop in on Pastor Short a few days ago and to behold the wonderful things that he had done. The first thing that struck me was that he had a solid wall of books in his library that gave evidence of having been used. Then we drove over to his church and found one of the most modern country churches that we know anywhere. All this has come out from a four-wall building as a result of Bro. Short's efficient leadership. I question if a bigger things has been done in the Conference this year. And yet but little noise has been heard.

W. D. REED.

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—We have been moving on as usual; just a few, but we are holding on, hoping in some way or other some families of children may be brought into the community, to come in and help. We now have less than ten in Sunday school and not a child among them. All of our girls and boys have grown up, gone out to work; some have married; but, strange to say, not a single marriage in many years has ever added one member to our church or Sunday school; it usually takes one away. Pray for the few remaining faithful ones.

We were glad to have Dr. Taylor with us; he preached a most helpful sermon.

Mrs. L. L. Everett, who now lives in Norfolk, was with us and enjoyed the services.

It was our pleasure to visit Bro. Hethcox and family last Sunday. He had been well pounded by several of the Rehoboth members.

Now the year is drawing to a close. Let every one of our members visit the pastor and family often, carry them supplies; they will then be able to use their money for other things they need.

It is very cold; winter seems almost here.

Again, let every one pay the pastor the money due him. God will bless and care for them who put Him first, so don't fail to do that.

We hope to have Bro. Hethcox return; we don't see how we can do without him.

Sorry to say Bro. C. V. White is confined to his bed again. Pray for his recovery.

Mount Pleasant, North Davidson Circuit.—The Mount Pleasant Christian Endeavor Society held its regular meeting Sunday morning, October 5. Delphine Welborn had charge of the program. An encouragingly large number was present. Helen Hilton recited an appropriate poem and Misses Ruth Payne and Lema Shoaf rendered a lovely duet. All parts of the program, especially the questions and answers, were prepared and delivered in a most interesting and entertaining manner.

Miss Ruth Greene was appointed leader for the next meeting.

One new member, Miss Faye Lillian Murphey, was added and we hope that we may continue to add new members and workers for His service in the future as we have in the past.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, brought us a splendid message at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday morning. He used as his theme "Society With and Without Christ." A large congregation was present at this service.

Since our last report a few new members have been added to our church. We give them a hearty welcome.

The C. E. program contest social will be held at Mrs. D. I. Offman's on Wednesday night of this week. The Endeavorers have done some splendid work this summer and every one is looking forward to a good time at the social.

Church officers for the coming year were elected at the Sunday morning service.

Work has been started toward the construction of the Sunday school rooms and we hope this program will move steadily forward until we have adequate quarters for our large and growing Sunday school.

The Alamance County Sunday School Convention will be held at St Mark's Reformed church next Saturday and Sunday. We expect a large number of our people to attend these very interesting programs.

Our pastor, Mr. Carroll, and Mr. Kenneth y. Holt have entered Duke University recently. We wish that both of these young men may have a successful year's work.

Several other young people from our church have entered various institutions this fall and our best wishes go with them.

Oak Grove, Near Rural Hall.—I feel impulsed to write a report about the late revival meeting at the Grove. Perhaps the revival was the best that has ever been held at Oak Grove. I report because I want to confess that I very much needed the meeting. I was there, but not as much as I wanted to be. I feel impulsed to say that the spiritual, the revival was good for me even when I was not there, and was great for me when I was there. My parents, who were Moravians, instructed us children to join the M. P. church, and the event was, and is, that I am impulsed to say that I think that it was and is providential. It is a great privilege to be inside of our home of mutual rights.

In a sense, I think that we can term the church as a home, and the home as a church. My father's house was truly called the preachers' home, and was real, it being a fact that numbers of the best of God's humble servants gave our folks Bible reading, and praying, twice a day, and my parents made those who were the people of God, preachers and people, welcome to the best they had.

Of course our church professes mutual rights, for a great profession, and this claim is really an item with me, and the longer I live the more I feel to love and cherish the real thing that I now call our special claim. I think that I have got as much respect for the various denominations and their preachers as my parents had—and I am sure that I see many people in other denominations who are better than I am—and in this I am glad, and then I am glad again that "they that are for us are not against us." This last sentence is found in the Bible; but "every tub must stand on its own bottom" is not in the Bible.

The impulse, at the first of this letter, was to say that a good revival, such as the late Oak Grove meeting, reaches out to many persons at a distance—those who are in sympathy, and who pray for the good work. Bro. Williams is a good pastor, and, however the help, he manages and preaches well on every occasion. He is the man we need for a pastor. This preamble has got too lengthy, but if crowded out soon, it may perhaps serve later on.

The Billy Sunday club served in the meeting, and their presence has caused me to make the above slight reference to our pastor.

However, I was very glad to be at the meeting, when they served, and, too, I was very glad to hear their "boy preacher" speak, and help to show to sinners and all that salvation by faith in the merits of Christ is the way of our hope, even for this world, and the world to come. W. F. GRABS.

First Church, High Point.—The series of meetings, which have been in progress for eight days, were brought to a close last Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Farmer has conducted services every evening except Saturday, and has delivered clear, forceful, compelling Gospel messages, presenting the heinoususs of sin, and need of salvation, and the yearning love of the sympathetic Christ for wayward humanity in an unusually attractive manner. The congregations were large and most attentive, and the responses of praise and testimony from many Christians were earnest and refreshing. It was a veritable feast of the soul to be in many of those meetings. The members of the church have been greatly revived, and several out of Christ have been joyfully converted. In the noonday shop meetings it is estimated that 3,500 men have been touched, and the eagerness of managers and workers alike to learn of Jesus was evinced by the readiness with which they grasped the small book, Gospel of St. John, the demand being far greater than the supply. Thursday evening was Membership Night, and was attended by a large audience. Friday was Church School Night, and there was a larger number of Sunday school pupils with their teachers in attendance. Miss Mary Koonce's class of Intermediate was present 99 per cent, and received a book as a prize, the second highest being Mrs. Theodore Ballard's who also won a prize. A pleasing feature at all of these services was the enthusiastic singing of the girls and boys and young people. In the absence of Prof. Stimson, who was ill with "flu," Mrs. R. I. Farmer played the accompaniments on the piano, assisted at times by Mrs. Minnie P. Harrell.

On last Sunday four services were held, which made the day a hard and strenuous one for our minister. The church school met as usual at 9:45 o'clock; at 11 o'clock we were delighted to have present Rev. F. W. Stephenson, D. D. secretary of Christian Education, who led in prayer. Mr. Arthur Fidler sang "By the Waters of Babylon," and the anthem, "The Lord Is King," by Marston, was beautifully rendered by the choir. Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke with great power and eloquence on "The Atoning Work of Christ," the text being from Hebrews: "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins." Se said in part: The sinner can never be led into repentance without learning that text. The death of Christ makes it possible that our sins may be forgiven. I want you to know that sin did not take God by surprise. Have we accepted Him? Do you believe in the necessity of atonement? The saddest thing in the world is a man or woman, who is not conscious of their sins. Jesus who redeems comes and says: "What will you do in the future, not what have you done in the past?" He offers gracious pardon and peace from sin. The story is told of the painter, John Ruskin, to whome some one brought a handkerchief all blotted with ink, and from the spots he painted a lovely picture. Just so we may take our lives all stained, ugly, and marred by sin, and by the blood of Jesus make them pure, beautiful, useful, and full of good works. At the close of this service Mrs. A. R. Peace, Grimes street, came forward and united with the church on profession of faith. We are much pleased to receive her into fellowship. At 2 o'clock p. m. there was a meeting for men and boys only, and the subject of the message was "Men I Have Met in High Point Who Do Not Go to Church and Why," at which was a large congregation in attendance. At 4 o'clock p. m. another service was held for women and girls, and the topic presented was "Womanhood's Greatest Profit."

At the evening service Mrs. J. H. Allred and C. L. Gray, Jr., sang a beautiful duet, and a quartette, Mesdames Ellington and Allred, Messrs. Gray and Koonce, sang "Who Could It Be?" the subject of the message occasion being "The Enduring Life."

The Woman's Auxiliary held its motnhly general meeting Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with an unusually large attendance. Mrs. S. S. Coe presided, and devotionals were conducted by Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, Mrs. R. M. Andrews sang very sweetly "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and Mrs. J. H. Walker, Jr., gave a reading, "Motive of Missions." Miss Young then read Dr. Haddaway's "Missionary Message," the theme of which was "Be Ye Reconciled to God.” Plans are being made for the annual bazaar on October 30th, and a supper will be served in the evening. Each of the eight circles will have a booth and Mrs. Ross Davis announced that the children of the Junior Mission Circle wish to have one, at which dolls will be offered for sale. A letter of thanks for the check from the Auxiliary from Mrs. E. L. Ballard, Boston, Mass., was read by Mrs. Walker. Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, secretary of scholarships in High Point college, announced that nine loans have been made to students this year by N. C. Branch, which is very gratifying. Mrs. S. W. Taylor announced that the Auriliary has paid to the Branch treasurer the sum of $870.50 on our General Conference budget, which is $1,000. The new study books, “A Cloud of Witnesses,” by Elsie Singmaster, have been received and distributed to the different circles, for study during the coming six months. It was voted to donate one copy of all study books finished to the library of the college for use and reference by the student.

Next Sunday will be a day of ingathering of souls, and opportunity for uniting with the church and baptism will be given. The election of church officials and Sunday school superintendent will be held by primary this year instead of by a nominating committee. This new plan was authorized by quarterly conference, and every member of voting age will be given an opportunity next Sunday to nominate the officers of his choice, and the result will be announced October 26th.

The topic discussed at C. E. Society Monday evening was “Marks of a Good Citizen.”

An important meeting of the board of stewards will be held Tuesday evening. We are in the last month of the Conference year, and all pledges must be paid prior to November 5. The financial statement and directory will be published again this year.

The usual prayer meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, and the minister will speak on “The Able Christ.”

Mrs. E. P. Morris, of Salisbury, Md., is the guest of her daughter, Miss Naomi Morris, home economics teacher in High Point College.

We are much pleased to note that Prof. Ernest B. Stimson, director of music, who has been ill with influenza, is much improved.

Mrs. John S. Pickett, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. R. B. Sams, in Trenton, N. J., for two weeks, will return home next Wednesday.

In a recent address to the American Business Club at their meeting at the Country Club here, Dr. G. I. Humphreys, new president of High Point College, sounded an optimistic note when he declared that the darkest days of the college are behind it, and it is now on the threshold of a greater service, having already kept faith with those who have invested labor, time, thought, and money in this large educational institution.

tifully and efficiently planned by Mrs. Maier?

Are you using the programs planned for denominational mission work for Y. P. S. C. E.?

Would you like to have Mrs. Maier's program run in this paper?

Would you like the Y. P. S. C. E. program run in this paper?

I have some lovely new tin mite-boxes, all decorated with colored pictures. The children would adore them. They are free. Would you like to have some?

Let me hear from you, and know what you are doing and what help you need.

DEPARTMENT OF SCHOLARSHIPS AND NATIVE WORKERS

The work of supporting scholarships and workers is progressing nicely in the Auxiliaries which have undertaken the work this year. Winston-Salem has paid in full a scholarship in Japan since April, while Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Montgomery, of High Point, has paid a scholarship and a Bible woman in India.

Bethel (Alamance) is this year supporting a native worker in India in addition to their scholarship. Burlington Mission Band is paying towards a scholarship for India. These two are new this year and we feel greatly encouraged. It is not yet too late for other Auxiliaries to take up this work. I shall be only too glad to furnish any and all information possible to any Auxiliary desiring it.

One request I wish to make of Auxiliary Scholarship Secretaries: Please, at the end of each quarter, report to me the amount your Auxiliary has sent in to Branch treasurer.

When no reports come to me I have no way of making a report except by writing Mrs. Taylor for the information.

I am your secretary, and vitally interested in the work you are doing. Will you not keep in touch with me, and use me in any way that will help advance this phase of the work?

Sec'y Scholarships and Native Workers.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY HENDERSON AUXILIARY

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Henderson M. P. church, held September 29, 1930, the following paper was unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas, we have heard of the loss sustained by our country and by our beloved president; and whereas our hearts go out to her in her extreme sorrow; and whereas we feel keenly our loss in the departure of Honorable W. C. Hammer, her husband, and since we have long recognized him as one of our state's most loyal sons, and our president as a thorough helpmeet for him; therefore,

Resolved, first, that our Auxiliary for ourselves and in behalf of our church express to Mrs. Hammer our love and deepest sympathy.

Resolved, second, that in our judgment no person can better carry on in his work than can she with whom he was not unequally yoked.

Resolved, third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mrs. W. C. Hammer, Asheboro, N. C., and a copy to the Methodist Protestant Herald and the Missionary Record for publication, and a copy be spread on the minutes of our Auxiliary.

The last six items should have been reported sooner. The other items above show our offerings for the first and second Sundays in October, and is the longest list we have been privileged to publish at one time in a good many weeks. We thank all who have contributed. We welcome Mt. Hermon to our list of regular contributors. And we are especially thankful to our two friends of Pittsburgh, who wish their names withheld.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Miss Notie Martin, Mocksville, 1 pair new shoes.

Mrs. Laura M. Wilson, Rock Hall, Md., 1 pair shoes, 1 dress and 2 pieces of dress goods.

Someone, who name was not given, left a package containing 3 pieces of underwear, 1 apron and 1blouse.

Miss Pearl McCulloch's class, Calvary, 3 dress patterns for little girl.

Pleasant Grove, Harvest Home offering, cash as reported above, Octagon coupons, 1 gallon molasses, 6 bushels sweet potatoes, 1 bushel irish potatoes, 5 pounds sugar, 18 quarters fruit, preserves and pickles, 1 glass peanut butter, 12 cakes soap, 1½ gallons peas, 4 dozen apples, 6 pumpkins, 1 dress, 2 suits underwear for boys, and 1 pair pantaloons. A fine donation for Pleasant Grove. We thank them and all the others who contributed these gifts.

If there are others who have good outgrown clothing in your homes we sholl be glad to get it early in the fall.

Harvest Home Offerings

We are counting on a goodly number of Harvest Home offerings from our country charges yet. Any kind of produce that you use about your home or barn will be useful here. We thank those who are planning these.

Our friends "Down East" sent a nice lot of peanuts last year. May we expect those this year?

Octagon Coupons

Coupons are accumulating fairly rapidly for our General Electric for the boys' dormitory. Please send along all you can just as fast as you can. We shall be so glad to close up this coupon campaign for refrigerators as soon as we can.

Annual Conference

We must make our report to the Board of Trustees of this Home on Thursday, October 30, and to the Annual Conference the next week, so whatever you wish us to include in our report for this year must be sent us soon. We thank you, and may God bless you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

Revelations of Calvary's Cross

The man of base and shallow life
Sees only this—a man outdone,
A man gone down in world's fierce strife
When all is lost and nothing won.

The man of noble soul will see
'Twas better far to suffer death
Than desecrate his fealty,
Denying God, to save his breath.

The man of insight clearly sees
He died because he would—not must:
His heart was filled with ecstacies,
His soul enjoyed unshaken trust.

What was his high sustaining view?
What was the joy that lured him on?
He hoped to see a race made new,
He joyed to see a new day dawn.

The cross of Christ was meeting place
Of love divine and human hate:
The war was fierce for little space,
But now is love enthroned in state.

A Disappointed Lay-Delegate

We have a charge in our District which we shall here call Rosebury because that is not its name. The people of Rosebury esteem themselves good judges of preachers and preaching, and we have no disposition to contradict this claim. Rosebury knew the Annual Conference was approaching. What about a pastor for next year? Shall we change? If so, whom shall we have? These questions were earnestly and widely debated. The pastor they had was a good man and a good preacher, but he had been there several years, and then he did not quite fall into class A. Agitation of the matter led to this decision: to choose our best man for delegate and instruct him to bring back for our pastor the best preacher in class A. They chose for delegate Mr. Samson. The Conference met that year in Greensboro. Mr. Samson came early and began his work of inspecting preachers to discover who were in class A and in particular the man who stood at the head of the class. In this quest he frequently consulted former pastors. They gave him the benefit of their judgment and finally he was convinced that Rev. Mr. Jones was just the man for Rosebury. He presented himself before the Stationing Committee and informed them that he had been instructed by the people of Rosebury to bring without fail the Rev. Mr. Jones as their next pastor. The Committee told Mr. Samson that it would be a manifest wrong to move Mr. Jones from the work he was doing so successfully, and therefore the Committee felt morally bound to ask the Rosebury charge to make another choice. Mr. Samson was cast down, but he did not give up hope. He went to his former pastors again, this time to learn who was the second preacher in class A. There was some difference of opinion on this point, but the preponderance of testimony seemed to be in favor of Rev. Mr. Wesley. Mr. Samson went before the Stationing Committee with a request which was almost a demand that the Rev. Dr. Wesley be sent to Rosebury. "Impossible!" said the Committee. "He has already been assigned to a new field calling for a man of his peculiar qualifications." Mr. Samson was stunned. He did not know what to do next. After some reflection he decided that he would do this: he would go directly to the preacher he wanted and arrange with him and then the two would inform the Stationing Committee of the program agreed upon. He went back to his former pastors and secured a list of all the preachers belonging to class A. He accosted the first man on the list and said to him: "You have heard of Rosebury, of course. I represent that charge and we want a first-class preacher this year and I have decided to ask you to become our pastor." The preacher replied: "I am in the hands of the Stationing Committee and the Conference. If I am assigned to Rosebury I will cheerfully go." Mr. Samson thought the matter was settled, that he had only to go to the Stationing Committee and tell them to put this preacher on the list for Rosebury. The Committee promptly informed Mr. Samson that this particular preacher had already been assigned to another charge and had agreed to go.

Prospects for Rosebury grew slimmer and slimmer. Conference would soon close. What could Mr. Samson do? It seemed that he could not get what he wanted. Should he take any preacher he could get? He decided that he would go to the Stationing Committee and learn what preachers were still available. He found only one left, Rev. Mr. Hudson, who had to leave his last charge in the interest of his wife's health. He at once sought an interview with Mr. Hudson. He seemed to be a very genial man and perhaps all would come out right yet. He said to Mr. Hudson: "Rosebury people would be delighted to have you as their pastor this year." Mr. Hudson asked:

"Have you a parsonage?"

"I am sorry to say we have not."

"Is there a house that could be rented for a parsonage?"

"I regret that there is not.

"In my wife's present state of health I fear we could not live in a hollow log."

WHY THE SERMON?

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

Has the preacher of the gospel fallen on evil days? Is there any salvation for the sermon? Or is it to be relegated to oblivion because it is an out-worn, out-grown form of literature and public speaking?

Judging by the crowds who do not follow the preacher, the seeming lack of hunger for the sermon, and the rush for other forms of vocal entertainment, one would certainly be inclined to conclude that there is good ground for suspicion that there is something radically wrong with either preacher or sermon. And, possibly, neither may be entitled to a clean bill of health.

Listening to preachers, as I am permitted to do occasionally, I feel quite strongly that there is a decided failure on the part of many of them to apprehend with any degree of clearness what it is all about. What is it the aim of the sermon to accomplish? Without a clear and adequate answer to this question nothing satisfactory is at all likely to be accomplished. Even with a good understanding of the purpose of preaching, and an appreciation of the sermon as a method or instrument, there may be failure to master the situation.

Of course, the sermon is not exclusively concerned with the bringing to pass of any single thing. Much should be in the mind of the preacher. Some things are to be accomplished by one sermon, and other things by other sermons. There should always be in the mind of the preacher at least one definite aim for each discourse; though other things may be achieved incidentally.

Here are four things to be studied, to be mastered, and to be kept in mind throughout the years of the preacher's ministry:

1. The sermon is for instruction. The church is a school. The minister is a teacher.

A theological professor, recalling his experience listening to sermons as a boy, has said that the greatest lack he had noted was the almost complete failure on the part of preachers to be progressively instructive through the years of their ministry. They had not apprehended the opportunity, nor realized their responsibility, to inform their congregations, to strengthen their thinking powers, to develop their ability to appreciate the word of God, the works of God, and God's dealing with men in the course of history. There have been men who have done all of this. And their value has been far above rubies. Many a layman has owed his splendid mental development, his ability to think clearly on religious and other subjects, and his facility in expressing himself, to the fact that for years he sat under the cogent reasoning and dignified discoursing of his able and well trained pastor.

2. The sermon is for comfort. The weary, the heavy laden, the discouraged, the sorely beaten, the almost-ready-to-give-up are a great multitude. Some of them are in God's house at sermon time. Many more would be there if they felt sure that in the sermon there would be some balm for their wounded hearts, intelligently and sympathetically administered.

The preacher needs to have suffered, to have sorrowed, and to have found comfort for himself. And he needs to know how to bring that comfort to other bruised hearts. "That we may be able to comfort others that are in any affliction, through the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God" should be the prayer of the preacher as he prepares his sermon.

By study, and especially by practice, one learns how to comfort people in their homes, in hospitals, and in other places of intimate contact with those who need such help. This is a good foundation on which to build like skill for one's pulpit ministrations.

3. The sermon should inspire. A sermon is inspiring when it breathes into, or imparts to, the hearer an idea, an emotion or a mental or spiritual influence. Cold intellect is not enough. That religious instruction is not sufficient which concerns itself merely with clear statements of facts and the marshaling of reasons for or against believing or doing certain things. In the pulpit the teacher must become also the pleader, the advocate, the arouser of the interest and the devotion of his congregation. He must quicken the dead, awaken the sleeping and stir the emotions of the listless. This is a great work and should have special attention in our times.

The actor often leaves the preacher far behind. The actor speaks his fictitious lines as though they were fact; while the preacher too many times speaks his true lines as though they were fiction. The talkies are now on hand in a fiercer competition with the preacher. In the talkie the disciplined actor lifts his trained voice in the use of well considered utterances with the tremendous advantages of appropriate costumes, magnificent scenery and action, and intriguing lights and colors.

An inspiring sermon presupposes an inspired preacher. Familiarity with great literature—history, philosophy, poetry, fiction, science—is exceedingly helpful. Open eyes and ears for the wonders in the heavens above, the earth beneath, the hills and valleys, the rivers and lakes and seas, and all the living things these contain, will enable one to take in much. While familiarity with the problems and ambitions and achievements of mankind make the minister a real human. Greatest of all is a working knowledge and experience of the mind and heart and method of Jesus. "Never man spake like this man."

4. The sermon should correct the characters and lives of the hearers. This is the same thing as to convert, to reform, to transform.

It is interesting that in the old Greek and Roman religions there were preachers of the Puritan type who had decided ideas as to what their discourses ought to accomplish. The Stoic preacher or lecturer of the best type was not out for the approval or praises of his hearers. Professor Case of the University of Chicago, writing of the character and methods of certain preachers in ancient Pagan society, says:

"There is an austere Puritanism, yet a very real charm, in the discourses of the ancient Cynic-Stoic missionary. He declared himself to be a messenger from Zeus, sent to men to instruct them about good and evil. It was his mission to warn them of the wrong way and to lead them back to the right path. He spurned the rhetorician for seeking praise

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Sympathy

Rev. C. W. Bates, pastor of Calvary church, will have the symapthy of the entire conference because of the death of his brother, which occurred in New York City only a few days ago. Brother Bates was summoned to the bedside of his brother about a week ago, and was with him at the time of his decease.

Burned

We regret to learn of the loss, by fire, of the Gibsonville parsonage. We are not informed as to insurance, but we trust that the building was fully protected. Insurance is sometimes a little hard to pay, but it certainly is money well spent when the fire happens. We urge that all of our churches and parsonages be amply insured.

Church Officers

We hear of a number of churches where they are being elected now. And this, of course, is as it should be. We are glad, too, to find churches selecting the officers through nominating committees. The advantage in this is that it provides for sufficient time and thought in selecting persons who are most fitted for the various offices of the church. Church officers sustain an important relationship to the entire program of the church; for that reason, they should always be selected with the utmost care. And, now, this: Pastors will please see that all officers are duly installed before the close of the conference year. The order of installation, adopted by the conference, will be found in the Journal of 1928, page 83.

Pastoral Changes

It is inevitable that some charges will have a change of pastors for next year. This is consistent with the itinerary system, and for that reason, changes need not awaken any surprsie. However, it is not easy, always, to effect these changes, even in a system that makes them inevitable. The relationship between pastor and people is a very vital one, and there are of necessity many matters that concern both, that oft times tend to make changes difficult. It is, therefore, becoming on the part of both pastors and charges to seek earnestly the leadings of the Holy Spirit, and to have no will in the matter except the will of the great Over-Shepherd. If this attitude can be maintained, changes or no changes should be agreed upon with the greatest degree of satisfaction to all, and with the largest measure of hope for the success of every charge. Let there be much prayer throughout the conference during these days when this matter is so much upon our minds and our hearts. If He guides, there can be no mistakes.

Correction

By oversight in coppying, the Children's Home was omitted from the conference program, as it appeared in the HERALD last week. This will be corrected, of course, in the printed programs for use during conference. The time allotted to the Home is 10:30 to 11 o'clock, Saturday morning, November 8.

Boundary Committee

Dr. Dixon, the chairman, has called this meeting for Friday of this week,—the 24th. It will be held in the First church, High Point, at 1:30 P. M. Due notice has been given of this meeting through the HERALD, and it is hoped that all charges that have business with this committee will be represented at this time.

October 11.—Two quarterly conferences were held on this date. In the afternoon at 2 P. M., we were with the Tabernacle charge in their fourth quarterly conference. The report of pastor and various officials indicated that the charge is well organized, and all organizations are functioning well. The Woman's Auxiliary has 50 members, and interest is better and work more effective than under the old order. The Sunday Schools on the charge are doing well, and Tabernacle church is planning to erect a Sunday School building. Work will begin soon. The charge has two live C. E. Societies. Finances are a little behind, but pastor's salary will be paid, and it is our hope that all budget obligations will be met. We discovered hopeful signs pointing in that direction. The charge has done well on "Dollar a Member," $340 having been paid. The conference instructed the delegate, by unanimous vote, to request the conference return their present pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, for another year.

At night, we were at Lebanon church, Randleman charge. Here we found an unusually well attended conference. All churches of the charge were represented. Twenty-two officials were present, and a goodly number of other interested persons. Reports indicated that the charge is in good condition. Sunday Schools are good, with three contributing monthly to the Children's Home. The school at Worthville is largest in the history of the church, with 130 on roll, and an average attendance of 100. The charge has good prayer meetings at some of the churches. There have been 67 conversions and reclamations on the charge, and four accessions. Lebanon and Worthville have paid allotments to Young People's Work; Salem will pay, and Level Cross, probably. The charge has a Missionary Society and an active Aid Society. We trust that these two societies may be combined into an Auxiliary. C. E. Societies are lacking, and the pastor will no doubt give this phase of the work attention. There will be but a small deficit on salary, if any. Superannuate allotment has been paid in full. Salem has paid salary in full. Lebanon will pay A. C. B. in full. Our expectation is that the charge will make a good showing financially, despite the poor industrial conditions at Randleman. The mill has stood there practically all of the year. Here, again, the charge instructed unanimously for the return of Pastor Williams.

Randolph Charge

October 12, Sunday.—We enjoyed this day with the people of this charge, worshiping with them in two services; first, at Shiloh in the morning, and at Gray's Chapel in the afternoon. We arrived at the first appointment in time for a part of the Sunday School. The school seems to be well organized, and in a good working spirit. There is a live C. E. Society at this church, also. Both the Sunday School and the society have paid their allotments to the Young People's Work. The attendance at the 11 o'clock service was good, and the attention very helpful.

As we drove up to Gray's Chapel, we faced a large and well-made marker, bearing the inscription, "Gray's Chapel Methodist Protestant Church." The thousands of people that pass over that highway will see this marker—they can't miss it—and they will commend the church for putting it there. We wish also, to add here our hearty commendation. All of our churches should be thus marked. The attendance at this service was good, and a very earnest interest prevcailed in the service. We were pleased to receive from the Sunday School their allotment fo $3.00 to the Young People's Work. The finances on this charge, as elsewhere, are in arrears, but our conferences with the people gave us hope. We believe that they will bestir themselves to send a good report to conference. And of course the pastor will be at the forefront in all of these efforts. We enjoyed our visit to the charge, and regretted that Brother Garner, the pastor, could not be with us, though his absence was entirely justified. He was keeping an appointment to help in a special meeting. Our associations with pastors and people at all places included in this report were most agreeable to us, and we wish to express our appreciation for courtesy and kindness received.

Still More Gleanings That Gladden

"I think West End will pay all claims in full."—Brother Burns, West End Church, Greensboro.

"Pastor is paid in full at this church. Claims will be."—T. S. Coble, Haw River church.

"The stewards are working hard to bring up deficits."—Rev. H. W. Maier.

"Work has been started toward the construction of the Sunday School rooms, and we hope that the program may move steadily forward until we have adequate quarters for our large and growing Sunday School."—Mae Patterson, reporter Friendship church, Mt. Hermon charge.

"The people of the charge are putting forth a heroic effort for the best report possible. The Christian Endeavor at Lineberry is still going strong. They raised their allotment for Young People's Work last night by a single collection."—Rev. W. D. Reed.

"First church Thomasville will send check Monday (October 20) in full for budgets."—Rev. T. G. Madison.

"Have just closed a splendid revival at Lebanon, with 30 conversions and 17 accessions, and others yet to join."—Rev. Edw. Suits.

"It is our purpose to make Shiloh charge an honor roll charge; we are headed strong in that direction, and feel confident of success."—Rev. R. S. Troxler.

Gleanings that gladden do us good. Come on with more, brethren, and still more!

These Two Things Do

Just two more Sundays, and then conference! These two things do: Pray daily for God's rich blessings upon our closing efforts; work daily, that nothing be left undone, that must be done, if God answers our prayers. There are encouraging signs, as we approach the close, and most gratifying results will follow, if we are zealous during these remaining weeks.

Appointments

October 22.—Lincolnton, in quarterly conference.

October 23.—North Davidson, in quarterly conference.

October 23.—English street, in quarterly conference. Hour, 7:30 P. M.

October 24.—Meeting with Boundary Committee.

October 24.—Asheboro, in quarterly conference.

October 25.—Orange, in quarterly conference.

October 28.—Dr. T. M. Johnson will substitute for me in quarterly conference on Greensville charge.

October 28.—Meeting with special committee on HERALD.

October 29.—Lebanon church in quarterly conference.

October 30.—Meeting with trustees of Children's Home.

November 5.—Annual Conference.

Report on visit to Why Not and Shiloh charges will have to go over until next week.

My work is so full during the week that I am not making any more Sunday appointments.

"Pray without ceasing— in labours more abundant."

Fraternally yours,

October 20, 1930. S. W. TAYLOR.

Why the Sermon?

from his audience, and affirmed that unless the discourse of the preacher made his hearers seriously minded with reference to the problems of existence and conduct, both the message and the speaker himself were void of vitality. He used to say to his audience, 'If you have time to praise me I speak to no purpose.' "

To attend his lecture was likened by Epictetus to a visit to a surgery:

"You are not to go out of it with pleasure but with pain; for you come there not in health, but one of you has a dislocated shoulder, another an abscess, a third a fistula, a fourth a headache. And am I to sit uttering pretty, trifling thoughts and little excalmations, that when you have praised me you may each go away with hte same dislocated shoulder, the same aching head, the same fistula and the same abscess that you brought."

This bit of Pagan philosophy is entirely good Christian wisdom. Not the tickling of the ear nor the pleasing of the fancy is the great aim of the preacher. By means of the sermon he is to prick the conscience, stir the moral sense, arouse to the consciousness of sin, all of which is to lead to such repentance as will result in moral and spiritual renewal.

Conference was in its closing session. Rosebury was read out "Unsupplied." Mr. Samson was greatly disappointed, and so were the people of Rosebury, to have to come down from the best preacher in the Conference to no preacher at all. But the occurrence set them to thinking and thinking brought them to action. They soon had a parsonage built and since then have had some real class A preachers.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE BREAD MAKER

Milly took the bread out of the oven with an unresponsive face.

That the loaves were light and flaky and baked to a golden brown brought her small comfort. Her bread was always a success anyway.

The Missionary Circle was meeting with Aunt Fannie this afternoon, and oh, how Milly longed to do something. But she could not sing, or pray or talk. All she could do was to sit tongue-tied in their midst. What use was there for her to attend? She did not believe she would.

Milly lived with her aunt, for her mother was dead, and because of Aunt Fannie's delicate health most of the housekeeping fell to her. She never took any special credit to herself, for the beautiful way in which she kept house. Instead she daily lamented her inability to do public work.

Just at the moment the door-bell rang, and Milly heard Aunt Fannie speak to someone in the hall.

The next thing she knew there was a lady standing in her bright clean kitchen. It was Mrs. Maxwell, the president of the Missionary Circle.

Aunt Fannie turned to Milly.

''I've brought Mrs. Maxwell into the kitchen, dear,'' she said. ''It is too cold for her to take off her rubbers on the porch.''

The next moment Mrs. Maxwell's rubbers were toasting by the kitchen fire. And she was smiling across at Milly in her neat print dress.

Aunt Fannie had gone to the door to welcome another caller.

''What wonderful bread!'' said Mrs. Maxwell suddenly. ''Did you bake it?''

Milly nodded.

''Yes, I make all the bread for Aunt Fannie, and in addition to that this week I've made four pans of rolls and seven pies.''

''That's a fine record,'' she said. ''I know of nothing so splendid as home cooked foods. Everything else is insignificant compared to it. So much depends upon what we eat—if the quality is poor we lose health and strength, and ability to do our work. If it is good we are fortified for anything.''

Milly was staring at her.

''I was just thinking before you came in, the little I really could do,'' she said solemnly.

She paused.

''I've always wanted to do things for the Lord,'' she added. ''But I haven't any singing voice and I'm too bashful to speak or pray in public. I'm just a failure.''

She paused again and there were tears in her eyes.

Mrs. Maxwell nodded in the direction of the light crusty loaves.

''You call yourself a failure when you can make bread like that?'' she said.

She was silent a moment.

''One of the sweetest pictures in the history of our Lord is that one of the little homes in Bethany, where Mary and Martha lived with their brother Lazarus.''

She spoke the words softly.

She paused again.

''It has always been such an inspiration to me,'' she went on, ''to read about that home in Bethany. It has helped me to keep my own up to the standard.''

She was silent for a moment again.

''I have thought many times,'' she added, ''that the highest type of Christian service does not consist in singing songs or praying, or in much speaking. To me the best service is that which lends itself to the home. Clean, well-swept rooms, the preparation of nourishing meals, and the baking of bread such as yours. In my opinion this service counts more than the other.''

Milly was staring at her again.

''Oh, how you comfort me,'' she said. ''I never once thought that there was any religion in the things I did. I've deemed myself the most commonplace and ordinary girl in the world.''

Mrs. Maxwell's smile was gravely sweet.

''A girl that can bake bread as you do, is out of the ordinary altogether,'' she replied.

She laid a gentle hand on the young shoulder.

''At our next Missionary meeting I want you to read a paper on the religion of commonplace tasks. Will you?''

Milly's eyes filled with sudden tears.

''If you think I can,'' she replied, ''I will try.''—Selected.

NOTICE TO PASTORS

I dislike to call public attention to it, but I have failed to get the names of delegates from the following charges: Bess Chapel, Chase City, Midway-Shady Grove, Pageland, Randolph, Roseneath. I can not complete my roll until these are received. Please send them in.

Report blanks were mailed out last week. If any pastor has failed to get his, please let me know and others will be sent.

Please send in your Journal money. Thanks.

CAMPAIGN OF MILLIONAIRES

Senators on the Investigation Committee brought out the fact that the wet association, which is making efforts to control the public schools, buy up the rural press, purchase or subsidize authors and writers, and stage at high cost meetings which were supposed to be spontaneous popular gatherings, was not supported by the general public, but that the largest portion of its income was derived directly from seven multi-millionaires, with 53 other millionaires substantially contributing to the campaign thus being waged against the Eighteenth Amendment.—E. H. Cherrington.

HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

We are giving this report as a matter of information, and with the hope that it may be worth something as a stimulus. We have taken the amounts just as they appear in the Journal, anl have figured on the membership basis with which the year 1928-29 was started, and not the gain in members for that year. The membership payment of some charges is swelled because of building projects; others, because of outside contributions. In the latter case, the payments, as given here, would not accurately represent membership payments. But there are only a few of such charges. In the main, this report may be relied upon as actual membership payments.

The average membership payment for the conference last year is $9.61.

P. S.—Payments for a few charges could not be given, because the total amounts raised were not given in the Journal. –S. W. T.

UNBELIEF

In all the history of the Christian church unbelief has been one of the greatest hindrances to her progress. It has been one of the most unsurmountable obstacles in the path of her achievements.

When Jesus Christ was on the earth He said, He could not do many mighty works on account of unbelief. If we were to trace unbelief back to its origin, we would find ourselves going back to the Garden of Eden. If Father Adam and Mother Eve had believed God's word they had not sinned.

God has never given man any cause for his unbelief. Yet it seems that those who believe God's word have always been in the minority. Men have ever been more willing and ready to believe in human philosophy than to believe in the Creator and Redeemer of the world.

It will be the marvel of eternity what stuff men believe who doubt God's word. Back in the early history of the world there were many false theories in regard to how the world or earth came into existence.

One theory was that it hatched out of an egg. And another that it was a hump on a turtle's back. Of course, such theories have long since been abandoned by people of intelligence. But there are theories being taught today that place the formation of the earth millions of years beyond the realms of the Bible, and make man the culmination of a selfish, merciless struggle that began in the slime of the ocean a billion years ago. It is the humble opinion of the writer that the Christian church is facing the most gigantic problem today in all history, that the retaining the integrity of the Bible. The books of atheist and infidels are being brought into every department of our public schools, and theories that are in direct conflict with the Holy Scriptures are being taught even in the lower grades. Certain text books advance theories relative to the formation of rocks, of which scientists tell us some of these rocks have been million of years in forming. There are some facts that disprove these theories. For instance, if the rocks were formed as science tells us the seams in all rocks would run horizontal. Anyone who has observed the seams in rocks knows there are as many if not more rocks where seams run perpendicular, and probably as many whole seams run slanting to different angles. This proves that they were not formed by a slow and gradual process, covering millions of years as science teaches.

We believe the earth was created by the Great Creator as taught in the Bible, and that all creatures including man, were created by Him. The writer calls your attention to a few paragraphs found in text books used in some of our public high schools, which he thinks conflict with the Holy Scriptures.

"First from real things in nature."

"Through the Bible of the Jews, the old testament, we today are influenced by the beliefs and traditions of Egypt and Chaldea." Page 375.

The author would have us to believe that the writers of the old testament got their conception of God from these ancient heathen nations, rather than by revelation from God Himself. On Page 233, we find these words: "It is not at all unlikely that men are the descendants from ancestors who were much lower than the lowest savage today." Page 358. "We do not know anything certain about the first men; they have left no records." Page 177. "Men appeared on the earth about two or three hundred thousand years ago." Moon's Biology, Page 353. "Scientists do now agree that both man and the apes are the descendants from a common ancestor from which both lines have developed." Next on Page 258, "So when studying the brain of the fish do not forget that it contained the possibilities for great advance, it is along this line that the highest vertebrate development has been attained." On Page 259: "Thus from the air bladder of a fish, the lung of a bird or a man may trace its origin." Now turn to Page 497, and you will find these words: "The human animal is not as yet completely adapted to his erect position. This makes special care necessary to achieve a healthful posture in walking and sitting. If we still walked on allfours the shoulders would be pushed back by weight. Now we reverse the process and carry weights on them."

The writer has often heard ministers express themselves as being puzzled because they can not have great revivals like they did years ago. If they would get at the bottom of the trouble, I believe they would find that it is because the rising generation are being filled with unbelief by the teaching of theories that deny the story of Divine creation, and remove God so far away that He becomes a mere myth.

I believe our preachers are responsible to a great extent for this condition. If I understand anything about a preacher's duty, he is to be a watchman on the walls of Zion to warn the people of any approaching danger. In this particular they have failed to a great extent. We have allowed the enemy to plant his artillery right in our schools and colleges and he is hurling his poison bombs of unbelief in every direction.

We believe it to be the duty of every minister and every Christian to raise his or her voice against the teaching of anything that conflicts wth the Holy Bible.

C. A. LEWALLEN.

NOTICE, PASTORS

Mrs. Taylor, as Treasurer of the North Carolina Branch of the Women's Missionary Work, explained through the HERALD of last week what monies passing through her hands are eligible as credits on the G. C. B. I am simply reiterating here, for emphasis, what she has already said.

This is it: All money raised by the women, and not designated for North Carolina interests, may be credited to the G. C. B. of the local church.

Receipts for this money are always sent by Mrs. Taylor to the Auxiliary Treasurers. If pastors will get the amounts from these receipts, and take credit for that, their reports will be accurate, and will agree, in every case, with the report given by Mrs. Taylor to Dr. Brown.

Now this: The women have another budget, designated, "NORTH CAROLINA BUDGET," all of which is used in North Carolina. One pastor writes today to know if this counts on the budget of the local church. Answer—IT DOES NOT.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By J. T. BOWMAN

Pres. of High Point College C. E. Society

(Consecration Meeting)

NOV. 2: WHY SUPPORT THE 18th AMENDMENT? HOW?

Scripture Text -Proverbs 20:1; 23:29-32

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Obey the Law. Romans 13:1-5.

Tuesday—Evils of Liquor. Romans 13:10-14.

Wednesday—Save the Weak. Romans 14:19-23.

Thursday—Bind Satanic Influences. Revelations 20:1-3.

Friday—Help Light Conquer Darkness. 2 Cor. 6:14-18.

Saturday—Enforcing Policies. 2 Chron. 17:1-6.

Suggestions to the Leader

In this meeting there are two questions to be answered; a "why" question and a "how" question. One reason why is because it is the law and as long as it is the law we are traitors not to support it. The country has been benefited by it and we should keep a good law. It makes life safer for the coming generation. "How" open a new field for thought. We all have some influence and should use it by voting for "dry" officers, praising good officials and condemning bad ones.

Christian Endeavor has helped place the Eighteenth Amendment to our Constitution upon the statute books of our country. The work begun and so capably carried on must not be permitted to lag now. We should earnestly strive to carry on the great program of emancipation so nobly begun, until the whole world is freed from the bondage of strong drink. "Eternal vigilance" is the price of this liberty.

Suitable songs: "America," "No Compromise," "As A Volunteer," "The Victory May Depend on You," "Rescue the Perishing," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" and "America the Beautiful."

Discuss the Following

1. My duty to obey the constitution. My safety and happiness are due to the protection provided by it.
2. Tell of some of the great temperance reformers of the past.
3. What do you regard as the most essential weapon for use in temperance cause or conquest today?
4. Does the fact that prohibition is difficult to achieve, argue for its repeal?
5. Name some blessings of prohibition.

Quotations

What do we need to make America Christian? Christ tells us in two great phrases, "The power of the Holy Spirit" and the "Uttermost parts of the earth." First the power and then "go with it."

Poetry

LEAD ON

O Jesus, Prince of life and truth,
  Beneath Thy banner bright
We dedicate our strength of youth
  To battle for the right.
We give our love with glad intent
  To serve the world and Thee,
To die, to suffer and be spent,
  To set our brother free.

In service ranks with fearless tread,
  O Captain of us all,
Thy glory on our banners shed,
  We answer to Thy call;
And where the fiercest battles press
  Against the hosts of sin,
To rescue those in dire distress
  We gladly enter in.

NOTICE TO PASTORS AND AUXILIARY TREASURERS

In making up your report for conference, please remember that nothing that goes for North Carolina interests counts on your general conference budget. Most of the auxiliary treasurers when sending in money, send some on both budgets and they are given a receipt for the total amount, but in making up your conference report the N. C. credits must be deducted.

The Branch Treasurer makes her report to the Conference Treasurer and we are all very anxious that pastors' reports and Branch Treasurers' reports agree.

Thank you for your help.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

SPIRITUAL LIFE DEPARTMENT OF THE WOMEN'S WORK

The Missionary Prayer Calendar for this year asks this:

Let us pray for the salvation of the nations, "That they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent."

During October we are asked to unite in special prayers for Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Soderbom, in Kalgan, China, and for Rev. and Mrs. Paul M. Cassen, of Dhulia, India. May we think often of these, our own missionaries, our representatives on the foreign fields, when we pray. Then, too, let us pray that more missionaries be called, for the leaders are so few.

This department is very vital to the life of the organization. It is an opportunity for us to render service to advance the cause of Christianity; for each one of us there is a part to do in the divine work. It is a great privilege you have—you Secretary of Spiritual Life—so will you give the best in you to create a better spiritual life in your home auxiliary? There is an opportunity we have—let's use it, in service for others.

Are you putting on a program each month in your society for your own members, in which you stress the spiritual life? Good material for such programs can always be had from "The Missionary Record," in Mrs. J. W. Shell's department of Spiritual Life, as well as from any other good religious paper. Then, too, out of our experiences many suggestions may come, for back of it all there must be a motive to help in the promotion of greater devotion and reverence. There is a certain standard by which we must be guided. That standard is Christ Himself. May we all stress the great need of more prayer. The home itself must be the starting point; it is there the greatest influence is felt. Back to the family altar is what we need! There are some homes with it, but more without. We may feel that our efforts have been in vain, have not counted for much, but whatever we do DOES COUNT—every word or deed, it has its influence, and if it could be traced we might be amazed at its far-reaching effect.

This department is very essential, so let's do our best to make it felt for Christ. Our work and prayers united can be a mighty force. Let none say she cannot make it count, or it does not matter whether her own local auxiliary carries on this Spiritual Life department work, or gives any report of it from her church. It DOES COUNT, for YOUR work is just as necessary as any other secretary's work to make the whole a power for God. There is much encouragement for us all in this story from "The Christian Herald," entitled: "Where Is the Piccolo?"

"Let no one dare to say that he is insignificant in God's vast scheme of things. Remember the story of Sir Michael Costa, who was rehearsing a great musical performance, with West Forsyth.—May I say that we had a very pleasant and profitable day last Sunday? First, we worshiped with the Baltimore congregation (Yadkin county) at the morning service. The pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, delivered an inspiring sermon, which was well received by a large and attentive audience.

At this church they have a large, well trained choir, who sang very appropriate songs, some of them new to us.

After church we enjoyed the kind hospitality of Mrs. Sandford Doub and daughters in their splendid home, where we ate a delicious dinner, and then hurried on to Stony Knoll church, where the pastor had charge of a funeral, that of a lad 14 years old, and a member of this church. The boy left a sweet consolation, saying he was ready to go.

At both churches we were warmly welcomed by friends of long acquaintance, also by numbers of new ones. Truly we were made to feel that we were members of one large family of God's own children, striving to follow in His footsteps.

MRS. ROBERT P. PETREE.

South Lexington Charge.—Our work is moving along very well. We held our fall revival meeting beginning on the first Sunday in this month. Rev. D. I. Garner, pastor of Randalph charge, did the preaching during the entire meeting. There were four conversions and at the close of the meeting we received five new members, part of them by letter. Last Sunday morning we received three more, making a total of eight. Bro. Garner's preaching was of a high order, and was informing, inspiring and uplifting. Everybody seemed to enjoy his preaching and were pleased to have him among them during the meeting. We were very glad to have Rev. C. B. Way, of West Forsyth charge, present on Friday night.

We held our fourth quarterly conference on Tuesday, October 14th, at Mount Carmel church. Both churches were well represented. Reports of the work were very good, but finances were a little behind. We are hopeful that all claims will be paid before the meeting of the Annual Conference.

South Lexington church raised their apportionment, $5.00, for the young people's work of our Annual Conference. Mount Carmel will pay this claim before Conference.

We had a large congregation at Mount Carmel church last Sunday afternoon for their Rally Day program. The children were well trained for the program and rendered their parts in a splendid manner.

Miss Beautus Waitman, who is reporter for Mount Catmel church, and president of the Woman's Auxiliary, has gone to Stokes county to begin her work as teacher in a school in that county. We will miss her work in our church and women's activities.

We regret to report the serious illness of Mrs. J. C. Russell, who has been ill for the past two months. Her condition became worse last Sunday night. She is one of our faithful members at South Lexington church, and we hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mount Carmel church gave a supper last Saturday night for the benefit of the new church building fund. A large crowd was present and a nice sum was realized from the proceeds of the occasion.

The following members of the charge have our thanks for appropriate gifts for our dining table, which were greatly appreciated: Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hedrick, Mr. and Mrs. Phonse Bean, Mr. and Mrs. John Swicegood, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Swicegood, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Forshee, and others.

We are hoping to close the Conference year with a good report.

C. G. ISLEY, Pastor.

◆

Democrat Circuit.—Since our last writing we have established a good Sunday school at Mountain Valley. When we first entered the work last spring this particular church was in a bad condition, but it is now making fair progress. Pleasant Gap, also, is coming along nicely. The fourth quarterly conference was held October 19. The stewards were urged to press forward in a greater effort to collect the Conference budget, in order that the pastor and delegate, Brother Harris Dillingham, may be able to make a satisfactory report for the Conference year.

J. ADRIAN THOMPSON.

Weaverville Circuit.—Since the resignation of the pastor last July we have had a variety of preachers. We first had our president with us, and we all enjoyed his services very much. We next had our good friend, Rev. J S. Williams, from Asheville, to preach for us several times. Mr. Casto has filled the pulpit a number of times, and it has been the writer's privilege to conduct several services for this circuit. We have enlisted the services of the Ministerial Band (from the college) who have endeared themselves to us by their good work.

The fourthquarterly conference was held Tuesday night, October 14, by Mr. Casto. The Sunday school superintendents all reported good Sunday schools and prayer services. The Weaverville Christian Endeavor Society is gradually improving and has paid its allotment to the young people's work. All the Sunday schools have paid their young people's assessment.

A special drive is now on to collect the budget so that Mr. Casto and Brother Fulton Roberts, the delegate, may have a good report to make at Conference.

J. ADRIAN THOMPSON, Reporter.

◆

Mt. Carmel, South Lexington Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference was held here Tuesday night, October 14, with a large attendance. It was unanimously voted by all church members present for Rev. C. G. Isley to return.

The Ladies' Auxiliary has been very successful during the summer months. They put on a supper Saturday night, October 18, that proved successful, due to weather conditions.

Mr. Isley set aside the regular preaching hour Sunday evening, October 19, for Rally Day. The program showed that both children and Supt. H. V. Swicegood had taken a great interest in preparing the program. Mr. Isley gave an interesting and helpful talk to the children and tried to impress upon them the little things in life are what count.

ZULA FRITTS, Reporter.

North Davidson Charge.—Yesterday was ideal. We filled the appointment at Spring Hill. Sunday school was a little off for some reason, though interest was good. By time for the preaching service the congregation was good. The officers for the new year were elected. The doors of the church were opened for the reception of new members. Mr. Henry Byerly, of Zion Reformed church, presented his letter. He was accepted to our communion and fellowship. Bro. Byerly is one of our very best citizens, a good churchman and a teacher of our men's senior Bible class. A good and useful man. We welcome him to our church. This makes 47 members added. Spring Hill has a great future, being located in the suburbs of Mechanicsville. It has about 33 acres of land suitable for building lots. It will soon be one of our town churches. When seated and Sunday school rooms are finished it will be one of our prettiest auditoriums. It is modernly heated and electrically lighted. Spring Hill's asset is its large number of boys and girls.

When service was over the pastor came out to his auto and found that dozens of pounders had fallen in on the old iron horse and made it groan beneath a heavy load of good things to eat. The pastor and his family will enjoy these good eats for days to come. Some of the varieties will be satisfying our appetites for months to come. I cannot take space to mention names of donors or to name articles given, but they were just the things we needed for table and pantry. It will greatly lighten our grocery bill and we are profoundly grateful to these good people. The Lord will reward them and help us to be of service to them.

We are all busy winding up a very successful year for our Master.

The Lord continue His blessings upon us.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

West Forsyth.—We had large congregations at all three of the services at Pleasant Hill church last Sunday. It was the beginning of the annual revival services. The pastor preached at the morning and afternoon services. At the morning service the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered and an unusually large number of people, both young and old, partook of the elements. After the close of the service a meeting of the church membership was held and church officers elected for the coming year. Dinner was served during the noon hour and the afternoon service began at 2 o'clock. The Thomasville Male Chorus, number eleven men, was scheduled to sing at this service. They went to the wrong church and were consequently delayed in reaching our church. They arrived after the service had been closed, but rendered their program, the congregation reassembling for the music.

Rev. C. G. Isley, pastor of South Lexington charge, arrived late in the afternoon and preached his first sermon Sunday night. Two selections of special music were rendered at this service. The Girls' Chorus of our church rendered a selection and the Hunter Quartette, three of the singers being members of our church, also sang. Bro. Isley seemed at his best in the delivery of the sermon, the theme of which was, "Some Things a Christian Should Know." First, that he is a Christian; second, that he should know the Bible; and third, that he should know how to pray. We are having our services at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock at night. The people were well pleased with the first sermon of Bro. Isley, and I believe we are going to have a good meeting.

Bro. Clinton Sprinkle, who spent seven weeks in a Winston-Salem hospital, returned home last week and is getting along fine. He has been able to be up in a rolling chair part of the time.

The pastor and family have been the recipients of a number of useful gifts and kindnesses rendered by the people of this charge lately. We thank Bro. Emory Long for his kindness in sawing a supply of stovewood for us. Willie Adams and J. H. Long assisted in this work. Mrs. C. G. Hunter and Mrs. J. F. Hunter made the pastor's wife glad when each of them gave cakes for the dining table. Mrs. J. L. Marshall, of Tabernacle church, has our thanks for an appropriate donation. We enjoyed a visit and supper in this home last week. We thank Mrs. Anderson, wife of Dr. Anderson of Mocksville, for the gift of money. Mrs. A. R. Long and Mrs. Pearson Sprinkle were among the donors. We thank all of these people for the gifts.

The pastor and family had as their guests last Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Jim Patterson and son, Paul, and Miss Bessie Durham, of Stony Knoll church; Prof Carl M. Felts, principal of the school here, and Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington. The two last named were guests for supper.

We will meet our last appointment for this Conference year at Harmony Grove church next Sunday morning. The Lord's Supper will be administered in connection with the service. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Asheboro.—A week ago yesterday three new members were received by letter: Mr. Charles Hoover coming from the Denton M. P. church, Mrs. J. E. McDowell from the Mount Shepherd M. E. Church, South, and Mrs. Jesse Lassiter from Shiloh M. P. church, Randolph Circuit. We have one more church letter and hope to dispose of that next Sunday.

Our fourth quarterly conference will convene Friday evening of this wek at 7:30 and President Taylor is to be here to preside. We are finishing up a fairly good year, but not as good as could be desired. If any other preacher has his eyes on Asheboro, thinking if he had this place all would be smooth sailing with no problems, he is very much mistaken, and yet the redeeming feature about it is it is as good or better than almost any other place in the Conference in so far as I am able to judge. We have some people here who love the church dearly and are always present and, like every other place, we have some who seldom ever come. But while the church is not perfect, it has not had perfect pastoral supply either for the past five years.

Mrs. C. F. Smith, who was sick for a year or more, has been at church the past two Sunday mornings. Miss Mary Whiteley, who has been sick for many months, can walk a little in the house by the assistance of someone. During her long illness she has manifested remarkable patience. We are hoping she will yet get well.

Mrs. J. S. Ridge, who has spent a great deal of time in hospitals for the past several years, is expected to undergo a major operation in the High Point Hospital today.

Mrs. M. L. Gray, who has been sick for several weeks, is somewhat better, though still confined to the house.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Why Not Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference was held last Saturday at Flag Springs with President Taylor in the chair. The conference was well attended.

Seagrove reported all claims paid in full. Fairgrove and Love Joy A. C. B. in full; New Hope expects to pay all claims.

Bro. Thomas Beane was elected alternate delegate to Annual Conference.

WM. H. NEESE.

Porter.—Our reports have been few this year. However, we have been making some progress. The Sunday school is increasing both in attendance and interest. The C. E. Society meets regularly with good attendance.

Our pastor, Bro. Hill, has been faithful, as usual, this year. Each time he came he has brought us messages that were very helpful. We deeply regret that he is leaving us. Both he and Mrs. Hill have endeared themselves to us all; they have worked with us faithfully for four years and it is with sad hearts we see them go. They have meant so much to the church and community. But our prayers will go with them wherever they go, and they will always have a warm welcome back in our midst.

Our financial report is not what we would like to see. However, we are are expecting to pay pastor's salary in full. Preaching service next Sunday at 11 o'clock; this will be Bro. Hill's last appointment.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MRS. W. T. BRASWELL.

Zoar, Mecklenburg Charge. We are always glad to read the letters from other churches and the progress they are making.

Brother Joyner delivered a soul-stirring sermon yesterday at 11 o'clock. We also had the Lord's Supper administered.

Conference is drawing near and we are far behind financially, but we hope every effort may be put forth that our pastor may go up with a good report to Conference. Mr. Joyner has been very faithful; he hasn't missed an appointment during the year. We are pleased with Mr. Joyner and his family and wish for his return another year. We were glad to have Brother Joyner, his wife and little girl in our home Saturday night.

The. ladies of Zoar are planning to send a box to the Children's Home.

With best wishes. REPORTER.

Burlington, First Church.—The Senior C. E. Society held its monthly business meeting Monday evening, September 29th, at the home of Margaret and Frances Hinshaw with Grace Thompson and Margaret Hinshaw joint hostesses.

The meeting opened by singing two familiar choruses, "Into My Heart" and "Lord, Keep Me Shining for Thee." Scripture, first 12 verses of the fifth chapter of St. Matthew, was read by the president, Tula Paul, followed by sentence prayers and closing with the Lord's prayer.

The regular business was transacted, after which followed the new business. The society decided to attend, in a body, the Northern District Convention to be held in Greensboro, Sunday, October 5th.

The treasurer gave report on profit made by the sale of Passion Play tickets. The society was very much pleased with the results.

The society then adjourned, after which the hostesses invited those present to follow them. They were led to a grove, a small distance from the house, where a big bon-fire was burning, over which wienies and marshmallows were roasted. A most enjoyable evening was spent.

Summing up the work of the year or rather of the three years that have constituted the present pastorate the following facts show something of the work done and the progress made: One hundred and twenty-nine members have been added to the church roll, or an average of 43 per year; the first two years of the present pastorate $23,887 was raised for all purposes, or more than $2,500 per year more than for the best year previous; a new church site purchased at the price of $9,000, about two-thirds of which has been paid. The pastor reports more than 2,700 pastoral calls made and that he has conducted or assisted in 67 funerals during the three years. These facts show progress. More members on an average received, more money raised, and this all during this priod of business depression and great falling away from the churches generally. When God can bless and use His people to accomplish such results, the church and pastor should not be discouraged. L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Oak Grove.—The Oak Grove now at hand is the place where I visited a school two weeks ago. I now again refer to it, feeling that I had a peculiar experience when I spoke to that school.

I left that place with the impress that I could be able to speak to a school a half hour, very deliberately without the use of notes. I spoke for a half hour in the forenoon, and then same right soon in the afternoon—and I had liberty of speech from first to last.

Near 60 years ago a phrenologist told me that I could not speak well, but "you can write better than you can speak."

It is a fact that I can writter easier than I can speak. However, since that occasion, I'm praying that I may soon be able to speak as "freely" as I can write—and with a more lively impulse.

I feel (as it now seems,) wonderfully stirred up since that occasion. That occasion was my first effort since last spring, and I felt dull just before I went into that ancient mountain schoolhouse, but when I came out I felt like I had started up with a new life. Last Sunday I went to the Children's Home on the fastest "round" traveling trip that I have ever made. I mean "fastest" while on the hard surface road, and really my visit to the Home has encouraged me to venture on to this casual article. However, again, I had occasion to be in company with a small group of little tender-looking girls and heard them, with the matron, sing some of their peculiar soft songs. By hearing their sacred voices I felt very much stirred up and became excited to recite a peculiar speech that the smallest boy at a school-closing spoke about 70 years ago. I now try to give the words and the editor will please throw on the "Grace."

"Little Jack Horner
Sat in the corner,
Eating a Christmas pie,
He put in his thumb
And pulled out a plum,
Saying, What a brave boy am I."

Later I was over, up in the boys' house and home, and while telling a group of boys, in company with the superintendent of the farm (and of their home) some lively stories that I learned by some of our very able leaders and preachers, the call was sent up that the "fast car" and company was ready for the trip back to King. The hasty invitation was to come again soon, and there would be a hearing by all the home children, boys and girls, in one "school."

The above is rather my most hasty preamble, up to the present.

W. F. GRABS.

Fairview.—We are finishing a very successful year at Fairview church. At last Annual Conference this church was detached from Glen Raven and made a station, and we were assigned as pastor; we were gladly received and have had a happy year with a good church and a good people. We have had a good special meeting, with Bro. Gerringer as our help. He did good preaching; six new members; this is Bro. Gerringer's old home church, and he was gladly received. We have organized a Ladies' Aid Society with 28 members and they have done a fine work this year, having paid a good payment on the debt on Sunday school rooms; on new song books for the church, made many visits and done a fine charity work. The pastor's salary has been paid in full, and has been increased for next year, the Ladies' Aid and some individuals having pledged the increase since our fourth quarterly conference was held.

The delegate to Annual Conference, Bro. J. H. Troxler, has been instructd to request the Conference to return the present pastor for another year. We have thoroughly enjoyed this year as pastor. We have been remembered with special gifts from the following: J. H. Troxler, Lewis Troxler, Sam Welch, Monroe Rich, Ernest Summers, George Barber, and W. W. Huffines. (Hope I haven't forgotten anyone.)

This church has raised nearly all the Annual Conference budget, and will pay something on specials, we believe. There has been paid this year on the debt on Sunday school rooms more than twice the amount of the pastor's salary. We believe in Fairview and are hopeful that she will return to her former strength and influence, and, in fact, we believe this will become a great church.

O. B. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Tabernacle, West Forsyth.—Rev. C. B. Way filled his last appointment last Sunday for this year. Text: Isaiah 52:1—"Awake, Awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments." This was a splendid sermon, a sermon that must have gone to the hearts of the members and visitors as well; for after church was over it was found that the stewards handed in the full amount due; everything cleared up to date, and what is still better, voted pastor's salary to be increased next year. Who can beat it? God grant His richest and most bountiful blessings upon the faithful stewards of Tabernacle church. They have worked faithfully; many times they have felt discouraged and down-hearted, but they have the true spirit of Christ in their hearts, and looking ever to Him they have won success; and stand ready to start anew with a clean sheet for the new Conference year, and sincere desire for the return of the present pastor.

MRS. R. P. PETREE.

Gibsonville Church.—Last Sunday we were delighted to have little George Ballinger of the Children's Home at High Point worship with us in the morning services. The Adult Bible class is helping to support little George and we hope he can be with us again soon.

On last Sunday morning the superintendent and treasurer for Sunday school were elected for the ensuing year. Mr. F. R. Owen was re-elected superintendent, Mr. Glenn Evans elected treasurer with Samuel Whitsell assistant treasurer.

Mr. J. R. Apple has been elected as delegate to the Annual Conference.

The last quarterly conference will be held on Wednesday night of this week in the church auditorium. All officials are asked to have their reports for the meeting.

A C. E. union social will be held in the "hut" on Friday evening, anyone who is interested in young people is invited to come (if he will bring two doughnuts).

A special program is being planned for Rally Day, which will be given next Sunday morning. Visitors are welcome.

REPORTER.

Eden, Halifax Charge.—We are very sorry to know that one of our most faithful Sunday school girls is ill. Miss Lossie Nevill was taken to Park View Hospital, Rocky Mount, a few days ago for an operation. We are glad, however, that she is feeling as comfortable as could be expected and we sincerely wish for her a speedy recovery. Lossie is not only prompt in attendance, but is always willing to perform such duties as are required of her in any form of church work, often acting as assistant teacher or secretary. She is also president of the Junior Auxiliary.

Our attendance continues very good. We hope no one will stay away on account of cold weather as we have the heaters in and have made arrangements to have fires made every Sunday morning in time to have the church warm before time for Sunday school and preaching services. Mr. J. W. Hardee has given some wood and Mr. C. B. Keeter has volunteered to haul the wood to the church.

Last spring it was suggested that as many members as would do so give 100 pounds of seed cotton out of this year's crop. Mr. Z. A. Hardee and Mr. J. J. Burt were appointed receivers, and they report that several have offered to pay the price of the cotton. This is very acceptable and greatly appreciated. We hope to get at least a bale of cotton in the next few days. We hope those who have not responded will do so at once, as the proceeds will be applied on our Conference budgets and Annual Conference is not far distant.

The first Sunday in November is the time for the election of officers for the coming Conference year. Mrs. Z. A. Hardee, Miss Winnie Burt and Mr. R. G. Willey have been appointed as the nominating committee.

Our Auxiliary will meet with Miss Winnie Burt on Thursday before the first Sunday in November. The Junior Auxiliary will meet with little Miss Hattie Mae Locke on October 23 at 7:30 p. m.

Our Sunday school is coming on nicely. The men won out in the attendance contest last quarter and we are planning an entertainment for them.

Our pastor, Bro. Fogleman, continues to bring us very wonderful messages. His sermons are uplifting, encouraging and inspiring. We who hear him feel that we are especially blessed in having such a leader. Not only does he preach good sermons. He and his companion are at all times ready to encourage and co-operate with us in any undertaking we may attempt. We appreciate them more and more as they labor with us in the Master's vineyard. May they be richly blessed.

REPORTER.

Shiloh.—President Taylor was with us at Shiloh today and brought us an inspiring message. Shiloh loves Bro. Taylor and looks forward to his visits with great pleasure. He is doing a great work as he travels up and down this North Carolina Conference, giving new vision and inspiration to all who hear him.

Shiloh is winding up this year's work, which has been one of the best years in her history. We are very hopeful, yea, almost sure, that every claim will be paid in full when Bro. Troxler goes to Conference.

Helen, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Leonard, is recovering nicely from an operation for appendicitis which took place last Wednesday.

Mrs. Til Moseley has not been able to attend church for several months. We hope she may yet come back to Shiloh, but pray that God's grace may sustain her in her hours of suffering.

Everyone is urged to attend the Thank-Offering service on the fourth Sunday night, which is next Sunday night. The program will be given by the Woman's Missionary Society.

Homer Sink, son of Mr. R. B. Sink, has about recovered from a tonsil operation. His tonsils were in a very bad condition, and we are hoping Homer will now find relief from those severe attacks of tonsilitis.

Here's hoping that every church in our Conference will successfully finish this year's work for the Master.

MRS. WILEY SHOAF, Reporter.

Henderson.—At the morning worship hour last Sunday Rev. R. A. Hunter brought us a splendid message on "Co-operation" in the church, showing forcefully how the work of the church is dependent upon its every member for their support. In conclusion a gift of $50.00 for the Methodist Protestant Herald was asked for, and the sum of $3.50 was soon collected by the ushers. An opportunity was asked for, and the sum of $53.50 was the church also. Four new members were received. Master Lawrence McArle Crews and Master Glenn Thomas Hart were received by baptism, while Messrs. R. D. Starkey and H. B. Harris were received by letter. We are very thankful for these persons and trust that as a church we may help and serve them as brothers all in Christ Jesus.

Mr. Jasper Hicks, chairman of the nominating committee, for the election of church officials and Sunday school superintendent, read the report. Motion was made and carried to accept the report as presented and a short installation service will be held next Sunday morning, October 26th, at the eleven o'clock services.

October 5 was a big day with our Sunday school departments. The observance of Rally Day was held and at the Sunday school hour the children of the Primary department gave a most attractive program composed of songs, recitations and dialogues. Promotion certificates were also awarded to the pupils of the various classes. A little souvenir for Rally Day was given each member present and the attendance fell only 16 below our goal of 200 present.

At the eleven o'clock hour Rev. R. A. Hunter preached a sermon especially for young people and children. There was a splendid congregation.

At the evening hour a pageant, "Columbia's Concern for Her Country," was presented by members of the Sunday school and church. This was well attended and much credit is due those taking part and those assisting.

The Philathea class met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Thomas J. Evans on Montgomery street, with Mrs. W. H. Grissom and Mrs. W. E. Wilson as joint hostesses. Mrs. Evans' home was especially attractive with bowls of fall flowers. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Clifton Finch, and Mrs. D. T. Beckham was in charge of the devotionals. Prayer was offered by Rev. R. A. Hunter, the pastor of the church. Reports were heard from the secretary and treasurer. About 18 members were present. Plans were made to operate a booth at the Golden Belt Fair next week. The class voted on electing a new president each month until Miss Cunningham returns. Mrs. Frank Moss was elected president for the month of November.

At the close of the business session, delicious refreshments were served, consisting of sandwiches and hot coffee.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon, September 29th, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Robertson, with Mrs. John Renn and Miss Katie Cook associate hostesses. Mrs. S. R. Watson, president, called the meeting to order. The secretary of temperance, Mrs. E. C. Kittrell, took charge and presented the following program:

Quiet music, played by Mrs. F. R. Harris.
Devotionals, conducted by Mrs. S. R. Harris.
Hymn, "Rescue the Perishing."
Prayer, Rev. R. A. Hunter.

A paper, "The Effects of Alcoholic Drinking Upon the Human Mind and Body," was summarized by Mrs. Clyde Finch.

Mrs. Edison Hicks gave a review, "Some of the effects of Prohibition."

The business period was opened with the roll call by circles. Thirty-three members answered the roll and one visitor was present.

Reports from the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. Reports from the circle leaders were also offered.

The president presented a check to circle No. 1 for securing the most soap wrappers the past month. The Sunchine Circle was also given a check for the splendid attendance at the Thank-Offering service.

The Auxiliary voted to elect Miss Maxine Taylor secretary of the Children's Home, a department of the local Auxiliary.

A copy of resolutions was submitted to the Auxiliary by Mrs. S. R. Harris. They were accepted and voted to be sent to Mrs. W. C. Hammer at Asheboro, N. C.

Mr. Hunter urged all present to attend the Rally Day services to be held at the church Sunday, October 5th.

The meeting closed with a special prayer for the missionaries and world peace offered by Mrs. Finch.

During the social hour delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

There will be a meeting of the board of stewards this, Monday, night, October 20th, at the home of Mr. Clyde L. Finch.

Denton Church.—As the year's work is nearing its close, and having seen no report from our church recently (our reporter seems to be taking a vacation), I am taking the authority to let it be known that we are still persisting with our church program.

Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, is closing a very successful year's work, and he and family have endeared themselves to the people, and we are hoping that they may return to be with us another year.

Yesterday at the regular preaching hour we had a very large crowd, who enjoyed an interesting sermon by our pastor. Prior to the preaching hour, the annual election of officers was dispensed with; the following officers were chosen for the new year:

Stewards: W. E. Hill, D. M. Sexton, C. L. Kearns, P. D. Hamilton, A. R. Morris; trustees: M. C. Cranford, W. E. Hill, C. A. Hoover, C. G. Loftin, W. I. Frank; class leaders: M. C. Cranford and N. V. Johnson; church treasurer: N. V. Johnson; reporter: Mrs. C. L. Kearns; choir leader: J. U. Lanier; assistant choir leader, W. E. Hill; pianist: W. M. Sexton; assistant pianist: Inza Hill.

Our Christian Endeavor Society is on the way to a greater life. Under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Hanner and Mr. Grover L. Angel our society is planning to re-organize, and put on programs that are worth while. Let's all rally to our leaders and help push our society on to a higher plane.

On last Sunday the following special program was enjoyed by a fairly good crowd: Song, "America;" "What Can Christian Endeavor Do to Improve the Character of Our Country's Citizenship?" Arthur L. Lanier. "What Should Be Done With Those Who Come to Our Country for Better Opportunity, But Refuse to Obey Our Laws?" Miss Elizabeth Hanner; duet, "America the Beautiful," Misses Jewel Lanier and Sallie Mae Frank; "What Marks of Good Citizenship Do We Find in the Life of Lincoln?" Mrs. A. L. Hill; "The Meaning of America," W. M. Sexton; closing song, "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

For next Sunday our Christian Endeavor has a special program planned, with special music, so come out and be with us.

Our Baraca class is moving along with renewed interest; we had 25 present yesterday.

At the morning service Sunday we enjoyed our own Denton quartet, composed of the following young men: P. D. Hamilton, John W. Danning, J. Edward Hill, and Colon C. Cranford. At the evening service the Kearns quartet of Caraway sang several selections which were much appreciated; we welcome them again.

We are very sorry that "Grandpa" Hill is confined to his room by illness, and we are hoping he will soon be with us again.

The old people are appreciated in our services, although we are careless at times to tell them so. Let us always be respectful of our aged ones, for we will one day be old and will wish to be respected.

We miss our young people who have gone away to the various colleges. Among those away from our church are: Miss Kate Sexton, High Point College; Mr. Ronald T. Hill, Wake Forest College; Mr. Colon Cranford, High Point High School; Mr. Howard Snider, State College, Raleigh; Miss Blanche Hoover, Davenport College, Lenoir.

Wishing the Herald and its host of readers a prosperous new year, and "Be of good cheer, for we shall reap, if we faint not by the way."

W. M. SEXTON.

Mt. Pleasant, N. Davidson Circuit.—The C. E. Society has at present a total of 35 members and 10 honorary members. We are very happy to say that Mr. Orne Koontz, president of State-wide C. E., will address the C. E. on the vrst Sunday in November at 11 o'clock. We also hope that Spring Hill Christian Endeavorers will be with us in C. E. and S. S. if it be possible.

We are doing great work in the C. E. and hope to continue doing so.

RUTH PAYNE, President.

Lexington.—Our work is going along nicely. On Sunday morning there were 194 in Sunday school; also a good crowd was present for the 11 o'clock preaching service. We had three young men to unite with the church in the morning service: Mr. Kearney Koonts, Mr. Felix Myers and Mr. Ray Brown, all of whom were converted in our revival meeting. We were very glad to see these fine young men unite with the church, for we feel that they will be a great help to the church. We raised our $5.00 for young people's work Sunday morning in Sunday school.

One of our good members, Mrs. J. M. Russell, who has been in ill health for some time, was taken worse Saturday night and is real low at the present time, but we earnestly pray God that she may be restored to health soon.

On last Tuesday night we held our fourth quarterly conference at Mount Carmel church. All of the reports were good, both Sunday schools were reported to be the best in the history of the churches; also the preaching services are the best in the history of the churches. The business of the conference was transacted and when it came time to instruct the delegate all present seemed to want Bro. Isley to return, so a rising vote was taken and every one there voted for Bro. Isley to return for another year. All of the church members and those who attend church realize what Brother Isley and his mother have done for us in the two years they have been here, for when they came here they went right to work and began to build up the work. During the two years there have been 107 new members taken in the two churches.

We held our Rally Day service Sunday evening at 7:30 with a large crowd in attendance. The children carried out their parts in a pleasing manner and the ladies' quartet rendered several numbers and all present seemed to enjoy the service very much.

On next Saturday evening, beginning at 5 o'clock, the Ladies' Aid Society will give a supper at the church and the public is invited to come out and eat with them and enjoy the evening. The proceeds of the supper will go to the church.

We have set next Sunday as Pay-Up Day at our church. The members are asked to tithes this week and at the Sunday morning service the Bible will be opened and laid on a table, and all carry their tenth and lay it in the Bible to help pay up our claims, for we want to go to Conference with a good report. PHONSE BEAN, Reporter.

Enfield Charge.—Due to good reasons, the time of the fourth quarterly conference has been changed from Friday night, the 31st, to Tuesday night, the 28th. The hour will be as announced before, 7:30 o'clock. Place, Enfield church.

The union revival services of the Enfield churches closed Friday night of last week. Dr. R. G. McLeese, of Chatham, Virginia, did the preaching. He is a power in the pulpit and sheds a distinct Christian influence out of it. Every one who heard him liked him, and particularly did we fall more in love with the Christ whom he so successfully hid behind in the delivery of all his messages. Truly, his presence with us was refreshing and elevating. I trust that the Gospel seed sown by this saintly man will yet bear a greater harvest to the glory of God. Many gave their hearts to go, particularly among the young. Next Sunday morning the doors of the Methodist Protestant church will be opened for the reception of new members.

The annual business and membership meeting of the Enfield church will take place on Thursday night, the 30th, in the hut. Besides conducting the business and the election of officers for the coming year, we hope to have a good time together in a social way. Come! J. CLYDE AUMAN.

Moriah.—We are rapidly approaching the end of another Conference year, and no doubt many of us are making a special effort to close the year successfully. Let's do our best in these closing days, whether the best we do is the best we would like to do or not. Let us strive to take a report to Conference that will represent nothing less than our very best.

Our fourth quarterly conference convened last Sunday, October 19th, at 7:30. A goodly number were present, and the reports were gratifying. Dollar a Member will be paid in full; salary will be paid in full; most of the budgets will be paid. A goodly number have joined our church during the year.

July 27th was known as Decision Day. At the morning service 23 decisions were made. The following Sunday 15 were baptized and received into the church. During the year 19 have joined our church, 16 on confession of faith, four by letter.

"Oh, give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good. His mercy endureth forever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

A unanimous vote was cast last Sunday for the pastor's return. During the year the writer has made 350 visits, traveled around 10,000 miles, and with the aid of a committee has succeeded in putting the church paper in practically every home. The work has been a pleasure and not a hardship. "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

There will be a barbecue supper next Friday night, October 24, given by the Ladies' Auxiliary from 6 to 9 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the church. Please come and enjoy a real supper and help a good cause.

M. P. CHMBLISS, Pastor.

Albemarle.—We regret very much to state that we are to lose our pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, this year. Although a unanimous vote was cast for his return, he thought it best for us to make a change, so he gave in his resignation, which was accepted with great reluctance. Mr. Anderson has made a splendid pastor and has been with us four years, during which time great strides have been made in the progress of the church. Our membership has grown from 85 to 173 since his coming to this charge, and we do not hesitate to attribute a great amount of this growth to his untiring efforts. His greatest aim, however, has not been a large membership, but to create in each individual member a stronger desire for a higher standard of Christian living. This, we feel, has been done to a great extent.

We would not forget to express our appreciation also for the great help Mrs. Anderson has been to us. She has shown excellent ability as superintendent of the Junior Department of the Sunday school, and also was very active in Ladies' Aid work.

We hope and pray that some day the Lord may see fit to send this consecrated man and his family back to us again.

Extensive plans are being made for the Annual Floral Show, which will be held Saturday, November 1st, and sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society. A bazaar will be held in connection with it, and supper will be served at night. This event always creates quite a bit of interest, especially among the ladies of the town.

Only about two more weeks until the Annual Conference will meet with us and the various committees are busy making plans for their entertainment. The Ladies' Aid Society is preparing to serve dinners and suppers in the church dining room, and all those who wish may get their meals there for a small sum. All money derived from this source will go to the church building fund.

MRS. JOHN WHITLOCK, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—The records for Sunday school attendance for two Sundays are as follows: October 5th, 400, and October 12, 401. Offerings for the same dates were $32.28 and $28.83, respectively. This report shows considerable improvement, we are glad to learn.

The service of the Junior church on last Sunday morning was conducted by Prof. W. C. King of the High School faculty.

At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, spoke very earnestly from the theme, "Why Go to Church?" taking as the text in Hebrews 10:25, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another." He said in part: The world is still divided between those who go to church and those who do not. Timothy Dwight sang many years ago:

> "I love thy church, O God!
> Her walls before Thee stand,
> Dear as the apple of thine eye,
> And graven on thy hand.
> For her my tears shall fall,
> For her my prayers ascend;
> To her my cares and toils be given,
> Till toils and cares shall end."

There is no doubt among those who attend church regularly that there is strength and comfort in the religion of Jesus. Some people say that the church is losing her power. We think of our nation as Christian, but the Japanese put up to shame. A Japanese of rank on a visit to America said after being shown the beautiful places of interest in many cities said: "Your country is wonderful, but when you come to Japan we will show you our temples and shrines. I see that you people of America are not religious." Even Russia recognizes the fact that people should meet in their places of worship at least once a week. The church needs men, but men need the church more. Too many people lie in bed on Sunday moring until 10 o'clock, reach for the Sunday newspaper, then wonder where they can go for diversion. I wish to bring you three propositions for consideration: the church is a great protection and a safeguard thrown around us. Many doctors get a salary to keep people well; it is better than life insurance, for you can't go wrong when you attend church regularly. A great lumber king said that a son will do what his father says until he is 14 years of age, and after then he will more than likely do what his father does. The preacher may be a bore, the sermon poor, but we should go to church for the sake of example to others. A young girl said to her grandfather: "Why should I go to church?" In reply he asked: "Has the piano tuner been here lately?" All souls need to be tuned up just like a piano. We must go to church to keep attuned to the fruits of the spirit, joy, peace, temperance, meekness, righteousness. No other institution but the church says: "Whosover will, let him come and take of the water of life freely." I want the citizens of High Point to be church-going because in it we find the cultivation of the spirit.

There was a large congregation at the evening service Sunday, when the minister spoke about "Another Comforter." Prior to this service a large number met Rev. Mr. Farmer in the Philathea room to get cards with the names of persons whom the minister wants us to visit and get them interested in attending church services.

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon as follows: No. 4 with the chairman, Mrs. E. F. Douglas; No. 5 with Miss Elizabeth Oakes; No. 6 with Mrs. W. C. Koonts; No. 7 with Mrs. R. I. Farmer; No. 8 with Mrs. John B. Spencer. No. 3, Miss Blanche Burgess, chairman, will meet at the church Tuesday evening; No. 2, Miss Mary Young, chairman, with Mrs. W. L. Albertson and Mrs. R. C. Snyder on Wednesday evening, and No. 1, Miss Margaret Snipes, chairman, with Miss Claire Douglas on Thursday evening.

On Monday evening the C. E. Society held a business session and election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Miss Irene Reynolds; vice-president, Miss Myrtle Davis; secretary, Miss Selma Clapp; treasurer, Miss Esther Pritchard.

The mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening will be conducted by Dr. A. G. Dixon, superintendent of the Children's Home. It is hoped that a good audience will greet this popular former pastor.

The fourth quarterly conference is called to convene Monday evening, November 3rd, just before Annual Conference will meet at Albemarle November 5th. The Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Sunday, November 2nd.

The campaign for our church papers, Methodist Protestant Recorder and the Herald, the N. C. Conference organ, is being stressed, and Rev. Mr. Farmer and Mrs. H. A. Moffitt are taking care of this important work of receiving new subscriptions and renewals.

Numerous plans are being made for the bazaar and turkey supper, which will be given by the Woman's Auxiliary on Thursday, October 30th. Each Circle will have a booth where canned goods of all kinds and many useful and ornamental articles of handwork, ferns and potted plants will be offered for sale. The menu for the turkey supper is in the hands of a competent committee, and tickets will be sold in advance at $1.00 per plate, and 50 cents for children under ten years of age. A delicious supper to be served from 5:30 to 8 p. m. is assured, and the women are expecting splendid patronage, especially since the ladies of Wesley Memorial M. E. church have cancelled their annual affair of this kind.

The local Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. R. I. Farmer at the parsonage on Colonial Drive.

The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, left Sunday night by train for Steubenville, Ohio, where he will take part in the Centennial Anniversay exercises of that church, of which he was once the pastor. The five other expastors, who are living, will be present, and no doubt the occasion will be inspiring and enjoyable. Mr. Farmer is expected to return home in time to fill his pulpit next Sunday.

The numerous friends of Mrs. L. J. Diffee will rejoice to know that she has improved from a slight illness, and has gone to her home from High Point Hospital, where she spent a few days last week.

C. L. Gray, Jr., went to Charlotte Saturday to represent High Point in the Atwater Kent Radio Audition. He was entered by his teacher, Prof. E. B. Stimson, and sang unusually well. The decision of the judges has not yet been announced.

Lexington, State Street.—There was a noted increase in attendance at all the services Sunday. This was very gratifying and we feel that we can accomplish much during the coming year.

Owing to the state of Mr. Lindsay's health, Mr. C. L. Koonts has been made superintendent of the Sunday school and Mr. Blanton assistant.

On last Sunday morning a high tribute of appreciation and gratitude was paid Mr. Lindsay by the entire school. He has been most faithful in the discharge of his duty as superintendent and in every relationship to the church and its work, giving generously of his money, time and failing strength cheerfully and gladly. He was unanimously voted superintendent emeritus.

At the evening service there was a period devoted to the installation of church officers. A walking cane was presented to by Mr. Lindsay by the Sunday school.

The oyster supper on Friday night was largely attended and an encouraging amount realized in cash. REPORTER.

Macedonia Church, Why Not Circuit.—Rev. Wm. H. Neese filled his appointment last Sunday afternoon. He gave us a good sermon, as he always does. Church officers were elected for the coming year. Mr. S. D. Hurley was elected class leader; trustees, Mr. J. H. Saunders, Mrs. S. D. Hurley, Mrs. W. B. Saunders; stewards, Mrs. J. H. Saunders, Mrs. W. B. Saunder, Mr. S. D. Hurley; church treasurer, Mr. S. B. Saunders; Sunday school superintendent, Rev. C. W. Saunders.

We have a very good Sunday school but there is room for improvement. We have organized a Bible class with Rev. C. W. Saunders as teacher. The older people seem to be taking great interest in the Bible class.

hundreds of voices and instruments. So thunderous was the sound of it all, with its wild bursts of harmony, its tremendous crash and tumult, all ordered to one overwhelming result, that a man in a far corner who played the piccolo decided that in the din his little fife made no difference, and so he stopped playing. Instantly the great conductor flung up his hands, and absolute silence fell. "Where is the piccolo?" cried Sir Michael. His quick ear had missed that one little piping amid all the thunder, and the music to him was spoiled without it.

So it is with the Infinite Conductor of the universe. He listens for the faintest human voice. Not a boy of a girl, not the poorest and most ignorant and obscure, but will be missed, if he is silent, out of the anthem of the worlds, the music of the spheres.

Master Spirit, we would do our best. We rejoice to know that Thou dost know. Amen."

Yours sincerely,

REGARDING THE THANK-OFFERING

Doubtless a number of churches have already held their Thank-offering services. In order to separate our Thank-offering from our free-will, or Thanksgiving offering, it should be held in September. The Herald carried a program. Should any church have failed to hold a Thank-offering service in September they can find a program in the October Record.

In sending in your offering to Mrs. S. W. Taylor, 905 W. College Drive, High Point, be sure to state that it is Thank-offering money, that you may get credit on your general conference budget. Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, secretary of Children's Home, will write later concerning the Thanksgiving offering, which goes to the Children's Home.

MRS. D. S. COLTRANE,
Sec. of Thank-offering.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

O'Briant

It was a sad day for Greensville Circuit and Roanoke Rapids community Saturday September 20, when the news came that the death angel had claimed our loving pastor, Mr. J. B. O'Briant. Mr. O'Briant was one of the world's best men, was always happy and had a heart full of love for every one. In his illness said he had no right to complain.

He was a wonderful peacemaker, a great home lover, and the humblest of men.

We feel we have lost so much, but our God who loaned us His servant doeth all things well. Mr. O'Briant had been with us only a short time, not quite a year, but to know him was to love him. He often expressed that this was a good world and he wanted to live here as long as he could. Surely our world with all its greatness is nothing in comparison with his now. . I pray that we may be able to join our pastor again some day, where we can live together for aye.

God keep and comfort his dear family in their sad grief.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
It bears our best loved things away,
And then we call them "dead."

"O not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The reaper came that day;
T'was an angel visiting this good world
And took our pastor away.

Randleman

Junius Wright Randleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Randleman, was born June 1, 1916, and departed this life October 3, 1930.

He is survived by his father, W. L. Randleman, and mother, who was Miss Bunna Plowman before her marriage; one sister, Willie May Randleman, and five brothers, Guy, Buford, S. L., Ransom Ray, and John Wesley Randleman.

He made a profession of faith and united with Stony Knoll Methodist Protestant church in 1926. He said before he died that he was ready to go, and that he was going to rest. Just one month from the last preaching service he attended his funeral service was conducted. He was ill about ten days with blood poison.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer at Stony Knoll church Sunday afternoon, October 5, and the body was laid to rest in thet church cemetery to await the Resurrection morning.

Brown

Our hearts were again made sad on Sept. 15, when the message reached us, that the dear little baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Brown had been called home, she had been sick only a few days, and while all that physicians and loving hands could do, was being done, we hadn't thought of her going to soon; but the dear Lord knows best and He took her from a world of suffering to that paradise of rest. Could we but see her little smiling face we couldn't wish her luck but only desire to go and be with her.

So let us all strive to live such lives that we may be as ready to go as she, when the call shall come for us, and if it should be as unexpectedly as hers, "All will be well with us."

Funeral services were conducted by the writer after which the little remains were laid to rest beneath a mound of beautiful flowers, to await the resurrection.

The family and loved ones have our sympathy and prayers.

A. L. HUNTER.

Hammer

Whereas the father of our esteemed director, Congressman Wm. C. Hammer has been called from this life, and—

Whereas the members of Asheboro Methodist Protestant Choir desire to express their sympathy to Mrs. Walker and family, be it resolved:

That a copy of this resolution be sent to Mrs. Walker, a copy to each of our local papers and to the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication.

MABEL COX,

W. L. WARD, Committee.

A Tribute of Love

Whereas, it pleased God, in His infiinite wisdom to call from labor to reward his devoted servant, Mrs. C. G. Dorsett, on September 22nd, 1930,

Therefore, be it Resolved, That in her going Moriah M. P. Auriliary has lost a loyal member, one who was interested in all the activities of her church, and who fulfilled her duties cheerfully to both God and man;

And be it further Resolved, That we, the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, while bowing humbly to Him who doeth all things well, feel keenly the great loss to our organization and to the entire church;

And be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our meeting, a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication.

MRS. C. F. SCOTT, Sec'y.

O'Briant

Our hearts were sad when we learned that Bro. O'Briant had left us and gone to the great beyond. We felt that we needed him most to help close up the year's work, but on second thought, we realized that our Heavenly Father knew best and doeth all things well.

We have not words sufficient to express our appreciation of Bro. O'Briant and what he has done for Greensville charge this year. The Annual Conference could not have sent a better man to us under the conditions of this work—a split circuit. He looked after his own churches and at every opportunity he helped and preached at the other churches. He loved and served all and found fault of none. The 13th chapter of Corinthians fittingly describes this good man, he possessed the greatest of all—Love. Yes, his big, kind, compassionate heart won us all. His short life among us was a wonderful sermon; the whole duty of man is to love and serve God and to help his fellow man.

The last time Bro. O'Briant worshiped with us Bro. Auman asked if he had anything to say. His reply was: "No, but I should like for us all to sing 'I Am Bound for the Promised Land.'" If God in His goodness and mercy will permit us to enter that Promised Land we feel sure that Bro. O'Briant will be one of the first to greet and welcome us there.

Brother O'Briant co-operated with Bro. Cowan in every phase of the work possible, and often Bro. Cowan has said: "O'Briant is one of the dearest and best friends I have ever had. If it had not been for his timely and fatherly advice many times this year I don't know how I could have pulled through."

Our prayers and sympathy go out to the bereaved family and friends, and may the God of love and peace comfort and help them.

THE MEMBERS OF HOBBS CHAPEL.

Carson

Mrs. Ella Carson, esteemed wife of Joe H. Carson of Mountain Valley, departed to her final reward leaving a husband and five children to mourn her passing.

Sister Carson united with the Mountain Valley Methodist Protestant church very early in life, and has been a devoted member ever since. Her absence from this church will long be remembered. We commend her husband, and children, to the loving care of the Heavenly Father for guidiance until we shall enter into that unbroken family where parting is unknown. J. Adrian Thompson.

Staley

Arthur E. Staley was born August 2, 1869, and departed this life August 31, 1930. He was a prosperous former. He was a member of Shiloh M. P. church from early manhood until his death.

His parents, wife and child preceded him to the line beyond. He leave to mourn their loss one brother, A. Eugene Staley, of Decatur, Ill.; two sisters, Mrs. S. E. Coble, of Guilford College, and Mrs. M. C. Garner, of Julian, N. C., and many other relatives and friends.

May the comforting Spirit of Christ comfort the bereaved relatives and friends.

D. I. GARNER.

Quackenbush

Mrs. Bettie Ellen Quickenbush was born December 11, 1849, and passed away September 20, 1930. She is survived by two brothers, J. S. Albright and W. J. Albright. She was a faithful member of Bethel M. P. church. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor of the charge, assisted by Rev. T. J. Whitehead, pastor of Saxapahaw charge, and her body laid to rest in Bethel cemetery.

She was a good woman and has gone to enjoy the heavenly home prepared by Jesus in advance. I suppose as the saints of God cross over she will joyfully greet them.

J. A. BURGESS.

Routh

Persilla Ogburn Routh was born December 19, 1856; died October 14, 1930. He had been a faithful member of Gray's Chapel M. P. church for more than 50 years. He was magistrate in his township for 35 years. He was always found on the right side of any moral question. In his death his children, relatives and friends have lost a good father and friend. The church has lost a faithful member and the community a good citizen.

He was married to Minnie M. Trodgin January 25, 1880. To this union were born 11 children, six of whom preceded him to the life beyond, also his wife. He leaves to mourn his death four sons and one daughter and many relatives and friends.

His funeral was conducted on October 15, 1930, at 2 o'clock in the church he loved, by his pastor and ex-pastor, W. F. Ashburn. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

May the comforting grace of Christ comfor and sustain all the bereaved ones.

D. I. GARNER.

A Tribute of Love

Whereas in His infinite wisdom God saw fit to take from our midst and from her family Mrs. J. S. Wood on the third day of October, 1930;

Therefore, be it Resolved, That in her going our Auxiliary has lost a faithful member, our church a loyal and consistent worker, and her family a loving wife and devoted mother;

And be it further Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved husband our deepest sympathy and to her small children our most sincere love;

And be it further Resolved, That we spread a copy of these resolutions upon the minutes of our meeting, send a copy to the bereaved family and a copy be sent to our church paper for publication.

MRS. C. F. SCOTT, Sec'y.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heart-felt thanks to our friends for the many kindnesses shown us during the recent illness and death of our beloved husband and father, the late Rev. J. B. O'Briant, who died September 20, 1930. Also to the many ministers for their kind expressions of sympathy.

WALL GOLDEN WEDDING

At their home near Denton on October 14, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wall celebrated the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Mrs. Wall before her marriage was Miss Sarah Briles. Seventy-five relatives and friends were present to help them celebrate. Their four living children, S. B. Wall, of High Point; Mrs. J. J. Atkins, of Charlotte, N. C.; R. C. Wall and Mrs. Ernest Turner, of near Denton, were present. They also have nine grandchildren who were present. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hoover and daughter, of Thomasville, and Miss Doris Alexander, a niece of Mrs. Wall, were out-of-town visitors.

A bountiful table of turkey, chicken, roasted ham, pies, cakes, etc., was spread. Rev. G. A. Martin, pastor of the Denton Baptist church, made a very appropriate talk. Rev. E. A. Bingham, pastor of the Denton Methodist Protestant church, offered a prayer of thanksgiving, after which all feasted together.

Mr. and Mrs. Wall received twenty-five dollars in gold, other valuable presents, and many beautiful flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Wall are faithful members of our Denton Methodist Protestant church. We wish for them many more happy anniversaries of their married life. E. A. BINGHAM.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. J. W. Boyles, Thomasville, 7 dresses, 2 slips, 1 sweater, 18 coat hangers and a bunch of magazines.

Mrs. J. W. Lasley, Chapel Hill, 5 pair shoes, 5 dresses, 2 aprons, 1 blouse, 3 hats and 1 scarf.

The Woman's Bible classes of State Street, Bethesda and Shiloh, 1 quart cocoa, 27 quarts fruit, preserves and pickles, 1 lb. coffee, 4 boxes oat meal, 2 pumpkins, 1 package rice, 2 bushels potatoes, 1 pair pillow slips, 1 shirt, 6 towels, 6 wash cloths, 2 dish towels, $2.00 in cash (cash reported above) and 20 coat hangers.

We are thankful for all these contributions.

The coat hangers and the magazines donated above lead us to suggest that we will be glad for more of these. Hanging up clothing for 100 children requires a goodly number of hangers.

And our large children need the old magazines in their school work.

An Immediate Need

This cold weather has brought us face to face with two needs: 1. shoes. We badly need some winter shoes yet, and "Mother Dixon," says, "tell the ladies we need school coats for our girls." Any coats you would put on your girls if they were the right size, if you can spare them please mail them to us quickly. "Aunt Alice," says, "The boys need coats or sweaters—If you have these and do not need them for your own boys please mail them to us quickly.

Harvest-Home Donations

We are still hoping for a number of harvest home donations. Some are coming we know, and we thank you.

A Sane Thanksgiving and Christmas

Please be planning to make a sane and helpful donation to the Home at these glad holidays just ahead. Please don't spend money for toys, such as will soon drop to pieces when they get here. We are sorely in need of money to meet the actual and pressing needs of the Home, so please save the dimes and the quarters and send a worthy offering, which will be so much more helpful to the children of our home.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

Some Potato.—Rev. J. L. Trollinger brought to the Herald office a sweet potato (Porto Rico yam) of magnificent proportions. It weighs nine pounds and six ounces and measures 22 inches in circumference. It was raised by Mr. E. A. Spencer of Haw River charge.

—Rev. C. W. Bates returned from Brooklyn on Sunday morning. He attended his only brother in his last days and saw him buried. President Humphreys kindly came from High Point and preached in Calvary church on Sunday morning. Bro. Bates preached at night.

—Mrs. Louzina Coe Ross, who lived with her daughter, Mrs. Mattie Lee, in Dunn, N. C., died last week, aged about 80, and was brought to Greensboro for burial. Service was conducted at the home of her son, William Ross, by Brother Tamblyn. Mrs. Ross was a charter member of Grace church. She was a sister of Rev. S. W. Coe of the Maryland Conference and of Mrs. Lizzie Teague, of Greensboro. Her husband was a brother of R. R. Ross, of Asheboro.

Taking the Religious Census

("Indicate your faith and order")

My faith's no sight to look upon,
It never shows itself in light;
It flees away when comes the dawn,
As other creatures of the night.

It seems to dread the light of day,
It dwells amidst the mists and fogs.
Just how it lives I cannot say;
It wanders much in fens and bogs.

It never feeds on word of God,
On sermons, songs, or fervent prayers:
It acts in ways so very odd
And spends its days in hidden lairs.

With such a faith as I confess
My order you may well infer:
I have no ties, as you may guess,
In church affairs I make no stir.

Concern for High Point College

Those who feel the weight of the debts of High Point College and do not see how they are going to be paid are naturally somewhat anxious about the matter. But there is a right way and a wrong way to react to this situation. It would not be right to assume that the great body of Methodist Protestants in North Carolina are indifferent about the matter. Their splendid response to appeals in the past has demonstrated their interest in the college. And it would not be reasonable to expect the great mass of members of the church to rise up spontaneously and send liberal offerings of money to High Point College. There must be authorized agents appealing for the college with a showing of facts which move people to desire to relieve the situation. We do not see exactly how the debts of High Point College are to be paid, but we believe God sees how it will be done and the institution preserved to do the good work it has just begun for our church. Faith in God allays many of our fears. While we do not see just how the debts of the college are to be paid, we have a feeling—perhaps a conviction—that the greater part will be paid by liberal friends of the college living in North Carolina. What better thing can one do with a few hundred or a few thousand dollars than to use it in perpetuating the work of our college?

Away with the fear that the debts of High Point College will not be paid. And on the other hand, away with the expectation that they will be paid by sitting down and waiting for people to come along and pay them. Committees and agents must be appointed and must work as men work at other absorbing occupations. The college and the church should be brought into close communion with each other and live and labor together.

Incidentally we remark that we believe that it would be better for both the college and the church if the Board of Trustees of the College and the Board of Education were made one corporate body. At any rate the college must be brought nearer the heart of the church. When this is done the college will not lack friends.

We have the faith that President Humphreys will accomplish much in bringing the college into the hearts of its friends.

This is no time for panic and desertion, but it is a time when we should join heartily together in doing what our situation demands.

Our Folks In the Bible

Would it not make the Bible mean more to you if St. Paul had written an epistle to the people of England and it had found its way into the Bible? We presume in that case we would dwell with greatest interest upon that epistle. We would read it and re-read it and picture in our minds the reaction of the people to the message of the great apostle. Paul wrote no letter to the English so far as we know. Ce tainly there is no such letter in the New Testament. Ye there is a letter in the New Testament written by Paul to people with whom many of us have blood relationship. W mean the letter to the Galatians. Who were the Galatians They were a people who emigrated from Gaul in Europe t Asia a few hundred years before Paul wrote this letter. Th French and the Welsh and the Irish and some of the Scotch are their kinsmen. The Galatians therefore are blood relatives of many of us Americans. But we must not feel too highly exalted. Paul describes them as "foolish Galatians." They had abandoned the true gospel of Christianity for a false system of ritualism. They had come to rely on a series of ceremonies instead of the inner experience resulting from the action of the Spirit of God upon the soul of man. They had ceased to trust in the crucified Christ and had gone back to the ways of Judaism. Yet with all their misconceptions they had good qualities. Paul remembered with pleasure their personal treatment of him. They were considerate of his weak vision and would had it been possible have plucked out their eyes and given them to him. But though they had erred from the faith Paul did not lose hope of them. He shows them that life is a moral struggle between the spiritual and carnal nature of man. He teaches them that they may triumph over the base and the evil by yielding themselves to the lead of the Spirit of God. That teaching fits us.

DEFINING RELIGION

The definitions of religion were given by a class in Psychology of Religion at High Point College. Some of the definitions are original while others were taken from other material, but I consider this series of statements broad enough to give a rather adequate view on the question of what religion is. These answers represent a typical recitation in a class of Religious Education and show to what extent the students investigate the topics assigned to them.

1. "Christian Religion is a vital contact with and knowledge of God."

2. "Christian Religion is a blend of morality, sacrificial service for fellow man, and a reverence for and worship of God."

3. "The worship of an unseen power from the sense of need."

4. "The outward act or form by which men indicate their recognition of the existence of a God or Gods having power over their destiny, to whom obedience, service, and honor are due."

5. "Religion is man's fellowship with a supreme Being and obedience to His will."

6. "Religion is the worship of some being, greater in power, than any human being."

7. "Religion is the recognition of man's relation to a divine or superhuman power to whom obedience and reverence are due.' '

8. "Religion is a mode of worshiping God, or an invisible divine power above."

9. "Religion is the exerting faith in an unseen being."

10. "Religion is a recognition and a need, expressed by faith and service, or an immortal power who controls the universe and an eternity."

11. "Religion is the belief in the existence of a superhuman power to whom service of some kind or another is felt to be due from man."

12. "Religion is a man's attitude toward the universe regarded as a social and ethical force."

14. "Religion is a belief in an invisible superhuman power, conceived of after the analogy of human spirit and on which man regards himself as dependent and to which he thinks himself in some degree responsible."

15. "Religion—sense of infinite dependence in a higher power and a search for satisfaction."

16. "Religion—is looking to an unseen divine power in faith, love and service."

17. "Christian Religion is one that is founded on Jesus Christ as the Savior of the world."

18. "Religion is the recognition of man's relation to a divine or superhuman power to whom obedience and reverence are due."

19. "Christian Religion is that religion whose principles were taught and characterized by Jesus."

20. "Christian Religion is that belief in Christ which will lift a man from the animal category and makes him a citizen of the Universal Kingdom of God."

21. "Religion is a universal experience emerging when the group, in its search for satisfaction, reaches out for help to be the best that it knows and that it desires to be."

GOOD GARDENS IN A DRY SUMMER

We are not likely soon to forget the summer of 1930. The prolonged and wide-spread drouth; the scarcity of water in wells, springs and streams, with consequent inconvenience and suffering; the meager returns from many gardens and fields—these, all coming at a time when a general business depression has thrown many people out of employment, will not soon pass out of memory.

Serious and wide-spread drouths are said to occur once in every fifty-six years—1818, 1874, 1930, 1986. Less prolonged and less extensive drouths occur much more frequently. I saw such drouths in Kansas in 1886, in Illinois in 1895, and in Michigan in 1917. In any year, and almost anywhere, there is liable to be a period of several weeks during which little or no rain falls, resulting in greatly reduced production or an entire failure of some crops.

In view of this uncertainty concerning rainfall we naturally inquire as to what measures, if any, may be taken to insure at least a fairly successful garden in spite of an almost rainless season.

There is a story told of two frogs that were hopping about in an old-fashioned milk-house. Missing their calculation they both fell into a large jar of cream that had been left uncovered. They swam about for a while but found no way of getting out. Finally one said, "O there is no use," gave up, and sank to the bottom. The other said, cheerily, "I shall keep on stirring around. Perhaps something will happen." In the morning the house-wife found the first frog dead. The other was seated comfortably on a nice pat of butter which he had made out of his seeming misfortune.

I learned this same "stirring" lesson a good many years ago in Missouri, where I grew my first garden. It was a small plot of ground only fifty by seventy-five feet. The soil was unusually rich. It had been ploughed and planted the year before, for the first time. But weeds of the rankest growth had taken possession and there had been nothing to harvest.

I had the plot ploughed, harrowed and marked off for planting. No horse was on the ground after that. I planted potatoes, sugar corn, pop corn, peas, beans, sweet potatoes, etc. In three or four days the weed seed germinated and were literally lifting the surface of the ground. I went over the area with a garden rake, exposing the pink and white roots to the hot sun. This made the garden look fresh and nice. A few days later the same thing had to be done again, for another crop of weed seed had germinated. The raking was kept all summer. A hoe was scarcely ever used, except for planting. When one garden had matured and was harvested, another was immediately planted. Everything did exceedingly well.

The season was an unusually hot and dry one. Many gardens in the village were burned up. In several instances I noted cracks in the ground so wide and deep that I could thrust in my hand four to six inches. Many said it was no use to cultivate any more. In my garden there was always a blanket of loose earth, and moisture was to be found a short space beneath the surface. The ground never baked or cracked. Nothing wilted. Corn blades curled some—which is nature's way of preventing too rapid evaporation through the leaves—but when the sun was down, the blades uncurled and took up what moisture could be found in the air, sometimes condensing enough to make quite a damp spot the roots of the corn.

I had thus made and kept a dust mulch—though no one spoke or wrote of dust mulches in those days—and I had in the best possible way conserved the soil moisture, though I had only intended to get rid of the pestiferous weeds. The unusually fertile soil had, thus, a chance to give me exceedingly satisfactory returns for my labor.

When I thought it was time to begin using sweet potatoes, I looked for them but failed to find any. While visiting a friend he was showing me his garden. I told him there was only one thing in which my garden had disappointed me—the vines were fine, but I had no sweet potatoes. "Mine are pretty fair," he said, "and you will see my wife has some for our supper." When I went home I took another look under my vines. Sure enough, there were plenty of potatoes much larger than my neighbor's. But they had gone down very deep, a way they have of doing in a dry season.

I have seen a few good gardens here in Maryland this summer; and I think it will be found in each case that there was considerable humus in the soil. This humus, together with frequent light cultivation, holds the moisture where it is needed and insures a good crop even in a dry, hot summer.

Of course, irrigation is good. The increased value of crops produced in a single season may justify the expense of installing an irrigating system. The feeling of independence, when not needing to wish for rain, is of decided advantage to the morale of the professional gardener and truck-grower. But, for the ordinary gardener, frequent shallow cultivation, which kills the weeds early in the game and holds the soil-moisture by means of dust mulch, is very satisfactory.

DR. TAYLOR'S "TOTAL PAYMENT CHARGES PER MEMBER"

One of the big things that our president has done is the estimate in last week's issue of the Herald of amounts paid per member of each charge.

To my mind it is the best thing that has been done to get each charge to see where it stands. It may be, and will be unpleasant for the charge to find that it is at the bottom or near to it, but it will be worthwhile if it stirs it to climb higher.

Some years ago a literary test was made of the states and North Carolina was found to be only one from the bottom, South Carolina being the lowest. Some one said thank God for South Carolina, but this fact stirred North Carolina, and today she's reaching for the top-most rung.

So may we hope that this information will create an impulse in the charges at or near the bottom to begin to climb for the top. But the pity is that those who need it most won't get it. They don't take the Herald. For the benefit of the people, I am calling their attention to it from the pulpit.

And why not bring the same information down to the local church? We have tried it and find that it is a fine thing where the salt is savory enough to allow it, but the fellow that don't want to do anything declares that it is a disgrace.

Dr. Taylor may hear some howling from the "bottom dog." We knew a pastor once that tried to introduce the envelope system of collection. He was very cautious and allowed them their choice. In a short time, a good (?) brother came to him and said: "These envelopes have destroyed the spirituality of the churh." The pastor asked him to repeat it to make sure of his ears, then he answered, "well, if they have killed it it didn't have enough to hurt anything."

Some things are easily killed, you know. And there is but little difference—being dead or alive and to all concerned, it would be better if dead.

A SERMON TO ONE MAN

The smallest congregation that ever listened to a sermon is one among the many interesting reminiscences now published in the career of Dr. Lyman Beecher.

The results of Dr. Beecher's sermon to a single listener deserve publication, if only as an encouragement to preachers who are depressed by the paucity of their hearers.

In the early part of his career he once engaged to preach in a remote district, peopled by a sparse and scattered population.

It was in midwinter; the day was unusually stormy and cold, and the snow lay so deep in some places that he could scarcely proceed. On his arrival, although the place was empty, he took his seat in the pulpit. Presently one man came in and sat down, and at the appointed hour the preacher began.

The service was closed, when the solitary hearer departed and left the preacher alone.

Twenty years after, Dr. Beecher was traveling in Ohio when a stranger accosted him by name. "Do you remember preaching," said he, "twenty years ago to one man?" "Yes, yes," said the doctor, grasping his hand, "that I do; and if you are the man I have been wishing to see you ever since." "I am the man," was the reply, "and that sermon saved my soul and made a minister of me. The converts of that sermon, sir, are all over Ohio!"—Scattered Seed.

MINDING GOD

"Sir," said the Duke of Wellington to an officer of the engineers who argued the impossibility of executing the directions he had received, "I did not ask your opinion; I gave you my orders and I expect them to be obeyed."

Such should be the obedience of every follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. The words which He has spoken is our law. If in sincere faith we seek honestly to obey, He will see that strength and ability to obey the command is given. May each of us have this sincere purpose to "mind God."—Publisher Unknown.

POSSIBILITIES OF PRAYER

Both history and science clearly demonstrate that prayer offers great possibilities. Prayer is our most precious means of connection with Divine Power. The highest forces of life are not found at work in material things, but in a world of the the intangible. Jesus did not exaggerate when he spoke of the "faith that can move mountains." He was stating a scientific principle when He told His hearers that through faith they could secure health, happiness, and prosperity. Somewhere and somehow an unlimited source of vitalizing power exists. Man is the motor that can use this intangible power. Prayer is the feed wire or the conduit that connects man with the great source of supply. This inexhaustible store in intangible power is chief among the undeveloped resources of religion, and more general proficiency in prayer is the key to success in tapping this great treasury of well-being. This well of Divine Power is deep, and without prayer we would have no sweep by which to draw it up and put it to human use. The two must be paired. Each is useless without the other. Together they are all powerful. . . . . I testify as a business man, that I believe no metes and bounds can yet be set to the jurisdiction of this vitalizing power. To me, the use of faith and prayer, as the most precious means of connecting with this Power, is justified beyond question. The greatest development to which we may look forward in the years just ahead will be along these lines. The store of electricity latent in the universe is as nothing compared with its the supplies which Jesus had in mind when He talked to the store of vitalizing forces which today go unused. These are people two thousand years ago about the power of faith. Hitherto, we have been led too often to believe either that He spoke figuratively, or that He talked of the powers possessed by Himself which could not be used by others, but neither was the case. As sure as there is a universe, these hidden stores of vitalizing power exist. The office of the Church is to mobilize this power and extend its beneficent operations in the world. The future of the Church hangs in what it does with this opportunity. That denomination which first transforms itself into a deeper, wider mill-race for this energy and presents it to the world, in a practical and appropriable form, will be the Church of the future. The Church which prays most and prays best is the Church which will grow most rapidly. We are spending millions in developing water powers and steam generating plants; but the power that we are getting in those ways is not to be compared for scope and quality with the great spiritual forces which may be ours for the asking. America today does not need more man-made laws or more material wealth, but more spiritual force. The mobilization of this spiritual force on a grand scale is the goal we should keep before us in dealing with the problem of prayer.—Selected.

HELPING GRANDMOTHER

Two boys were visiting grandmother. One day it rained, and the new path was full of holes.

"Oh, dear!" said grandmother, "that path ought to be rolled before the sun bakes the earth. But Tom isn't here. I had to send him to town for more hay."

"Can't we do it, grandmother?" asked the boys.

"I suppose you could, both of you together, but it's hard work; and then you wanted to go fishing after the rain."

"That doesn't matter, grandmother dear; we can fish another time. What's the use of having grandchildren if they can't help you once in a while."

Grandmother's eyes filled with happy tears as she watched the dear boys tugging away so manfully to help her.—Publisher Unknown.

PRAYER FOR A LIFE OF LIBERTY

"Unveil my eyes that I may see
All that Thou hast in store for me;
Unstop my ears that I may hear
Thy kind reproof, or words of cheer.

"Unloose my tongue that I may give
Thy message, and some soul may live.
Unbind my feet that they may run
On Mercy's errands for Thy Son.

"Inspire my mind that I may see
The fullness of Thy love for me.
Anoint my heart that I may feel
Thy sympathy with woe or weal.

"Accept and use me in Thy way,
To hasten on the glorious day
When all the earth shall hear Thy Word,
And know Thy Way of Life, O Lord."

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Shiloh

October 19, Sunday.—We had a delightful day on this date with Brother Troxler and his people. The first service was at Shiloh church. It was cheering to preach to so many people. The church auditorium is large, and it was well-filled. The Sunday School allotment to Board of Young People's Work is paid, and we trust that the C. E. allotment has been sent in by this time. The church has a live Sunday School and C. E. Society. There is a Woman's Auxiliary here, but we do not have exact information as to membership and activities. We trust that it is working according to Shiloh fashion—well.

In the afternoon, the service was at Friendship. Here again we had the pleasure of preaching to a congregation that filled the house, and to receive attention, as at Shiloh, that encouraged us in our efforts. This church is likewise rendering a splendid service to the community where it is located. The Sunday School is run the year round, and is a strong factor in the life of the church. We do not have information at hand as to other organizations. It was a pleasure to find friends of other days in those services, and to know that they are still interested in the church and active in the work.

At night, our appointment was at Greers. This is one of our newest churches. It is well-located on highway number 10, about ten miles south of Lexington, and has a territory, we are told, that will make possible growth and development for the church. The congregation here was not so large, as at the other appointments, but the people were interested and attentive. Shade trees have been set, and in due time they will add attractiveness to the church grounds. There is some debt on the building, but the terms are sufficiently liberal as not to constitute an over-strain on the people. We enjoyed our visit here.

This is Pastor Troxler's sixth year on this charge, and the people bear pleasing tribute to his excellent work. He is very desirous of making this an Honor Roll charge this year, and we bespeak the full co-operation of his people in this good effort. It seems to us that this is a very possible attainment for them. Here's hoping they do it.

Our visit to this charge gave us an opportunity to be with our Mother and the home folks for dinner. She is 87 years old, and blind, but her interest in the church is unabated. I can not remember when she was not interested.

Quarterly Conferences

October 18, Why Not.—Here we found 19 officials present, and all of the eight churches represented but one. The conference was held at Flag Springs. Each church has a Sunday School, and four contribute monthly to the Children's Home. At Love Joy the school has doubled in two years. The new church, with Sunday School rooms, explains this. Fair Grove has the largest enrollment ever, and all special days were observed by this school. Children's Day and Easter were observed by New Hope, we believe. Two schools have paid to Board of Young People's Work; others will pay. Seagrove and Fair View each have an active Aid Society. There is one C. E. Society on the charge, with good enrollment. The pastor reported eight revivals held with 32 conversions and 14 accessions. Seagrove and New Hope will pay everything in full. We believe that this will be true also of Fair Grove. If there is any deficit on salary, it will be small. We trust that there may be none. Love Joy has paid A. C. B. in full. Brother Neese, the pastor, has done a good year's work, and the people are giving him encouraging co-operation. We believe that the charge will make a good financial showing when the end comes.

Lincolnton, October 22.—This conference was attended by 15 officials, and a number of visitors. Several brethren were present from Caroleen. We were glad, also, to have the following ministers present as visitors: Brothers Morris, Morgan, and Joyner. This charge is made up of Lincolnton and about half up at Fairfield. We trust that it may be paid in full.. Both churches are much in arrears on budgets. Industrial conditions have been unfavorable here, and this has operated against the finances of this charge. Brother Love, the pastor, will press matters for a good closing, and we trust, with good success.

North Davidson, October 23.—This conference was held at Canaan church, with 20 officials present, and all churches represented. There was a noticeable absence of stewards, only four being present. The conference was held on Thursday, and this no doubt made it impossible for some of the officials to attend. The change in day of meeting was an experiment by the charge. The conference ordered that the next meeting be held on Saturday. The pastor reported that this had been one of the happiest years of his ministry, and that he has received seventy members into the churches of the charge. The Sunday Schools have also shown an improvement over last year. He recommended that salary and budgets for next year be apportioned to members, and that every member be given an allotment. All Sunday Schools contribute monthly to the Children's Home. Two churches, Spring Hill and Mt. Pleasant, have C. E. Societies. Bethesda and Spring Hill each have a Woman's Auxiliary. The charge has paid $81 on "Dollar a Member." Allotment to S. S. for Y. P. W. has been paid by all schools except one, and that, we were assured, would be paid. A considerable amount is still due on salary and budgets, though Bethesda has paid A. B. C. and G. C. B. in full. We are hopeful that total salary will be paid, and a great deal more on budgets. The total membership allotment for this charge is not large, and full payment would seem to be a reasonable expectation. This is one of the best grouping of churches in the conference, and it would look mighty good to see every church on the Honor Roll. We are sure that Pastor Powell will do all that he can to bring about this good end, and that his people will co-operate with him in this effort.

English Street, October 23.—This conference was held at 7:30 P. M., with only a small group of officials present. However, all business was promptly and hopefully transacted. The church has been hampered by debt for several years, and still has heavy financial obligations to meet. But Pastor Reynolds and his people have worked very faithfully at this, and have secured a refinancing arrangement that will relieve the strain under which they have labored this year. The Sunday School is good, and the general outlook for the church is hopeful. But for a while, at least, some plan will have to be made by which this church can be linked up with some other church, or churches. After a few years enough strength should be developed here to enable it to be self-supporting. There seems to us to be ample opportunity here for this church to grow. But for the present, it must have some financial assistance. The Sunday School is good, with an average attendance of 130. Graded literature is used, and the school contributes monthly to the Children's Home. There is also a Junior and Intermediate C. E. Society, and an Aid Society, with 25 members. The society has raised this year, $304. Pastor Reynolds has proved to be a safe and tireless leader for this flock, and is working out for this church a stable and progressive program.

This Is Good

"Had a good session of quarterly conference last Thursday night. Salary the same as last year. Encouraging, yes even splendid reports from all departments of the church. Budget already pledged for next year within $500 of total amount."—Rev. C. W. Bates.

"We are expecting to pay pastor's salary in full. A. C. B. in full, and over $500 on G. C. B. We are doing all we can to press all claims."—Rev. C. L. Spencer.

"Shady Grove will pay salary, and annual and general budgets in full."—Rev. Taft White.

Cheering! Cheering! May their tribes increase.

Salaries

We have learned of a few instances in which salaries have been reduced, though it is our opinion that there will be but few charges that will make reductions. There is a tendency to combine charges, and to provide, through a stronger grouping of churches, both for an adequate salary and budget payments. This, we think, is the better plan, where it is possible. Neither pastor nor people can be happy where the salary is not sufficient to provide a living, and we have faith that our people will be slow to reduce it beyond that point. The present economic condition will no doubt improve in the months ahead, and with these improved conditions will come relief from the financial strain that has been upon us this year. We have passed through other economic conditions similar to this, and the God who was with us then, is with us still. Let us have faith in Him.

A Last Appeal

There is just one remaining Sunday between this and the time we meet in annual session. In ten more days, the work of this conference year will be history. We are making this last appeal: Do your best, brethren, ministry and laiety, in the offerings that we lay upon His altar during these last days. It will be depressing to us to go up to conference with salaries unpaid and budgets lacking. But if we have done our best, there will be the satisfaction that always come with that consciousness; if we have not done our best, our lack in receipts will be inexcusable. I believe that these closing days will be busy and earnest days with our pastors and our people, and that our reports to the conference will reflect that fact. Surely every pastor and every church will be zealous and faithful in these closing efforts.

And Once Again

Do not fail to honor God by acknowledging our dependence upon Him, and by invoking his rich blessings upon us during these closnig days, and upon our annual sessions. We shall be confronted by problems that concern our church and the Kingdom that will be too much for our wisdom. But they are not too much for the wisdom of Him who is our great Head. I earnestly urge that we pray much for His presence—His dominating, inspiring, controlling presence—in our coming session.

Appointments

October 28.—Meeting with special committee on HERALD.

October 29.—Lebanon church, in quarterly conference. Hour, 7:30 P. M.

October 30.—Meeting with Trustees of Children's Home.

November 5.—Annual Conference.

Other charges visited to date will be reported on next week.

"The Lord of hosts is with us."

With high hopes for the closing, and with happy anticipations of a great conference, I am,

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

P. S.—Word has just reached us of the death, today, of the Brother of Rev. C. P. Spencer. We understand that funeral will be held tomorrow from the Holiness church, High Point, at 11 A. M. We extend our personal sympathy, and the sympathy of the conference to our Brother, and to his loved ones in thsi sorrow.—S. W. T.

JESUS ALONE

"I have looked the whole planet over and I see no man but Jesus only who is able to take away the sin of the world. I have sat at the feet of the world's religious leaders, and I have seen all the great religions in their homes, and I know that it is Christ or nobody. He has no competitor in the field. No one else has the slightest chance of winning the homage of the entire human race. More and more He is to me what He was to Saul of Tarsus—"The image of the invisible God." More and more He is to me what He was to John the Beloved —"God made manifest in the flesh." More and more He is to me what He Himself claimed to be, the eternal Son of the living God. To know Him is indeed life eternal. To work with Him in establishing on this earth the Kingdom of righteousness and peace and joy, this is what makes my life more and more worth living."—Charles E. Jefferson.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE FARMER'S STORY

On a long and tedious railway journey, my attention was arrested by the pleasant bright face of a fellow passenger, a man of between thirty and forty years of age. His clear blue eyes and candid expression led me to wish to enter into conversation.

My husband having finished with the newspaper handed it to the gentleman; he looked at it, and from some incident in the news the following conversation occurred.

The Scouts' great Jamboree was at the time in evidence, and I soon found we had a common interest in the welfare of young people, and both agreed that we had missed a sight which must tend greatly to promote peace and good-will amongst men, and to deepen in many minds and hearts a horror for the atrocities of modern warfare. We were both enthusiastic in our admiration of the venerable founder of the movement, which we discussed in its various bearings, social, intellectual, moral and spiritual.

My companion proved to be a well-read man: a gentleman by birth and by education, and had he not have told us, we should never have taken him for a farmer, but for a sportsman who had just returned from his shooting box in Scotland and one with whom we could have little in common in the Christian journey through life; it only shows how different we are to God for He does "not look on the outward appearance, but on the heart."

He told how little good he got from the churches, in fact he said: "I go nowhere, for one day my Vicar met me and said, 'Mr. Burrows, I never see you in church.' 'No, sir,' I replied, 'for to tell you the truth I get no food. I go to the House of God to be fed, and get something for the week, but you simply read an essay: and it goes no further than the pews. Now I want something for the heart.' At that he simply bid me 'good morning.'

"Well, to make a long story short, fancy my surprise when about a week after this conversation with the Vicar I was astonished to receive a note from his brother, a clergyman in the East End of London, whom I had occasionally met, asking if I would receive eight little children into my farm-house. I was thunderstruck. Eight little children, and I a batchelor. Calling the house-keeper into the dining-room I told her of the request and can you fancy her dismay: "Oh, sir, it's impossible! Remember the carpets and how they will spoil the furniture, and beside, they will be sure to be dirty," and with a gasp, she informed me it could not be, but when I sat thinking it over after the post arrived, the verse kept ringing in my ears: 'Ye did it not to Me' 'Ye did it not to Me.' You have everything to make you happy, money, home, all things going well with your farm, and 'Ye did it not to me,' so when Mrs. Butler said, "It is impossible," I replied to her astonishment, 'Those are my wishes, and I am going to meet the little ones at the station this day a week.' So with rather an ill grace Mrs. Butler retired.

"Those eight children arrived full of glee at seeing the golden corn, the buttercups and daisies, and I must say they were all clean and tidy. They amused me very much at the questions they asked, for they seemed utterly ignorant of country life. They were four girls and four boys, so required two rooms and the night before they left, I thought I would go up to their room and see whether they were asleep, but on reaching the door, I heard a little voice from the girls' room saying: 'O, God bless the kind gentleman who has given us this treat, and may we meet him in Heaven for Jesus' sake.'

"That was the turning point in my life. 'Meet the child in Heaven!' Why was I sure of going there myself? I went down to my Study—got out my long-neglected Bible, and opening it my eyes caught on the text, 'He that believeth in the Son hath everlasting life.' 'Hath' well that means 'now' —not in the future. If the little girl upstairs is so sure, I ought to be as certain as she is. I knew I had tried to be upright and steady and kind to people—but now I realized this was not enough either to satisfy me or God. So I went down on my knees there and then, and pleaded that 'the Blood of Jesus Christ which cleanseth from all sin' might cleanse me. The prayer was not in vain. A deep peace came into my heart, and so I felt that the visit of the eight little children more than compensated me for all the trouble I had taken in the matter."

"Well," I made answer. "Yours has been a most interesting story, and I can only say how true are the words, 'A little child shall lead them,' and I am sure your kindness in having the little ones has been fully repaid."—Selected.

UNTIL SEVEN TIMES

Lu Ching did not come to the mission school. All her little Chinese friends came, but Lu Ching never came farther than the corner, because her father had forbidden her going to the foreigners' school.

"They are not to be trusted," he would say.

One day Elsie, the missionary's daughter, heard the little Chinese girls her own age lamenting that Lu Ching could not come to the mission with them.

For a long time Elsie wondered what she could do to bring Lu Ching into the school. But she could not think of a plan.

"At least it will do no harm to be kind," Elsie thought.

So the next morning she went down to the corner, and when Lu Ching came with the others Elsie gave her one of her own dolls. Lu Ching was made to understand that it was to be hers to keep. Then she went slowly homeward, hugging her new doll very close to her fluttering heart. She was wondering if her father would allow her to keep it.

It was Elsie who was surprised the next day. Lu Ching came farther than the corner this time. She hung around the grounds of the mission school all the forenoon and did not leave until Elsie had given her another doll.

Every day after that it was the same. Lu Ching would not go home until she had another doll cradled in her arms to carry with her. Elsie began to grow alarmed. She could not part with all her dolls, she would tell herself. They were the only toys she had brought with her from America, and she loved them so. But Lu Ching kept coming until the dolls were all given to her but Elsie's most beautiful one. This was a doll that could walk, and talk, and go to sleep.

Elsie hoped that Lu Ching would not come that day. But she did. Elsie went in the house and cried, and told herself she would not part with her last doll. But all day the Chinese girl did not go away. Standing at the window, Elsie noticed at last that Lu Ching looked very sad indeed. Then after a while Lu Ching started home. Elsie felt relieved and glad to play. Then on the porch she stopped and listened breathlessly.

Lu Ching was crying! Elsie could hear her distinctly.

Elsie hugged her doll close to her heart for a moment, then away she ran after Lu Ching. That day the Chinese girl carried home with her Elsie's last and most beautiful doll.

The next day Elsie was very unhappy. She did not even notice how the Chinese girls' faces were beaming when they came to the school. Then suddenly Elsie opened her eyes wide in surprise.

Lu Ching was coming with the other girls to the school! What could it mean? Elsie was to know very soon. For the girls were all crowding around her and thanking her in their queer way, with much bowing before her.

They told how Lu Ching's father had told his father that if the foreign girl gave a doll seven times, then he knew she was really in earnest and he would permit her to go to the school. "For," he had said, "if one persons gives to another until seven times, he giveth from the heart."

Elsie remembered at once that she had given Lu Ching just seven dolls in all. How she thrilled with happiness now because she had not withheld from giving her best.—Gladys M. Gearhart in Picture World.

HOW TO CONQUER GIANT SELFISHNESS

There were two little boys named James and William. One day as they were just starting for school their father gave them each a five-cent piece to spend as they liked. The little fellows were very much pleased with this, and went off as merry as crickets.

"What are you going to buy, William?" said James after they had walked a little way.

"I don't know," William replied; "I have not thought yet. What are you going to buy?"

"Why, I tell you what I believe I'll do. You know mother is sick. Now, I believe I'll buy her a nice orange. I think it will taste good to her."

"You may do that if you please, James," said William; "but I am going to buy something for myself. Father gave me the money to spend for myself, and I mean to do it. If mother wants an orange, she can send for it. She has money, and Hannah gets everything she wants."

"I know that," said James, "but then it would make me so happy to see her eating an orange that I had bought for her with my own money. She is always doing something for us, or getting us some nice thing, and I want to let her see that I don't forget it."

"Do as you please," said William, "but I go in for the candy." Presently they came to a confectioner's shop.

William spent his five cents for cream candy; but James bought an orange. When they went home at noon, he went into his mother's chamber and said: "See mamma, what a nice orange I have brought to you!"

"It is indeed very nice, my son, and it will taste very good to me. I have been wanting an orange all the morning. Where did you get it?"

"Father gave me five cents this morning, and I bought it with that."

"You are very good, my dear boy, to think of your sick mother. And you wouldn't spend your money for cakes or candy, but denied yourself, that you might get an orange for me. Mother loves you for this exercise of self-denial." And she threw her arms around his neck and kissed him.

Now, you see how Giant Selfishness made an attack on these two boys. James fought him off bravely by the exercise of self-denial. William refused to exercise self-denial, and so the giant got a hitch of his chain around him. We shall find this giant making attacks upon us all the time. We can fight him off only by self-denial.—Publisher Unknown.

A BEAUTIFUL GIRL

Three girls from wealthy families were one day going to the park to have a picnic. They wore nice clothes, and had their lunch baskets, and were considered cultured girls. They were laughing and having a good time. Soon the street car stopped and into it came a poor girl with her sick brother. They, too, were going to the park. They were poorly dressed. One of the young girls remarked about them, "I wonder if they are going to the park?" Another said, "I hope not; if I looked as they look I should be ashamed to go away from my own door, wouldn't you?" "Yes, indeed," said the other, "but there is no accounting for tastes. I think there ought to be a special line of cars for the lower class." A gentleman sitting near heard them. He wondered if the poor girl had heard what they said. He turned and saw tears in her eyes. Yes, she had heard. Soon the car stopped again, and in came another nicely dressed girl with a bunch of flowers in her hand. The three girls knew her and spoke very pleasantly to her.

"Where are you going?" asked one. "Oh, what lovely flowers!" exclaimed another. "I am on my way to Belle Clarke's. She is sick, and the flowers are for her." Then she saw the poor girl looking wistfully at her. She smiled and went over to the little ones. She said, "The little boy is sick, isn't he, and he is your brother, he clings to you so?" "Yes, Freddy is sick; he has never been very well. Yes, Miss, he is my brother. We are going to the park to see if it will not make him better."

After a while the pretty girl got out. Half of the flowers she put into the little girl's hands and gave the boy some of her lunch. How happy they were! The little boy said, "What makes her so good to us? She did not call us ragamuffins, and did not mind her dress touching us. She called me 'dear,' she did. What made her?" Sue whispered, "I think it is because she is beautiful as well as her clothes. Beautiful inside, you know." The gentleman heard Sue's remark, and said, "Yes, you are right. The lovely young girl is beautiful inside. She is one of the Lord's dear ones."—Publisher Unknown.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

NOV. 9: WHAT DOES BROTHERHOOD MEAN?

(Armistice Day)

Scripture Text: Matt. 23:8; I John 3:17.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—The All-Father. Mal. 2:10.
Tuesday—Broken brotherhood. Gen. 4:1-15.
Wednesday—Brotherhood means peace. Gen. 45:24.
Thursday—Brotherly love. I John 4:7-11.
Friday—A brotherly deed. Luke 10:29-37.
Saturday—Spirit of brotherhood. John 13:1-17.

Suggestions to the Leader

For this meeting it would be nice to have the chairs arranged in a circle. For decorations use the flags of every nation possible, with a Christian flag over them. You might call the roll of those who have French blood in their veins to arise. Then, English and so on until all the nations represented have been called. It would be interesting to have a brief talk on each of these countries telling something of their chief characteristics and some contribution to the world that that nation has made, and name one or more of their great leaders of the present or the past. In closing, stand and join hands and sing that grand hymn of brotherhood, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Suitable songs: "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "Help Somebody Today," "Come Thou Almighty King," "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," and "America."

Leader's Talk

It would be great blessing to the world if it only knew what brotherhood really meant from actual experience. As we study this topic of brothtrhood may we get a deeper understanding of the true meaning of that great unifying power known as the brotherhood of man.

To Be Discussed

1. What is brotherhood?
2. What makes brotherhood possible?
3. Can brotherhood exist between the rich and the poor? Will will be the effect?
4. How can we be brotherly to people of other nations?
5. How will a brotherhood of man affect the efforts for world peace?
6. How did Jesus show His brotherhood?

Poetry

The meaning of brotherhood will be found in the answer to the question, "What would Jesus do if He were in my place?"

"LIVING, LOVING, LIFTING"

Living in the path His pierced feet have trod.
  Neither for fame nor for glory.
Yet climbing the heights that lead unto God,
  As told in song and in story;
Knowing full well day followeth night,
  As sands through the hour-glass are shifting.
We climb the ladder that leads into light,
  By Living, Loving and Lifting.

Loving the light and sweet grace of His word,
  Loving the truth He hath given,
Practicing ever the truth we have heard,
  Climbing the heights unto Heaven;
Loving the least of the little ones here,
  True to our path never drifting,
We toiled through the night, and passed to the light
  By Living, Loving and Lifting.

Lifting the load of the brother who falls
  With the grace the Master hath given,
Lifting him up where stern duty calls,
  Pointing his feet unto heaven;
Thus we pass on in the pathway of light,
  Though clouds around us be drifting;
We pass through the night, and climb to the height
  By Living, Loving and Lifting.

NOTICE TO PASTORS AND AUXILIARY TREASURERS

In making up your report for conference, please remember that nothing that goes for North Carolina interests counts on your general conference budget. Most of the auxiliary treasurers when sending in money, send some on both budgets and they are given a receipt for the total amount, but in making up your conference report the N. C. credits must be deducted.

The Branch Treasurer makes her report to the Conference Treasurer and we are all very anxious that pastors' reports and Branch Treasurers' reports agree.

Thank you for your help.

MRS. S. W. TAYLOR, Treas.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

The Program Committee which arranged the program for the annual session of our Conference designated Thursday evening as Religious Education night. At this time a message will be given in behalf of Religious Education. We are very fortunate in having as a speaker Dr. P. E. Lindley, of High Point College. Dr. Lindley is head of the Department of Religious Education in the college and is just the person to address the Conference in behalf of Religious Education. This notice is to bring the matter to your attention and to cordially invite you to attend this program, especially the present leaders in church activities. The place: Albemarle, N. C. The time; November 6th at 7:30 p. m. The speaker: Dr. P. E. Lindley. Everybody come!

FRED W. PASCHALL.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

TO THOSE INTERESTED IN METHODIST PROTESTANT CHILDREN AND CHURCHES

The future of your church depends on the training you give the children now. What is being done in your church to educate the children in missions? Below you will find wonderful plans that can be easily carried out by any person of average intelligence, who is as much as 16 years of age. Ask some man in your church to give you the $1.50 as his part in educating the little folks. I think he will do it. Then gather these little folks around you and see if they don't enjoy and appreciate what you do for them. The mothers and fathers will appreciate it too, and before you know it you will have organized a band of Precious Jewels and sent the report of your efforts to me and your money to Mrs. S. W. Taylor, West College Drive, High Point, N. C.

Materials Needed for Pre-School Children

1. "The Three Camels," price 50 cents. This is a small book, very much like the "Peter Rabbit" books, with a picture on one page and opposite a page of text. Use it over and over like you do the "Mother Goose" and "Peter Rabbit" books. You know how small children beg for the same story over and over.

2. "The Missionary Education of Beginners," price $1.00.

Get these books from Mrs. Marie Thompson, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md.

Watch this column for suggestions regarding work with older children.

HOLLISTER WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

On Tuesday afternoon, October 21, the Woman's Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. J. L. Alston. The meeting was opened by piano music played very softly by Miss Sue House. The writer conducted the devotional services. Rev. H. F. Fogleman read the Scripture lesson, after which the president, Mrs. E. T. Ellington, led in prayer. Miss Sue House rendered a beautiful piano solo, which was enjoyed by all. The president presided over the business meeting. The roll was called and 11 members responded. The treasurer's report showed that we had raised some over $93 up to October 25, 1930. Last year we had only raised some over $82 up to this date. We are sending $25 now on our budget. Hope to be able to send the full amount on our budget at an early date.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Cor. Sec'y.

(This is an encouraging report. We like to get reports of progress.

FIRST CHURCH, ALBEMARLE, WHERE CONFERENCE MEETS NOV. 5

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Oak Grove, Near Rural Hall. Sunday was the regular time for preaching. A surprise to some of us was to see three S. S. sacred looking rooms, the work and gift of Brother Luther Long. He is the son of the late A. H. Long, and he gave the memorial structure in honor of his father, one of the charter and leading members of Oak Grove church. This, as a house of God, was dedicated by the pastor at the 3 o'clock service.

The services of the day were the next thing to a regular revival; in fact, I feel to say that it was a revival. The services all throughout made a lively Sabbath day's work for Brother Williams. He preached in the morning and then at 3 o'clock. The services were very much a reminder of the text in Deuteronomy: "Remember the days of old," etc. However, the text for the new dedication was directly on self denial: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself," etc.

We elected a regular reporter in an official manner, but there is often room for something of the "casual" to come in, and the impulse is to venture on this hasty report.

This report is not full at all, but the hope is to see more, and much more, from the official reporter.

The occasion of the day would call for the "voice" of three persons, one of the three being the pastor.
W. F. GRABS.

Seagrove, Why Not Circuit.—Our pastor preached a good sermon last Sunday. He reported all claims paid in full for Seagrove and we are proud of that. We are few in number but we are coming right along. After preaching, church officers were elected as follows:

C. E. Stuart, S. S. superintendent; Noah Williams, Mrs. Nettie Allen, Mrs. James Walker and Mrs. D. J. Johnson, class leaders; H. D. Smith, James Walker and Mrs. C. E. King, trustees.

We are having a good Sunday school with an enrollment of 91.

Our Ladies' Aid Society met Friday night at the home of Mrs. W. H. Neese. Nearly all of the members were present. A few were absent on account of sickness. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Nettie Allen, president; Mrs. D. J. Johnson, vice-president; Mrs. C. E. King, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Noah Williams, assistant.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. C. Auman. The secretary reported $20 cash on hand.

We are expecting Bro. Neese and family back again and we feel much good will be done by their returning to us another year.
MRS. NOAH WILLIAMS.

First Church, Thomasville.—Our church and all its organizations are growing in attendance and interest all the time. We were glad to see such a large number of people stay for preaching Sunday morning. We were especially glad to see the young people present.

On the second Sunday morning of this month, the new officers of the church were installed. We have a fine bunch of officers who are willing to work to make next year a success.

Last Wednesday night the fourth quarterly conference was held at this church. Good reports were handed in at this meeting and we are hoping to have a "paid in full" report by the last of the year so that we may be placed on the honor roll. We are proud of our church and of what it has done this past year and we are looking forward to a greater one next year.

A special feature of last Sunday morning's service was the "Good News" items. Everyone who would was asked to say something good about someone else. There were many good things said about the people of the church. The object of this srvice was to encourage us as church members to find the good instead of the bad in our fellowman.

We were glad to see Mrs. J. J. Watts at church Sunday night. She has been ill for some time, but is getting better now. We hope she will soon be able to attend church regularly as she used to do before her illness.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society was delightfully entertained at a party given by its leader, Mrs. T. G. Madison. After many interesting games, Mrs. Madison served cakes and lemonade.
JUANITA DORSETT, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—The attendance at Sunday school on Sunday, October 19th, was 406, and the offering $16.66, which shows greater improvement.

At the Junior church service last Sunday morning Prof. C. R. Hinshaw presided. This work, since the departure of Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Ballard, has been taken care of by volunteers, who have manifested a beautiful spirit of co-operation in this important phase of church work.

At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning Miss Elizabeth Cowan, a teacher in the city school system, sang a beautiful solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," with fine effect, and the choir rendered a charming anthem, "Hark, Hark, My Soul!" by Shelley, the solo parts being taken by Mrs. J. H. Allred and Arthur Fidler. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered the second in the series on the theme of The Church, the subject being, "Why Join the Church?" He chose for his text Ephesians 5:25: "Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." He said in part that during his residence in New England he was particularly impressed by the centrality of the church, as in a mojority of larger and smaller towns, the church occupies the center, and all other buildings are grouped around it, thus giving it a conspicuous position right in the heart of the community. Enough was said by Jesus as He went out of the world to establish the church. The first step in the salvation of men is a belief in the Lord Jesus and then uniting with some church. A loss of loyalty to the church is a sign of deterioration in the character of any indiivdual. Henry Ward Beecher said that the church is a school where people may learn to live aright. To become a Christian and stay out of the church is very hazardous, and by doing so you detach yourself from association with Christian people, and do not derive much good from your religion. You have been willing to let Jesus die for you, now are you willing to live for Him? If you belong to the church, you are in a working organization, and only in the church can professing Christians work and co-operate together. When President McKinley went into the White House, and the plan of social functions was being arranged, he said emphatically: "Let nothing interfere with our Wednesday evening prayer meeting."

"I gave, I gave my life for thee,
What hast thou done for me?"

At the evening service Mrs. J. H. Allred sang very sweetly "'Tis Jesus," by Harkness, and the choir rendered "Blessed Art Thou," after which the minister brought a practical and timely message on "Self or Christ-Centered."

The annual election of church officials was held Sunday morning after services, and the result will be announced formally in the bulletin next Sunday morning. The following committee was appointed to nominate the church school superintendent: Chairman, Lester B. Teague, M. P. Sechrest, J. B. Spencer, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, and Mrs. Charles Vance.

On Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the Sunshine Circle, composed of children from 6 to 12 years of age, will meet at the church with Mrs. Ross H. Davis, leader.

At the weekly Christian Endeavor meeting on Monday evening at 7:30 o'vlock the members will have a treat, when Rev. Tom Alderman Sykes, the popular and consecrated pastor of Central Friends church, will be present and deliver an address on the topic, "Making America Christian."

The minister will lead the mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening, when the topic will be "Burning, But Not Consumed."

The special interest of the women of the church for this week will center around the bazaar and turkey supper to be held on Thursday, October 30th. Various articles of handwork, both ornamental and useful, candy, potted plants, canned fruits, etc., will be offered for sale at the different booths, and from 5:30 to 8 o'clock p. m. a delicious menu, consisting of roast turkey with dressing and gravy, cranberry sauce, peas and carrots, candied yams, cold slaw, baked apples, pies of assorted kinds, and coffee, will be served. Tickets must be secured beforehand from any member of the Auxiliary. The social room of the church will be used for this occasion.

On Saturday, November 15th, formal exercises will be held for the induction into the presidency of Dr. G. I. Humphreys at High Point College, and hundreds of former students and friends from all parts of the state are expected to attend this gala event. Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of American University, Washington, D. C., will be present, and deliver an address. Dr. Frank P. Graham has been invited to represent the University of North Carolina, of which he is the new president, and Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president Davidson College, has been asked to represent the denominational colleges of the state. The program for this interesting day has been placed in the hands of a competent committee, Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the North Carolina Conference, Mr. R. M. Cox, Winston-Salem, N. C., and Prof. C. R. Hinshaw of the faculty. Dr. Humphreys is entering upon his new duties here with great hope and enthusiasm, and is inspiring courage and loyal faith in the hearts of the Methodist Protestant people of this community to go forward with this great enterprise of Christian education, in which are centered "the hopes and fears of many years" of the denomination.

An important meeting of laymen of the Methodist Protestant church was held Sunday afternoon in First church, when representatives from Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Asheboro, and other nearby towns were present. Among far-reaching subjects brought up for discussion was the proposed union of Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant churches, and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions in regard to this matter to be presented to the session of N. C. Conference convening at Albemarle, N. C., on November 5. Other questions of vital importance that were discussed by this body were the strengthening of High Point College and the Children's Home, two institutions within the borders of the city, that lie very near to he hearts of all Methodist Protestants of North Carolina.

The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, returned home Saturday from a delightful trip to Steubenville, Ohio, where he participated in exercises commemorative of the Centennial anniversary of the church there, which he formerly served as pastor, leaving in 1926. The occasion was a most happy one, there being present five former pastors where Rev. S. W. Rosenberger is now serving. Exercises were held on four evenings, and Rev. Mr. Farmer spoke Tuesday evening to his former flock on "Methodist Protestantism in Dixie," which is a fruitful theme. Dr. Broomfield, president of the General Conference, was also present and delivered an address. Rev. Mr. Farmer also paid a visit to Mrs. Farmer's mother, Mrs. W. G. Fogo, at Wellsville, whom many of our congregation remember with pleasure, and who was recently bereaved by the loss of her husband.

Many friends will be pleased to learn that Postmaster O. R. York, who suffered a heart attack last week in his office, is much improved, and is resting comfortably at his home on Louise avenue. His breakdown is thought to have been caused by the strain of over-work.

◆

Piney Grove.—We are going along with out church work. Our Sunday school is increasing since revival meetings are over. Officers have been elected for the coming year. We feel that we are very fortunate in having J. C. Delk re-elected as superintendent and B. M. Nance as class leader. They are always punctual, and we don't know who could fill their places. Mrs. Ada Garner was elected reporter and I am sure she will send more reports than I have.

Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, filled his last appointment Sunday for this year. He brought us a wonderful message as usual. The Lord's Supper was administered.

Each time that he has preached during the three years he has served us he has brought us messages that were uplifting and inspiring. We feel that the church has been greatly blessed by having this splendid pastor. The membership has not grown so much, but we feel that he has done his part, and that we members have a greater desire for a higher standard of Christian living by his untiring efforts.

We regret very much to say that we are afraid he is not going to serve us another year. Although a unanimous vote was cast for his return he seems to think it best for us to make a change. But whether he comes back or not, he and his family will always have a warm place in our hearts.

We are sorry to say that we are far behind financially, but we hope every effort will be put forth during this short time to raise pastor's salary.

We are glad to have our school teachers with us again. Miss Mattie Hicks, a former teacher, and Miss Myrick, from Greensboro. We feel that they will be a great help in the Sunday school.

The writer was pleased to be in one of Mr. Neese's meetings at New Zion on the Why Not charge. We think he is doing good work there. We were pleased to see Mrs. Neese and to know she was enjoying good health.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MRS. J. T. SURRATT, Reporter.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Rev. H. F. Fogleman is closing a very successful year's work here, and he and Mrs. Fogleman have endeared themselves to the people of Halifax church and community. We are hoping that the stationing committee will return them to us.

Sunday at the regular preaching hour a very interesting sermon by the pastor, Mr. Fogleman used for the text Romans 12:2: "And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." He said in part: Always have pure and clean thoughts in your mind. Read literature that is refined, wholesome and God-like. See good pictures. Perhaps 80 per cent of our thoughts in life come to us by what we see; therefore we should be very careful as to what kind of moving picture we see. Just prior to the sermon Miss Sue House sang a solo, "The Broken Heart."

Officers for the ensuing year were elected Sunday as follows: Stewards, W. E. Knight, S. W. Hardee, E. T. Ellington, Kathleen Shearin; trustees, L. W. Porter, C. R. Knight, G. L. Lee, W. J. Galloway, E. T. Ellington; church treasurer, E. T. Ellington; class leader, Mrs. E. T. Ellington; reporter, Kathleen Shearin; pianist, Miss Estelle Ellington.

The fourth quarterly conference for this charge convened at Bethesda church October 24. The attendance was good. All six churches of the charge were presented. The various reports were given and they were very good. The conference unanimously voted for the return of our present pastor. We are going to expect our delegate to bring him back to us if possible. Miss Blanche Hardee has been elected alternate delegate.

◆

Oak Grove, Cleveland Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference met with Mount Moriah on Saturday, October 25, preaching in the morning by former pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris. His sermon was an inspiration to all present and very appropriate for the winding up of the business for the Conference year. Attendance was good and everything was unanimous for the return of the present pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge. We have enjoyed having Brother Ridge and his fine family for the past two years. They have been a great help to our community. We feel that much good has been accomplished. May the Lord continue to bless him in his work is our prayer. Brother Charlie Grant, one of our distinguished members, has moved to High Point to enter college. We regret very much to lose him and his family. We wish him success in his work.

Our pastor filled his appointment at Oak Grove Sunday morning, preaching a fine sermon, after which officers were installed for the coming year.

We were glad to have Miss Marcie Pendleton, of Morganton, with us Sunday.

Officers were elected for the C. E. Sunday night. We pray that our young people will be more interested in our C. E. work and that much good may be done in the coming year.

MRS. F. H. GRIGG, Reporter.

◆

South Lexington.—Our work is still in progress. One hundred and ninety six were present in Sunday school Sunday morning. Officers were elected for the coming year for Sunday school and church. Practically the same ones were re-elected in Sunday school, as follows: Mr. H. C. Koonts, superintendent; Mr. Snider, assistant; Mr. Grady Lanning, secretary.

Mr. Isley filled his last morning appointment with us Sunday and a good crowd was out to listen to him; with good hopes we could listen to him another year. Rev. Madison preached for us Sunday night and a large crowd was also out to hear him and all hope we may have the pleasure of hearing him again.

On Sunday, October 19, every one that could and would was asked to pay the tenth of one week's work toward our church assignments, so this past Sunday there was $16.00 in money and $10.00 pledged to be paid this next Sunday.

◆

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Sunday afternoon Pastor Williams brought us a splendid message. A good congregation was present and the service was enjoyed by all.

The last quarterly conference was held at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 25. This quarterly conference was one of the best attended that has been held on this charge in many a year. The conference voted for the return of the present pastor.

President Taylor was with us in our last quarterly conference and preached for us at the evening hour. The message that was delivered by Mr. Taylor was one of great interest. The presence of Bro. Taylor is always welcomed by all our people. His kindly and sympathetic interest is felt from the moment he enters the door. Come again, Bro. Taylor.

Sunday school is moving along very nicely under the leadership of Mr. J. T. Hobbs.

We wil not have another preaching appointment until the afternoon of November 23.

Correction: One of the trustees should be Geo. H. Squires instead of S. H. Squires.

ANNIE C. SQUIRES, Reporter.

◆

Tabernacle Church.—Our pastor, Rev. H. L. Isley, is closing a very successful year's work. A unanimous vote was cast at the fourth quarterly conference for the pastor's return.

The third Sunday in October officers for the new year were elected.

Last Sunday Rev. Mr. Isley brought us a splendid message—Text, Matthew 5:6: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Sunday just after preaching. It was decided to give a Harvest-Home donation to the Children's Home, and asked that the things be left at Mr. Arthur Coble's home.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Fountain Place, Gibsonville.—We held special services beginning the second Sunday in this month, continuing until the third Sunday night. We had the best attendance since being here as pastor. The people in the community turned out better than in our spring meeting. The doors of the church will be opened next Sunday for reception of members and we are hoping for some increase at least.

We are up to date on our debt at Fountain Place and there has been extensive improvement made at Gibsonville during the year, such as re-covering the church and repapering inside. The loss of the parsonage there by fire, we are hoping, will cause to be built a better and better located home for the pastor.

There has not been a large increase at either church this year, though there is material that needs to be gone after. The co-operation at each church has been encouraging and the treatment from the congregations has been such as to give assurance of appreciation of the efforts made. They realize, to be sure, that all cannot be done in arrangement like this that could be done where each church has their own pastor.

The work of the Auxiliary at each place is under efficient leadership and the ladies at both places have raised the Branch allotment and have been a grat help in raising money for local purposes. We also have splendid Sunday schools and they are headed up by a fine lot of leaders.

Finances are somewhat behind but we are hoping that there may be a general rallying in these last days. There is no reason why a much greater year's work may not be done next year. Indications point that way.

Much has been done to show appreciation of the pastor and family as there has been in most cases a hearty response to appeals for co-operation.

Those who have remembered us in a way that encourages are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Meachum, Porter Scott, Mrs. Barker, R. G. Hornaday and wife, Mrs. Dr. Kernodle, Mrs. W. A. Shoffner, Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gibbs, Mrs. T. A. Amick, D. M. Davidson, J. T. Roundtree, C. R. Ephland, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. McCollum, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wright, C. J. Truitt, Lednum Amick, Miss Mattie Parrott, Mrs. C. C. Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Amick, Mr. and Mrs. June Sharpe, Miss Orpha Burgess, Mrs. G. C. Fogleman, J. W. Sharpe, Mrs. Egbert Greeson, Mrs. J. P. Huffman, and Mrs. C. B. Amick has a hen that has just laid lots of eggs for the preacher's family. We thank one and all and if we have left out any names we appreciate the gifts just the same. We also thank our friends in the country where we have helped in meetings for their remembrances also. And, by the way, one thing I came very near forgetting: the unusual—one preacher's wife giving another a chicken. (Hardly ever any to spare when there is a hungry preacher to feed). But this really happened this year and the donor was Mrs. J. L. Trollinger. Thank you, one and all, for these kind remembrances.

This has been a very busy year, and I suppose every pastor can say that. But when you serve two charges, what you do at one place has to be duplicated at the other and that keeps you thinking all the time that you treat each charge alike. Rather hard to do, for naturally where you live there are so many things that you do that can be done at odd times. I think that is one of the best arguments that a pastor should be with his people, live among them.

We are looking forward to Annual Conference next week and are hoping and praying that it may be successful in every way.

Pleasant Grove.—We held our fourth quarterly conference October 22. Bro. Z. B. Morris was elected alternate. Church officers for the ensuing year have been duly elected and installed. We have received 17 members into the church this year. Sunday school and C. E. are doing god work. However, we are right much behind on budgets, but we are expecting within the next few days to raise the larger part of it, if not all.

The Brotherhood met with Bro. W. T. Murphy Saturday night, the 25th of October, and was well attended. After the business session we were served delicious refreshments. We will hold our next meeting with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Meredith.

The community had quite a shock Thursday evening, the 23rd, when Miss Helen Kennedy, Frances Kennedy, Alice and Catherine Kennedy, were hit by a passing automobile, demolishing the car they were in. They were all rushed to the High Point hospital where they received treatment for their cuts and wounds. We are glad to say they are all at home now and getting on nicely.

Asheville.—Sunday, October 26th, was to have been our installation service but sickness kept some of the officers elected for the church away, so the service was postponed.

In the evening at 6:45 Mr. E. C. Fawcett conducted the Christian Endeavor meeting; subject, "Road-Building Across America and the World." He developed the subject and the lessons he gave us were beautiful and helpful: he is a deep thinker and a wonderful Bible student.

At 7:30 the Woman's Auxiliary had charge of the service, which was a beautiful and impressive one. Mrs. Ralph Beacham, our efficient president, presided. Those taking part were Mrs. Beacham, Mrs. Bolick, Mrs. Foster, Misses Nancy Clouse, Janeth Younginer, Rhea Tagger, Josie McNeill, Arline Hauser, Eula Taylor, Ruth Drake, Mildred Younginer and Mrs. Paschall. Beautiful music was furnished by the choir, with Miss Novella McIntire at the piano. The anthem, "Publish Glad Tidings," was sung by the choir. Rev. Mr. Paschall, Mr. E. H. Pratt, Mr. J. A. McIntire, Mrs. J. A. McIntire, Mrs. Bolick, Misses Elsie Drake, Arline Hanner, Mr. Paschall, Josie McNeill, Janeth Younginer, Nancy Clouse and Mildred Younginer.

The fourth quarterly conference is to be held Wednesday evening at the church. We are hoping to have a good crowd. Mrs. Ralph Beacham is our delegate to Conference.

Last week Mrs. C. C. McNeill entertained the Woman's Auxiliary at her home Thursday afternoon. We had good reports and a good crowd. Delicious refreshments were served.

Friday evening Miss Josie McNeill entertained the C. E. for their business meeting and social afterward. Rev. F. W. Paschall won first prize for answering the greatest number of prominent preachers and women in our Conference. Mrs. E. H. Pratt received a three months' subscription to the church paper for answering the fewest questions.

Mount Pleasant, North Davidson Charge.—Sunday was a good day for us in many ways. First, Bro. Powell brought us a very splendid sermon. He opened the service by reading the Ten Commandments. His text was "Will a Man Rob God?" One of the most serious questions ever asked or heard of is, "Will a man rob God? We say we don't rob God, and we are perfectly honest when we make this statement, but we do rob God. I don't mean this local church, but all the denominations are robbing God. Yes, we have robbed God in many ways: 1st, we hide in ambush and seize the man and take his property. Highway robbery is getting to be a serious thing. It has got to be unsafe for a man to even get on the hightways; 2nd, is oppression, and that is by taking advantage of our fellowmen and taking what don't belong to us. He that oppresses the widow is a robber. Robbery by withholding is another very serious thing and this is robbing God. We are robbing God by withholding from God what belongs to him; by not attending church, Sunday school and Christian Endeavor and every other organization of the church. Bro. Powell said he had been in the ministry 36 years and usually when we come to the financial part of the church the membership gives just as little as they can. Jacob was the first man to make a tithe that we have an account of in the Bible. "A man should give a tenth of all his income to the church," were Bro. Powell's closing words.

Sunday was "Communion Day," and we had a large number to partake in the Lord's feast.

We elected the church officers, as it was the last appointment of this Conference year. The following officers were elected: P. C. Reid, class leader; Mrs. H. M. Perryman, assistant class leader; G. R. Stone, secretary and treasurer of the board of trustees. The old board of trustees was re-elected and also the old board of stewards was re-elected; organist, Mrs. W. A. Clodfelter; assistant organist, Joseph Payne; superintendent of Sunday school, J. R. Stone, correspondent to church paper, Ruth Payne.

We had several visitors with us in Sunday school and church; among these were Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Murphy, from Martinsville, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Nifong were also among the number. Mr. Robert Motsinger and two children from Fairview were there. We are always glad to have these people with us and hope they will come again. We extend to them a very hearty welcome to come again.

We are under the impression that Spring Hill Sunday school and Christian Endeavor will be with us in Sunday school and Christian Endeavor next Sunday. We will also have Mr. Ornie Koontz, former president of state-wide Christian Endeavor, to speak to the congregation next Sunday at 11 o'clock. We urge all to be present at this time.

Our church seems to be growing and we hope it will continue doing so.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon Charge.—The third Sunday Rev. J. Elwood Carroll's splendid message was on "The Way That Leads to Life." Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Trustees, J. A. Crabtree, J. H. Wood, C. M. Neese, A. C. Thompson, E. F. Holt; stewards, Geo. M. Isley, C. C. Holt, Willard Isley; superintendent of Sunday school, L. P. Holt; class leader, John P. Loy.

Finances are behind, but if each member will do his part everything will soon be paid. The stewards are trying to see each one and raise the entire amount.

This church is nearing its one hundredth mile-post. Miss Effie Keck, John P. Loy and Mrs. J. A. Crabtree were appointed to prepare a program appropriate to the occasion. To date they have the following: Friday evening, October 31st, the Woman's Auxiliary and C. E. Society will present a drama, "Serving Two Masters;" Saturday evening, November 1st, the history of this splendid old church will be given by Rev. Geo. W. Holmes and others. Mr. Holmes is one of our oldest and most esteemed members and knows more about this church than any other living person. The Junior quartet from the First M. P. church, Burlington, will sing Sunday morning, November 2, at 10 o'clock Sunday school. At 11 o'clock we hope to have Dr. Humphreys, president of High Point College, speak and the male quartet from the same institution sing. Dinner on the ground, picnic fashion. In the afternoon the pastor will preach. President Taylor, our beloved editor, all former pastors, absent members, and anyone interested have a special invitation to be present.

The Woman's Auxiliary opened Sunday school October 26 with a temperance program. Mr. S. A. Sharpe made a splendid talk in which he warned the young people especially to be temperate in all things.

Davidson Circuit.—Our last quarterly conference has been held and plans were laid for the coming year. One notable thing that was done was the reducing of salary from $1,250 to $1,000, which will make it much easier for the stewards to raise and the people to pay and less cumbersome to the pastor.

Our good brother, N. L. Fine, was elected delegate alternate. The delegate was sent to Conference uninstructed on recommendation of pastor.

As the year closes we are receiving increased expression, in a substantial way, of the love of the good people of the charge. We have recently been remembered by Mrs. Lizzie Cranford with a nice box of canned fruits, linens, etc. Mrs. N. L. Fine, Mrs. Cottie Morris, Mrs. Whit Wood, Mrs. Van Wood, Mrs. Frank Lanier, Mrs. Thos. Hall, Mrs. N. E. Loflin, Mrs. W. A. Frank, Mrs. Dola Harris, Mrs. J. P. Elliott, Mrs. B. K. Taylor, Mrs. Jim Loflin, and perhaps others whom we do not recall now, but we are no less grateful. Our pantry is crowded and we find ourselves unequal to the taks of devouring it all. May God richly bless the good people of Davidson and lead them as we go out from them into other fields of endeavor.

Orange Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference met with the Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 25th. A large attendance of the officials were present besides a number of visitors. President Taylor was present and presided over the conference. The business was transacted harmoniously. The reports showed a deficit on all financial claims. We are making a desperate effort to close up the year's work in as good shape as possible.

Bro. C. A. Bivins was elected alternate delegate. Pastor's salary was fixed and apportioned as this year. The conference instructed for the return of the present pastor. We appreciate this vote of confidence.

Was especially glad to have President Taylor with us. His words of council and encouragement are greatly appreciated.

Fairfield, Guilford Circuit. The attendance at Sunday school has been keeping a good pace for the past month. The number on roll has been increasing somewhat. Added interest has been shown, and through the Workers' Council which was organized last Sunday, the school is expected to continue to grow. It is the duty of this Council to visit those who are slack in attending and induce them to be more prompt and also to see those who are uninterested and by some means get them interested in the work. It is also the duty of this Council to help the teachers and officers of the Sunday school solve the problems which confront them. This Council is to have regular meetings to help them carry on the work; we are expecting great results from their efforts.

At the quarterly conference last Saturday held at Mount Pleasant church, Mr. J. D. Strader from Fairfield, the delegate to the Annual Conference, was instructed to present the name of Rev. E. O. Peeler before the stationing committee for their pastor for another year. Mr. and Mrs. Peeler are much beloved throughout this circuit.

Plans are now under way for the organization of a Christian Endeavor at our church. Such a society is very much needed throughout the rural districts as well as cities. It is a fine place to get the young folk of the church started to work and take an active part in the church program. It is also a good place to discover new talent as well as to develop the already discovered talents. It affords opportunities which the Sunday school and meetings for worship do not afford. We are in hopes that the young folk will take an active part in this part of the church program.

A group has been meeting at the church on Sunday evenings for prayer services for the past few weeks. The number present was not so great but the spirit of the meeting was excellent.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our pastor delivered a splendid sermon to us at the evening hour yesterday. Some of our hearts were sad as we realized it might be the last time we are to hear him. At the closing of the service Miss Annie Ruth Burnette was baptized. We all welcome Mr. Tom Gaston as the husband of Miss Kate Compton into this community. We wish for them many years of happiness together.

Sunday schol and church are to be re-organized next Sunday afternoon.

West Forsyth.—These are very busy days for pastors, stewards and other officials. More should be done than can be done in the brief time left to finish up the year's work.

Our service at Harmony Grove church last Sunday morning was well attended and splendid interest was shown in the service. An unusually large number of persons participated in the Lord's Supper. After the service the pastor and family went to the home of Misses Mittie and Lessie Todd by previous invitation. A birthday dinner occasion had been arranged in honor of their father. About 50 people were present and enjoyed the sumptuous dinner which was spread on a long table in the yard.

Church officers have been elected at three of the churches and the other three will elect officers this week and next Sunday. Pastor's salary has been paid in full at four of the churches and only small amounts are due at the other two churches. Tabernacle church has the honor of being the first church to pay in full on salary.

The revival meeting at Pleasant Hill church closed on Friday night of last week. Rev. C. G. Isley, of Lexington, did all of the preaching from Sunday night to the close of the meeting. Two services were held daily, at 2 o'clock in the afternon and 7:30 o'clock at night. The people say that Bro. Isley did some of the best preaching heard at this church in recent years. He seemed at his best and the people came to the services gladly. The sermons were instructive, uplifting and inspiring. There were 11 professions and six accessions. Those uniting on profession of faith were Lois Long and Nora Mae Whitman. The other four, coming by transfer from other churches were: Prof. W. B. Speas, Mrs. W. B. Speas, Miss Martha Louise Speas and Mrs. Mary V. Sprinkle. We are very glad to have these additions to our membership at Pleasant Hill. Bro. Speas has served as superintendent of the Sunday school for a number of years and Mrs. Speas has rendered valuable service as a teacher in the Sunday school and member of the church choir. Their younger daughter, Miss Johnny, united with Pleasant Hill last October. Prof. Speas is now teaching in the high school at Lewisville, Forsyth county, and was superintendent of schools in Forsyth county from 1903 to 1923. Bro. Isley was given a donation of $25 as a token of appreciation for his splendid preaching and good work with us during the meeting.

The fourth quarterly conference was held at Stony Knoll church Friday of last week. Rev. C. G. Isley delivered the sermon at 11 o'clock. Dinner was served at the church by the people of Stony Knoll, and the business session was held in the afternoon. Encouraging reports were made by superintendents of Sunday schools and others. The pastor reported very successful revival meetings at all of the churches, with a total of 68 professions and 41 accessions during the year. A total of 503 pastoral visits was made and $940.95 paid on pastor's salary. C. G. Hunter was elected alternate delegate to Annual Conference. By a unanimous vote of the conference the pastor's salary was increased from $1,000 to $1,200 for the next year. The conference also voted unanimously instructing the delegate to ask for the return of the pastor for another year. Five of the churches were represented, Tabernacle church not being represented.

The appointments at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches next Sunday will complete the work of the conference year. We sincerely appreciate all of the kindness shown us during the year, in appropriate gifts and the splendid hospitality of the people.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Kannapolis Church.—Sunday was a splendid day for us. We observed the sacrament of the Lord's Supper with a good attendance. Officers were elected for the coming year. The Tilley quartet sang two beautiful selections. We are planning a program for Rally Day to be observed Sunday, October 26. We are very proud of our work for this year and are hoping we will get our pastor, Rev. J. R. Love, back for the coming year.

The Tilley reunion was held at the home of Grandmother Tilley Sunday. Grandmother Tilley is 81, the oldest member of our church, and is a regular and faithful worker for the kingdom of our Master.

Union Grove.—At an election of church officers Sunday Blaine M. Madison and O. Glenn Templeton were elected to lead the Sunday school for the coming Conference year.

Blaine M. Madison, principal of Central Junior High School, was elected as superintendent. His qualifications for the position are of the best, since he is an alumnus of High Point College and a graduate student at Duke University, and has had considerable experience in Sunday school work, as well as in the public high schols of Iredell county. He once served as assistant superintendent and has been teaching the senior class for some time.

O. Glenn Templeton was elected as assistant superintendent. He is a rural mail carrier of Olin and one of the leading citizens of Union Grove community. He has had a great deal of experience in Sunday school work and his competency as a leader has been well proved. He has just completed one term as assistant superintendent.

The election of other officials was as follows: Pianist, Mrs. W. P. Vanhoy; class leader, Mr. J. A. Wooten; board of stewards, Mrs. Raymond Weisner, Leonard Templeton, Gwyn Cash, R. F. Rash; reporter, Mrs. R. F. Rash; trustees, J. A. Wooten, Leonard Templeton, A. J. Crater, and Will Trivette; secretary, Mary Lee White.

Union Grove is one of the largest and most progressive rural churches in the county, and the election of officers is an event of no small importance. The Sunday School is well organized and has seven classes with well trained teachers.

FLEET B. MADISON.

Union Grove.—This is the kind of work I am always willing to do. That is why I gladly took the place last Sunday when I was elected reporter. I am always ready to do my best in any kind of church work. This is my first time to attempt to send in a report, so excuse all my failures.

The hearts of this community were saddened the past week from the passing away of Rev. Robert Meek, of Cherryville. In his boyhood days he attended Union Grove church. He lived with his parents there in seeing distance of the church. His voice will be missed. He delivered many splendid sermons at this church.

The last quarterly meeting before Conference was held last Saturday night at South Winston. Union Grove's report was 100 per cent. The pastor's salary is paid and we have $8.00 left in the budget. We have helped those who are in need this month. Our superintendent was sick and the Sunday school gave a pounidng while to their surprise they received many gifts.

Rev. O. B. Williams delivered his third Sunday afternoon service last Sunday as usual. His sermons are always enjoyed. We can say the Conference sent the best they had and we trust they will do the same the coming year. Bro. Williams is splendid to visit the sick.

As our Sunday school attendance is not so great, we need the prayers of all the Christian people. We are praying for you all.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.—As our Conference year is nearing its close and I haven't reported to the paper right recently I will now make a short report of my special meetings held this year.

We began at Pinnacle the fifth Sunday in June with Bro. Stubbins for our help. We had no conversions or accessions here, but we are sure that with all the good preaching that was done there was much and lasting good accomplished.

Our meeting at Shoals began the second Sunday in July. Rev. R. A. Hunter was our help here. We had two conversions and two accessions to the church.

Mount Zion the third Sunday in July with Bro. Ashburn as help. Here we had 45 conversions and reclamations; 29 added to the church.

Pilot the first Sunday in October. Bro. Ashburn helped us again here. We had four accessions to the church. All of these brethren did good, earnest work, which was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by the pastor and all who attended the services.

We are doing our best to bring to Conference as good a report as possible financially and otherwise. Bro. O. P. Jones is delegate to Conference and Bro. E. F. Stone alternate.

We held our fourth quarterly conference the 19th of this month; each church was represented. The usual business was transacted with a unanimous vote for the return of the present pastor.

I trust and pray that we may have a good and harmonious Conference.

A. L. HUNTER.

◆

South Winston.—We are closing a good year on South Winston charge; we have served as pastor on this charge since the sudden death of Pastor P. L. Kinnaman last February. We have been kindly received and have held all the special meetings on the charge and recived 28 new members. This charge will pay the pastor's salary in full, and both the general and annual conference claims. There are scme of the finest people we ever servd on South Winston charge.

Our fourth quarterly conference has been held and the delegate, Bro. J. E. Rich, has been instructed to ask the Annual Conference to return the present pastor for another year.

The South Winston church is making real progress, having bought and paid for a lot on which to build a new church, and having raised a nice little sum on the new building. We have a fine Ladies' Aid Society that have proved themselves to be good workers; they are right on the job all the time raising money for their new church building.

The Sunday school, with Bro. W. H. Smith, has more than doubled in attendance this year over that of last year.

We have not lived on the charge, but have lived in our own house near Hillsboro and Fairview church; however we have spent many week-ends on South Winston charge and have made many visits among our people and they have been exceedingly kind to us. The following have remembered us with special gifts: Bro. H. M. Chrisler, J. A. Horton, Emery Mock, Bro. Tesh, Rev. R. L. Vickory, Mrs. J. G. Smith and Mrs. Warren; also our good friend, Bro. W. F. Grabs, gave us some apples. He is known about Rural Hall and at King as "the apple man." We all think a great deal of Bro. Grabs.

We found this charge very much discouraged last February because they had lost a good pastor by sudden death; and the boundary of their charge having been changed last year which cut their pastor's salary about $400. We believe that there is a great future for this charge. At South Winston we have a fine C. E. Society.

Lineberry Church.—The Ladies' Aid held its regular monthly meeting Saturday afternoon, October 11, at the home of Mrs. Claude Elliott. The meeting was called to order by the president. Song, "Amazing Grace;" Scripture lesson read by Mrs. B. E. Lanier; Lord's Prayer in unison; roll called and dues collected; minutes read and approved.

The society paid $10 on the piano purchased for the church. Reports were given by the different committees. Mrs. W. A. Frank and Mrs. Claude Elliott handed in more Octagon coupons for Children's Home. After the business meeting a delightful social hour was spent, Mrs. Whit Wood being in charge.

At the close of the evening sandwiches, cakes and tea were served to the 10 members present.

Since our last report we have one new member, Mrs. T. E. Byerly. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. W. W. Russell.

THOMPSON SCHOOL REUNION

Plans have been completed for a great reunion of all the students of the late Prof. J. A. W. Thompson at Siler City, N. C., on Friday and Saturday, November 14th and 15th. Professor Thompson taught at Oakdale Academy from 1880 to 1886 and at Siler City from 1886 to 1896, and had thousands of students at the two places.

Friday morning, November 14th, the program will open with the historical address by Dr. W. T. Whitsett, of Whitsett, followed by Dr. J. A. Campbell, of Buie's Creek; Rev. E. W. Fox, of Marion; Hon. E. H. Williams, of Smithfield, Va.; Hon. L. L. Wren, Siler City, and Rev. J. W. Bradley, of Siler City.

Friday afternoon talks will be made by Prof. W. S. Snipes, of Newton; Rev. M. D. McNeill, of Cameron; Prof. Zeno Dixon, of Elkin; Prof. J. N. Thompson, of Graham; Hon. W. D. Siler, of Raleigh; and Mrs. Miriam Tucker Mann, of Durham.

Friday at 7 p. m. the reunion supper will be held with all former students taking part.

Saturday, November 15th, talks will be made by Dr. C. E. Hodgin, of Greensboro; Dr. R. M. Andrews, of High Point; Hon. A. M. Moore, of Fayetteville; Dr. D. F. Nicholson, of Greensboro; Dr. Chas. Fox Anderson, of Lexington, Ky., and Capt. W. S. Durham, of Siler City.

The local committees of Siler City have done much work, and the outlook is for a great gathering of prominent men from all over this and other states for the occasion. The reunion is expected to bring together one of the largest crowds even seen at a school reunion in the South. Every former student of Prof. J. A. W. Thompson is cordially invited to arrange to be present. Ample provision is being made to take care of a very large crowd.

We thank you for these offerings.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Miss Jewel Heflin, Comanche, Okla., for the Missionary Society, 2 quilts.

Mrs. W. C. Hortice, Zoar, Mecklenburg, 1 quilt.

Mrs. W. W. Osborne, Zoar, Mecklenburg, 1 shirt and 2 suits of underwear for boys.

Mrs. J. D. Adkins, Zoar, Mecklenburg, 1 bedspread, 6 waists for little boys, 4 pieces of underwear, 2 slips, 2 pair stockings and 1 little dress.

Thank these good ladies for their gifts, which will add comfort to several children.

Two gifts of money are very worthy of note this time. Miss Sue Jarrell, of Tennessee, sends a check for $6.00 out of her "tithes" as a thank-offering for the Home. If she had not tithed she doubtless would not have had the $6.00 to be thankful with.

Another one dollar bill came with the following letter, which we pass on as our appeal to God's children this week. The letter says: "I read your appeal for the children of the High Point Home, and the needs of the children have always touched my heart more than any other call for help. My own childhood days were happy and bright, with full and plenty. And I always felt so sorry for those who did not have it like I did. Now I am an old lady in the M. P. Church Home, with nearly all my loved ones gone. I am almost 77 years old. My thank-offering this year to my home church in Baltimore, I am sending to you. Not having any income, I never can help much, but I still earn a little by tatting. So I am going to send you the widew's mite, hoping it will be a little help. If everyone who reads your appeal would send a little it would help you much. God bless you in your work will be the prayer of your sincere friend, Mrs. C. F. Baum."

Isn't that a fine letter, breathing the Spirit of the Christ. Truly "She hath done what she could."

Octagon Coupons

A goodly number of friends have been sending in the coupons. Among them is another good bunch from our little friend, John Law Wood, Handy, N. C. We thank all those who have thus helped. Please keep it up, and we will certainly have enough to install the other refrigerator before spring.

Board Meeting

Our board of trustees is called to meet on Thursday of this week, October 30th, and we are hoping for a good meeting. Any money you wish us to include in our report to Conference this year must reach us not later than Tuesday morning, November 4. Conference opens Wednesday morning, November 5th, so at noon on Tuesday our books must be closed for this Conference year. Please send along any money you may have for the Home. Thank you and God bless you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

REPORT OF LADIES' AID SOCIETY OF SOUTH LEXINGTON CHURCH

For Year of 1929-1930

Paid former pastor for year 1927-28	$154.00
Paid on pastor's salary this year	130.00
Bought stove for church	12.00
Paid out for charities	41.00

Given away for charitable causes the following articles: seven shirts, four tons of coal, 20 pair hose, 30 dresses, 47 yards cloth; nine pair shoes, seven caps and hats, five sweaters, four bed sheets, eight pair overalls, three pair pillow cases, 14 pair pants, one bed quilt, two floor druggets, two blankets, two suits underwear, 50 dozen eggs, seven chickens; made 800 visits.

We as members of the Ladies' Aid Society are glad to have such a report as this to turn in, realizing that this has been a hard year for the working class of people and this is what our church is composed of. We want to state that if it had not been for the untiring work of the president, Mrs. B. F. Everidge, and Mr. and Mrs. Isley we could not have had such a good year together.

On Sunday morning between the Sunday school and preaching service the Ladies' Aid had a business meeting to elect the officers for the coming Conference year. The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. B. F. Everidge; vice-president, Mrs. Fred Disher; devotional leader, Mrs. H. C. Koonts; secretary, Mrs. Savannah Craven; reporter, Mrs. Alice Gibson; treasurer, Mrs. Phonse Bean; flower and sick committees, Mrs. David Brooks, Mrs. H. C. Koonts, Mrs. J. H. Yates, Mrs. Elsie Walser, Mrs. Kate Myers, Mrs. B. F. Everidge; social committee, Mrs. C. L. Hedrick, Mrs. W. A. Snider, Mrs. J. H. Yates.

ONE IS YOUR MASTER EVEN CHRIST AND ALL YE ARE BRETHREN.

VOLUME XXXVII GREENSBORO, N. C., NOVEMBER 6, 1930 NUMBER 1

A Doxology Expanded

Praise God from whom all blessings flow!
For summer's rain and winter's snow,
For food and raiment as we need,
For soul's supplies, our greatest meed.

Praise Him, all creatures here below!
On whom the gentle winds do blow,
Who feast their eyes on golden light,
And gain new strength in silent night.

Praise Him above, ye heavenly host!
Ye angels sent from coast to coast,
Ye blessed saints of God on high,
Ye spirits of light beyond the sky.

Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost!
To whom we owe the best and most,
From whom come hope and help and life
To save us all from sin and strife.

Whose Success Do We Seek?

One great difference between Jesus and his disciples was, they were seeking for their own personal success and He was seeking for the success of a cause. They were aspiring for high positions of honor: He was seeking for the spread of the great truths involved in the Gospel of salvation. They were seeking to promote their own worldly interests: He was seeking to advance the spiritual interests of men everywhere. They were short-sighted: He looked into eternity. They sought to bend him to their purpose: He sought to inspire them with His ideals. If their program carried, they would be honored and enriched. If His program carried, they would be filled with the spirit of self-denial, they would be persecuted and imprisoned and put to death for their testimony to the truth He had made known to them. Jesus and His disciples were at cross purposes. Either He must change or they must change or there would never be agreement between them. Of course Jesus could not descend to their low moral degree. They must be brought up to His high moral altitude. He states to them plainly the ultimatum: "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple." They were looking to self-indulgence as the end and reward of discipleship to Jesus. He was looking to self-denial as the beginning and essential condition of discipleship. What a difference between their psychic state and His. They saw after the manner of worldly men: He saw after the manner of the righteous and all-wise God. Life as they saw it could lead to nothing better than personal aggrandizement. Life as He saw it should lead to perfection of personal character which could be attained only through the course of self-denial.

The difference between self-indulgence and self-denial is still infinite and all-important. Men in their selfish pursuits do not see it. They do not see that the course they are pursuing is leading them away from happiness to a hopeless discontent.

Do we read and preach Christ's gospel with Christ's emphasis? We may easily deceive ourselves. We may imagine that we can serve both God and Mammon and receive the richest rewards of both. Christ tells us that we cannot. What we consider a successful life may be the greatest failure.

More Trouble Comes to the Jews

For many years some of the Jews have been trying strenuously to secure for their race a home in Palestine to which all Jews who would might go and live in a land they could call their own. The outcome of the World War seemed to favor their project and they have been working at it with renewed energy. Palestine was put under British mandate and the Zionist Jews expected great help from the British government. But on account of the trouble last year between Jews and Arabs involving the loss of 241 lives the officials of the British government have decided to stop Jewish immigration to Palestine. This is a great blow to Zionist hopes. In Jerusalem the venerable Rabbi Yedler is reported as entering his synagogue weeping and lamenting, saying, "Sad days have come upon Israel, but better days will follow!" The Jews feel aggrieved by other acts of the British and are making wide-spread and intense protest. But Lord Passfield, the man in authority, declares that his government will not be moved by any pressure or threats. Arabs outnumber Jews in Palestine and the English feel that their mandate requires impartial treatment of all races in the territory. It is a sad day for Jews trying to reintegrate their nation in their old territory, but they must make the best of it. They lost their home through their idolatries, and their centuries-long desolation serves to impress the world with God's abhorrence of sin. Not Jewish sin alone will meet its penalty, but English sin and American sin, your sin and my sin.

—"Just before the World War a great German said: 'If darkness shall ever come over the world, and God and every spiritual virtue grow dim, it may be that the personality of Jesus will save us.' Darkness did come over the world, and the personality of Christ has saved us. It has kept us from giving way to despair. In the gloom of post-war disillusionment, Jesus has been the light of the world, keeping alive the faith that there is a sure ground for human hope."

RESTORING THE HEARER'S BACK-GROUND

By Rev. Luther K. Long

"It was a fairly good show." "I was disappointed." "I thought there would be more to it."

These are some of the remarks I overheard as I walked out of a Washington theatre. The "show" was that incomparable picture, "Abraham Lincoln," featuring Walter Huston in his splendid portrayal of Lincoln.

I repeated these criticisms to my daughter, who had seen the picture before and was with me for a second look.

"The trouble is," she responded, "that many people have such a limited back-ground of knowledge concerning Lincoln and the events of his times. They look at this picture merely as an entertainment. Because it lacks certain qualities of the Wild West shows and does not exploit fierce love-making scenes, such as they have seen in ordinary movies, it fails to satisfy their requirements."

I know she was right. The exhibition of Lincoln's strength, wrestling with the tough young men from Clarey's Grove, was to us entirely satisfactory. His courting of Ann Rutledge and the scene at her deathbed were in most excellent taste. His debate with Douglas was presented with tremendous power. The turmoil in the cabinet, the war scenes, Grant's appearance, Sheridan's ride, Lee's surrender, Lincoln's assassination—all these incidents, and many more, were instructive and profoundly gripping to the person whose reading and thinking had prepared him to view them intelligently. But to the man who had no adequate back-ground of knowledge and feeling, and who was looking for exciting entertainment, no wonder the Lincoln picture was not so good.

I recall remarks I have heard from visitors viewing for the first time the Lincoln Memorial.

"Is that all there is of it?" "Isn't there anything more to see?"

Such questions indicate only the shallowness of some of the sight-seers who rush wildly from one building or monument to another as they hurriedly "do" the Capitol city. They know practically nothing about Lincoln, at whose statue in the main hall of this Memorial they have hastily glanced. His immortal words of the Second Inaugural and the Gettysburg address, inscribed on the walls of the north and south rooms, are not parts of their literary and patriotic treasures. They do not sense the memorial idea in the thirty-six immense marble columns surmounted by the names of the thirty-six states—states which Lincoln, by his insight and devotion, held together in what we believe is a perpetual union. So why shouldn't some of the multitudes who visit this greatest of all buildings and memorials in Washington, miss the gaudiness and the sensationalism that alone appeal to their feeling of what to them is good to look upon!

But to the one who understands and appreciates character and achievement, and who attaches value to history and patriotism, both the Lincoln Picture and the Lincoln Memorial are eminently satisfactory.

Are not these incidents of the picture and the memorial a parable concerning listening to preaching in these days?

Why is it that so many people have lost, or have never acquired, interest in hearing sermons? I am not referring to poor sermons. (The good Lord knows there are many of that kind. I hold no brief for them.) I mean good sermons. Sermons with splendid biblical content, expressed in language and forms of thought fitting for today. Sermons filled with the Christian spirit and endowed with divine power, and as full of life as were the discourses of the prophets in their times. Why do so many people fail to respond to the attractiveness of such preaching, or, when they do occasionally hear it, why are they not more deeply interested and influenced by it?

Is it not because average young persons, and even middle-aged people, have no adequate back-ground of knowledge?

When the preacher, for the purpose of illustration or impression, makes an excursion into the life of David, Isaiah, Paul, or other well-known characters, he is often very limpingly followed by his hearers. If he turns to the less familiar characters of the Bible, the congregation is likely to be elsewhere in thought, while the minister goes on alone.

Why is this? There are several reasons.

The Bible is not read and studied in the home as it used to be. Parents do not help the children to become familiar with the Scriptures through telling stories and having the children memorize verses and whole chapters. Sunday Schools, with all the improvement in housing and equipment, do not succeed in making the boys and girls of the community versed in the Bible.

Good supplementary readers in the schools and fine story papers and books have greatly multiplied, and they rightly draw much interest to themselves. Moving and talking pictures are interesting and amusing. And the so-called "funnies" in the daily papers get a lot of attention. The average child, and many a grown person, knows far more about the characters in the comic strips and on the silver screen than they do of the characters in the Bible.

Is it any wonder that when the preacher presents a sermon that is rich in Biblical references intelligently applied, a discourse that deals seriously with the old, yet ever new, problems of life and eternity, a sermon that requires close attention and somewhat sustained thinking, many of his hearers, even if they consent to sit as on the sidelines, are conscious only that he is moving in a different world from that in which they are living?

Can anything be done about this? Yes, three things.

1. A Bible Story Manual. This would greatly help. The stories should be carefully selected. They should be well-told, omitting elements that Jesus would discard. And the instructive and inspirational portions should be so featured as to make the ideas stand out clear and vivid. The volume should be well printed, with only the very best illustrations. There should be included a supplement of carefully edited Psalms and hymns and choice Bible verses. The entire volume would be fine for home and Sunday School memory work.

2. A Short Bible. This would be the best possible help in the desired direction. Some years ago the late Professor Kent of Yale University edited a short Bible. But it was not short enough. There is too much material in it that can scarcely ever be used. The Bible is far too large a book for convenience. It is difficult for a reader to pick it up and find the thing he wants. This short Bible should be conveniently printed, indexed, chaptered, sectioned and paragraphed. Adequately arranged in that way the characters, ideas and incidents will stand out prominently before the eye and the understanding.

3. Make parents responsible. The home is the place where Bible instruction needs to be re-emphasized.

Nothing short of the Bible Story Manual, the Short Bible and the restored use of the Book by parents in the home will meet the situation. Thus only is it possible to recover for the mass of the people that Bible knowledge which will always be necessary as a back-ground for the intelligent hearing of the best sermons.

Moreover, the preacher who senses the gravity of the situation will see to it that he thoroughly masters the storyteller's art. And he will use that art in telling Bible stories to his people of all ages. Thus will he contribute his bit toward restoring to his congregation a suitable back-ground for hearing sermons.

SO THIS IS BOSTON!

By E. LESTER BALLARD

Yes, this is Boston, with its crooked streets running in all directions, actually verifying the preposterous statement that one traveling over them will meet himself coming back. This is Boston, with its thousands of people, rushing to and fro here and there, appearing in the shopping district to a newcomer that every day is a day or two before Christmas. This is Boston, with its cosmopolitan population of Greek and Jew, Chinese and Japanese, German and French, English and Negro.

Upon arrival the middle of September, we were greeted by a parade of miles in length and hours in time. Rather elated that we should be so received, we inquired definitely concerning it. Our pride was somewhat injured when we were informed that it was one of the many celebrations of the tercentennial of Massachusetts Bay Colony, and not in our honor. Several such demonstrations have taken place since that time, including the spectacular American Legion parade.

This is a city of history. Many of the historical sites and buildings have been preserved, and are open to the public. Others are marked with bronze tablets. Old North Church, dedicated in 1723, still stands. Every school boy is acquainted with the story of Paul Revere, in which the tower of this old church proudly claims a prominent part. Faneuil Hall, built in 1742, burned in 1761 and rebuilt two years later, was revolutionary headquarters in Boston. Old State House stands as it was rebuilt after a fire 219 years old, the place where the city was born. And this is a mere beginning.

This is a city of culture. We find it sticking out everywhere. The people generally seem to exemplify it, even those of menial occupations and social position. The old and famous homes, in many of which aristocracy was born, magnify it. The famous museums of arts, sciences, natural history, etc. reveal it. The very atmosphere, it seems, is permeated with it.

This is a city of schools and colleges. Among the outstanding may be named the Boston University; the Harvard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology just across the Charles River in Cambridge; Newton Theological Seminary, Tufts College, Sargent College and others in and around the city. Special mention may be made of Boston University, with its eleven separate units, and approximately 15,000 students. The School of Religious Education, made famous by the pioneer work of former Dean W. S. Athern, stands among the foremost of such schools in the country, or second to none in the East. Dr. H. Augustine Smith, well known as editor of the unexcelled Hymnal for the American Youth, is professor of fine arts in religion. Among the student body, as is the case in the other schools, there are Chinese, Negroes, and other races. A number of states of the Union are represented, including Washington, California, Louisiana, Texas and North Carolina.

This is a city of religions and churches. The mother Christian Science Church is here. Unitarian and Universalist churches are common. The Church of the New Jerusalem (Swedenborg) is located here. Roman and Greek Catholics have their places of worship. Presbyterianism is not so strong. A number of large and beautiful Protestant Episcopal churches are in evidence, including Trinity, where Phillips Brooks preached. The Baptists, Methodists and Congregationalists are strong among the Protestant churches, the last named leading the list. It will be interesting to note that recently a real old-fashioned revival sermon was preached in one of the fashionable Baptist churches by Dr. Courtland Myers of Brooklyn, N. Y. In Tremont Temple (Baptist) an evangelistic message is delivered practically every Sunday night, usually before 3500 people, and people are moved to repentance and rededication.

After all, what a meager description this is of the beautiful and charming city of historic sacredness. It would take days to see all of aesthetic and historic interest, and hours to relate it. Suffice it to say that an American's education is hardly complete until he at least becomes a visitor to this place of "baked beans, brown bread and butter."

China's President Becomes a Christian

General Chiang Kai-shek, president of China's nationalist government, recently declared that he felt the need of a God such as Jesus Christ. He had been a Buddhist, but had a Christian wife who prayed for him in his fight for his country. Two years ago he conquered all of China proper and the last summer has been fighting to consolidate the factions conquered.

Perhaps his conversion was largely due to his wife's influence. He has been baptized and joined the Methodist church. The God like Jesus Christ will yet win the heathen nations.

—"The million dollar dream of Fred Pabst, Sr., famous Milwaukee brewer, who declares that America's national economic structure would be strengthened by the return of legalized beer, would, if realized, cost the American people not less than a billion dollars a year in increased consumption of drink, in decreased industrial efficiency and depreciated productiveness," declared Charles R. Jones, Chairman of the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation.

INFORMATION CONCERNING WOMEN'S MISSIONARY WORK

There have been many letters and communications sent through the mails by the few women who are not in harmony with the merger of the Women's Work in the Methodist Protestant Church, with the intent to discourage those who are behind the new regime, and to discredit the new Women's Organization. An article appeared in the Methodist Protestant Herald of October 9th over the signature of Mrs. Flora B. Sturgeon so misleading in its statements that we deem it time to break our silence and to refute such misstatements.

Mrs. Sturgeon quotes the total dsibursements of the Women's Foreign Department as given in the Annual report of July, 1930. She then deducts the sums sent to Japan, China, India, Miss Forrest, Miss Coates, Student Loan Fund, and claims the difference between those two amounts is ''overhead expense.'' By referring to the report on page 29 July '30 Record, items will be noted which in no sense could be called ''overhead,'' or administration expense of the present regime; i. e. $713.87 interests on annuities, the principal and interest of which is being held by Mrs. East and which the Board of Missions must make good; $4,565.00 paid on money borrowed during the year 1928-29, made necessary by the fact that Mrs. East withheld so much of the money sent to her by the Branches during that year; $350.36 interest on borrowed money and similar items. Also items such as thank-offering boxes, blanks, etc., for use in the auxiliaries, which expense would have been incurred under the former regime.

Deducting all such items the real ''overhead expense'' for the year 1929-30 was $3,981.26, which sum included items which will never occur again—such as ''charter,'' etc. An ''estimate'' can never be exact to the dollar. In the estimate which was published by the board to which Mrs. Sturgeon referred, some items were more, some less, than appears in the report in the July Record. The convention ''estimate'' was $500.00. The actual expense in May, 1929, was $159.18 for both departments (not $664.23 as Mrs. Sturgeon states) and in May, 1930, $218.55 for both departments. In reality there is very little difference between the ''estimated expense'' and the actual expense which appears in the 1930 report. By eliminating items which will not occur in the future, the ''estimate'' was as nearly correct as an estimate could be made. The same facts hold true in the Home Department as in the Foreign, so that it is not necessary to quote figures therefrom.

There is another misstatement made by Mrs. Sturgeon which in justice we must correct. She says, ''506 Ladies' Aid Societies SENT IN $98,073.00'' to the General Conference Treasure rin ''the year preceding the merger of 1928.'' By referring to page 90 of the General Conference Journal in the tabulated report of money raised and used in the local churches it will be noted that the Ladies' Aid Societies raised the sum quoted by Mrs. Sturgeon, but it was not sent to the General Conference Treasurer but was used in the local churches, and, therefore, has no bearing on this question.

During the year 1927-28 the W. F. M. S. raised through the Branches $56,148.69, a part of the sum quoted by Mrs. Sturgeon as sent in to the General Conference Treasurer that year having been borrowed from permanent funds. The difference between the total amount raised by both the W. F. M. S. and the W. H. M. S. in the year 1927-28 and amount raised by the women in 1929-30 was $10,536.17. Considering all the conditions and the fact that the total General Conference receipts for the year 1929-30 were far below previous years, the women have no reason to be discouraged.

Mrs. Sturgeon signed the article referred to as ''Corresponding Secretary of the W. F. M. S.'' She no longer holds that position. Mrs. Frank Stephenson of Pittsburgh was elected at the Women's Foreign Board meeting in May, 1929, and succeeded Mrs. Sturgeon, who is not now even a member of the Methodist Protestant Church and could not be vitally interested in the success of the work of our denomination.

Mrs. Henry Huffield, President W. F. M. S.
Mrs. Maria Thompson, Asso. Exec. Sec. Bd. of Missions.

AWAKE: CHRISTIAN AMERICA!

It took America's churches 75 years to destroy the legalized liquor traffic.

Today the wets boast that it will take only ten years to restore that traffic to ''good standing.''

They count on it that the crusading spirit has gone out of the Christian church.

They may be right.

It may be that the church of today is too weak or too indifferent to the issues of righteousness to maintain the moral reform that the church of yesterday made possible. It may be that organized Christianity, in this land, will be forced to make way for a triumphant return of the liquor business. It may be that America, once again, will enshrine the liquor shop on its street corners; legalize liquor corruption in its political political life and fasten, again, all the ancient miseries of liquor upon America's homes. If that happens we will stand ready to agree that the crusading spirit has gone out of the Christian church. For only the unconcerned of the Christian church could allow that to happen.

If this outlawed business comes again under the shelter of the American flag, its social stench and viciousness will stand as a symbol of the impotence of the Christian church, as proof that the professed zeal of Christians is exhausted in the profession.

But we will not concede that America's church people will allow this to happen. We do not believe that the fires kindled by Lyman Beecher, Frances Willard, John B. Gough and the generation of yesterday's prophets have entirely burned out. We believe that the old flame can be stirred again and spread with the old passion for Christian righteousness until the menace of liquor to our national life is finally destroyed.

Liquor's fight, now as always, is against the Christian church. The answer to that challenge must be provided by you, the individual church member, and your church. Your church is called, in this crisis, to awaken; to shake off its lethargy; to go out, again, pulpit and pew united, to a new drive to uphold the century's greatest moral reform.

A Christian crusade outlawed the legalized liquor traffic.

Only a Christian crusade can prevent its return.

The moment to launch that crusade is upon us. Will you,

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Asheboro

October 24.—The fourth quarterly conference of this charge was held on this date, at night, and I was privileged to be present. A goodly number of officials were in attendance, and besides, several interested persons who were not members of the conference. The pastor's report was unusually well-prepared, and full, covering, as it did, the various activities of the church for the entire year. Reports of the different organizations were likewise good. The Sunday School has been the best ever this year, and the Woman's Auxiliary, working under the new order, was able to make a most excellent report. Through the initiative of this organization, the conference voted to create a committee for the purpose of securing a parsonage. I think the indications are that the pastor of this church will soon live in a new parsonage. This is the largest contributing church in the conference to the Children's Home. We found finances somewhat behind, but the A. C. B. has been paid in full for sometime, and the prospects seemed good for an honor roll record. Pastor Pritchard and his people have done a splendid year's work, and the church will be in good condition for the new year. This church was the first to raise the HERALD membership allotment, and now has a plus of 17 1-2 subscribers. It was the first, also, to raise the two per cent. for HERALD deficit.

Orange

October 25.—The closing conference of this charge was held on this date at Chestnut Ridge, with the four churches well represented, and a number of visitors present also. The report of Pastor Williams and the officials revealed a wholesome condition on the charge. At Efland, the Sunday School has very materially increased in enrollment and efficiency, owing to better housing that has been provided through the new church. The other churches have good schools also, and part, at least, are monthly contributors to the Children's Home. The charge has a large HERALD subscription list. The number reported last year was very much in advance of any other field. In the "3,000 subscribers" campaign, this work is leading, with a total of 57 3-4, and this will be much increased, no doubt, during these last days. Brother Williams was working the papers—HERALD and Methodist Protestant-Recorder, at the conference. Finances were here, as at other places, in arrears. We are hopeful that last-hour efforts brought up the totals materially. Union Grove will hold its usual honor roll place. The women of the charge are active, and doing helpful work. The pastor next year will find here a ready field.

Graham

October 25.—This conference was held at night, on this date. Several were present, and pleasing spirit prevailed. This church has been without a pastor since the first of September, because of the return of Brother Minnis to India. However, they have gone along with the work, though there may be some shortage in budget receipts. The Sunday School, women's work, and other organizations are functioning normally. This church is well located, and is growing. The new pastor will go into a wholesome atmosphere, and will find ready helpers.

We were glad to have Rev. L. W. Gerringer, and Brother W. A. Davies, of the Orange charge, with us in this conference.

Lebanon

November 2.—My morning worship was with this congregation. I went there to sit in the pew, and enjoy the service with the people. But the pastor would not have it so. I yielded to his persuasion, and preached. It was quite gratifying to see Brother Jones' (sorry that I do not have the initials) and his family of six, come into the church. They were received on letter from the M. E. Church, South. Brother Jones was a licensed preacher in the church from which he came, and was given the same standing in our church. Brother Suits has received 34 members this year.

Tuesday night, October 28.—I was here in the fourth quarterly conference. A creditable number of officers were present, and reports indicated a year of progress. The church has a very live C. E., and the report from it indicated much and varied activity. The Woman's Auxiliary and the Aid Society have been busy during the year. I trust that a merger may be formed here, and that these two good organizations may function according to the new order of our women's work. The Sunday School has been unusually good during the year. Monthly offerings are made to the Home. With the exception of finances, Brother Suits will be able to make a gratfiying report to the conference. Upon the whole, this will probably total up very well. Lebanon is a promising church, and we expect from it continuing growth. It was a pleasure to be with all of these churches, and we trust that they may feel, pastors and people, a sense of duty done, as they come to the end.

My notes on these conferences, are in Greensboro, by oversight, and I have had to write this report from memory. I trust that I have remembered with sufficient accuracy.

"Lord, What Wilt Thou Have Me To Do?"

This caption, and what follows is taken from Dr. Lewis' last writings, "The Epic of the Preacher."

"The man who first asked the question did not get a direct answer, but was told to go on where he had intended to go, and he should be told then what to do. There he was told by another man. In other words, although it pleased God to work a miracle for the conversion of Paul, he answered his question through the ordinary processes of human understanding. So I believe he does with us usually. Most of our perplexities about the orders of our Captain come, not from any ambiguity in the orders, but from our own selfishness and obstinacy in wanting our own way, and it is not necessary nor fitting for God to work a miracle to overcome these. In the case of Methodist preachers, these perplexities usually gather about the period when decisions are made for the next year. They are supposed to pray about this. But prayers presumed to be a submission to God for His decision. And if God decides it, he will use the instrumentalities instituted in

OUR STORY PAGE

"THAT HORSE IS NOT PERFECT"

A very successful English merchant tells this unusual story of a boyhood experience.

When I was fifteen years old I worked for Aaron Coventry, a bigoted old farmer in Yorkshire. He was a stingy schemer—immensely rich. One day Mr. Coventry was expecting a gentleman from a distance to buy one of his horses. The animal which he hoped to sell him had several defects. If the gentleman knew about these, of course, he would refuse to buy the horse.

Old Aaron called me to him and said, "Now, Bob, if my friend should ask you if the horse has any defects you must answer stoutly, 'No, sir.' I must sell this horse and you can help me. Do you understand?"

"Yes," I told him, "I understand. But I can't obey—not this time, Mr. Coventry. I know that horse is far from perfect and I can't lie about it. I never purposely told a lie in my life and I am not willing to begin now."

This made Old Aaron very angry. I can see him yet, with his bronzed thorny fists clenched and his black eyes shining fiercely.

"Well," he hissed at me, "if you don't mind me I'll give you a horse-whipping that you won't forget as long as you live."

I found myself trembling all over. "Well, sir," I said quietly, "I can stand that all right, I think, but the Bible tells me that all liars have their part in the lake of fire, and really, Mr. Coventry, I don't believe I could stand that. So I've fully made up my mind not to tell a lie."

Soon after our conversation, the purchaser arrived, a well-groomed city man, riding horseback. He began bargaining at once for the horse and he offered a very large sum of money. He asked Mr. Coventry a number of pointed questions and Old Aaron assured him positively that the animal hadn't one defect. Then, to confirm his statements, he waxed bold and called me to him. In the presence of the stranger he asked me several times if I were sure the horse was perfectly sound.

For a moment I was amazed. Did Old Aaron really expect me to lie? I thought of the horse-whipping—I thought of God's Word—and in a moment I answered clearly. "No, sir, that horse is not perfect."

"What!" exclaimed the city man. "Is it not in good condition?"

"No, sir," I told him boldly, "it isn't, and Mr. Coventry knows that as well as I do."

There was a moment of tense silence. The gentleman was offended and he spoke gruffly to the farmer about misrepresenting his stock. "As long as I live," he flared at him, "I'll never buy a thing from you," and leaping to the saddle, he rode away on his sleek black pony, without so much as saying goodby.

Aaron Coventry was dejected. He had lied deliberately, had failed to sell his horse, and now he was thoroughly angered. He gave me a savage glance, took me into the stable and shut the door. With horsewhip in hand he began to beat me uncertifully until my back and shoulders were black and blue. "And now," he said finally, "you'll know better than to disobey me," and he strode out into the yard without another word.

My whole body ached. Little sickening streams of blood were trickling down my back. I sat for a long time huddled in a corner of the stable. Old Aaron was in the barnyard, standing by the watered trough. Presently I heard a moan, a thud, and the frisky galloping of a young horse. I ran to see what was the matter. I found Aaron Coventry, with a deep wound in his scalp, lying unconscious beside the old trough. The colt had kicked him! At once I forget all about my aching back. This was my employer, my friend, who was in trouble, and I hurried to his side. Carefully I dragged the old man to a shady spot and called for help. During the next few days Old Aaron, dealer in falsehoods and defective stock, was a subdued man. I was with him constantly. In his conscious huors we spoke often of God's Word and His claims on men's lives, and Aaron listened now. By and by his hard heart softened and he yielded to God. And soon after he slipped quietly away. Perhaps it is the vision of the face of that dying man, sin-hardened but now love-lighted, and the echo of that horse, tender whisper, "God bless you, my boy, tell the truth," that has influenced my whole life, and guided my every business transaction.—Home Friend.

REGRET

Jim Daley is a young man living in a large city. But he had a great trouble in his life. He had been married only a short time when his wife became seriously ill. The best medical assistance was procured, but in spite of all human help she gradually failed until she passed on to the great beyond. Jim's grief was pitiful. He loved his wife. How they had planned for the future, and now there seemed to be no future at all. And what added to Jim's sorrow was what his wife had said just before she died. "If I only had" he heard her say. Frantically he tried to arouse her that she might explain but it was too late. "If I only had" were her last words, and poor Jim did not know what she meant.

Now, Jim and his wife, before they were married, were very popular members of the large fashionable church in their section of the city. Their wedding was one of the special events of the year—and, after their marriage, they were often found enjoying the many social activities of the large group of young people. So full were their spare evenings that such things as prayer meetings were not included and consequently they knew very little of spiritual life.

But Jim had no room nor time for social activities now. He was so puzzled about his wife's last words that he could not eat nor sleep. Brooding this way for a few days he decided something must be done, and he went to see the pastor about it.

Broken-heartedly, Jim told him just how sad he was. How he wished he could understand just what his wife meant by saying, "If I only had." This story was very touching and should have moved this minister to compassion, but instead, this fashionable pastor rose from his seat, went to a cupboard near by and, taking down a bottle, poured a glass full of whisky and offered it to this sorrow-stricken young man. "You are unstrung, my boy, take this and it will help you to quiet down" or words to that effect. But Jim refused. Then the minister offered him cigars, and again Jim refused. These were not the things he needed to help him. Whisky and cigars would not heal his wounded heart, neither would they explain his great trouble, and he arose from his seat and left the minister's home in disgust. "It was enough," some would say "to drive any man away from the church entirely."

Even though Jim would not go back to his pastor, he didn't find relief anywhere else. He remembered that people said, that a certain minister of another denomination was a spiritual man, but would it do any good to go to see him? However, he could not bear his trouble alone very long, so he decided to try again. This time God led him aright, as He does all seeking souls who are burdened with sin, and are in earnest in their quest for deliverance.

He was hardly in the presence of this man of God, and having related his sad story, when he was told that his wife, when she said, "If I only had" undoubtedly meant, "If I only had accepted Christ as Saviour." It was all very plain, now, to this young man, who had tried to satisfy himself with his wife, with being a worldly church-member. He saw that it was nothing but a delusion of the devil. The minister, who had been used of the Lord in leading other souls to Christ pressed Jim to make that decision now, and very soon, as knowledge took possession of his life, another soul was delivered from eternal ruin because some one showed him the way.

It seems almost unbelievable that a story like this could be true. But it is, and the young man, a number of times, has given it in his personal testimony at prayer meetings. It shows us how hollow and empty is the life without Christ, and how the indulgences and pleasures of this world prevent many from dying in the Lord, as well as keeping them from the joys of salvation while on this earth. May we all make our peace, "calling and election sure."—Youth's Christian Companion.

The President's Letter

His providence to make known that decision. To be consistent, therefore, the preacher should pray for that man or those men who have been set over that business, and then let them alone. My conviction is that a preacher will get what Christ wants him to have unless he interferes with it himself."

Finale

This is the last. For fifty weeks, save one, we have addressed our pastors and their people through this weekly letter. Now the year is over, and before this is printed, we shall be in our annual session. We have labored together, and have labored with Him. This association in service has been a joy to us, and our fellowship with Him has been our gladness. His wisdom has been our counsel; His strength our stay; His will our orders. And now that our work is done, we trust that His benedictions may be upon it, and upon us. We are pausing here, now, in our annual session, to survey the ground over which we have come, and then to set our faces toward new fields of conquest. My heart's desire and prayer to God is that we may be able to see eye to eye in the important matters that must engage us while we are here, and that our hearts may beat together in loving pulsations on everything that concerns His glory and the establishing of His purposes through His church. Let us be much in prayer, during the conference, and let us set the Lord before our faces, and desire only what is approved by Him.

"Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. Taylor.

WITHIN THE GATES

("Our feet shall stand within thy gates"—Ps. 122:2)

"Our feet shall stand within Thy gates"
Bright city of our God;
How blest the hope that fills our heart,
As we the desert plod.

"Our feet shall stand within Thy gates"
Our eyes shall Him behold,
Who purchased us with His own Blood,
And gave us wealth untold.

"Our feet shall stand within Thy gates"
And course the golden street
In fellowship with all the saved
Who round Himself shall meet.

"Our feet shall stand wtihin Thy gates"
With hearts well tuned to sing
Eternal praises to the Lamb,
Who did salvation bring.

"Our feet shall stand within Thy gates,"
Our tongues shall roll the song
Of everlasting thanks to Him,
To whom all praise belong.

"Our feet shall stand within Thy gates,"
And never wander more;
Our hearts shall then ne'er feel the chill
That now oft grieves us sore.

Lord, haste that day when Thou shalt come,
And bid Thy ransomed rise—
To pass within those gates of light
To share Thine endless joys.

NOVEMBER 16: JESUS, AN EXAMPLE OF STEWARDSHIP

Scripture Text: John 17:1-17; Luke 2:49

Daily Bible Readings

Monday, Temptation to Unfaithfulness—Matt. 4:1-11.

Tuesday, Jesus' Faithfulness—Heb. 3:1, 2.

Wednesday, Jesus' Use of Time — John 9:1-4.

Thursday, Jesus' Use of Power—John 6:1-14.

Friday, Jesus and Sympathy—John 11:35.

Saturday, The Perfect Life Ends—John 19:30.

To the Leader

What is a steward? He is a trustee to whom something valuable is intrusted for another. Jesus praises and awards the ones who use their trust well and condemns those who neglect their trusts. With all God has given us we are trustees or stewards—money, time, abilities, opportunities, influence, and must give an account of our stewardship.

Jesus came to be not only a Saviour, but an example. We are to pattern our lives after His. Tonight we are to study something about the matchless life of our Lord in His stewardship. His work was that of a stewardship and is an example for us to follow. We are playing the game of life which is called "Follow the Leader" and that leader is Jesus Christ.

Suitable songs: "Some One Is Watching Your Light," "It Pays to Serve Jesus," "I Would Be Like Jesus," "Help Somebody Today," "Work for the Night Is Coming," and "Faith of our Fathers."

Discuss These

1. What is "stewardship?" In what way does it differ from ownership?
2. How did Jesus accept His "stewardship?"
3. What choices do we have in the stewardship of life?
4. What is to be our reward for faithful stewardship through life?
5. How may we abuse our privileges as stewards?
6. What effect does selfishness have upon our stewardship?

Quotations

"Stewardship covers all life and not merely money. Jesus had no money but He was steward of immense spiritual powers. All our gifts belong to God."—Richard Arden.

"Not only those that give their lives to full-time service are stewards. The common man is one also. If it is our duty to keep house, that is our stewardship for the time being."—Morton.

Poetry

"MY FATHER'S BUSINESS"

"Knew ye not," said Christ in boyhood
  As they sought Him in their fear,
"I must be about the business
  Of my Father now and here?"
And this business of His Father
  Thus He hastened to begin,
What but lifting men to heaven?
  What but pardoning their sin?

See Him as the paralytic,
  Lowered by the kindly four,
With his pallor and his anguish
  Mutely begs Him to restore.
Hear His speaking to the sick one,
  Waiting eager on the floor:
"Son, thy sins are all forgiven;
  Go in peace and sin no more."

Thus the Saviour sped His mercy,
  Thus He gave the best things first,
Conquered thus the central evil
  Whereby mortals are accursed.
Easy then to add the trifle
  Of the least regarded dole;
Easy then to heal the body,
  Having purified the soul.

Hear the Saviour summon Matthew
  From his calling harsh and grim.
See how Matthew spurned his money,
  Left it all and followed Him!
Hear him call his brother sinners
  From their mercenary hell;
"Come and see the great Physician!
  I was sick, but now am well!"

Ah, the Pharisaic blindness!
  Ah, the ugly mutterings!
Ah, the pride that holds us, also,
  From the touch of better things!
For the Father's business calls us
  Through the mercy of the Son;
It is loving and forgiving:
  Let the Father's will be done!

—Amos R. Wells.

SPIRITUAL LIFE DEPARTMENT

The Missionary Calendar for November asks that we pray especially this month for Dr. Edith Lacy in Dhulia, India, in the hospital and medical work there; also for Rev. Homer Casto in his splendid work at Bethel Home at Weaverville, N. C. These two are relieving suffering humanity at home and in far away India. May we keep them close in our prayers? Medical Missions mean so much. The Missionary Record will give us information about their work so we may be intelligent in these prayers and not be praying at random.

The "Laymen's Missionary Movement" has this to say of prayer: "Throughout the whole missionary world there is at present a very deep sense of need. Opposed as our missionaries are by the gigantic masses of heathenism, they feel their own helplessness. The power of evil is so terrific and the forces of evil are so active that they are apt to despair. So, from every mission land their cry comes to our ears. And what are they crying for? Not men, not money, but PRAYER. Even above the urgent cry, 'Come over and help us,' and God knows they have enough reason to utter that cry, we hear the words, 'Brethren, pray for us.'"

In this deepened sense of the need of prayer we have a token that the church is entering into full sympathy with her Lord. For the Lord Jesus has all along told us that the supreme need of missionary work is prayer. He said to His disciples, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore." Before "Go," before "Give," comes "Prayer." This is the divine order. Any attempt to alter it will end in disaster. Prayer is to the missionary work what air is to the body—the element in which it lives.

Will you, the Secretary of Spiritual Life Department in your own local Auxiliary, keep our work on your heart and before your members?

Sincerely yours,
MRS. J. M. STONE,
Sec'y of Spiritual Life Dept.

HERALD CAMPAIGN FOR 3,000 SUBSCRIPTIONS

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

THANKSGIVING AND THE ORPHANS

The needs of the homes were never so urgent as they are today and the citizens of the state are asked to rise to the dignity and demand of the hour by each doing his level best to help swell the orphanage treasuries during the Thanksgiving period.

The pastors of churches, Sunday School superintendents, city officials, superintendents of county and city schools, county officers, lawyers, doctors, business men, lodge officials, community clubs, farmers and housewives, wage earners and all other classes of our citizenship are requested to enlist in the effort to help the destitute and honor the lowly.

It is personal effort that usually brings results and special committees of churches, fraternal orders and community organizations, to bring the matter to the attention of the public, would be wise.

Those capable of estimating the value of the life of a child benefit of the blessings and comforts of a home should cheerfully enlist in this holy movement to provide means of sustenance for the orphanages during the long dreary months of the approaching winter.

The income of a day is suggested.

M. L. SHIPMAN.

LIVING TOGETHER

In a recent edition of the "Methodist Protestant Herald," there appeared the statement that Mrs. E. L. Ballard was living at 9 Willow Street, Boston, Mass. Lest there be some misapprehension, and perhaps scandal started, it seems advisable to add that Mr. Ballard is still living with his wfe, but both have changed their residence to 111 Jersey Street, where they will be glad to welcome any of their friends coming to or passing through Boston.

(The "Herald" begs pardon for this break and thanks Brother Ballard for mending it).

A MILLION DOLLAR STILL

Detroit police recently raided what they described as the biggest still ever found in the city since the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect. They valued the equipment and liquor seized in the place at $1,000,000. The raiders found 80,000 gallons of grain mash in vats and 30,000 gallons of grain alcohol in five-gallon containers ready for shipment; 100,000 pounds of raw sugar and 2,000 gallons of molasses.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Chapel, Macksville Charge.—Sunday was a great day for us. A large number was present for Sunday school and preaching in the afternoon. Brother Ferree, our pastor, brought us an inspiring message.

Sunday evening we had prayer service, the Mocksville evangelistic club being with us. We greatly enjoyed the things they said and feel greatly benefited by them. We wish to welcome these good people back at any time.

The message which Brother Ferree brought to us Sunday afternoon was the last for this Conference year. We have been helped by having these good people in our homes and will gladly welcome them back should they return. They did their part in making this Conference year a successful one.

EDNA BEAVER, Reporter.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Sunday school was opened October 26 as usual. Visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Long, of Winston-Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Culler and family, of High Point, N. C. Mr. Luther F. Long built three new classrooms for the church in honor of his deceased father, Mrs. A. J. Long, of Rural Hall, N. C. We are very proud of our classrooms and are hoping for an improvement in our Sunday school and church work.

Our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, was with us at 11 o'clock and dedicated the new classrooms to the church, after which an election of officers was held. Mr. Williams was with us again in the afternoon and preached his last sermon here for this year. We are hoping to have him back for another year as he has been a great blessing to all who knew him. PERMELIA SMITH, Reporter.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—Yesterday closed our Conference year. The year was very successful under the circumstances. We did not get out with our finances as we would like. All seem to have co-operated last year.

All officers for the ensuing year were elected. We have a new Sunday school superintendent for next year, Mr. Taylor Call. We hope our Sunday school will do wonders with its new leader.

We are indeed glad to have had with us this year Rev. G. B. Ferree. He has led his flock to new pastures. We are also glad to have had his wife and children worship with us this year.

We hope Conference will let him remain in our midst.

One of our members, Miss Hazel Foster, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Twin City Hospital, is getting along nicely.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Friendship, Mount Hermon Charge.—The Conference year came to a close with the Sunday morning service. Our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, preached a very helpful sermon to a large congregation. Mr. Carroll has served our church faithfully for four years and we hope that he will return to this charge to minister during the coming year.

The congregation stood at the beginning of the service to pay silent tribute to the members we have lost during the year.

Five members have been added to the church roll during this year, which brings the membership to 259.

A meeting of the building committee will be held Monday at 2 o'clock.

A number of ministerial students from Elon College will take part in the Christian Endeavor program next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

A class of children from the Children's Home will give a program here on the fourth Sunday in November at 3 p. m. Please bear this date in mind and be present for this splendid program. Our Sunday school will meet at 2 o'clock on that day instead of the usual hour.

The ladies of the church will meet with Mrs. W. A. Patterson next Friday night to pack a box of used clothing for the Alvin Drew School. We hope everyone who has anything to contribute will be present and help in this worthy cause.

Miss Ruby Patterson, of Friendship, was married to Mr. Frank H. Robinson, of Richmond, Va., on Saturday, October 11th, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Patterson. Rev. J. Elwood Carroll officiated, using the right ceremony of the Methodist Protestant church. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are residing in Richmond.

We are glad to have such large congregations at all the church services. Visitors are always welcome and we urge them to come again and again.

Siler City Church.—Yesterday we had an interesting Sunday school with 107 present. Dr. Williams filled both morning and night appointments. At the morning service he used for his text the fourth chapter of John, 32nd and 34th verses. Subject, "The Independent Life." This was a good sermon, such as he always gives. After the sermon the Lord's Supper was administered to almost the entire congregation. After the congregation was dismissed the new officers were elected for the coming year. Mrs. W. E. Sharpe was unanimously re-elected superintendent with Mr. T. L. Lambeth assistant. Both these men are as good as can be found to fill such a place, and with the co-operation of the school there is no reason why we cannot have the best Sunday school ever. Our Sunday school, under the leadership of Mr. Sharpe, has been the best we have ever seen during the year. Mr. B. E. Fox was re-elected secretary and Mr. L. L. Wrenn was re-elected church treasurer. Almost all the teachers were re-elected, as was the reporter. The new officers will be installed the third Sunday night in this month.

At the evening hour Dr. Williams was again at his best. This was his last appointment before Conference. We are expecting him back with us next year and have instructed the delegate to bring him back, so we did not feel that this was his last sermon to us. His sermon was taken from the 6th chapter of 2nd Kings. The subject was "Light on Life's Problems." Here we had the pleasure of hearing another great sermon, and we feel sure everyone present enjoyed it.

Last Monday night the Philahea class had a social and business meeting in their room. New officers were elected as follows: Miss Sallie Smith, president; Miss Cleta Andrew, vice-president; Miss Minnie Cooper, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. B. E. Fox, assistant secretary and treasurer. We have not yet fully decided on the teacher.

The Woman's Auxiliary served a chicken pie and oyster supper in the Baptist Ladies' Hall Saturday night. The proceeds amounted to over $40,00.

The C. E. Society met last Tuesday night at the church in a business meeting. After the election of the new officers they enjoyed a social hour, after which refreshments were served.

We are very sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Williams, our pastor's wife. We hope she may soon be restored to health.

Miss Lebus Stone has returned home after spending several weeks with relatives in Richmond, Va.

Elbaville-State Street, Lexington.—Our attendance at Sunday school now is fine. We have some very enthusiastic church workers. Our pastor filled his last regular appointment yesterday. We have found Mr. Hendry to be a fine preacher. He has meant much to our work. We hope it will be for us to get him back another year. But if Conference sees fit otherwise, we hope our loss will be someone else's gain.

Do we realize the year is nearing its close. We sincerely trust that all reports will be O. K. for Conference.

Only a few Sundays ago our people motored over to Yadkin College for fourth quarterly conference. On Friday night, October 31, a harvest program was given at our church for the purpose of helping to meet some financial needs. State Street furnished us with music.

On the third Sunday afternoon of October a Rally Day program was given.

We are very much delighted at the interest the youth are taking in the work. Not only are they interested in the C. E. Society, but all other services. Christian Endeavor is progressing nicely. On last Sunday night a band of about 50 gathered at old Elbaville to worship God in the service of youth. We have also sent a check for three dollars to Mr. Auman for the Board of Young People's Work.

We hope for all charges another successful closing year.

Best wishes to all readers and former pastors. Now for Conference!

Yarborough Chapel C. E. Society.—Sunday evening we held our last Christian Endeavor meeting for this Conference year. We had a very interesting meeting, the topic being "The Christian Citizen and the Law," led by Vera Wilson. We were glad to have with us Mr. W. P. Dickson, of Clinton, one of our former C. E. presidents, who made a very interesting talk on the topic. Mr. Broom also gave us a helpful talk. Mr. and Mrs. Broom have been a wonderful help and inspiration to us in our Christian Endeavor, and we hope they will be returned to us for an other year.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Broom graciously entertained the C. E.'s with a Kid Party. It seemed that time had really turned backward in its flight with so many dolls, horns and other toys in evidence. Cakes, fruit, and lollipops were served. About 35 enjoyed this social.

Welch Memorial.—Welch Memorial finished up the year with a very beautiful services on last Sunday morning. After the devotional service the newly elected officers were installed. After the officers were installed the regular monthly communion service was observed. The new officers communed in a body. It was indeed impressive to see this group of workers gathering around the communion altar together. As the communicants were coming and going Mrs. D. B. Eldridge and Miss Margaret Curry sang the old hymn, "From Every Stormy Wind That Blows." This made the service all the more impressive. At the close of the service the doors of the church were opened and three members were received. All the communion services at Welch Memorial have been very impressive but this was thought to be the most beautiful observed during the past two years. There were possibly more at the altar than at any other service.

The congregations were good at both morning and night services, and the interest was fine.

Friendship Church, Fallston Charge.—On October 26 we had our regular preaching on Sunday afternoon with our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, preaching a fine sermon. After service we elected our officers for the coming year. Most all the old officers were re-elected.

In November 1 we had our fourth and last quarterly conference at Hebron, with Rev. J. D. Morris preaching in the morning. His sermon was very appropriate and the large crowd attending received much good from it. In the afternoon they held their business session, at which time they voted unanimously for the pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, to return. We have enjoyed having Brother Morgan and family with us for seven years. He has been a great inspiration and help to us all. Our prayers are that the Lord will continue to bless him in the coming years.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Superintendent N. J. Wright. We are very proud of him; he has been our superintendent for 66 years. In all these years he hasn't missed a Sunday except for his own sickness and death in the family, which probably has not been more than a dozen Sundays.

First Church, High Point.—The bazaar and turkey supper given by the Woman's Auxiliary last Thursday, October 30th, were a pronounced success, and aside from being a pleasant social occasion, when the members of the congregation mingled with their friends of other denominations, it was successful from a financial viewpoint, the sum of $200 being realized from the sale of tickets for the supper after all expenses were paid. A thorough report from the bazaar has not been made yet, but it is expected that the amount will total at least $200 from he sale of handwork, candy, potted plants, flowers, canned fruits, and other articles. The women of the Auxiliary are exceedingly grateful for the splendid patronage of many friends.

On Sunday morning a delightful and impressive communion service was observed, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, being assisted in the celebration by Dr. A. G. Dixon and Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College. An unusually large number participated in the Sacrament; the Junior church worshipped with the adult congregation at this time, and many young people and children united in the Lord's Supper. Rev. Mr. Farmer said that it was the largest number of communicants since he has been pastor.

A most interesting feature of this service was the baptism of William Bruce Gray, the bright and lovely baby son of Mr. and Mrs. June Gray. This little boy, their fourth son, is the great-grandson of the late Rev. Alson Gray, a staunch and loyal pioneer minister, who performed valiant service in the upbuilding and establishment of the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina in the formative period of its existence. This baby has splendid ancestry on both sides, his mother being a descendant of a long line of Presbyterian stock of Mecklenburg county, having been before her marriage Miss Irene Hutchison, of Charlotte.

The members of the congregation were delighted to receive two new members, Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Zimmermon, who are valuable additions to our ranks, and are heartily welcomed. Dr. Zimmerman is a dentist by profession, one of three brothers who moved to High Point from Davidson county a few years ago, and he and family reside at 227 Montlieu avenue.

At the Sunday evening service the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered the last of a series of sermons on "The Church," his subject being "The One True Church," his discourse being practical and timely. Mesdames Allred and Ellington, Messrs. Gray and Mourane sang a lovely quartette, "Seal Us, O Holy Spirit," and an impressive installation service was observed when the newly elected officials of the church were inducted into office, the choice of the majority being as follows: Stewards, Judge Lewis Teague, C. C. Robbins, W. V. Idol, R. H. Shaw, J. B. Spencer, G. T. Penny, J. A. Dixon, W. C. Koontz, E. L. Auman, F. R. Auman, C. L. Gray, Dr. A. A. York, S. P. Montgomery, D. E. White, J. H. Pritchard, Dr. S. P. Sechrest, Ralph Vance, A. T. Payne, C. C. Robbins, Jr., Frank Robbins, T. R. Ballard, R. H. Davis, W. C. Hammond, D. A. Dowdy, L. B. Teague, J. B. Spencer, L. E. Teague, and Garland McPherson.

The executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary held a meeting Monday afternoon with Mrs. S. S. Coe in the chair. It was announced that the proceeds of the turkey supper, amounting to $200, will be divided equally among the eight Circles. Circle No. 2, Miss Blanche Burgess, chairman, won the first prize of $10 for selling the largest number of tickets for the turkey supper last Thursday and Circle No. 7, Mrs. Lewis Teague, chairman, the second prize of $5, while No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Snipes, chairman, won honorable mention for selling 50 tickets. A motion was carried to appoint a committee from each of the eight Circles to look up new people moving into the city, to visit the sick and bereaved, and to serve as helpers and general aids to the pastor. Announcement was made that the Wednesday evening Fellowship Suppers in connection with the prayer service will be resumed next week after an intermission of several weeks, and six will be held before the Christmas holidays.

The fourth and last quarterly conference of this year was held Monday evening, and good reports were heard from all organizations of the church. Mr. Vernon W. Idol will represent First church as delegate to Annual Conference convening in Albemarle Wednesday, November 5th. A number, besides Rev. Mr. Farmer, will attend the sessions all, or a part of the time. A splendid macadam road leads to this pretty town in Stanly county, via Salisbury, the distance being approximately 67 miles.

The mid-week prayer meeting on Wednesday evening will be led by Mes. C. L. Whitaker, who has kindly consented to act during the pastor's absence at Conference.

A beautiful and impressive Candle-Light service was observed Monday evening by the Young People's C. E. Society, when new officers for the coming year were installed in the presence of a large attendance of the young people of the church and their friends, being as follows: President, Miss Inez Reynolds; vice-president, Miss Myrtle Davis; secretary,

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Chapel, Macksville Charge.—Sunday was a great day for us. A large number was present for Sunday school and preaching in the afternoon. Brother Ferree, our pastor, brought us an inspiring message.

Sunday evening we had prayer service, the Mocksville evangelistic club being with us. We greatly enjoyed the things they said and feel greatly benefited by them. We wish to welcome these good people back at any time.

The message which Brother Ferree brought to us Sunday afternoon was the last for this Conference year. We have been helped by having these good people in our homes and will gladly welcome them back should they return. They did their part in making this Conference year a successful one.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Sunday school was opened October 26 as usual. Visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Luther F. Long, of Winston-Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Culler and family, of High Point, N. C. Mr. Luther F. Long built three new classrooms for the church in honor of his deceased father, Mrs. A. J. Long, of Rural Hall, N. C. We are very proud of our classrooms and are hoping for an improvement in our Sunday school and church work.

Our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, was with us at 11 o'clock and dedicated the new classrooms to the church, after which an election of officers was held. Mr. Williams was with us again in the afternoon and preached his last sermon here for this year. We are hoping to have him back for another year as he has been a great blessing to all who knew him.

Dulin's, Mocksville Charge.—Yesterday closed our Conference year. The year was very successful under the circumstances. We did not get out with our finances as we would like. All seem to have co-operated last year.

All officers for the ensuing year were elected. We have a new Sunday school superintendent for next year, Mr. Taylor Call. We hope our Sunday school will do wonders with its new leader.

We are indeed glad to have had with us this year Rev. G. B. Ferree. He has led his flock to new pastures. We are also glad to have had his wife and children worship with us this year.

We hope Conference will let him remain in our midst.

One of our members, Miss Hazel Foster, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Twin City Hospital, is getting along nicely.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

A motion was carried to appoint a committee from each of the eight Circles to look up new people moving into the city, to visit the sick and bereaved, and to serve as helpers and general aids to the pastor. Announcement was made that the Wednesday evening Fellowship Suppers in connection with the prayer service will be resumed next week after an intermission of several weeks, and six will be held before the Christmas holidays.

The fourth and last quarterly conference of this year was held Monday evening, and good reports were heard from all organizations of the church. Mr. Vernon W. Idol will represent First church as delegate to Annual Conference convening in Albemarle Wednesday, November 5th. A number, besides Rev. Mr. Farmer, will attend the sessions all, or a part of the time. A splendid macadam road leads to this pretty town in Stanly county, via Salisbury, the distance being approximately 67 miles.

The mid-week prayer meeting on Wednesday evening will be led by Mes. C. L. Whitaker, who has kindly consented to act during the pastor's absence at Conference.

A beautiful and impressive Candle-Light service was observed Monday evening by the Young People's C. E. Society, when new officers for the coming year were installed in the presence of a large attendance of the young people of the church and their friends, being as follows: President, Miss Inez Reynolds; vice-president, Miss Myrtle Davis; secretary, Miss Selma Clapp; treasurer, Miss Esther Pritchard, and press reporter, Miss Annette Pickens. This young people's society is a live organization, and its members are engaged in active Christian service of a high type.

The evangelist, Rev. George T. Stephens, a resident of this city, will begin a series of revival meetings next week in a tabernacle to be erected on South Main street opposite the Junior High School. This campaign is sponsored by the High Point Ministers' Association, of which our pastor is president, and is endorsed by the ministers of the leading denominations of the city. Volunteer workers will erect the tabernacle, on Wednesday, and dinner will be served to them by the laywomen of the city at the Reformed church on South Main street.

Mr. Clifton L. Whitaker, of Gastonia, N. C., spent Sunday with his mother at High Point College, while his wife was the guest of her relatives in South Carolina.

The cordial sympathy of a host of friends is extended to Mrs. R. R. Blackburn in the untimely death of her brother, Mr. Richard Ogburn, who was killed at his father's mill at Summerfield last Tuesday, and the love and sympathy of several friends who knew his wife, nee Miss Dorothy Holland, at Western Maryland College, is especially offered to the bereaved young widow in her grief and loneliness. All his friends knew Richard Ogburn, the only son of his parents, as an industrious, capable, and likable young man. These sad and strange dispensations of Provident weigh heavily on our spirits and are difficult to understand, but we know that "God's ways are just, His counsels wise," and we would lovingly commend his parents, his sister and wife to the Saviour who has promised, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

And again to Cary Ogburn Jones, whom we have known, loved, and admired for a long period of years, and who has been sorely bereaved in the tragic death of her husband, William C. Jones, on last Friday, we would extend much love and deepest sympathy. A daughter of Rev. Thomas J. Ogburn of blessed memory, "Miss Carey" taught several years here in the city schools before her marriage, and many young people, here and elsewhere, who are now bearing life's work and responsibility in their chosen fields, remember with deep affection her splendid training in our Sabbath school. May the God of all grace be near her to ease and comfort her burdened heart in this time of sorrow and trial.

Rural Hall.—The Sunday school opened November 2 with a very good number present. The school elected the teachers and secretary and treasurer for another year.

Rev. and Mrs. O. B. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gid Smith, Mrs. R. M. Warren, Mrs. C. M. Ingram, Mrs. John Warren, Mrs. Earlie Warren, Ollie Smith, D. G. McGee and Miss Iola Smith were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith Monday and spent part of the afternoon.

PERMELIA SMITH, Reporter.

Baltimore, West Forsyth Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, filled his last appointment Sunday for this year. He brought us a wonderful message, as usual. His text was "Growing in Grace." A good congregation was present and the service was enjoyed by all. Sunday was Communion day, and we had a large number to partake in the Lord's feast.

A unanimous vote was cast for the pastor's return. We have enjoyed having Brother Way and his fine family for the past two years.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected Sunday as follows: Stewards, J. B. Philips, W. C. Jennings, C. H. Binkley, Charlie Long; trustees, J. W. Doub, A. A. Doub, L. L. Long, G. Griffin, L. E. Doub, Frank Phillips; class-leader, J. W. Doub; reporter, Inez Doub.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Sunday, October 19, just after Sunday school.

INEZ DOUB, Reporter.

South Winston.—Sunday night we had a most inspiring message brought to us by our pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams. Our hearts were somewhat saddened as we realized that it was his last sermon for the year, but we are trusting that the stationing committee will send him back to us. He and Mrs. Williams have indeed found a warm place in our hearts and their past accomplishments will long be remembered.

We were glad to have some visitors from the Union Grove church Sunday night; we hope they will find it convenient to come back again soon.

Our church is progressing rapidly. We are expecting to erect a new one at a near future date. The Young People's class has already purchased the brick for the foundation, and the Ladies' Aid Society has put a nice little sum in the building fund.

A co-operative spirit has been shown throughout the past year by all and we have found that the attendance of our Sunday school has been increased greatly.

We have elected officers for the ensuing year and they have willingly taken their places with a determination to make this year a great success.

The Christian Endeavor Society with its leader, Miss Maude Gough, is proving to be a great help to the young people. We received three new members last Sunday night and welcomed several visitors. We are striving to live up to our pledge each day, and by God's help we expect to accomplish much good in the coming year.

MABEL BOWERS, Reporter.

Harmony.—Our pastor preached a good sermon last fourth Sunday morning and also last Sunday evening at the usual preaching hour.

We have a good Sunday school, but we still hope to make it a better one. We welcome all the people of the surrounding communities to attend our Sunday school and preaching services.

The fourth quarterly conference of the two churches was held at Yarborough's Sunday afternoon. Several delegates were sent from our church.

All the reports have been turned in from our church and we are expecting to go over the top this year.

The church as a whole is hoping and praying that Conference will send our same pastor, Rev. D. D. Broome, back to us. For the past year, Bro. Broome and his wife have been a great help to our community. For the past two years they have visited many homes in and around the community, making friends wherever they went.

The friends of Clarence Killingsworth, who has been confined to his room for some time, will be glad to learn that he is up and improving nicely. Clarence is one of the new members of our church. He has been missed by the church and Christian Enedavor.

Our C. E. Society continues to improve nicely. The society was entertained by a weiner roast last Thursday evening.

We have not held the annual election of our church officials.

GRACE KILLINGSWORTH, Reporter.

Pleasant Grove.—Our work is going along nicely. The attendance and interest in the S. S. and C. E. societies is good. There was the largest number present at the evening service Sunday we have had for some time.

Brother Williams brought us two inspiring sermons Sunday as his closing messages for this Conference year. We hope the Annual Conference will see fit to send him back to us. At the fourth quarterly conference the vote was unanimous for the pastor's return. The church appreciates the good work Brother Williams and his good wife have done for us during the two years they have been with us.

We are so thankful that God has blessed us with good crops and made it possible for our pastor and delegate to go to Conference with all claims paid in full.

The Ladies' Aid Society gave a supper at the Belmont Cafe and realized the sum of about $82.00.

The Senior C. E. Society is planning to give a play, "Looking Lovely," at the Hasty High School Friday night, November 21.

MRS. RALPH KENNEDY, Reporter.

Lexington, State Street.—A gain in Sunday school attendance last Sunday was very gratifying. We have been gaining slowly but surely for the past several Sundays.

Mr. Hendry filled his appointment at Elbaville at 11 o'clock.

A business meeting was called after closing of Sunday school and a few last minute details were satisfactorily settled. Everything is settled in full for all obligations, and our pastor goes to Conference with a "clean slate."

On last Thursday night a very profitable and enjoyable program was held at the church. A musical program was delightfully rendered by Prof. Stimson and a group of his musicians from High Point College, after which a bazaar was held in the basement. There were loads of useful and edible things sold at auction, bringing us a fine total of more than $70. Our own people donated very generously to the bazaar and many of the merchants and manufacturers gave us useful things. We appreciate this much and heartily thank all who contributed in any way.

Last Sunday night six new members were added to our roll as church members. Those received were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Zimmerman, and Mrs. Qualls. We are glad to receive all of these good people. A most cordial welcome was extended them by all present Sunday night.

A large number of our folks are planning to attend Conference part of the time. A fortunate arrangement for many is our delegate's decision to attend every day from his home here and kindly offers to take as many as he can every day.

Mr. J. A. Walser is our delegate.

Mr. Homer Evans, student at State College, Raleigh, spent the past week-end with his mother, Mrs. A. H. Evans, and was with us in the service Sunday.

REPORTER.

Mebane.—As we have come to the close of the Conference year we realize we have not accomplished what we had hoped to, and yet, considering the present financial depression, we are confident that we have not utterly failed. The board of church stewards has worked unceasingly and has done the best it could. The election of officers was the last Sunday in October; on the first Sunday in November the officers were installed in a short but impressive service. Class-leaders, C. C. Smith, W. R. Jobe, J. F. Jobe, Mrs. J. E. Barnette, Mrs. Ed Scott, Mrs. George Dodson; stewards, J. W. Nicholson, chairman, Odah Terrell, Herbert Christopher, George McAuley, Albert Sykes, Claude Sykes, Charlie Jobe; church treasurer, Mrs. Carl Sykes; church trustees, J. F. Smith, Earl Brady, G. E. Wyatt, June Smith, Flody Jobe; parsonage trustees, Mrs. Jack Smith, Frank Jobe, R. T. Dunn; Sunday school superintendent, J. E. Foust; pianist, Miss Elizabeth Nicholson; first assistant, Mrs. A. H. Jobe; second assistant, Miss Lois Wilkinson; church reporter, Mrs. J. E. Foust. The fourth quarterly meeting was held November 3 at 7:30 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, presiding. The financial report for the church as presented by H. C. Nicholson, retiring chairman of the board of stewards, and Mrs. G. E. Wyatte, church treasurer for the past two years, showed a deficit in our claims for the closing year; however, the pastor's salary was paid in full. Our delegate to Annual Conference, T. O. Pender, was instructed to return our presnt pastor. The pastor's report, or message, to the quarterly meeting was encouraging and inspiring, and we feel that he has been untiring in his efforts to make the year a success in every particular. He has made around 500 visits and assisted in five revivals. We hope the Annual Conference will see fit to return him to this work.

The reports from the church and parsonage trustees revealed that they have been interested in the upkeep of the church property. The report by the president of the Woman's Auxiliary was good, this organization having raised during the Conference year $265. The work being done along missionary lines in this church under the efficient leadership of Mrs. H. C. Nicholson is something for any church of our membership to be justly proud. The report from the Ladies' Aid Society was encouraging; this band of women have raised $243.10 from November 1, 1929, to November 1, 1930. We are sure this organization means much to the local needs of our church. We have 43 active and 10 honory members.

The pastor reported very good work being done by the Senior C. E. Society. Mrs. Fletcher Smith reported interest and good attendance in the Intermediate and Junior C. E. Societies. J. E. Foust, Sunday school superintendent, reported a slight decrease in attendance at Sunday school during the past quarter; however, taking the year as a whole the attendance has been very good. The Sunday school has had several interesting worship programs for the opening devotional during the year. The school also sent $5 to Kannapolis church and $5 to our young people's work. Our Rally Day program was given during the Sunday school hour on the second Sunday in October.

Miss Lillian Williams, of Thomasville school faculty; Miss Grace Barnette, of Hillsboro school; Miss Edna Nicholson, music teacher at Eli Whitney, and Miss Elizabeth Nicholson, of Burlington school faculty, spent the week-end at their respective homes and attended church Sunday. It is always a pleasure to have these splendid young ladies of our church with us. Miss Alta Allen, another of our girls, is teaching at Southmont this winter. Miss Katie Lee Barnette, of Greensboro, usually spends the week-ends with her parents. We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. Grover Wilson; also the illness of a child of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, and one of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ray. We hope for all a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Patton have a new baby boy in their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Oakley are the proud parents of a new baby girl.

Baptismal service was observed Sunday evening; one baby girl, Marion Elizabeth Foust, was christened at this service. Mr. Willard Dunn has accepted a position at Covington, Va.

With every good wish for the M. P. Herald and our Annual Conference.

MRS. J. E. FOUST, Reporter.

GOD WILL GUIDE YOU

God will guide you,
Simply trust Him,
He knows what is best for you;
Stop outlining and repining,
Wait and see what He will do.

God will guide you, Do not doubt Him,
Freely yield your human will;
Never straying, daily praying,
He will every need fulfill.

God will guide you,
Love and serve Him,
Like a child obedient be;
Kindness voicing, keep rejoicing,
His good purpose you will see.

—The new Riverside church, an imposing Gothic structure erected on Riverside Drive, New York City, under the leadership of John D. PROHIBITION HERE TO STAY

Striking an optimistic note in a radio address, United States Senator Capper, of Kansas declared that prohibition is here to stay, in spite of the fight being made by the wets for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Prohibition has come to stay," said the senator.

"Prohibition has come to stay because the great mass of American people are at heart in favor of prohibition. They believe in it; they profit by it; they will not go back to the saloon and the saloon-keeper domination."

Warning the people not to be unduly alarmed at the action of the New York Republicans in inserting a wet plank in their state platform, Mr. Capper continued:

"There is no greater hypocrisy in this country today than the declaration of the wets that they are for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and also opposed to the return of the saloon.

"If you are for prohibition you are against the saloon.

"If you are against prohibition you are for the saloon.

"The unthinking man and woman who preaches repeal of the prohibitory amendment and prohibitory laws without the return of the saloon, is simply the dupe of smarter people who want the manufacture and sale of liquor legalized."

MEN AND MEMORIES OF THE CONFERENCES OF YESTERYEARS

It is an interesting thing to take up the study of the roll of a body of ministers as large as that of the North Carolina conference of the Methodist Protestant church. In a list of 116 ministers and preachers, there are some who are advanced in years. While it is not the purpose of this article to tell the age of these preachers, for preachers are like women in that respect, it is the purpose to show that the rank of the ministry is slowly thinning, and in some instances, faster than proper material is coming in to fill the broken places in the ranks.

Perhaps the oldest member of the North Carolina conference is Rev. T. F. McCulloch, who was admitted to the conference in 1876. Mr. McCulloch was active in the pastorate for 44 years, and became enrolled as a superannuate only ten years ago. It is quite a coincidence that two brothers should rank close together in the length of service in the conference. Rev. J. F. McCulloch, D.D., of Greensboro, has been editor of the conference paper, the "M. P. Herald," for 36 years, while his brother, T. F. McCulloch has been a member of the conference 20 years the longer.

Three members of the conference were admitted in 1883; viz. Rev. W. F. Kennett, Rev. W. F. McDowell, and Rev. W. M. Pike. It seems that the most popular initial that year was "W." Mr. Kennett, though a member of the conference for 47 years, was actively engaged in the pastorate for 43 years. Mr. Pike, was enrolled for active service 44 years, being superannuated three years ago, while Mr. McDowell, has ranked as supernumerary in Richland charge for eight years. Rev. D. A. Fishel, a member of conference since 1879, has been rated as superanumerary on Littleton charge only eight years. Rev. W. T. Totten stands alone in the entrants of 1885. He has been constantly active either in educational work at Yadkin College, or in the ministry, all these years. He has 45 years to his credit, while Rev. A. L. Hunter has 41 years of ministerial activity behind him. Rev. W. F. Ashburn recalls 40 years, as does Rev. G. F. Millaway.

Rev. J. R. Hutton is regarded as a young man yet, but his record of 38 years reveals a vast amount of preaching done. Rev. C. H. Whitaker came in the same year. Dr. T. M. Johnson, Dr. J. S. Williams, Dr. J. D. Williams and Rev. H. S. B. Thompson were admitted in '93. Dr. J. S. Williams has been chaplain of the Good Samaritan Mission, Asheville, 19 years, and is still going good. Dr. Johnson and Dr. J. D. Williams are still preaching every Sunday, and Rev. H. S. B. Thompson was superannuated in 1928 at Winston.

Dr. C. E. Forlines, 26 years a member of the faculty at Westminister Theological Seminary, Rev. N. G. Bethea, 28 years a member of the conference faculty, and 26 years its secretary. Rev. R. M. Andrews, many years in the pastorate, five years conference president, seven years president High Point college, and Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, serving continually in the pastorate and many years a member of the conference, as also is Dr. Andrews, shows that the entire class of entrants of 1897 are all active, with many years more to go. The last man to be admitted in the gay '90's, was Rev. H. L. Powell, of Thomasville.

Thus, we have reviewed the membership of the conference, and had a look at the men who are remaining over from the 19th century. They are not a crowd of men that have grown old. There is not a grouch among them. They are those men upon whom the younger men look as being their "Fathers in Israel." If it were possible to call the roll of those people that have been helped to a higher life by these men who make up the Honor Guard of the '90s, there should be a vast host, the number of which no man could count.

Every minister the Seminary has produced in 26 years, with all the souls he has reached for God, would be credited to Dr. Forelines, as one of his very own. This illustrious son of North Carolina is mentioned because he deserves to be accorded a high place. How many faint-hearted Methodist Protestants in the yester-years have taken on new courage because of the "Methodist Protestant Herald." Many a young preacher would doubtless have refused to try, had encouragement been withheld by Dr. Andrews, Mr. Bethea, and Mr. Lowdermilk, Dr. Johnson, and Dr. Williams, of the conference faculty. Who knows but that the Methodist Protestant church, and Western Maryland college, would never had that noble character we do have in Dr. Ward, and perhaps others, had J. S. Williams and T. M. Johnson failed.

Those other men, who have fought side by side with these brethren are as worthy of commendation as these, for they too have fought the battle of the years. Others are sleeping, who were just as worthy as those living.

The years come and go. The drums of time are beating a march for us, as we come again to a conference session. Those who have gone on before,

"Climbed the steep ascent of heaven,
Through peril, toil and pain."

These men of the nineties, still working as zealously as any young man in the conference today, will within another five or ten years, or less perhaps, be sleeping with the most honored of all the conference, or they will be enrolled as superannuates. And as I see them day after day; and as they will come in and go out at conference this year; and as their voices shall be heard in the deliberations of the conference that has become what it is because of such as they, may all of us, and especially the younger men bow our heads and say,

"O God, to us may grace be given
To follow in their train."

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Mebane

Miss Ruth Mebane died November 2, 1930. Funeral services were conducted November 3 at Hebron church by Rev. N. N. Fleming and the writer. Miss Mebane was a loyal member of Hebron M. P. church. She joined this church in early life, and remained a faithful member until death.

She was a trained nurse by profession. We cannot understand why God should take her from her chosen profession so soon; but we bow in humble submission to His will.

We sympathize with her father, mother, brothers, sisters, and other relatives and friends. May God comfort them all.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

In Memoriam

Whereas Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has called from labor to reward Hon. William C. Hammer; and

Whereas, his passing has saddened the hearts of his fellow-countrymen and brought great sorrow and bereavement to those near and dear to him; and

Whereas, as manifested by his usefulness in his church, his community, state and nation, his loyalty to the principles of right and justice in the discharging of his duties as a public servant is unquestioned;

Therefore, Be it Resolved, That we, the officers and members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Mebane Mehodist Protestant church, extend to the bereaved wife and daughter our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their time of sorrow; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and a copy sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald for publication, and a copy be placed upon the minutes of our Auxiliary.

W. E. Elmore

Last Saturday evening, October 25th, at 8 o'clock death came as a relief to the suffering body of W. E. Elmore, of Sandy Ridge township. His friends and neighbors were not shocked, but saddened, as the news began to circulate that he was gone; as he had been seriously sick for several months with cancer of the stomach, and suffering intensely with a form of rheumatism for more than a year. He was about 65 years of age, and had lived in this community nearly all of his life. Mr. Elmore was a hard working, strong man, and until his health failed more than a year ago the weather was never too rough for him to work at something. He was a good neighbor, always ready to help anyone in need, and more than all he was honest; when he made a promise he kept it.

He is survived by his widow and the following children: Mrs. Arthur Deese, of Vance township; Mrs. Charley Lemmond, Mrs. Rob Bennett, and Mrs. Dave Bennett, all of Sandy Ridge township, and Mr. Willie Elmore, of Charlotte; also two half brothers and one half sister.

He was a member of Beulah M. P. church and the pastor of that church, Rev. Mr. Joyner, assisted by Rev. Mr. Bridgers of the Nazarene church, conducted the funeral service at Weddington on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in the cemetery at that place. A large gathering of friends and relatives attended the funeral. The grave was completely covered with beautiful flowers.

A FRIEND.

Saunders

Funeral services for W. Rankin Saunders were held from Love Joy church October 16th at 11 a. m. Bro. Saunders was 73 years of age, and had been in declining health for several years. In early manhood he became a member of Love Joy church, and remained true to the end, thus passing on triumphant in the faith. The writer had charge of the last rites.

"God Looking for a Man"

(Theme of Ordination Sermon by Dr. J. D. Williams)

The searching light of truth divine
On haunts of men does brightly shine:
The purpose strong we understand;
For God is out to find a man.

A man! A man! A real man,
Who looks ahead and feels he can:
Without false pride or vain conceit,
For Master's use his powers meet.

A man whose tongue is free from guile,
With lips untouched by aught that's vile,
A man that's bold to speak the truth,
With life unspoiled by sins of youth.

A man with willing heart and hands,
Devoting self to need's demands,
Both serving God and serving men,
With love for all within his ken.

Just such a man can God now use,
All other men He may refuse:
And such a man when work is done
Will God give seat beside His Son!

The Conference At Albemarle

We cannot tell the story in every detail. The usual business was transacted. The various departments of the church work were presented by those in charge; missions, education, homes for orphans and afflicted. Reports from pastors and other employes were submitted. The statistical report showed a gain of about nine hundred members. Despite economic conditions financial reports were fairly good. One pastor expressed the view that hard times are in a large degree a creature of the imagination. Certain it is that our minds can magnify our evils out of all proportion. And we can call evil that which is really good, though it may be unpleasant. As usual, the subject of greatest interest was that of distribution of pastors for the coming year. Prof. Pender of Mebane was chosen with President Taylor to form the stationing committee. Their report was adopted without change or question. A few charges were left unsupplied and a few pastors were left without appointments. This often occurs, but adjustments are made later by the president, satisfying all. We hope it will be so this year. See the report of the stationing committee in another column.

Denominational Day program, in charge of Dr. Straughn, Promotional Secretary of the General Conference, was of especial interest. President J. C. Broomfield, Dr. G. W. Haddaway, Secretary of the Board of Missions, and others, spoke. Dr. Straughn exhibited tables showing how much or how little our conference had paid in comparison with others. Perhaps it should have been better: certainly it could have been worse. One trouble is, Dr. Straughn, we do not sufficiently realize when we give money for church budgets that we are really aiding in the extension of God's Kingdom through the Methodist Protestant church. We see our wheat go into the mill, but we do not see the flour come out. Show us the flour.

The musical department of High Point College directed by Professor Stimson rendered a pleasing program Friday night, followed by an educational address by Dr. Paul S. Kennett.

President Humphreys spoke several times regarding the college and made a fine impression and inspired hope for the college. The embarrassing obstacle is the debt contracted in building and in operating the past six years. Dr. Humphreys hopes to do two things: to run the college without increasing the debt and (2) to find means to reduce the debt and ultimately wipe it out. It is a job for a man, but President Humphreys shows himself a man. He is inspiring confidence and will secure co-operation. All colleges that have gone on to worthy success have encountered similar difficulties. Let us be true to High Point College as we are true to the Methodist Protestant church, and she will give a good account of herself.

The Women's Auxiliary and its work were represented by Mrs. Hammer, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Bates, all so well known that their initials are not needed to identify them. The women's work has always been a great factor, but through progressive organization it has assumed greater proportions than ever before. God bless the good women in their good work.

Members of the Annual Conference and others were much impressed with the beauty and commodiousness of Albemarle's new church. The auditorium is charming with its graceful architecture, its beautiful memorial windows, its arrangement of pulpit and choir loft. It has a good number of Sunday School rooms and a capacious basement. No space seems to have been wasted, the whole building is compactly arranged. The pastor is provided with a convenient study room. Our Albemarle people are to be commended for their good taste and for their willingness to lay out the means to provide such a place of worship. Pastor Anderson acquitted himself well as host and we left with grateful feelings to both pastor and people for the kind and hospitable treatment we received.

May this new year be a good one to us all, pastors and peoples, and may we if spared go with joy to our next conference in State Street Church, Lexington, a year hence.

THANKSGIVING FOR THE HOME

We are just home from Conference and have not the time to get a financial statement in the HERALD this week. We are therefore sending just a brief reminder that Thanksgiving is just ahead. At or near Thanksgiving all of God's children seek to make some expression of their gratitude to God for His goodness to them by giving in some way to those who are less fortunate than themselves.

Destitute children gathered into orphan homes certainly offer to all a splendid opportunity for such expression.

The people of the entire state are urged at this time to contribute "at least a day's income" for the support of the orphans.

Mr. M. L. Shipman, Chairman of the Publicity Committee for the orphanages of the state, has this to say:

"Wolf at the Door"

"The orphanages are overwhelmed," "In prosperous times they have, perhaps, as many appeals for help. But now the wolf is at the door. It looks like those they might have looked to for help will soon be on the bread lines themselves. The orphans and other agencies are crippled by the falling off of contributions. Especially is this true of the last few months. Many of these institutions are heavily in debt and in order to meet the usual distress have borrowed money at the risk of losing their financial ratings with the banks.

"Our generation has had no such challenge as this. The very difficulty of the situation ought to call out the greatest Thanksgiving offering made in ten years. Several thousand helpless children are in dire need. Surely the offering will be big and generous."

We are depending upon our people for the largest Thanksgiving offering this home has ever received. The offerings for the home, from the Sunday Schools and churches, during the last conference year was about $4,000 less than the year before. This means that the home must have a large Thanksgiving offering or suffer.

We believe your hearts will be touched as you read this, and that you will lend a hand at Thanksgiving.

Discuss It With Others

Talk about the home, pray for the home, and speak to others of making a Thanksgiving offering, and be sure to urge a good offering in your Sunday School and church. We know you will and God will bless you.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST CONVENE

By REV. LUTHER K. LONG

I have always made it a practice to attend as many of the various religious conventions and conferences as I could conveniently reach. The programs are, as a rule, interesting. And the reports of the work of fellow Christians of other denominations gives me a feeling of gratitude that so much is being done by many people in many places toward the building of the Kingdom of God.

The Disciples of Christ—to the number of more than 7,500 registered delegates—held a great convention, their first world convention, in the city of Washington in October. Representatives from many nations and languages were there.

I was glad to be present in several sessions of the convention, and to become conscious of the good spirit manifest in their deliberations.

This denomination has made an unusual growth in numbers within the past forty years; and its change of emphasis has been no less remarkable.

When I was a boy in the Middlewest the Disciples were generally referred to as Campbelites—after Alexander Campbel, one of the founders. They were insistent on immersion as the only authorized mode of administering baptism. Many of them even taught that no one could be saved without it. They were great for debates, and they were contentious proselyters. In their reports of ingatherings from revivals they had two lists—those who came from the world, and those who came from the "sects." And they seemed to glory more in those who were saved from the other denominations than those who were saved from the world. While desiring to place itself in contrast with the various sects it became, in reality, one of the most sectarian of all the sects.

I do not speak of this with the least unkind feeling. I should not speak of it at all were it not that there is something fine to which attention needs to be called. A great change has come over this denomination. The change started with the rise and development of the Christian Endeavor movement. The Disciples entered heartily into this movement. Their ministers and young people flocked to the county, state, and international conventions. I used to travel with them on trains and see them in the meetings. This fellowship with young people and ministers of other denominations opened their eyes in a wonderful way to the fact that there are plenty of fine Christian people outside of the Disciples' communion. With this enlargement of heart and mind, their churches began to grow in numbers and efficiency. As their work in the homeland became more prosperous, their foreign work began growing by leaps and bounds. Today, this formerly small denomination has become one of the large and aggressive factors in Christian work.

As I mingled with the vast numbers of delegates and visitors attending the meetings in Washington, I was impressed that they differ somewhat from the crowds that attend gatherings of the older denominaions. There seemed to be larger representations from the younger men and women, and from the business men. Perhaps more of the ministers—the younger ones, especially, had the bearing of men who were engaged in enterprises that called for their best abilities, and that they were succeeding in bringing about looked for results. On the whole, one might say, there was not so much "piousness" in evidence, but there was a genuine interest and a thoroughly Christian enthusiasm for their cause.

When the five great denominations—Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, and Disciples—come together in the United Church of America, as I confidently expect them to do, the contribution of most value that the Disciples will bring in this: the power of enthusiasm in propagating the gospel and in committing people to the Christian life and to service for the church. Other denominations will contribute other elements of great value. Just now we very much need this spirit that impels Christians to go out and bring in the lost and needy.

The meetings of the convention were held simultaneously in the Washington auditorium with a seating capacity of 6,000 and in Constitution hall with a capacity of of 4,000. The programs in the two places were identical, but the speakers and musicians were different. It would repay one's time to secure and read reports and addresses.

The outstanding side event of the convention was the dedication of the new Disciples' National Church on Thomas Circle. This magnificent structure, costing more than $1,500,000, was built by funds contributed by the denomination at large. It is called by competent judges the most beautiful church edifice in Washington. Great throngs were gathered from day to day as the pulpit, the organ, the choir, the windows, the baptistry, and other parts of the building were solemnly set aside for their intended sacred uses.

A long step was taken toward the raising of $8,000,000 as an endowment fund for the support of aged and disabled ministers and their families. A period of three years is set apart during which this fund is to be secured; and central and sub-committees were set up to look after the matter. It is confidently expected that the entire amount will be raised. Thus in one more denomination will a serious situation be fairly well met. Ministers should now be able to go into their work with more complete abandon, since they may count on being kept in old age or sickness from the possibility of absolute want.

For many years Washington has been the most interesting convention city in this country. Not so large as New York, Chicago, and several other cities, it yet has attractions as the Capitol City that belong to no other. With the many new government buildings going up the great improvements being made in streets and highways, and the increasingly rich and varied contents of libraries and museums, visitors coming to conventions will find their spare time well occupied. A few days preceding or following the sessions of a convention may profitably be spent in sight-seeing.

AN EPITAPH FOR PROHIBITION

(Written by Charles L. Brooks, Student, in the Denver Post, July 30

Liquor is the arch enemy of man. It has caused more human misery than all the wars of history. In days of its power the saloon controlled the parties, made the laws and governed the nation. But the saloon itself never obeyed any law, until the suffering mothers trained and brought to maturity enough votes to overthrow it.

The Eighteenth Amendment is the fruit of their labors. It is the highest reach of purely human legislation. Its purpose was never to dictate personal habits, but to curb an inhuman traffic. Its success marks the greatest advance in decency since the race emerged from barbarism and discarded breechcloths.

The "wets" insist it can't succeed. No law ever wholly succeeded. But human slavery dueling as a "code of honor," piracy on the seas, the eating of raw flesh—all of which once existed—have so far faded from the picture as to be negligible. It is vain to hope for prohibition?

But prohibition has succeeded. One who says more liquor is sold now than in saloon days is either ignorant, or a plain deceiver. The amount spent for it now, at least by calculation, is less by two billions of dollars than in saloon days.

And also prohibition can be enforced. Don't tell me that a nation which successfully met the shock of German arms is impotent to enforce its laws.

Teach children that anyone who breaks this law is guilty of treason and watch results. Repeal it? Never!

ON TO THE GOAL!

On to the goal! Press on!
  Alone, yet unafraid;
He cut the path Who beckons thee,
  On then, and undismayed.

On to the goal! Press on!
  The Eyes that are a flame
Are watching thee: what then are men?
What matter praise or blame?

On to the goal! Press on!
  Look not behind thee now,
When just ahead lies His "Well done,"
  And crowns await thy brow.

On to the goal! Press on!
  Blind, deaf and sometimes dumb,
Along the uphill, blood-marked road,
  Hard after Christ, press on! —Selected.

SILENT FORCES

Silence marks the working of the greatest forces of life. No ear hears the sun draw up into the sky the countless tons of water that falls in rain. No man hears the groaning of the oak's fibers as it grows to its strength and height. Noise is usually an after effect, and does not often accompany initial power. Sounding brass and tinkling cymbals are noisy, but not powerful. So the will reaches its decision in silence, it does not need much shouting to know when a man is in earnest.

Love grows without a sound. The great Fisher of men worked quietly as fishers usually do, and, as Isaiah said, not crying nor lifting up His voice in the streets, yet He was doing His Father's work every minute. We need not become anxious when our sincerest work makes no great noise nor has no immediate effect. If we are dead in earnest, let us do what we can to keep still.—Publisher Unknown.

GIVE IT AWAY

"Any man who has a religion is bound to do one of two things with it, change it or spread it," says Robert E. Speer. "If it isn't true, he must give it up. If it is true, he must give it away."

We who have found Christianity to be true, satisfying the deep spiritual hunger of our lives, must act upon the second of these alternatives: we must spread it. Each of us can do this.—Kingdom Truth.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Annual Conference

It was a happy, harmonious, and busy session, and closed with all hearts charged with new responsibilities, and every face set gladly and courageously toward the privileges, the problems, and the opportunities of a new year. So far as we are able to determine, appointsments were received by both pastors and charges with an unusual degree of satisfaction. The few charges left to be supplied are already receiving attention, and we are hopeful of satisfactory arrangements in every case. The year through which we have just passed was unusual in the matter of finances, but despite that fact, considerable money was raised for kingdom purposes, and spiritual results were most gratifying. As we turn now toward the new year, we do it in the full confidence that the God who has brought us thus far, is still with us, and that we have access to Him for all the help that we need in doing the work that He has given us to do. We shall, therefore, enter upon this new year with hopes high and courage strong, and with no purpose but to do our best for Him whose we are, and whom we delight to serve. In doing this, we shall have His continued blessings, and the joy of knowing that His cause is prospering in our hands.

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

The Albemarle church is well suited for conference purposes, and the congregation and their friends proved most gracious hosts. We shall not soon forget our stay there.

Receiving the Pastor

If he is new to the charge, or if he goes back to the same charge that he served last year, the way he is received will have much to do with the way he enters upon his work. See to it, then, brethren and sisters of the churches, that your pastor receives a warm welcome when he arrives to take up his work with you. If he is new on your charge, "fit him in" by a warm, wholehearted welcome; if he is your old pastor, returning to serve with you for another year, leave no doubt in his mind that you welcome him back as your spiritual leader. Pastors serve best, always, when they know that they have the hearts of their people. Pastors will, of course, reciprocate this attitude. Love begets love. The lamb loved Mary because Mary loved the lamb. The attitude of the pastor, therefore, has much to do with how he is received, and how fully he finds his way to the hearts of his people. "I seek not yours, but you," and "ourselves your servants for Jesus sake," are keys that turn heart-bolts, and he is a wise pastor who goes to his charge in this spirit.

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above."

The Lord bind heart to heart, and link hand with hand on every charge, as the new conference year begins.

Moving the Pastor

We urge charges to assume this expense of the pastor. Salaries have been cut to the minimum, owing to the economic depression, and every dollar will have to be guarded with rigid economy. It will not mean much to the charge to bear the moving expense, and the saving to the pastor will mean a great deal to him. We earnestly trust that there may be a ready disposition on the part of the people in this matter.

Inauguration

Dr. Humphreys will be formally inducted into his office, as President of High Point College, on next Saturday morning. All plans are being completed for the event. Distinguished speakers will be present, and the occasion will be one of interest and impressiveness. We trust that our people from far and near will attend in large numbers. The program will begin at 10:30.

Sympathy

Brother and Sister J. B. Ogburn have our deepest sympathy in the tragic death of their only son, Richard, who was suddenly killed a few days ago, while working at his father's mill. He was a faithful member of Flat Rock church, and was held in high esteem by everyone who knew him. We share the sorrow with the young wife and other members of the family, and pray that God's sustaining blessings may abound toward them.

Appointments

Sunday, November 16.—Lebanon, 11 A. M.

"Happy is he—whose hope is in the Lord his God."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. Taylor.

LIVING ABOVE THE MOSQUITO LEVEL

When John G. Paton settled in his first mission field, he and his family were so subject to mosquitoes and malaria that his wife and child died and his own life seemed doomed. But by moving his hut to a higher part of the island he got above the mosquito level and was troubled no more. Just so, many a church has bickerings and dissensions, and many an individual has weaknesses and self-indulgences, that seem incurable. The way to get rid of them is to get above them, to leave the malarial region of selfishness and climb up to the missionary hill-top where the horizon of duty is so vast and the needs of a lost world so appalling, that the old temptations seem in contrast not only wicked but petty and childish.—Egbert W. Smith in the Desire of All Nations.

THE DIVINE LAW OF INVERSE RATIO

To get, we must give; to accumulate, we must scatter; to make ourselves happy, we must make others happy; and in order to become spiritually vigorous, we must seek the spiritually vigorous, we must seek the spiritual good of others. Prayer girds human weakness with Divine strength, and gives to troubled mortals the peace of God.—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

"HE DID IT"

Shortly after the World War, when the boys were being sent home from that great conflict, a troop-train arrived at Winnipeg, Canada. Hundreds of parents and loved ones were gathered at the depot to greet them, and anxiously awaited their arrival.

The boys fairly tumbled out of that train amid the welcoming shouts of their many friends, and were received by their family groups. It was a heart-warming sight to see sons thus restored to their parents again.

Some there were who were cripples for life; some with disfigured faces, others with empty sleeves, some using crutches, but all were received tearfully and thankfully.

As we stood and watched, we saw one soldier who was heavily leaning on a crutch carefully making his way from the car, yet at the same time leading a comrade who appeared to be blind. They made their way from the train, and we see a family group hurrying toward them—it is the one with the crutch they come to greet.

While the crippled boy is embraced by his brothers and sisters, his father and mother, the blind one stands helpless.

But at last as he raised his head from his dear mother's shoulder, the boy with the crutch reached over and grasped his blind comrade's arm, drawing him toward his mother with these words—"He did it, mother. He dragged me in when I lay helpless and wounded out there in No-Man's Land—a shell burst and blinded him just as we rolled into our trench. He did it, mother; thank him!" And with tears streaming down her cheeks, the grateful mother clasped the blind one to her breast, thanking him for saving her boy.

This, my friends, is just one of the many stories of heroism that could be told, suggestive of vital, salvation truth. It reminds us of the words of the Lord Jesus Christ when He said—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Here was a man who risked his life for his friends." Here was a man who risked his life and sacrificed his eyesight in saving his comrade from a horrible death in bullet-sprayed and shell-torn No-Man's Land; here was one who loved his comrade enough to face almost certain death to bring him to a place of safety. Such an act of heroism is commendable, and for its accomplishment the blind soldier wore a Distinguished Service cross.

Now in Romans 5:8 we read, "But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Can you understand such love as that?

I am sure you can understand the love of a comrade that would lead him to risk his life for his friend, but God's love for poor, ruined, guilty sinners far exceeds any such love; the wonder of God's love was that when He gave His Son to die for us we were enemies; notice again, enemies to the One who died for us, as we see in Colossians 1:21. "You that were sometime aleinated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath He reconciled." He who was "made sin for us" there upon Calvary's Cross gave His life for His enemies.

As one who believes and trusts that One, who can say, "He loved me and gave Himself for me," I beg you to believe.

As the rescued soldier said, "He Did It!" for we are saved by grace, through faith in Another who did all the work of redemption while we were helpless. "For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly." (Rom. 5:6).

None of us poor, guilty, ruined sinners could do anything to save ourselves, but we are saved if we believe in Him who died for us (in our stead).

Believest thou this?

Oh, believe it now! Then you too will say as did the rescued soldier, "Thank Him—He did it."

MY THANKSGIVING

For all the good my days afford,
For all the blessings on me poured,
For every kindly act and word,
I thank thee, Lord.

I thank thee, Lord, for thoughts that roam
Beyond the narrow walls of home
To gather good from days to come,
And from the past.

I thank thee, Lord, for length of days,
For guidance through life's devious ways,
And in the darkness for the rays
Of light and love.

I thank thee e'en for hours of gloom,
For crushing grief and darkened room;
For in the shadow thou didst' come
To heal and bless.

I thanked thee that the weight of things
No longer binds my soul's free wings;
That she can soar, and, soaring, sings
Thy praise, O Lord.

That sea and mountain, flower and tree,
Their message brings to me of thee,
And fill my soul with ecstasy,
I thank thee, Lord.

When many hearts thanksgiving say,
But now, forever and alway,
I thank thee, Lord!

—Mary Aronetta Wilbur, in Living Church.

THE PRAYING HEART

The man who is living the life of victory is living the prayer life, because the Spirit is constantly forming in him prayers that are after the will of God; and while he may not be constantly dropping down on his knees, he is in that relation with the Holy Spirit where the prayer is formed in his desire, and as he goes about his business, there is the prayer desire that goes out to God. That is the man who gets things from Heaven; that is the man the devil hates, but, thank God, he cannot overcome a soul who has been that given over to God.—Broughton.

THE BIBLE

Born in the East and clothed in Oriental form and imagery, the Bible walks the ways of all the world with familiar feet and enters land after land to find its own everywhere. It has learned to speak in hundreds of languages to the heart of man. It comes into the palace to tell the monarch that he is a servant of the Most High, and into the cottage to assure the peasant that he is a son of God. Children listen to its stories with wonder and delight, and wise men ponder them as parables of life.

It has a word for time of peril, a word of comfort for time of calamity, a word of light for the hour of darkness. Its oracles are repeated in the assembly of the people, and its counsels whispered in the ear of the lonely. The wicked and the proud tremble at its warnings, but to the wounded and the penitent it has a mother's voice. The wilderness and the solitary places have been made glad by it, and the fire on the hearth has lit the readings of its well-worn page. It has woven itself into our dearest dreams; so that love, friendship, sympathy and devotion, memory and hope, put on the beautiful garments of its treasured speech, breathing of frankincense and myrrh.

No man is poor or desolate who has this treasure for his own. When the landscape darkens and the trembling pilgrim comes to the valley of the shadow, he is not afraid to enter; he takes the rod and staff of Scripture in his hand; he says to a friend and comrade, "Good-by, we shall meet again;" and confronted by that support, he goes toward the lonely pass as one who walks through darkness into light.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke in Hints and Helps.

A PRAYER FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

"That, in the sunshine of life,
I may be ever-mindful of Thee."

This is Dr. Moffatt's beautiful and suggestive translation of Psalm 56:13.

A most timely petition for us in days of prosperity, in the day of youth, in the day of happinses.

We are mindful of God in times of sorrow, and trouble, when the shadows deepen upon our pathway. Are we mindful of Him when we walk in the sunshine of life?

Our Lord desires to walk with us in the sunshine of life as well as in its shadows. To be invited to the festal occasions of our lives as well as to the funerals.

We should be grieved if our friends turned to us, thought of us, only in times of need.

The religious festivals of the Hebrew people were marked by laughter and song. The songs of the happy pilgrims floated out o'er hill and dale as they journeyed to Jerusalem. Some of the happiest experiences and memories of their lives were interwoven with their religious festivals.

The bold idea of setting the very statutes of God to song is conceived by the writer of Psalm 119. As he thinks back upon his life he writes, "Thy statutes have been my songs in the hour of my pilgrimage."

May this be true of us also. May our happiest memories be of the days, when in the sunshine of life, we walked with God.—Selected.

GETTING READY FOR CHURCH

Do you just come to church or do you get ready to come first? Do you ever make any definite preparation for the Sunday morning worship? Do you have the matter on your mind in advance? Do you plan for it both for yourself and for those in your home or for those whom you may influence? Do you pray for the service? Do you pray that the sermon and other parts of the worship may be helpful to you and to others? Do you pray that the pastor may be given Divine guidance in the preaching? Do you really desire a blessing for the day? Do you pray for the unconverted who may be in the congregation for that day? Do you make your Sunday School an excuse or an inspiration for the other services to follow?

We should make definite preparation for our worship. You expect the pastor to make preparation for the preaching, and while your preparation may be of a different kind, yet you are under the necessity of getting ready, if the service is to mean the most to you. And all can make this preparation. Try it and see what a difference it makes for the day. Get ready for church.—Publisher Unknown.

"FIVE MINUTES TOO LATE, MR DEVIL"

"Does the Salvation Army live here?" inquired a man, panting for berath at a door in a distant town (in the West Indies). "Yes; anything I can do for you?" replied the officer who responded to the summons.

"There is a man dying in our street and he keeps shouting for the Army man, we think he means the Salvation Army." "I'll come at once," replied the officer, and without more ado he reached his cap and went with the messenger.

A desperate character lay dying, but when the ring of firm footsteps sounded on the stairs he sat up. As the wearer of the familiar uniform came softly into the room, he stretched out his hands and gasped piteously:

"Salvation Army, I'm dying and I'm damned!" "No, no, not yet!" hopefully replied the officer, and began at once to point the man to the fountain of Jesus' Blood.

After a very real fight with the powers of darkness, the man found deliverance. A few minutes later the death struggle began to take place, in the midst of which the man was heard to say, "You are five minutes too late, Mr. Devil! I have the Blood;" and closing his eyes he passed into the holy presence.—All the World.

PATIENCE

Patience governs the flesh, strengthens the spirit, sweetens the temper, stifles anger, extinguishes envy, subdues pride. She teaches humility; bridles the tongue; restrains the hand; tramples on temptations; endures persecutions; consummates martyrdom. She comforts the poor; moderates the rich; makes us humble in prosperity; cheerful in adversity; unmoved by calumny and reproach. She teaches us to forgive those who have injured us, and to be first in asking forgiveness of those whom we have injured. She delights the faithful; invites the unbelieving; and is beautiful in every sex and age.—Bishop Horne.

OUR STORY PAGE

A COON FLAT FINANCIER

"Heered anything 'bout wheat today?" grumbled old Jake, as his hired man entered. "Goin' down, of course."

"No, goin' up," Bill answered, promptly. "A man hollored to me from the aige of the hill this mornin' an' said 't was 70."

"70!" Jake grabbed his crutches and rose totteringly to his feet, but sank back with a snarl of mingled pain and rage. "70! and I've got ninety bushels. Durn the old back! Time I'm over the rheumatics it'll be down to 50, like 't was last year,an' there'll be a clean loss of eighteen dollars. Blame it al!"

"Thar's Bill, pap," suggested his daughter. "He's mighty strong and willin'."

The face darkened, then grew brighter. Evidently the idea, at first scouted, was being tolerated. That meant the hired man had moved forward.

"I—dunno," doubtfully.

"I'll take it down, all right," Bill volunteered, confidently. "I've sold wheat to Staunton afore."

He was thinking of two bushels he had once taken to market for his father, the proceeds of which he had lost on his way home.

Jake snorted. "There's more fallin's than risin's in wheat," he rumbled. "But, I dunno 'bout you. An' yet ag'in I can't go. Huh! Reckon ye had better take it. An', mind you, I want it all in tomorrer."

Bill's head was whirling, but there was Laurel looking at him confidently.

"All right," he said, as steadily as he could. "The mules can draw half on the long waggin, an' I'll borry Snifflin' Sam's mule an' Ike Brown's old hoss, an' hitch 'em to Ben Coyner's hay waggin. That will make the other half. Ike's boy, Sam, can drive ahind me, so I can keep an eye on him. Oh, yes, we'll git on fust rate."

Jake nodded approvingly. It was a good plan.

After the wheat was loaded the next morning, Bill contrived to drawl Laurel into the kitchen for a moment.

"Say, Laurel," he began eagerly, "I—I—say, would you mind me gittin' a ring to Staunton—a gold ring for you an' me?"

She looked at him quickly, understandingly, her face flushing.

"Why, no, I wouldn't mind, Bill," she answered simply. "I'll be real glad."

"An'—an' would ye mind speakin' to your pap 'bout it while I'm gone, Laurel? It might be a good time now I'm totin' his wheat."

"No-no, I don't mind."

She watched him from the doorway until the heavy wagons rumbled out of sight; then she went to her father.

"Pap," she announced, abruptly, "Bill's ast me to marry him."

"An' you?"

"I've done said yes," composedly.

Jake controlled himself with a mighty effort. With Laurel he must be diplomatic.

"Well, mebbe ye know best," he grimaced affably. "But ye know how 'tis with Bill. Ye'll have to wait till he's able to keep ye. I don't reckon he's saved enough to buy a runt pig yet."

But Laurel smiled contentedly. People were easily mistaken, she thought. Had not Bill promised her a gold ring out of the plentitude of his riches? So she said softly:

"Bill can keep me all right. But we'll wait till ye say yourself that he can. Hit's that sure."

Curiosly enough, at that very moment Bill was wondering dismally how he would be able to contrive the purchase of the gold ring. Twenty-five cents represented the accumulation of his twenty-five years.

They expected him back at the end of the third day. It was the afternoon of the sixth when he returned. As he dismissed young Sam and attended to the mules there was a look of beatific joy upon his face, which remained there until he opened the cabin door and saw the expectant face of Jake. Then he whitened and staggered to the nearest chair.

"Ye pore boy!" cried Laurel tenderly. "You're plumb wored out."

"Did ye git the 70 cents?" demanded Jake.

Bill gasped and tried to collect his thoughts. What was he here for? It was about the wheat, wasn't it? He had almost forgotten that important matter after the gold ring took possession of his mind. He remembered the wheat had been taken to the storage building of a big flour mill, and that he had told the clerk he would be back later and attend to its sale. Then he hurried away in search of a job of hauling with the mules, and had carted sand two days for ten dollars, and had bought the gold ring. And he had given Sam the twenty-five cents to pay his fare to a cousin's to get him out of the way for two days. That was all, only he had forgotten to go back and sell the wheat.

"Did ye git the 70 cents?" demanded Jake, the second time.

Bill felt that it was a crisis with him, and he drew a long, hard breath.

"Ye see, it's this-a-way," he said. "Signs are for risin', an' I ain't sold yet. But I'll go back"—he was about to say—"to once," but restrained himself, for that might betray him. He added, instead—"in a few days an' see how the risin' is comin' on."

Under ordinary circumstances the invalid would not have controlled his astonishment and wrath. But this was an extraordinary opportunity, and Jake was nothing if not diplomatic. So he forced himself into a semblance of composure.

"Hit's your lookout, Bill," he said significantly. "I ordered ye to sell, an' of course, I'll hold ye responsible for all fallin's from the 70 cents."

It was a very miserable Bill who went out to attend to the evening chores. He imagined all sorts of fallings—from a life of toil spent in atoning for the carelessness to the probable loss of Laurel. He stuck it out, however, until the third morning. Then he left the cabin with steady, confident strides, which, however, changed to frantic haste as soon as he was beyond view of Laurel in the doorway.

But the mills of the gods sometimes turn out unaccountable grist. When Bill returned at the end of one short twenty-four hours, his face was again expressive of beatific joy.

Going straight to Jake he handed him a roll of bills.

"The risin' was even better than I 'lowed on," he said, nonchalantly. I sold for a dollar ninety. Ye see, thar was signs of breakin', an' I 'lowed I better not hold on any loger."

Jake gazed at the money; at the big strong figure before him; at Laurel, smiling, a few feet away, and bowed his head in surrender.

"I reckon I might 'a' been mistook, Laurel," he said submissively. "Bill will be able to keer for ye, sure 'nough."—Frank H. Sweets, in The Presbyterian Advance.

AN OLD NOR'WESTER

"What keeps you men out in this God forsaken country? I should think you and your wives would die of loneliness," remarked my friend from the East. "There is nothing here but waste land, buttes and coulees, scoria and gumbo."

"Well," I replied, "it is not the things you see that count so much as the things you don't see. Out here we live on an indomitable faith in 'Mighty Montana in the Making.' Those hills to the north were named 'Bad Lands' by the Indians, because they are so hard to cross. Yet those very hills are best grazing land to be found anywhere. In them are wide stretches of buffalo grass, which is the most wholesome grazing food for stock. The coulees are a natural protection for the stock in the winter. The snowfall is light. It is the wind that is severe. Down in one of those pockets with the bright sunshine the stock will thrive through the coldest weather. Take up the range 'critter' and put her in the best barn out of the sun and she will chill to death.

"If you go over and examine those hills you will find them underlaid with coal. It is lignite, to be sure, but it is of the highest grade. The Northern Pacific has been using it in locomotives for five years. They have just opened a surface mine near Forsyth. The vein is 27 feet thick and covers 700 square miles. But I am not trying to sell grazing land nor coal mines."

"Yes, I can see why men stay out here for profits, but why do you stay for mission work?" retorted my friend.

"What keeps any man in mission work in any land?" I asked. "It is hard work. It calls for more initiative and energy than any other phase of church work. The outstanding feature that makes it attractive is the people you meet. You never know whether you are meeting a count or a crook until you have discovered him.

"As a student I came to Montana for summer work. It was my privilege to make the G-P ranch one of my stopping places. This particular ranch runs sheep. The outfit has about 18,000 acres under lease and deed and runs from three to five bands. They have a large crew in the summer who prepare the hay for winter feeding. Some of the men are 'floaters,' while others stay on year after year. They make their homes in the clutter of bunk houses.

"One old chap I observed was not a floater, neither did he seem to have a band of sheep. He was of medium height, probably sixty years young, bald as the proverbial old billard ball, and spoke with a broad Scotch accent. His hands seemed to have a peculiar shape but were not deformed. Otherwise he would pass as an average sheep-herder. But I never saw him with a band of sheep. I wondered what 'Old Ross' did for a living.

"One day I broached the question to the mistress of the ranch. Mrs. Law was a matron with two grown sons. Young giants they were, standing more than six feet two, and handsomely proportioned. Mrs. Law was born near Boston. Throughout the years of hard ranch life in a log cabin she had maintained the culture of her girlhood environment. She is a beautiful Christian character. She made no direct reply to my query and I felt as if I had touched on a sacred memory from out the past.

"A few weeks later I was calling at the ranch. We were seated in the commodious living room. 'Old Ross' was mentioned again and this is the story Mrs. Law told me:

" 'Old Ross' had been tending a band of twenty-six hundred sheep out on the flat. An old nor-wester came up, full of snow and with a cold wave. No houses or buildings of any kind was near; no buttes or coulees for protection; night was falling; they were caught. The camptender started from the ranch to carry aid, but he was forced to turn back. Searching parties were organized but were helpless against so violent a storm. 'Old Ross' and his band were miles away.

"Meanwhile, the herder and his faithful dog had rounded up the band and prevented a stampede. When sheep get cold they huddle together. So large a band, all pushing toward the middle, became a solid mass of wool and mutton. In a storm the wind blows the snow in around the enmassed sheep and make a drift that smothers them. To prevent this, it is necessary for the herder to go around and around the outside of the band, catching the sheep one by one by the wool and and throwing them apart from the bunch. Before they can recover and return the wind blows the snow from around them. Thus 'Old Ross,' out on the flat, fought the storm, going round and round the band 'pulling the sheep' to save their lives. He fought hour after hour a seemingly losing fight without rest, food or drink.

"Next day help arrived. 'Old Ross' dropped of exhaustion. But the band was saved.

"It was weeks before 'Old Ross' recovered. It was found that in 'pulling the sheep' over so long a period he had worn the flesh from the ends of all his fingers down beyond the first joint. It was necessary to have the bones removed that far. 'Old Ross' had given his fingers for the life of the sheep. And," added Mrs. Law, "so long as this ranch is running 'Old Ross' will have a home and friends."

"Yes," I exclaimed, "isn't there a verse that says, 'I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep?"

"Now," said I to my friend, "Mrs. Law, the boys and 'Old Ross' are three reasons why I, for one, have stayed on the mission field."—H. Roy Phillippi in the Congregationalist.

MASSING FOR PROHIBITION'S GREATEST DRIVE

NO WONDER public sentiment against prohibition is gaining. The metropolitan press by and large seems to avoid printing the dry side of the story. Facts favoring prohibition are frequently lost in a maze of wet propaganda. Often items concerning prohibition are twisted into an argument against prohibition . . . a Federal officer is killed by a bootlegger with a criminal record of twenty years, and the news headline is "snooper killed."

Unfortunately for the common good, facts are distorted; editorials are assaults on prohibition; nothing is left unturned by the wet radical papers to discredit the greatest moral reform of the century.

The majority of the people in the most populous centers of the United States form their opinion from the mass of liquor propaganda. Why shouldn't they wonder about the benefits of prohibition? Why shouldn't they begin to think or act against the Eighteenth Amendment?

It's time to do something. Let's give the people the facts about prohibition. Despite the excellent work done by the religious and other law-upholding publications of the nation in telling the true story, much work is yet to be done. We must reach the masses, who read only the daily newspapers, whose thoughts and actions—and votes—are controlled by the papers.

Let's give them the real facts: that drinking has decreased; that crime has lessened; that the death rate has been lowered; that the standard of living has been raised; that the nation as a whole as well as the individual has been materially benefited.

The people should know the truth about prohibition. Only the truth, told now in a forceful manner, will save prohibition.

The American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation after months of exhaustive research has gathered the facts that prove conclusively the great success of prohibition. It has given the facts, through its press bureau, to the newspapers of the country. Papers that are fair have printed them. But many wet papers have ignored them—and it is to the twenty millions of readers of the wet press that we must give the facts.

To reach this mass of readers—most of whom are fair-minded and who will appreciate the truth—this Foundation is going to advertise nation-wide. Full pages of paid newspaper advertising will be published in wet as well as dry papers—to reach everybody!

The work of spreading the truth to the largest reading public can be accomplished in no better manner. Paid advertisements will tell the actual facts as they exist; the messages cannot be ignored, edited, or controverted by an unfair paper. It must be done now. It will be done!

Will you help?

NOV. 23: THINGS FOR WHICH WE SHOULD BE THANKFUL

Scripture Text: Psalm 103:1-13.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday –For God's care. Matt. 6:24-34.
Tuesday—Intelligence. II Tim. 1:6, 7.
Wednesday—Knowledge of God. John 14: 1-12.
Thursday—Friendship. Prov. 18:24.
Friday—Work. Psalm 90:17.
Saturday—Books. Neh. 8:1-3.

Suggestions to the Leader

You might call this a "count your blessing" meeting. Have each one to name some particular blessing for which they are especially thankful. Have someone to speak upon "Our Greatest Blessing—Christ." Draw on the blackboard a large heart with dotted lines flowing from its top outward and downward, to represent overflowing gratitude. Write at the ends of these lines things that members think should make us thankful.

To advertise the meeting prepare a large cardboard for the bulletin board. At top print in large letters, "COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS," and at the bottom, "TELL ABOUT THEM AT C. E. TONIGHT." In the middle, paste pictures representing some of our blessings.

Suitable songs: "Praise Him, Praise Him," "There Shall Be Showers of Blessings," "Count Your Blessings," "It's Just Like His Great Love," "Beulah Land," "Standing on the Promises," and "Sunshine in My Soul."

There are numerous things for which we should be extremely thankful, but unless we are unselfish we can never be grateful. Niagaras of blessings may fall in abundance, but it does not change the selfish heart. One cannot be thankful by simply saying, "Now, I am going to be thankful." To be truly thankful requires a change of heart. Christ alone can do that.

Discuss These

1. Where did Thanksgiving originate?
2. What is man's greatest blessing?
3. Why should we be thankful for spiritual blessing before temporal?
4. What is the outstanding cause for world thankfulness in 1930?
5. Are great blessings necessary in order to evoke gratitude?
6. Can one be grateful for trials and afflictions? How?
7. How may we cultivate the habit of thankfulness?
8. What effect does ingratitude have upon its victim?

Quotations

"The Psalms of David appeal to us because they are full of gratitude. 'Oh, that men would praise the Lord for His goodness.' "—Anon.

"Ingratitude is spiritual dullness. God eager to make us happy loads us with all sorts of blessings, and we take it all for granted or fail to appreciate it."—M. Stewart.

Poetry

LEST WE FORGET

God of our fathers known of old,
  Lord of our far-flung battle-line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
  Dominion over palm and pine;
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
  Lest we forget, lest we forget.

The tumult and the shouting dies,
  The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
  An humble and a contrite heart;
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
  Lest we forget, lest we forget.

  Far called our navies melt away,
  On dune and headland sinks the fire,
All of the pomp of yesterday
  Is one with Nineveh and Tyre;
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
  Lest we forget, lest we forget.

—Rudyard Kipling.

Woman's Missionary Department

THANKSGIVING OFFERING FOR OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

Conference is over, another year's work recorded. Perhaps you did your best as an Auxiliary to make last year's work a success. If you did or if you did not, let's begin now to work for next Conference year and also to finish our missionary year in our regular N. C. style. I know of nothing better than to begin with our little ones. Of course, you know that a small family requires much to keep them fed and clothed. Then this big family, Our Children's Home, that belongs to all of us, must be fed, clothed and kept warm, besides the many other necessities. We all love not only the children that are in our care but the superintendent and wife that are so carefully and prayerfully caring for these little ones for us. Will not each of you then respond to these needs for our Big Family—now at this Thanksgiving season? If we are thankful that we are alive and with our own families, then prove this by giving liberally to this great institution at this time. Thanksgiving has been set apart for the giving to our orphanages. Of course M. P.'s and their friends want to give to our own Home at High Point. We have been asked to give an amount equivalent to one day's wages. Now, if we would all respond to this, our Home could go through the winter so much better. Don't feel when you give that the workers and the chidren are not doing their part. They are working and making for their own use so much and thus helping us support our family as they should. So let's all pull together and not any of us forget to be thankful to the amount of a day's wage for our Thanksgiving offering to our own Children's Home at High Point.

This Thanksgiving offering does not count on your budget, but what does that matter when our very own are in need? We are not working for credit but for love. We love to serve our Master through our church. He will reward us for all that we do in His name. I sincerely hope that each Auxiliary Children's Home Secretary will see to it that this is brought before the entire church and that every member will contribute librally. If there is no Children's Home Secretary in your Auxiliary, then the president should see to it that this is done.

MRS. H. C. NICHOLSON,
Children's Home Sec'y, N. C. Branch.

TO THE WOMEN OF THE N. C. BRANCH

I have no new message for you, but Mrs. Andrews has asked me to say something about literature this week.

The new Yearbooks have been sent out, one free copy to each Auxiliary. Others may be had for five cents per copy. If you need a large number, send to Mrs. Marie Thompson, 516 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md. If you need only a few, I can supply you.

The leeaflets to be used are sent me each month, and I get them to you as early as possible. If your Auxiliary is not receiving any, or if I am sending too many copies please write me so that I may correct the mistakes. It is very hard to get a very accurate mailing list.

The new study books are: Adult, "India Looks to Her Future," and "Trailing the Conquistadores." Young people, "Between the Americas," and "Do You Like Our Country?" I keep only a small number on hand. If you are in a hurry for your copy, order direct from Mrs. Thompson, and save time and postage.

I can supply you with monthly offering envelopes and pledge cards at 15 cents per hundred, and constitutions free .

Prayer Calendars and subscription blanks for the Missionary Record will be furnished free. Be sure to have all the copies of the Missionary Record in your Auxiliary that you possibly can, as the information and inspiration that may be gotten from its pages are almost essential to a real live Auxiliary.

This report is not complete. There are some readjustments of charges to be made. The apportionment for Gratitude Gift will have to be made over. The apportionment for College Current Expense, and for Pastors' Per Cent on the Superannuate Fund will have to be worked out. The Budget Council will meet as soon as possible and work out these apportionments, and have them published.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Oak Grave, Cleveland Circuit.—We are glad to have Brother Ridge come back and serve this charge for another year. We wish to thank him for serving us so faithfully for the past two years. May the Lord continue to bless him in his work.

Our Sunday school seems to be rather active. We desire more members. Our superintendent, Mr. Wyatt Stamey, is very much concerned about the Sunday school work and has set a goal for 100 which we hope to reach before the end of the year. We are planning to have a Thanksgiving program. Everybody is invited to come and bring a thank-offering, which will go to the Children's Home. Hour, 6:30 p. m. REPORTER.

Friendship.—Rev. R. S. Troxler filled his last appointment Sunday evening, October 26, before Conference. He has been at Friendship for several years and the people have learned to love him very much. We are looking forward to his return.

Official officers of the church were elected Sunday evening, October 26, as follows: S. S. superintendent, W. M. Byerly; assistant superintendent, Henry Shoaf; secretary, Adelle Phillips and Catherine Freedle; class leaders, Roy Phillips and Mrs. Zeb Snyder; trustees, Isaiah Miller, J. A. Jordan, L. E. Phillips, Norman Essick, W. D. Walser; stewards, Harper Shoaf, J. W. Walser, Grady Walser, W. C. Lanier, B. L. Koonts; other minor officers are: pianist, Elizabeth Walser; reporters, Adelle Phillips and Catherine Freedle; sexton, R. L. York.

The congregation at Friendship church feels honored that one of their own number was elected as a delegate to the Annual Conference at Albemarle, J. W. Walser being the one elected. The Conference is in session this week.

Shiloh C. E. Society met with us September 21, for the purpose of organizing a C. E. Society at Friendship. They had a very interesting program and then helped us in electing our officers. They are as follows: President, Edgar McMahon; vice-president, I. R. Michael; secretary, Catherine Freedle; treasurer, Alice Snyder.

The society has grown to the number of 51 on roll. It is wonderful at the interest the boys and girls take in the program.

Carr Pickett, of Welcome, attended our C. E. Society recently and made an interesting talk on "Making Christians in the Mountains." We hope he will visit us again soon.

Alvin Walser had the misfortune to be gored by a cow recently. He was milking and the cow whirled around and gored him. He was seriousy injured, as the artery in his leg was punctured and he lost a large amount of blood. He is able to sit up a little now and we hope he will soon be able to regain his lost strength and return to Draughon's Business College at Winston-Salem, where he is a student.

The C. E. Society visited Miss Bessie Gentle and Mrs. Will Michael Sunday evening and gave them flowers to show that we thought of them often. They have been sick for some time and we miss them very much at church. We hope they will soon be better.

Matthews Chapel, Greenville Circuit.—We closed our Conference year November 2. As usual, Bro. Cowan brought us one of his good messages, using for his subject, "The Unchanged Christ." I know this message will never be forgotten by some. He made it so plain that while everything around us is changing we can rest assured that Christ will not, that He is just as loving and forgiving as he was when He walked this sinful world. It was with sad hearts we closed for fear Conference will take our beloved pastor and his dear wife away from us. Never have I seen a larger congregation, and everybody with tears in their eyes of love and regret to have to give up our beloved pastor. Bro. Cowan and Mrs. Cowan came to this work two years ago; they have made friends with both young and old. There's not a child around Matthews Chapel that doesn't love them and stand ready to follow and help them any way they can. Yesterday afternoon after preaching a little boy said, "Mamma, Mr. Cowan didn't say he was going away. Won't he be with us next year." He and his wife can rest assured that they have sown good seed in the hearts of the little folks around Matthews Chapel that will bring forth much fruit as well as in the lives and hearts of the older ones, and we are hoping and praying that God will see fit to send him back to us. Our prayers are that God's will will be carried out in the Conference. They have been such a help to us in our Sunday school and C. E. Society, always attending and taking some active part whenever they could, always ready to give us advice and tell us what plans they thought best, which we as a society appreciate. They understand our young boys and girls, they know how to plan and get them to take active parts and to win their love and respect. Not only will me miss them in our church, but in our homes. It is always such a pleasure to have them come; they were always at home wherever they went. So many times they have been in my home and we would discuss the Bible and how much help we have received from these discussions. They were always in our sick room with a word of comfort and a smile that would help and whenever he could they read the Bible and had prayers. If any of our members were in trouble, what words of comfort and consolation they could give. Rev. J. Clyde Auman said last summer while he was helping Bro. Cowan with his meeting, he had been trying to find out which one was loved the most on this circuit, Mr. or Mrs. Cowan. Bro. Auman, I haven't found out until now. If Conference sends him away from us they have the prayers of Matthews Chapel. May God bless him and his dear wife.

We were so glad to have some of the Philadelphia members worship with us in Sunday school and preaching service; also quite a number of our Baptist friends with us. We extend to them a welcome and hope they will come again.

Let me say again that our hearts were made sad by the passing of Bro. O'Bryant; it was always a pleasure to have him with us. A good man has gone to receive his reward. Mrs. O'Briant and family have our sympathy.

Our S. S. is moving along fine. We are planning to get a large S. S. register in the near future. All officers have been elected and are at their posts of duty.

Our C. E. Society is growing in number and in spirit. All officers and committees have been re-elected and are at work. Miss Lottie Edwards, president, and Mrs. C. E. Ellis, vice-president. We are hoping, praying and planning a greater work this year than in the past. Pray for us.

MRS. C. E. ELLIS.

Mount Pleasant.—Rev. J. R. Hutton delivered a very worthy and thought-inspiring sermon at our regular 11 o'cock service Sunday morning, choosing for his subject, "A Citizen of Zion."

Bro. Hutton has brought us many noble messages during his ministry in our church.

Our members were deeply grieved by the sudden death of a sister member, Mrs. Margaret Phillippie Smith, wife of Mr. Cyrus Smith, on Monday morning of last week, October 27, 1930.

On the following afternoon a simple but impressive funeral service was conducted at the church by her pastor, Bro. Hutton, and the body was interred in the church cemetery.

We are extending our sincerest sympathy to the relatives of the deceased.

Mr. L. L. Bowman, who has been confined to his home by illness during the past several weeks is rapidly improving.

Sunday school and church officers for the coming year have been elected as follows: Class leaders, J. E. Kirkman, J. E. Stafford, S. M. Kellum, Eli C. Euliss, S. A. Alexander, J. C. Causey, W. L. Spoon, S. R. Stafford; trustees, S. R. Stafford, R. C. Causey, J. S. Euliss, W. D. Shoffner, L. L. Bowman, J. A. Smith, D. W. Shoffner, J. T. Shoffner, J. Enos Causey; stewards, N. R. Suits, R. C. Causey, W. A. Stafford, J. G. Smith, S. M. Kellum, Norman Alexander, T. S. Smith, Gordon Causey; steward treasurer, W. G. Causey; church reporter, Nila Garnette Amick; Sunday school superintendent, W. A. Stafford; assistant S. S. superintendent, W. G. Causey; secretary and treasurer, S. G. Alexander; assistant secretary and treasurer, Raymond Coley; primary superintendent, Miss Minnie Bowman; assistant primary superintendent, Miss Ruby Smith; choir leader, L. I. Bowman; pianist, Miss Mae Smith; assistant pianist, Miss Minnie Bowman.

Miss Edith Causey who is a member of the high school faculty of the Alexander-Wilson school, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Causey and attended services at our church Sunday.

In the absence of our regular Philathea teacher, Miss Margaret Causey, the lesson was ably taught by Mrs. Roscoe Causey.

Greer's Chapel, Shiloh Charge.—It has been some time since Greer's Chapel has been heard from, but we are always interested in reeading the letters from the other churches, and to note the progress they are making. We are not desirous of blowing our trumpets in the streets and highways to be recognized, yet we do want it known that we are interested, not only in our particular church, but all at large.

We have just closed a fine year's work with Rev. R. S. Troxler as our pastor, one whom we all love, and one who has helped us in all that has been done. We are all praying for his returning this coming year. We are still trying to press onward. Our Sunday school is moving forward in number and interest. Each pupil seems to manifest more interest in Sunday school. But cold weather is coming on which will keep a number of our little ones away.

On October 5th the Christian Endeavor Society of Shiloh church came down to help us organize a society. They rendered us a very interesting program on "How We May Help Folks in Our Community." The young people of our church were all interested in this society. So we organized. We now have 35 on roll, the average being 28. This society is being a help to the young people of our community. Our aim is to gain more members. We want to thank the good Shiloh people for helping us organize this society and want them to come visit us aagin.

May God shower his blessings on this church and congregation as they commence their fifth year.

LOTTIE E. FITZGERALD, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—In the absence of the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, at Conference on Sunday morning, the pulpit was filled in a most delightful manner by Dr. G. I. Humphreys, president of High Point College, who delivered a scholarly and impressive sermon, based on the text from Romans 7:2: "When I would do good, then evil is with me." He said in part: Those of you who read the New Testament think that Paul is referring to the unregenerate person, but I am inclined to believe that this text applies to the common, everyday life. Someone has said that the real battleground of the race is in the human heart. Your battleground is your heart, and my battleground is my heart. When we talk about the battle, we mean the deep springs of human impulse. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." There is a thought abroad in the land today in which I take no stock, that the human body is born sinful; God made our bodies, and He did not put sin in them, but environment, associates, enticements and allurements from without cause us to sin. Wordsworth in his matchless "Intimations of Immortality" says:

> "Heaven lies about us in our infancy,
> Shades of the prison-house begin to close
> Around the growing boy."

Paul said, "Let us lay aside the sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith." Dr. Elderdice, of the Theological Seminary, was fond of telling a story of a man whom he once knew, who came humbly and confessed his sins at revivals, and in a few days would be overcome by his thirst for drink. Any doctor here will tell you that sin may be transmitted to future generations. What a serious and awful responsibility to contemplate! Let us in God's name as sane and sensible human beings, and especially those of us who have professed profound faith in Christ and taken the solemn vows of His church, pause and consider well before we begin to yield to the allurements of present-day life; and especially to the young men and women of our congregation, of High Point College, of our city and state, we would in all love admonish them to pause and think well before they yield to the enticements of modern society and begin to smoke, drink, and swear! Think of passing on those vices to unborn children; pure and innocent girlhood born in the image of God is being corrupted and polluted by the previlent idea that they have the same right to smoke, swear or drink as their brothers and friends. The writer, who loves young people dearly and has implicit confidence in their innate goodness and worthiness, wishes earnestly that she could say a word or do something to wield an influence for good on these young, impressionable lives, and bring them to realize that these false ideas and petty sins will never lead to a happy, useful, worthy life, but down to the depths of cynicism, remorse, and despair. My beloved young people, take Jesus Christ as your friend and guide in the fair and lovely morning of life, and keep His commandments, walking daily hand in hand with Him "e'en down to old age." Let the "still, small voice" of conscience speak to you in your quiet, thoughtful hours; let the sweet and hallowed memories of a happy childhood, surrounded by the boundless love of a good mother, at whose knee your learned to lisp the baby prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep," or "Pity, Lord, a little child," dwell in your hearts as you go about your daily tasks of study, recreation, work, or occupation of whatever kind. Then let the pull of a good life govern you, taking for your ideals the better and higher things of life, the good and consecrated Christian men and women of your acquaintance, who embody in their character and life the teachings of the Saviour, "Whatsoever things are pure, lovely, and of good report"; and finally let the innate consciousness of God speak to you, hearing and heeding Him. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him."

Dr. Humphreys is a forceful speaker, a polished scholar whose language is rich in diction, and possesses a gentle, gracious personality that is winning and compelling in power. At this service, C. L. Gray, Jr., sang very effectively "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." The Sunday evening service was cancelled.

On Monday afternoon the general monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at 3 o'clock in the C. E. room with Mrs. S. S. Coe in the chair. There was a splendid attendance, and the devotional service was conducted by Mrs. S. D. Shelton. Interesting reports were heard from the eight Circles, and committees on the recent bazaar and turkey supper. The treasurer, Mrs. J. S. Pickett, made a fine report dealing in big figures, which informed the members present that more than one-half of the annual budget has already been raised and paid out. Various projects to bring money into the treasury were discussed at length; some favored an oyster stew with tickets at reasonable prices, and others advocated a food sale of cakes, candies, chicken salad, etc., near Thanksgiving. The decision of this question was finally left in the hands of a committee to be appointed by the president, Mrs. Coe. Another important question came up for discussion in which a number freely joined, the invitation to General Conference to meet in High Point in May, 1932. A motion in favor of extending this invitation was carried. The question of visiting the sick, bereaved, shut-ins, and new residents recently moved to the city in co-operation with our minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, was discussed, and a motion carried for each Circle chairman to appoint one or more members from her group to be responsible for this important duty.

The Young People's C. E. Society met as usual Monday evening. The regular prayer service will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and a special session of quarterly conference is called to convene on the same evening.

The announcement of Conference appointments in this morning's Greensboro News tells the story of many changes in the work of the ministers for the coming year. With our joy and happiness over the return of our popular and greatly loved minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, there comes a note of sadness and regret that Dr. R. M. Andrews has been assigned to work in Charlotte, which means that we will lose him and his charming wife from the community. During their residence here for six years, Dr. Andrews as president of High Point College, and Mrs. Andrews, who has been vitally interested in the work of the church, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the young people of the college, and every civic improvement worth while, they and their talented, splendid daughters (not omitting young Robert, Jr.,) have greatly endeared themselves to the people of all denominations and have filled a prominent place in the life of High Point. We regret to part with them, and assure them of our feeling of loss. Our deep interest and affection will follow them to their new field, and we are happy to know that Charlotte is only a short drive from High Point. Miss Rosalie Andrews, being a teacher in the city school system at Oak Hill, will remain here, and Miss Alma Andrews will be a boarding student, member of the Freshman class at High Point College.

Mrs. Tom Rosemond and children, of Chapel Hill, have returned home after a visit to her mother, Mrs. B. F. Montgomery, who has been ill at her home on South Main street, but is improving, her many friends will be pleased to learn.

The installation service of Dr. G. I. Humphreys as president of High Point College on Saturday, November 15th, will be a most interesting occasion, and will doubtless attract a large number of prominent Methodist Protestants and educators of other denominations. Dr. Lucius Clark, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Walter Lingle, president of Davidson College, and probably Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the State University, will be present and make addresses and bring fraternal greetings.

Kannapolis Church.—Well, here we are, folks! Want you to know we are still busy. We are working for our Master. Our Ladies' Aid has done a great deal this year for the church.

We have taken in $215. We have paid $78 on the church, $41 on our parsonage furniture, paid out for miscellaneous, $53.98 and still have $43 in the treasury.

We are planning bigger and better things for the coming year. We are very anxious to get our new church seated soon. Our

Sunday school has doubled since yast year, for which we are very grateful. We observed Rally Day October 26; had a large audience. The children are due much credit for the splendid way in which they did their parts. Little Margie Coble, three years old, sang a beautiful solo, which was especially enjoyed by all.

Our pastor's wife and children are visiting in Concord, N. C., this week while our pastor, Rev. J. L. Love, is attending Conference at Albemarle. We are hoping to get them back for next year.

We are looking forward to receiving several new members into our church in the next few Sundays. We have 50 members at present, and are hoping to have that many more in the next year. We are glad to note there is no serious illness among our members. There has not been a death in the home of a member in the last year. We are so thankful for that. REPORTER.

North Davidson Charge.—I am returned to this good people for another year. We are looking for a still greater year. Brethren, pray for God to do greater things for us. I will fill the appointments as announced commencing at Spring Hill next Sunday a. m. at 11 o'clock.

I am glad to be your pastor again. All together for a good year for our Master.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

Orange Charge.—Pleased to be assigned to Orange again. Expect to begin next Sunday at Efland and fill appointments as per last year's plan. B. M. WILLIAMS.

Charlotte.—The S. S. officers and teachers, as well as church officers, were elected and installed before Conference.

The Christian Endeavor Society has been having interesting meetings recently, Mrs. A. L. Love making a missionary talk.

Circles Nos. 1 and 2 will meet Tuesday, (this week) afternoon with Mrs. G. W. Stegall. For the present the two Circles are combined. We hope to soon increase in attendance and interest and have both Circles as before. They are planning a bazaar sometime before Christmas.

Mrs. A. F. Love, who has been Cradle Roll superintendent for several years, give a report of the following new members: Beulah McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. McCoy; Lilly McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCoy; Jacqueline Marie Hanes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanes; Mary Lee Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Brown; Billy Gene Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Robinson, and Fannie Joy Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Garrison.

Six were recently promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Beginners' Department. They were: Celeste Jane Rogers, Helen Margaret Moore, Pearl Lane Snell, Eula Mae Broom, Malcolm Heath Cranford, Charles David Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Garmon, Jr., announce the birth of a son on October 26, Harold McDonald.

A Junior C. E. Society has been organized recently with Mrs. Lettie Bruton in charge. Our Juniors like to do things and we expect some good work from this group.

Last Sunday the Junior choir appeared on the program of the story lady over station WBT. They will be on the air again one Sunday in January, the time to be announced later.

We are very sorry to lose Rev. and Mrs. Harrison, but they thought best to go into another field of work; they will be remembered here for the splendid work and most especially Mr. Harrison with the young people and children. We wish for them the very best in their new field of work.

When we learned Dr. R. M. Andrews had agreed and been assigned to Charlotte we almost feel we are getting what we do not deserve. We are delighted to have Dr. Andrews and family come here and sincerely trust we may make it so pleasant we may all work shoulder to shoulder, giving our very best to the church and our Lord. A number of our people this year were able to attend some sessions of Annual Conference. We feel if every mumber of the church could attend and get as much inspiration as those who do attend we would not have any trouble raising our budgets and having good church attendance. REPORTER.

Fountain Place.—Although we are at the beginning of a new Conference year, the final report of Fountain Place for last year has not been made. As is often the case, we have progressed in some ways while in others we have lagged.

The report of the Sunday school superintendent shows that the attendance and collections for the year have been better than the preceding year. However, the attendance at Sunday school has been very irregular, indicating a lack of interest, it seems, on the part of some, as the lack cannot be attributed to the weather.

The Auxiliary, the most active organization in our church, has done a splendid year's work. More than $300 has been raised; $20 was realized from the rainy day banks; preparing and selling salted peanuts has proved profitable.

The younger members of our Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society have been organized into a Junior Society under the superintendency of Miss Ruth Jones, while the Intermediates remain under the care of Mrs. Aubrey Amick. Much better work is being done under the new arrangement. A joint hike of the two societies and a marshmallow toast was much enjoyed recently.

The Annie Forrest Philathea class gave a Hallowe'en party. The large basement room was decorated with the usual pumpkins, cornstalks, and leaves. The fortune teller's booth with pot suspended on a tripod over a fire with Miss Lessie Faucette, of Gibsonville, as fortune teller, proved the most attractive and best paying feature. We appreciate Miss Faucette's help and the attendance of other Gibsonville friends. Other features that proved profitable were feeding the pumpkin's face, the visit to the chamber of horrors, and the lunch counter for the distribution of sandwiches, coffee, and gingerbread. The proceeds went into the class treasury for the church fund. In addition to the above, the games played afforded much fun for all present.

Probably the most vital event since last report was our special meeting, in which our pastor did the preaching. The splendid sermons were built around the theme: "The Greatest Things in Life, Such as The Greatest Book, The Greatest Relationship, The Greatest Organization," etc. Special music by visiting singers at each service added much. While there were no conversions and no additions as a result of the meeting, the sermons and the services were quite edifying to Christians.

Mention should be made of the very special work of our pastor in his strenuous efforts for two weeks or more in boosting this meeting and in preparing the people, members, friends, and neighbors for the meeting.

We welcome into our membership Mrs. Newton Glenn from First Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Steele have born unto them a son.

The church and Sunday school officers for the coming year were installed at the last preaching service of last year.

Mr. Newton Glenn was our delegate to Conference, and we are glad that he brought back our last year's pastor, Rev. N. G. Bethea.

MRS. A. V. AMICK, Reporter.

Winston.—Conference again! Did you attend? The Sunday sessions were very impressive. Several of our members attended Sunday and enjoyed it so much. The Ordination service was very inspiring, the sermon by Dr. J. D. Williams, the vows taken by the young ministers who were ordained, and the service as a whole was very good. The Memorial service was effective and heartfelt sympathy seemed to go out to the loved ones of the deceased in whose honor the service was held. Dr. Brown preached the evening sermon, one of his usual good sermons. We hope the appointments will be satisfactory and that the people and pastors will enjoy the work of the ensuing year. Whoever comes to First Church, Winston, it is intended by all to greet them in the beginning with all the greetings possible and to continue to cooperate and work with all through the year to the best of our ability.

Sunday school was good, not so many in attendance, but better than expected because of the ones attending Conference.

The Auxiliary is getting along nicely. One of the Circles is serving a dinner at the Huntley-Hill-Stockton Tea Room Thursday. Good progress is being made in the sale of tickets. The Girls' Auxiliary is selling Christmas Cards to help on their budget.

We are glad to have Mrs. J. A. Gwyn back with us, to help with the work in the Beginners' and Primary Departments. Mrs. Gwyn has been sick for some time and a patient at a local hospital. Mrs. W. W. Weatherman was elected superintendent of the Beginners' Department in the absence of Mrs. Gwyn; she has been doing splendid work and her coworkers appreciate her good work so much.

The Philatheea class met Monday night with Mrs. H. G. Paschal on Buena Vista Road as hostess. The meeting was most profitable and was enjoyed by all. Miss Nannie Watson, teacher of the Philatheas, attended Conference Sunday. Several others, namely, Mrs. B. K. Millaway and Miss Leota Loggins, were among those who attended from this class.

May we take this opportunity to thank our delegate, Mr. S. E. Hauser, for his good work and faithfulness during Conference. We want to say "Thank you" to all those whose untiring efforts have helped to bring our church out in the way it is—who have helped to make it a success during the past Conference year. We also want to seek their services to make it successful during the next year, with the help of God and those of our number who are so faithful there is no doubt that we will be able to carry on successfully.

PAULINE L. BRANSON, Reporter.

Albemarle.—Well, the Conference has come and gone, and now many of us will have to adjust ourselves to the changes made in our pastors. We are among this number, as our pastor leaves us to go to Welch Memorial at High Point. Although we feel sad at their departure, let us all "line up" with the new pastor and work together, for truly "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

A wonderful spirit of co-operation and fellowship was manifested throughout the sessions, and it was quite evident that God was leading and guiding the work that was done.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society wish to express their appreciation to all those who patronized the dining room of the church during their stay here. Quite a nice sum was realized from this source, which will go to the building fund of the church.

We made many new and valued friends during their stay with us, and we ladies of the church only regret that our work was such that we could not attend more of the services and meet more of the people.

Some changes have been made in the S. S. officials for the coming year. Mr. J. E. Gantt succeeds Mr. R. L. Leonard as S. S. superintendent and Mr. Allan Wagoner takes Mr. Gantt's place as assistant superintendent. Mr. Leonard has made a suplendid superintendent for the past four years, and was replaced at his own request. However, he was immediately elected teacher of the Men's Bible class to suceed Rev. Mr. Anderson, so he will not get much rest. Mrs. J. P. Green was elected superintendent of the Junior Department to succeed Mrs. Anderson. All other officers and teachers were re-elected for another year.

The Annual Floral Show was held on November 1st. Although it did not prove the success of former years, we feel that it was due to the depression which is being felt in all lines of business at this time. Many beautiful flowers were entered and 52 prizes were awarded for the best of these. We wish to thank all who contributed in any way to this cause.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

LINEBERRY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Our last business meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Morris on Saturday night before the first Sunday in November. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Kate Frank. The different committees' reports were fairly good. We especially enjoyed the social part of the meeting; the social committee had prepared very interesting games.

We were glad Rev. W. D. Reid was present at the meeting since he was deprived of the opportunity at the previous meeting. Since Rev. W. D. Reed will not be our pastor next year we wish to thank him for what he has done for Davidson charge, and especially for his help in the Christian Endeavor Society. He has stood by us and helped us in everything that we have accomplished this year. We feel that we owe much to him for his great help. Mrs. Reid's health doesn't seem to vary very much; she stays about the same. We are praying for her recovery. May God's richest blessings rest upon them wherever they may go.

We are well pleased with our new preacher, Rev. E. A. Bingham. All of us are going to like him fine, and give him a warm welcome; also provide a place for him in our hearts. We feel sure this year will be one that will be long remembered for the good that will be done. We hope and pray that the record will be so clear that it may enter into the record of Heaven.

PRESS COMMITTEE.

THE GIFT OF GRATITUDE

Count your blessings every day,
  Gratitude will smooth the way;
Sunshine which the morning sends,
  Love of family and friends.

Food and raiment for your need,
  Hands to do a kindly deed;
Work to fill the day with joy,
  Good that has no base alloy.

Letters that bring dear ones near,
  Flowers to carry love and cheer;
Peace that bids unrest be still,
  Will to do God's perfect will.

Patience when the hours are long,
  Words to comfort and make strong;
Time to exercise and play,
  Wisdom that knows what to say.

Books that rest and solace give,
  Truth to show you how to live;
Faith to banish doubt and dread,
  Light to see the best ahead.

Strength to do an irksome task,
  Smiles that discontent unmask;
Hope to vanquish needless fear,
  Power to summon courage here.

Means to generously share,
  Spirit to endure and dare;
Knowledge of God's righteous laws,
  Zeal to serve a worthy cause.

Prayer to guide and safely keep,
  Rest from night's refreshing sleep;
Count your blessings every day,
  Gratitude will smooth the day.

NOTES OF CONFERENCE

—Five young men were ordained as elder on Sunday after the ordination sermon. These were P. E. Bingham, C. G. Isley, F. R. Love, D. I. Garner, and T. J. Whitehead. A promising class. May the achievements of the future fully redeem all the promises of the present.

—The meals served in the church basement twice a day were delicious and generous in size. It would be a pleasure to board there all the time if the same providers, cooks and servers should continue in office.

—The editor had an unexpected piece of good fortune: he found in his home the same landlady he had at the Friendship Conference about thirty years ago. She was then Mrs. Rev. E. A. Plyler; she is now Mrs. D. F. Harkey. In the meantime six daughters and one son have grown up. The daughters all have gone out into homes of their own and five of them live in Albemarle. They with their mother were presented to Conference one night by President Taylor when he called attention to a handsome marble baptismal font presented to the church in honor of Rev. E. A. Plyler by Mrs. Palmer. We were privileged to meet these daughters, some of whom resemble their distinguished father and others their most worthy mother. One of them, Mrs. Burleson, has a little girl three years old who seems to be especially gifted in music. We were pleased to form the acquaintance of Mr. Burleson and Mr. Helms, two of the sons-in-law. In Bro. Harkey we found a man that might pass for 60, but he is a veteran of the Civil War and his real age is 84. He is remarkably active for his years, and his bright eyes and his conversation indicate that his mental powers are undiminished. But the best thing about him is his goodness of heart. This is accounted for by the fact that he is a sincere and earnest Christian. Our home with these people was a real home to us because of their genuine kindness and thoughtfulness. May the Father's blessing be upon them continually.

—People of all denominations asked to be permitted to entertain members of the Conferenc. Albemarle is a hospitable city.

—Rev. Lawrence Little left his school work in Yale where he is both teacher and student to come to our Conference. We enjoyed his companionship from Greensboro to Albemarle.

—Bro. Hill, of Petersburg, Va., on his way to Conference had the misfortune to have his car turn over on Highway No. 62 between Asheboro and Albemarle. Fortunately, he was not injured.

—An impressive memorial service was held Sunday afternoon in honor of Bros. Kinnaman, Brittain, O'Briant, Riddle, Mrs. R. R. Michaux, and Mrs. W. F. McDowell..

—Conference finished its business and adjourned about 4 p. m. Monday.

—Rev. Lawrence Little told a very interesting story about an association of fifty people to study questions of the time. He was asked to define "Christian Education." He did not presume to answer off-hand. After reflection he found an answer that satisfied both himself and others. Bro. Little, won't you send precisely that answer to the Herald?

MARRIED

At the M. P. parsonage in Concord Saturday evening, November 8, Mr. Fred Helms and Miss Pauline Furr were quietly married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. F. Millaway, pastor of the contracting parties.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Furr, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Helms, both of this city. Both are valuable members of Concord M. P. church, both teachers in the S. S., and are popular with a large circle of friends.

AN AGED LADY HONORED

On Sunday, November 9, Mrs. Catherine Massey's children gave her a surprise birthday dinner at her home near Gumberry, N. C. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Pitt and two daughters, Dorothy and Carolyn, of Nashville, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Barnes and children, Cullen, Wilbur, Willard, Erline, Lowray, Elmer, Marvin, E. L., Jr., Josephine and Mariam, of Pleasant Hill, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Massey and children, Mildred, Milton and Howard and James Rowland; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Irvin and children, Thelma, Samuel and Harvey; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Moody and children, Froline, Randolph, Carlton, Dorothy, Lawrence and J. T. Eugene Massey, a grandson, was also present.

A beautiful dinner was served, consisting of barbecue, ham, chicken, brunswick stew, cake, pickle, etc.

Mrs. Massey is 72 years old and keeps house with her youngest son, S. I. Hassey, who was also present.

At 4:30 they all said good-by and started for their homes, wishing for Mother Massey many more happy birthdays.

Life's Great Days

In life well-lived stand out three days
All shining bright with heavenly rays:
They give to life its meaning grand
If you but clearly understand.

In first great day there comes to view
A Wondrous One in fairest hue;
All dreamy doubt has passed away,
The Face of God has come to stay.

On second day the human will
Low bows itself at God's "Be still!"
Surrendered heart and willing hand
Begin new life in God's good plan.

On third great day life's crown is won—
The victory gained, the strife all done:
To this great day our Captain leads
And surely brings the soul that heeds.

A Good Book Marred by Major Error

"The Complete Sayings of Jesus" is a little book published by D. H. Pierpont and Company. The ostensible purpose of the book is to help men to an understanding of Jesus, the Christ. Most of the book is true to this purpose, but in Rev. 19:10 and 22:9 Jesus is made to deny His own deity. Into Jesus' mouth are put the words of an angel protesting against the purpose of John to fall down and worship him: "See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God." However high the conception of Jesus begotten in our minds by previous parts of the book, these two passages in the last book of the Bible would bring Him down to human level. This makes it an unsafe book to put into the hands of the young reader who may not be wary enough to detect the error. We wish that Messrs. Pierpont and Company would recognize and correct these errors.

President Humphreys' Inauguration

This came last Saturday according to announcement and was a very interesting occasion. It derived interest from the persons present, from the speeches made, and from the high and far-reaching purpose. High Point College has not had a more auspicious day. New hope was in the atmosphere despite the gloomy weather. The greetings from other colleges were inspiring. Very heartening were the messages and assurances of our denominational officials, Dr. Broomfield and Dr. Stephenson, reminding us of what others have done under circumstances more unfavorable than our own and making us feel that the heart of our general church has warm approval of the work we are trying to do. Dr. Lingle, president of Davidson College, speaking for the denominational colleges, emphasized the fact that it is due colleges, church colleges as well as others, that they be free to search for and proclaim the truth. "Flaming Youth" was the subject of the main address of the day. This was given by Dr. Clark, Chancellor of the American University, Washington, D. C. This was an entertaining popular lecture fit for many occasions. There was a good attendance of visitors, though it was a very rainy day. Good impression was made of the purpose of High Point College to live and do its work and of the fitness of Dr. Humphreys for the task to which he has been called.

We hope to publish in full some of the short addresses made. The college provided good music for the hour.

THE PRAYING HEART

The man who is living the life of victory is living the prayer life, because the Spirit is constantly forming in him prayers that are after the will of God; and while he may not be constantly dropping down on his knees, he is in that relation with the Holy Spirit where the prayer is formed in his desire, and as he goes about his business, there is the prayer desire that goes out to God. That is the man who gets things from Heaven; that is the man the devil hates, but, thank God, he cannot overcome a soul who has been that given over to God.—Broughton.

THE EDUCATIONAL IDEAL

(Address by G. I. Humphreys, D.D., on the occasion of his inauguration as President of High Point College, High Point, N. C., November 15, 1930).

MR. CHAIRMAN, HONORED GUESTS AND FRIENDS:

I would be less than the average of the human, if I did not sense the tremendous significance of this moment. A significance that is two-fold: the meaning of this formal induction into the presidency of this institution to the trustees, student body, and civic constituency of High Point College, and to myself as its administrative head.

I am under lasting obligation to our distinguished visitors who have brought greetings from other institutions and from the church which founded the college. May I say especially to Mr. House and to Doctors Lingle and Clark, who have spoken for the institutions of the state and for those privately controlled, that we heartily appreciate your presence on this platform and your gracious greetings. To you and to the representatives of other institutions, we simply say that we rejoice in the fellowship that you today represent. Will you please bear back, for us, to the colleges and universities which you represent our great pleasure and purpose that are common to us all.

Doctor Taylor, you have a unique place on today's program, you are the representative of the Board of Trustees, the Annual Conference, Board of Education, and of the 30,000 church people of our faith in the Old North State whose dream and labor gave birth to this college. I accept, Sir, the high purpose to which you have formally charged me. Accept it in the consciousness of the sacredness of the responsibility and the largeness of the task. Accept it in the realization of my inability to perform this office well save under the guidance and blessing of Him who is the Great Head of the Church and the Captain of all human achievement that is worthwhile. To you, and through you, to all whom you represent, I therefore pledge myself to the performance of the duties of High Point College.

And now to all gathered here, what message shall I bring? Only a simple one that shall sum up briefly my thoughts as to "The Educational Ideal."

All who are present here today, and all whom you represent, doubtless feel that, on this occasion, I should make some expression of ideas in relation to the College Life and World. I am mindful of the fact that in a very large measure, the president of a Liberal Arts College, especially a small and young college, must largely devote himself to the field of administration. Like the preacher of today, who to be most acceptable to the modern church, must combine the abilities of platform speaker, financier, go-getter and a Henry Clay amidst divergent groups, so it is demanded of the college president that he shall be adept at administration, a financier and wooer of substance from resources of gold and silver, a public speaker, and what not? And yet—even though all these are demanded of him, still he would not be excused if he had nought of conviction and failed of utterance in relation to an educational program in the college world. I, therefore, count it my privilege and feel it my duty to speak to that end. And in attempting to summarize as to the Educational Ideal, I would mention:

1. The Place of the College.

The Liberal Arts College did not just happen. It came to be and to have its place in the life of America because there existed a real need for just such an institution as a molding factor in the growing life of the nation. It was promoted for a special purpose and that to minister to life that was growing intensively and extensively.

The history of the Liberal Arts College in this country is mixed with romantic daring and simple faith; it is wet with tears and winged with hope; it is kissed with earnest prayer and sublime sacrifice. It is a great history of a great movement born out of the travail of the church.

That the Liberal Arts College has remarkably served the purpose for which it was intended, most of the time under terrific handicaps, is attested by the fact that there are today approximately 800 colleges and universities in our country. By far the greater portion of this number is the so-called "small college," the most of them doing their work still under great handicaps. And educators now seem to have reached the common ground of believing that this is essentially the day of the "small college" in that it has a tremendous task to perform in the realm of higher education, and unless this task is performed the great colleges and universities will be helpless to care for the constantly increasing number of those seeking a college training. For, speaking with regard to the whole nation, it is estimated that there are three times as large a part of the population now attending Liberal Arts Colleges as there were twenty years ago.

So that it is not a mooted question as to whether the small college has a place and purpose in our great American scheme of an educated democracy. The problem is how can the small college so adjust itself in our generation, physically, mentally, spiritually, financially, as to maintain unquestioned the place it has and do the work designed for it.

Each generation is heir to a cumulative inheritance, accentuated as the nation grows older. Therefore the place of the college is to present to the youth of its day the riches of past experience the race possesses and lead youth into its rightful inheritance. How can the college do this? For do it, it must, if it is to serve its end. By making the content of knowledge accessible for inquirers.

A college cannot make education accessible. That is a proposition that involves powers, aims, attitudes vitally concerned with another human equation, namely the inquirer or student. But the business of the college is to make knowledge reachable and experience interpreted that folks may learn the way of education. KOWLEDGE AND EXPERIENCE—that treasure chest of the ages to be opened by skilled hands and trained minds and warm hearts of those who teach. This treasure is that rightful inheritance which I said belonged to the young manhood and womanhood of each generation. But how it is to be sorted and labeled and evaluated is the work of the college through its faculty. That is why the personality of the teacher is vastly more important than the degree he bears. Of course, the warm heart without the trained mind would be out of place on a college faculty—but the trained mind lacking the warm heart is no less out of place. I am not half as much concerned that a man wear the degree of Doctor of Philosophy as I am that his philosophy of life makes him able to be physician to inquiring minds and hearts in the making. It is important to have the Master of Arts degree, but it is equally important that he reveal the mastery of life to those under his instruction. I say these things not to minimize degrees—they are honorable and symbolic—but I say this rather to magnify personality. My homage goes to the teacher who not alone can make youth see that there is much to know, but who also can instill in youth the desire and determination to be and to do.

In the final analysis this is the test of the college as to attaining its objective. Because the college not alone owes something to the student, it owes just as much to that great organism of which the student is a potential unit—namely, the social, economic and moral world into which he is to go.

We judge a creed by its product. No creed is worth a place in the sun that does not produce worthwhile character. No college is serving its day and generation that does not hand back to the great throbbing pulsing world men and women with trained powers, plus moral strength and spiritual ideals.

Especially is this true of a church college. If High Point College cannot do this—more and more—send into the world men and women fitted mentally, morally, and spiritually, to minister to that world, then High Point College is a poor asset for the faith, hope and sacrifice already invested here and yet to be invested. So, I make this challenge to myself, my associates on the faculty, the trustees—this institution is intended to be a servant of man. We are dealing in futures, we must concern ourselves with this ultimate—the perpetuity of the worthwhile values of life in relation to life. In this sense, we are the guardians of the intrinsic gold of human experience.

I next mention:

2. The Privilege of the Student.

The center of interest, of purpose and of program in a college is not the president, not the teacher, but the student. This is so because to the student belongs the great privilege. For him or her the college exists to make him or her a worthwhile unit to be added to society. It is the place of the college to make knowledge and experience available for the student, but it is the student's privilege to acquire an education. This furnishes me the opportunity to state my conception of the aim of education. For the process of acquiring knowledge, developing potential powers and training them, is a process that is for a four-fold purpose.

a To fit one to live with self.

No man or woman is prepared to take their place in the world where other folks are, unless one is fitted to live with one's own self. One must find himself before he or she can find his or her place in a world of selves.

b To fit one to live with others.

The problem of human relations is the problem of adjustment. All growth, all progression is the problem of adjustment. If a college training does not help folks to live with other folks then the privilege of a college experience is a failure.

c To fit one to live for others.

The biggest fallacy in modern life is that old platitude, restated in each generation, "the world owes me something"; meaning thereby that people, the times, the mechanism unto place, power and fortune, owes something to the individual. The privilege of a college experience is to teach men and women that they are to serve their day and generation—that they owe life something.

d To fit one to live through others.

The best in life today is ours because men and women of yesterday, who being endued through privilege, in turn endowed life. Great hearts and minds have gone on into the Beyond, but they still live through lives they influenced, through changes they wrought on civilization, through the contribution they made to the sum total of lasting values deposited with the years.

After all, no individual lives well in the years that succeed his actual life who does not live through some part of the great body of mankind whom he has well served.

So the privilege of the student is the privilege of enlarging life; removing limitations, moving back the horizon and thus broadening the outlook by and through an intelligent understanding of life relationships and interdependence.

I cannot too strongly urge the student body of High Point College to this aspect of the Educational Ideal, the aspect in which the students' privilege is of prime importance; your chance here is the chance to enlarge life.

The explorer, searching for the unknown land or sea, dares the trackless march and defies the insuperable. But, he is the greatest explorer of all, who discovers the hidden paths of his own soul and tracks out the waste places therein.

The scientist, seeking the correct tests that shall bring to him the coveted solution, labors patiently and waits in paience the days or years till he can cry out "I have found it." BUT, he is the greatest scientist of all, who makes the correct tests of his own character, and proving all things, holds fast to that which is good.

But the explorer and scientist make surrender to achieve. And to enlarge life means the willingness to make surrender; the spirit of abandon to the lure of the ideal; the devotion to a high and mighty purpose. To be a scholar, one must pay the price of being a real student; but greater than being a scholar is being a great soul—and he who would be such, must pay the toll of spirit which alone can give that greatness. The profit of privilege is by paying the price.

And last, I would mention:

3. The Purpose of the Administration

For after all, there must be a cherished purpose here. I mean by this statement—the program of president and faculty in seeking to have the college fill its place and the student use his privilege.

There must be something in mind beside recitation hall and laboratory room; besides lectures of professors and student acquisition; besides grades and demerits; besides finance and student activities. All these are incidental to the main issue. The purpose of our combined administrative and teaching program must be to instill in the individual student a workable philosophy of life.

We must plan to put at the disposal of the student the cumulative lore of knowledge and deposit of experience that the tides of the years have left; but we must also purpose to beget and nourish and develop in the student an attitude towards life, and a spirit about life, that means the inner growth of the individual and the outward adjustment to life, as a means towards human welfare and the permanence of social values that make for the security of the race.

Our material is the personality of youth—the greatest power in the world.

Our chart is the ideals of Him whose teachings have become the leaven that have reshaped a world, renewed life, ransomed society, and that still, after 2000 years, is the surest chart for human welfare that the world knows.

Our opportunity is to bring youth to rightly interpret those ideals in relation to human experience and put behind these ideals the power of youth unto preserving permanent the best things in the world of men and affairs.

High Point College is fortunate in one respect. However much may be considered a handicap the fact that there is no long history behind the school, in this the college is happy—there are no traditions to hamper, no prejudices to bias. Our job is in the making. We are in the formative period of constructing a program. There ought to be for us a great challenge in this—a challenge that carries with it a tremendous thrill!

My hope is that we shall be progressive but likewise constructive in life building. The life of America is in a melting pot, not merely racially, but in every way. Civilization marches on only as we move upward—there is no such thing as balance. And we move upward only as we learn to measure values rightly, discarding the false and preserving the true—that alone is the way of freedom and power both for the individual and the race.

The seal of High Point College has in its center — The Lamp of Knowledge. Fitting symbol. Knowledge to light us into truth whereby comes freedom. But Truth is many sided because full orbed—and no eye can see all of truth; no mind encompass all of truth; no heart feel all of truth! What then?—

Only to look at all we can see—digest all we can comprehend—respond to all we can feel—and then to walk humbly with Him who sad "I AM THE TRUTH"; for "if the SON make you free, ye are free indeed." For life is spirit—with faith, hope, ideals, vision, love and service. It is not bounded by finite conditions that mark the limitations of our living, it is tied to the Infinite in the very consciousness of the Eternalness of our Being.

The Educational Ideal, through the Place of the College, the Privilege of the Student, and the Program of the Administration, is to produce in human experience a workable philosophy of life that shall keep life sane and steady amidst the cross currents of thought, the shifting sands of philosophy, and the changing tides of ambition. To beget a wholesome outlook on the world, its opportunities and privileges that shall fit folks to meet their responsibilities and fulfill their obligations.

This is the challenge of Life. For while the Fact of Life is its mystery, the challenge of life is its mastery. We can never comprehend the Fact but we can accept the Challenge, and "in patient endurance win our souls," and in fraternal ministry save a world.

ADDRESS OF DR. S. W. TAYLOR AT PRESIDENT HUMPHREYS' INAUGURATION

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Being president of a college is a task of no mean proportions; especially is that true of small colleges, with only a minimum means of support.

I presume that there has never been a time when the office of a college president was not testing to both brain and brawn. But in this age of keen competition between colleges, and with no choice of curriculum and equipment except that fixed by the standardization authorities, and with the tremendous amount of money necessary to carry on according to the required standards, the tests to which a college president is subjected becomes many times magnified.

There was a time when the intellectuality of a college president was his chief fitness for his position.

This is what was meant when some one said, "If you put Mark Hopkins on one end of a log and a student on the other, you will have a university." But the modern educational world demands far more than intellectual equipment. It is required of a college president of this day, that he combine with his scholarship, marked administrative ability. In fact, his equipment for the office of president swings on whether or not he is able to find money for the institution that he heads. Whether or not this is ideal may be mooted; the fact, however, can not be questioned. If the president of a college does not combine with his intellectual adornment the ability to find money with which to finance his school, his prospects for success are greatly minimized, if not altogether defeated.

This, within itself, is a gigantic task for a college president, and when you add to it all of the other varied and important duties incident to his office, it is easy to see how tremendously heavy are the burdens that he must carry.

But what of that? College presidents are men, not pigmies, and men do not shirk things because they are hard.

"Lord, I scorn the flowery road,
For weak hands the lighter load,
For unwilling steps the goad,
Give me something hard to do."

For a college president, worthy of his office, this is his sentiment.

What if his task is hard? College presidents are benefactors; college presidents are character builders; college presidents are lamps to light youthful feet to paths of honor and happiness.

A father, referring to a certain college, and pointing his index finger to the president, said, "There is the reason why I send my boys to that school."

What if the duties of a college president are arduous? It is his to so inspire young men and young women that they may go out from the school over which he presides to adorn society, bless humanity, and glorify God.

The immortal Webster said:

"If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal souls, if we imbue them with immortal principles, with the just fear of God, and love of fellow men, we engrave upon those tablets something that wlil brighten all eternity."

This is the work and the glory of a college president, and herein lies the courage and the enthusiasm for his tasks.

It is the deep and abiding conviction of your speaker that the small college has a place in the educational world. There are important and necessary personal contacts in such schools that are lost in the larger colleges and universities.

I believe, also, in the necessity for the church school. The church has always marched in the vanguard of education, and is still at the front. It has a place there. The building of Christian character is the most vital factor in all educational processes. It is written, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge." No other school is so well prepared to make that real, as is the Christian college. It is authorized, charged, and equipped for the express purpose of educating both the head and the heart.

In 1865, when General Lee became president of Washington college, now Washington and Lee university, he said:

"I shall be disappointed, sir; I shall miss the real purpose of my coming here, if these young men do not become real Christians."

Certainly no ideal for a church school can be higher than that; and surely none should be lower. We covet for this institution that it be marked by scholarship and Christian character, and today we are committing this school into your hands, Dr. Humphreys, in the full confidence that you accept these ideals as the only standards worthy of a Christian college.

Will you stand with me a moment, Mr. President, while I assure you that you are not alone in this undertaking, and while I pledge to you our whole-hearted co-operation. We invited you here for this work because we believed in you. By your training, by the bent of your mind and the set of your soul, we believed that you would be an efficient leader for this young and struggling, but hopeful institution. We are pleased that you accepted our challenge, and that you had the faith and the courage to join your hands with ours, your head with ours, your heart with ours, for the furthering of the work of this institution, so auspiciously begun, and so eminently successful in its growth and achievements to this glad hour. You honor yourself, and you honor us, by casting your fortunes with us in this great work.

But all honors are attended by responsibilities. Yours is no exception. To run a college is not an easy task. That is especially true of small colleges with only limited resources at command. The impossible must be done to maintain them. There is no royal road over which colleges travel to success. You will be confronted often with problems for which you may not find a ready solution. The task that is yours will make heavy drafts upon your powers, and you will doubtless be driven many times to your secret chamber for light and guidance from Him who is the Supreme Teacher, and who is the all-sufficient help for colleges established in His name and run for His glory.

The steep places have not all been pulled down, nor have all the rough places been made smooth for your feet. But what of that? Only the faint-hearted and the weak, look for easy places. Har dtasks are for the courageous and the strong. We believe that is the metal out of which you are molded, and in that confidence we called you to the presidency of this institution, and in that same confidence, we this day induct you ito your high office.

But another word remains to be said. We would be unworthy of your faith in us, evidenced by your coming here, if we unloaded upon your heart the responsibility of running this school. You are certainly to enter upon this work with your hands unfettered, but you are not to feel that the burden of working out the problems of this college is yours alone. We are under this load with you; we are your co-laborers. This task is yours, and together we shall go forward to the larger things that are in our hearts and our hopes for High Point College, looking always to you, of course, as our standard-bearer.

I, therefore, pledge to you our unfailing support. The North Carolina Conference, extending from the mountain tops to the tidewaters, and from Virginia to South Carolina, and numbering thirty thousand strong, would not forgive if I failed to do this. Your board of trustees, and the Board of Education of this conference will back you to the full limit of their powers. We are all with you, Mr. President, in this great work that you have come among us to do, and I take your hand in the confidence of the larger things that await High Point College through your leadership.

God bless you, and keep you wise and strong and good, that under your guiding hand this institution may go forward, with increasing strength, toward our ideals of scholarship and Christian character.

ARMISTICE DAY IN WASHINGTON

By Rev. Luther K. Long

One can scarcely realize that twelve years have passed since that memorable day, November 11, 1918. The armistice is signed, the firing has ceased, the war is ended!

Some people were so optimistic, at the time, as to leave out that last definite article. And they exclaimed with tearful gratitude: "War is ended!" How fortunate for the human race had that last statement proved to be absolutely true.

On each recurring anniversary of armistic day, memories of service rendered and gratitude for sacrifices made in behalf of the country and of the world, rise in the minds and hearts of multitudes of our people. It becomes a suitable occasion for those interested in promoting the peace of the world to think and to speak and to plan for the coming of the good day when nations shall learn war no more.

Arlington National Cemetery and the tomb of the unknown soldier are the mecca of many thousands of people from all over our country who, for one reason or another, happen to be in Washington on Armistice Day.

Beginning early in the morning, and lasting throughout

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

Inauguration

November 15.—On this date Dr. G. I. Humphreys was officially and formally inducted into the office of President of High Point College. The college auditorium was well-filled, and many more would have been present, no doubt, but for the rain. The program seemed fitting in every particular, and was pitched upon a high plane. Several colleges of the state were represented, and Dr. Broomfield and Dr. Stephenson were present to speak for our general church and Board of Education. Chancellor Clark of the American University was the principal visiting speaker for the occasion. The closing address of President Humphreys was apt, forceful, and pleasing. He is strong in his faith for High Point College, and confident of the continued growth and usefulness of the school. We share this faith with him. High Point College is destined to have an honorable career in Christian education.

The First Services

Many pastors went to their new charges last Sunday, and many back to the old, for their first services of the new conference year. We trust that these services were good, despite the rain, and that pastors, old and new, received warm greetings from their people, and assurances of full co-operation for the year that lies ahead. A good beginning in anything has much to do with results that follow. We are therefore calling upon our pastors and the people whom they serve to start this new year with a vow to Almighty God to "keep back nothing" that is profitable for the work of this year. Nothing of personal consecration, of prayer, of study, of sermonizing, of organizing, of patience, of love, of tolerance, of longsuffering, of liberality, of work, of visiting, of sacrifice, of church attendance,—nothing of anything that is necessary to make this year one of great progress and great peace. In the name of the conference, and in the name of Him who is the great Head of the church, I call upon every pastor and every congregation for a rededication of heart, head, hand, and substance to the work of this new conference year. And with your vow, I am hereby registering mine. God bless us and keep us, and use us mightily to His glory this year.

To Be Published

The Conference ordered that notice be given through the HERALD of things decreed by the conference to be done this year. The secretary of the conference will give this notice promptly. If pastors will clip this and put it on file, it will be of value to them all during the year, and especially during the first part of the year before the Journal is out.

Itemized Statement

I desire to have in my files an itemized statement of salary and budget apportionments of individual churches. I can get this from the Journal for stations, but can not for individual churches on circuits. I am asking, therefore, that pastors furnish me with this, as early as possible after apportionments have been made, and along with this, the name and address of the chairman of the board of stewards. This will facilitate my work, and I shall be gratified to pastors for this information.

One Hundred Per Cent. Churches

Right now is the time to line them up. The plan is for EVERY member to have a definite financial allotment, that he subscribes himself, or that is given by the stewards, where the member prefers that, and EVERY member paying something to the church—if not the full allotment, then some amount, as he feels able to pay. All such churches are to be given honor roll recognition in the conference Journal. We would like to keep a list of these churches in our files, and as soon as a church signifies a purpose to try for this goal, we shall appreciate it if pastors will notify us. There should be a number of ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. CHURCHES.

Herald

It is highly gratifying that the two per cent. appeal brought in enough to greatly relieve the financial embarrassment of the paper. This is a tribute to the value of the paper, and the high esteem in which the editor is held throughout the conference. The HERALD will go right on serving as it has done in the past. A very small membership contribution will be asked from the conference for maintenance, and our fatih is that the response will again be gratifying. WE JUST CAN'T GET ALONG WITHOUT THE HERALD.

Thanksgiving

We are nearing the day when the heart of the nation goes up to Almighty God for His manifold mercies upon us as a people. This is a most fitting thing to do, and our heavenly Father will be pleased with us if we offer to him the gratitude of grateful hearts. I trust that our people will meet in their churches on this day for public worship and thanksgiving. Surely such thanksgiving would rise as sweet incense to the giver of every good and perfect gift.

And this other thing: Let us not forget our Children's Home on this day. We are giving the Home right-of-way in the conference, and we trust that a generous offering may be made for the support of our 100 children. A day's wage is asked for; let us do this as far as possible. If we can't give a day's wage, then let our offering be just as generous as we can make it. The home is eminently worthy of the very best that we can do for it. Brother and Sister Dixon will be greatly cheered if we will send them a generous offering next week. Let's do it.

Lebanon

November 16, Sunday. — Together with the parsonage family, I had the privilege and the pleasure of worshiping in this church on this date—my first preaching appointment of the new conference year. The attendance was good, interest good, and the outlook for the year is good. A committee was appointed to confer with me in working out a plan for pastoral supply. This committee met last night, and plans are now in the making for supplying the church with a pastor during the year. There are splendid possibilities at this church, and we are anxious that they may be fully realized. It is always a pleasure to worship with this congregation.

Appointments

November 21, Friday.—Meeting with Board of Church Extension.

November 22, Saturday.—Quarterly conference, English Street charge. Hour, 3 P. M. Place, Midway church.

December 13, Saturday.—Why Not charge, in quarterly conference at Love Joy church. Preaching, 11 A. M.; conference 1 P. M. Sunday at Love Joy and Macedonia.

December 20-21.—Mt. Pleasant charge. Quarterly conference at Mt. Pleasant church Saturday, 2 P. M. Preaching on the charge Sunday.

"Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

Armistice Day In Washington

the day, group after group drive to the cemetery and approach this tomb bearing an offering of flowers which is reverently deposited there. I was a member of a company made up of delegates in attendance on the fifteenth annual meeting and good will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches. After our wreath had been deposited by Dr. Fred B. Smith, chairman of the executive committee, prayer was offered by Dr. A. J. Brown, of Union Seminary, New York. Then Professor Parker T. Moon, of Columbia University, gave a most excellent brief address. He voiced our sense of gratitude for the loyalty of the men who died, and he expressed our hope that intelligent plans and agreements might be entered into by the nations which would no longer even seem to be necessary.

President and Mrs. Hoover appeared a little later, suitably attended. The President placed a beautiful wreath of yellow chrysanthemums on the tomb, while Mrs. Hoover added a smaller offering of flowers.

Returning to the city, we reached the Washington auditorium at 10 o'clock. Here the United States' Marine Band gave a most delightful concert of an hour's length.

All the exercises at the auditorium were under the auspices of the good will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the churches, President Hoover having accepted the invitation to make the address. Following the band concert President Cloyd H. Marvin, of George Washington University, took the chair. The great audience stood in two minutes of memorial silence, after which prayer was offered by Rabbi Abram Simon, of Washington.

As President Hoover stood to give the Armistice Day address, he was greeted with prolonged and enthusiastic applause by the vast throng of admirers. He was listened to with profound respect and great interest. What he said was carefully thought out and well expressed.

Here are a few of the most significant paragraphs:

Justice and good will.—"Every shift in power, every advance in communication, in trade and finance daily increases the points of contact of one nation with another. The diffusion of their citizens and their property abroad increasingly penetrates and overlaps into the four corners of the earth. The many inventions of these citizens, their ceaseless energies, bring an hourly grist to our foreign offices of contested right or grievance. It is true that many of these contacts make for understanding and good will; it is indeed of the first importance to peace that these happy influences be cultivated, and that the unhappy ones be disposed of with justice and good will."

Arbitration and conciliation. "By these treaties of arbitration we pledged ourselves to the acceptance of the judgment of a disinterested third party in all controversies of a justiciable character. By treaties of conciliation we pledge ourserves to submit all other types of controversy to negotiations or the mediation of commissions which embrace representatives of disinterested nations. It is our purpose to develop in every way the use of arbitration and conciliation agreements in our relations with foreign nations."

War still possible. "We, as a nation whose independence, liberties and securities were born of war, cannot contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so far advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense."

War and peace. "The war that ended on this day twelve years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back on its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercises of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, co-operation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates, but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast wth its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded in times of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny. We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace."

Since the Armistice was signed twelve years ago millions of our boys have grown to military age—just as millions of our boys and girls have come to be voters since the saloon was out-lawed. It is to these millions of new voters and possible soldiers that the so-called privilege of obtaining strong drink whenever wanted and the glamour of military operations are making their appeal. Education in the facts, and the development of the habit of conscientious action are of the greatest importance if we are to be a sober and peaceful nation.

TOM AND BETTY'S THANKSGIVING

A group of boys and girls were walking home from school, and talking about Thanksgiving which was quite near.

''Oh, we're going to have just a splendid time,'' said Bob Merril. ''My grandmother and grandfather and cousins are coming in from the country. They're going to bring us a great big turkey, and pumpkins and apples and nuts, and oh—everything.''

''We're going to have a fine dinner, too. We always do. My aunts and cousins are coming, too,'' said Lucy Croft.

''We're all going to my grandmother's—we always do at Thanksgiving. We have the best times,'' said Mary Grey.

''Well, of course, every one has a big dinner and lots of fun on Thanksgiving day,'' said Tom Mason. ''Well, here's our corner. Come on, Betty,'' turning to his sister, ''I'll race you home.''

When the brother and sister, much out of breath, reached the house, they were much surprised to find their mother in her room packing a trunk. ''Why, mother!'' cried Betty. ''What are you doing that for?''

''Because, dear, I am going away on the first train in the morning. I had a telegram from your father just an hour ago. And he wants me to meet him in New York.''

''How long will you be gone, Mother?'' asked Tom.

''About two weeks, I think.''

''But Mother, it's Thanksgiving next week. You won't be away on Thanksgiving!'' exclaimed Betty.

''I'm sorry, my dears. I've thought of that, too. But it can't be helped. It is on account of some very important business that your father needs me with him. It can't be put off. I have telephoned Mrs. Harvey and she is coming to take care of you and the house.''

''And won't we have any Thanksgiving dinner?'' asked Tom in dismay.

''Not the big dinner we have always had,'' answered Mrs. Mason. ''Mrs. Harvey is not very strong, you know. She is the only one I know that I would want to leave you with. You must make as little trouble for her as possible. It is very good of her to come.''

''But, Mother it's awful not to have a big dinner and lots of fun on Thanksgiving!'' and the tears rolled down Betty's cheeks.

Tom felt very bad, too. But of course, being a boy, he wouldn't let any one see him cry. But he had to swallow pretty hard.

''Thanksgiving day doesn't only mean having fun and big dinners, Tom,'' said his mother gravely. ''Don't you remember the talk our minister gave the Sabbath School not long ago about Thanksgiving? Of course, if we can have nice things we do, because God gives them to us.''

When the children came home to lunch the next day, their mother was gone and Mrs. Harvey was there. She was very kind to them. The children liked her, and tried not to make any trouble for her. But they could not help thinking of Thanksgiving next week, and that they were not going to celebrate it.

And to hear their playmates talking about all the things they were going to do and have, made it so much worse.

On Thanksgiving morning, they wandered around feeling very gloomy indeed.

''Oh, somebody has moved into that little house in the alley,'' said Tom. Betty looked over at the little brown house. Sure enough, smoke was coming out of a chimney.

''There's a boy and girl sweeping the path,'' she said. ''Let's go over and speak to them.''

''Why we don't know them,'' said Tom.

''Didn't mother tell us to be friendly to strange children? Come on.''

Tom followed Betty, and soon they were having a chat with the strangers. They found out that their names were Edwin and Etta Niles. They seemed very glad that Tom and Betty had come to speak to them.

They had come from another city because their mother owned the little brown house. Their father was working on the new railroad that was being built. And he had to work that day even though it was Thanksgiving.

''Mother is busy fixing things,'' said Etta. ''It's pretty hard not to have any Thanksgiving.''

Presently, Betty had an idea. ''I'm going into the house a minute,'' she said to her brother. ''You stay here till I come back.''

Tom wondered what Betty was going to do. But he stayed and talked to the little strangers. He thought he was going to like them very much.

''And if you will let us have them, Tom and I will wash the dishes after. We can. We often help mother. They are such nice children. I guess our dinner, if we haven't a turkey and things, is better than the one they will have. I know mother would like us to do it,'' and when Betty finished, out of breath, Mrs. Harvey laughed and said:

''Why, of course, dear. That's a fine thing to do. I'll come with you and invite them. Perhaps their mother will come, too. You know we have a very big chicken. Then I've made some pumpkin pies to surprise you. And how would you like to have a little candy pulling this afternoon? When I was a child I used to like that.''

''Oh, thank you ever so much, Mrs. Harvey. That will be just splendid! And we'll be sure to clean up any muss we make,'' and Betty clapped her hands. ''Let's us hurry down and invite them.''—Emily S. Windsor in the Presbyterian.

THE DIVINE LAW OF INVERSE RATIO

To get, we must give; to accumulate, we must scatter; to make ourselves happy, we must make others happy; and in order to become spiritually vigorous, we must seek the spiritually vigorous, we must seek the spiritual good of others. Prayer girds human weakness with Divine strength, and gives to troubled mortals the peace of God.—Rev. C. H. Spurgeon.

Tuesday—Equipped with Power. Acts 1:8; 2:1-4.

Wednesday—Responsible Stewards. 1 Cor. 4:1-5.

Thursday—A Man That Failed. Jonah 1:1-16.

Friday—Principle of Responsibility. Ezek. 33:1-5.

Saturday—Constrained by Love. 2 Cor. 5:14-21.

Suggestions for the Leader

To advertise this meeting have your artist to prepare a cardboard for the bulletin board. On it place in blazing letters: "THE CHALLENGE OF THE CROSS." Then in smaller letters, "What Does it Mean to You?" If you wish these words could be placed in the shape of a cross. At the bottom place "Be Present at C. E. Tonight." Give time and welcome.

To make the meeting effective a large cross should be placed at the back of the leader's chair in full view of everyone. Use songs whose theme is the cross. It would be interesting to have a number of short talks on such subjects as "The Challenge of the Cross to a Young Man or Woman," "The Challenge of the Cross to the Ministry, to a Bible School Teacher, to a lost world, to a sleeping church" and numerous others.

You might cut from paper or cardboard a hand with the palm open. On the tips of the finger spell the word "share" writing one letter of the word on each finger. Below these letters write in smaller size the remaining letters in the words: Self, Home, Ability, Religion and Experience. In this way the outstretched hand will show an acrostic spelling the word "share" and showing five ways in which we should share. Have a short talk on each of the ways we may share. To introduce this plan the leader might read:

If you want to be rich,
Give.
If you want to be poor,
Grasp.
If you want abundance,
Scatter.
If you want to be needy,
Hoard.

The responsibility for spreading the gospel throughout the world is a direct challenge to every Christian and which we dare not evade. What are we going to do with that challenge? We are disciples of His and he is depending entirely upon us to do His will to fulfill His commands.

Questions for Consideration

1. What is the greatest work in the world? Why?
2. What is the relationship of "responsibility" to "opportunity?"
3. What represents a definite call to the ministry?
4. Is the "great commission" intended for preachers only or for all Christians?
5. Why should we give to missions?
6. What would happen if the church withdrew from all Missionary work?
7. What could Christ do with a single life that is wholly consecrated to His service?

Poetry

TAKE MY LIFE, AND LET IT BE

Take my life, and let it be
Consecrated, Lord, to Thee;
Take my hands, and let them move
At the impulse of Thy love.

Take my feet, and let them be
Swift and beautiful for Thee;
Take my voice, and let me sing
Always, only, for my King.

Take my silver and my gold,
Not a mite would I withhold;
Take my moments and my days,
Let them flow in ceaseless praise.

Take my will and make it Thine;
It shall be no longer mine;
Take my heart, it is Thine own,
It shall be Thy royal throne.

OUR CHILDREN IN THE CHILDREN'S HOME

My Dear Fellow Worker:

We face the winter with no funds in hand with which to meet current expenses; and yet we face it with faith in God and His people, believing that He through them will lead us out victoriously and happily.

We are asking three things of you: 1. Pray for us that the Methodist Protestants and their friends throughout the Conference may be led to send us a liberal Thanksgiving offering, and that we may have grace and wisdom to administer the affairs of the Home wisely and economically.

2. Make a free-will offering to the Home, at or near Thanksgiving, as He may direct, and get others to do likewise.

3. See that in your church and Sunday school every friend of the Home is given the opportunity to make a real Thanksgiving offering, and make the suggestion that is

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

AUXILIARIES URGED TO CO-OPERATE IN THANKSGIVING OFFERING TO CHILDREN'S HOME

From year to year at Thanksgiving time our church people have been asked to join in contributing the sum equal to one day's earnings to the orphanage of their church, this in compliance with the proclamation of the Governor of North Carolina.

This appeal is to the womanhood of the church, to contribute liberally themselves and to use their influence to get every church member to do the same. The business depression has affected the donations to our own Children's Home and we must come to the rescue now when the need is great.

Giving for gratitude is an ancient custom, but should be observed now. Each Auxiliary president is urged to get her membership to give something this year for gratitude. May we not give 100 per cent from the womanhood and childhood of the church? Will not the manhood of the church respond to the Governor's call, giving the sum equal to one day's earning?

The Home is depending on you. The children must not be disappointed.

Very truly,

MRS. W. C. HAMMER, Pres.,
N. C. Branch Women's Work.

CHILDREN'S HOME

Let all the Auxiliary Secretaries of Benevolences keep this late report from Children's Home to be used in your Auxiliary programs.

Since the middle of March Mr. and Mrs. Elkin have been in the Home, assisting Dr. and Mrs. Dixon.

"Mr. Elkin is a student at High Point College and supervises the care and feeding of the cows, and I direct the girls in the cooking and general housework. Before my marriage in March my name was Edna Dexter and I visited the Maryland Conference in 1928 in the interest of Pine Ridge. So much for an account of myself that you might better understand the point of view of the information I am about to give.

"There are 49 girls in this building, of which Dr. and Mrs. Dixon are in charge; there are also 50 boys in the other building across the campus where Mr. and Mrs. Archie Dixon are in charge. Mr. Archie Dixon is the farmer and directs the boys in the farm work. Miss Doris Dixon directs the kitchen and dining room work at the boys' dormitory. The boys help with the cooking.

There are six girls under school age and five boys. They are the sunbeams about the house. The children go to high school and grammar school at Jamestown, about two miles from here, in busses every day. Out of the 90 children attending school they were all promoted except 15. Three girls and one boy were in the graduting class. George was the president of the class, Laura was the treasurer and also valedictorian.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

West Forsyth.—The writer has been assigned to the West Forsyth charge for the third year and has already been given a hearty and warm welcome back on the work. We appreciate very much the friendship, confidence and co-operation of the people on the charge and are looking forward to a good year's work for 1931.

Our first appointment for the new Conference year was at Pleasant Hill church last Sunday morning. Considering the heavy rainfall and muddy roads, we had a splendid congregation. At this service Miss Ruth Long was elected reporter to the Herald for Pleasant Hill church for the coming year to succeed her sister, Miss Lola Long, who has gone to Winston-Salem where she is employed in a department store. The new reporter is well qualified for the work as she is editor of the school paper here.

It was the pleasure of the pastor and one of his daughters to enjoy a visit and splendid dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Long last Sunday. A large dish of opossum and two large chicken pies were among the good things which adorned the dining table.

Funeral services were held at Pleasant Hill church on Sunday, November 9, for the one-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Vogler, of this community, which was found dead in the bed early on the morning of November 8. Rev. R. E. Adams, a Baptist minister, of East Bend, Yadkin County, was secured to conduct the funeral service, the pastor being away attending the sessions of the Annual Conference.

Our appointment for next Sunday morning will be with Harmony Grove church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Shiloh.—Shiloh closed the past Conference year with her record complete. The whole budget was paid with a few dollars over. The C. E. Society grew in interest throughout the year. May God richly bless these young lives who are assuming the responsible places in the church as God calls them into service. We don't want to think that interest in Sunday school has slackened, yet the attendance average has not been as high as for the year preceding this past year. Our sincere desire and prayer is that the number may steadily grow because of interest in the work, and because hungry souls earnestly seek the truth that makes them free.

Our Heavenly Father heard our prayers and sent Bro. R. S. Troxler back to shepherd this flock for the seventh year. We all love Bro. Troxler and pray that as God was with Moses so may He be with him to lead him throughout the year.

Our souls were uplifted today by the sermon from the text, "Show us the Father and it sufficeth us." His earnest desire is that we may all see the Father this year and this may be the most fruitful year Shiloh has ever known.

Church officers were elected on the first Sunday of October. Sunday school superintendent is Bro. H. A. Leonard, who has so faithfully served for many years. W. J. Berrier, Jeff Fritts, and R. B. Sink are to continue as class leaders, and we could not find any man who will be more faithful. J. L. Evans is to continue as treasurer and some say nothing but sickness or death will persuade us to release him from that duty. That shows how much confidence Shiloh has in him, for he has been faithful and serves willingly his beloved church. Edgar Waitman is chairman of trustees. This writer does not remember the names of all the stewards and trustees. J. B. Leonard, our faithful choir leader for many years, is to continue in that service. Willie Veign Leonard, who has been pianist since her feet could reach the pedals, will still serve her Father by using her talent to play and also to sing His songs of Zion. Mabel Berrier and Grace Byerly are her able assistants.

With best wishes for every church in the Conference to have the best year in soul-winning ever known, we are yours in His service. MRS. WILEY SHOAF, Reporter.

Beulah, Mecklenburg Circuit.—We were glad to have Rev. Mr. Joyner to come back. This will be his second year on this charge; he has served us very faithfully and we hope he will continue to be blessed in his work. He will fill his regular appointment at Beulah on Sunday, November 23, at 11 o'clock. There has been a change made in one of his appointments at our church. He will preach every second Sunday night of each month instead of every second Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock The reason for this change was because another church has been added to this circuit.

Our Ladies' Aid Society was to have had a program November 13 at the church but didn't have it on account of the rainy weather, but we are going to have the program as soon as we can get together and plan when to meet again.

Our Sunday school attendance is not as large as it has been, for there has been quite a bit of sickness around in this community and there have also been a few deaths. We are sorry to say that Mr. John Phifer is sick. We hope he may soon be in health. Mrs. C. E. Craig, who underwent a serious operation at the Presbyterian hospital in Charlotte, returned home a few weeks ago very much improved. LULA DEESE, Reporter.

◆

South Lexington.—We were all glad to see Bro. Isley come back for the third year's work. There was a good crowd out to hear him at the morning service despite the bad weather.

On Thanksgiving day the Ladies' Aid Society will give a supper and the public is invited to attend. The proceeds will go to the church, so we are hoping to have a large crowd present. PHONSE BEAN, Reporter.

◆

Mizpah, Haw River Circuit.—We are glad our pastor, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, was sent back to us. He filled his appointment Sunday afternoon and preached an inspiring sermon from the subject, "Church Progress."

Committees were appointed to look after the Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home.

The first Sunday in November Rev. Mr. Rollins, a Friends preacher from Greensboro, preached at the 11 o'clock service. His preaching was enjoyed.

After the service officers for the coming year were installed. The service was very impressive. At the close the hymn, "A Charge to Keep I Have," was sung.

Leonard Wheeler, one of our Sunday school boys, is a patient in the Anne Penn Memorial hospital in Reidsville.

MRS. ROY STEWART, Reporter.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—We are now entering upon the work of a new year, with a new pastor. We are again happy members of Mocksville charge, although we enjoyed the one year we spent with State Street. We loved Mr. Hendry and family and are sad at their going. We hope for them at State Street another successful year and welcome them back into our community.

We were very glad to have with us yesterday morning Mr. Ferree and family. He delivered an inspiring sermon. Everyone seemed to take much delight in the message and gave to them a hearty welcome. We feel like Conference has deealt with us very kindly by sending us back home and blessing us with a man of such ability for the work of God. In the very beginning we are setting forth our aim, that is, "Co-operation."

Our attendance at Sunday school was the smallest it has been this year, due to the weather, although several others came for church service.

We were glad to have to worship with us in the morning service Rev. Mr. Taft White, a young M. P. minister. He is a teacher in our public school which is located about two miles from here and teaches several of our little folks. We were also delighted to have one of Mr. White's friends. They are from Union Grove, which is now a part of our work.

C. E. is progressing nicely and many interesting programs are being rendered.

At the service yesterday the officers were elected and installed. This should have been done before conference but by some means was neglected: Sunday school superintendent, Mr. C. B. Broadway; trustees, Mr. J. E. B. Shutt, Mrs. T. F. Bailey; stewards, J. G. Zimmerman, C. B. Broadway, Mrs. C. H. Orrell, Delia Crouse, L. O. Markland; class leader, H. B. Bailey; recording secretary, Miss Laura Shutt; parsonage committee, G. A. Tucker and Miss Laura Shutt; church organist, Laura Shutt; reporter, Stella Bailey.

We hope for all churches a success year financially. We desire the prayers of all readers and former pastors.

Best wishes to the Herald.

Fairfield Church, Guilford Circuit.—At Rev. Mr. Peeler's last appointment at our church before the Annual Conference new officers were chosen in the church for the ensuing year. Practically all the old officials were re-elected to their posts. M. C. Gilbreath resigned as steward and was replaced by W. M. Llewallen. Glenn Ward, Garfield Robbins, J. Van Cashatt, and W. M. Llewallen were elected as ushers to succeed the old board of ushers. These were about all the major changes that took place. After the officers were elected an installation service was held.

A group of people representing the Christian Endeavor of the Springfield Friends church came down and helped organize a Christian Endeavor at our church. The society has not gotten fully underway yet, but it is hoped it will be running smoothly before long.

The circuit was successful in getting Rev. E. O. Peeler back again as pastor. Several people from this community attended the Annual Conference at Albemarle.

Mr. Peeler's first message of the Conference year was a Thanksgiving message. He urged the members of the church to observe this sacred date and be in a thanksgiving mood as our forefathers were. Following this service the Woman's Auxiliary had a short meeting. J. VAN CASHATT, Reporter.

Reidsville.—We were so busy getting ready for the Annual Conference that we did not find time to report the good things that happened as the year closed. With the aid of the Christian Endeavor Society, the Philathea class, the Ladies' Aid and a few very generous members of our church we paid all of our assessments for the year. This was quite an achievement and deserves special mention.

All of the parsonage chimneys were retopped, a nice new drugget for the sitting room was purchased by the Ladies' Aid, and a new laundry water heater put in the kitchen by these same good women.

Five new members were received to the delight and encouragement of pastor and members, and we are expecting others to unite with us in the near future.

The same old pastor is back on the job for another year, and he is hopeful of a year of happiness and success among a people who are willing to sacrifice until it hurts.

GEO. R. BROWN, Pastor.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—We are glad to have Brother Williams come back and serve this charge for another year. We wish to thank him for serving us so faithfully for the past six years. We the members of Hebron church are going to "line up" and make this one of the best years that Brother Williams has witnessed since being on this charge. May the Lord continue to bless him and his family in his work.

Our Sunday school seems to be very active, but we are desiring more interest, and members all the time. Our superintendent is very much concerned about the work. May we do all in our power to help him in his great task.

The Auxiliary of this church has done a very good piece of work during the past year. Every member seems to be interested in this organization. What little we have done is very big for us, but we are not satisfied, so for the next year the Auxiliary is planning greater things.

NANNIE McADAMS, Reporter.

Graham.—It was a rainy day yesterday as Rev. J. Clyde Auman came to preach his first sermon since coming to us as our new pastor, but as he preached we felt that "behind the clouds the sun was still shining," and we were grateful the Annual Conference saw fit to send a man of his caliber to Graham. We are confident a great year is in store for us with him as our pastor. He chose as his theme for his first day, "Keeping Faith." He stressed keeping faith in the home, in the church, and with God.

On Wednesday evening of this week a S. S. and church social will be held in the Hut for the purpose of welcoming our pastor and family and becoming better acquainted.

Very little has been said about our S. S. for some time, but it is steadily growing. Mr. C. E. Core, our very efficient superintendent, had arranged a splendid worship program for Sunday morning, consisting of songs by the men's chorus and instrumental music by Miss Ruth Bain, piano, and Mr. Ralph Cates, cornet. Next Sunday morning the Primary and Junior Departments will have charge of the opening worship. The theme will be "Thanksgiving and Praise." Everyone is invited to attend all services. REPORTER.

Asheboro.—Among those received into church membership just before Conference were Mr. Charlie Hoover and Miss Lura Surratt from Denton, and Lacy Lewis, Jr., the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Lewis, of

The list of church officers for the year was read by the chairman of the nominating committee and elected, then came forward for the installation service on Sunday before Conference.

At an adjourned session of the quarterly conference Rev. J. E. Pritchard was presented with a Rotary charm by Mr. Elmer Rich as a token of appreciation from the Baraca and Philathea classes.

The church has had a good year; all reports given in the quarterly conference were encouraging. All budgets were paid and Asheboro church was again on the Honor Roll. The Woman's Auxiliary has been very active and systematic in giving. Five circles have regular monthly meetings in the homes of the members. This Conference year we have raised for missions $591.73, for local aid, $507.49. The Auxiliary meets each month in the church under the leadership of Miss Esther Ross as president. The Auxiliary honored Mrs. J. E. Pritchard Wednesday evening during Conference, at an informal reception in the social room of the church. After a program of instrumental and vocal music games and readings, a salad course was served. Mrs. Pritchard was presented a beautiful watch in appreciation of her faithful service to the church since coming here five years ago.

Our pastor, Rev. J. E. Pritchard, left Sunday, November 4, for Albemarle for the Conference faculty meeting at 2 p. m. Mr. R. T. Lloyd represented our church as delegate. Rev. W. F. McDowell attended most of the sessions. A number of our people attended Conference on Friday, which was Denominational Day; splendid addresses were given, among which was that of Dr. Broomfield, president of the General Conference. A number attended Sunday, as we had no services in our church.

Rev. J. E. Pritchard, who has served our church so faithfully and capably for the past five years was assigned to First church, Winston-Salem. During his pastorate he has not only endeared himself to his own church, but to the citizenship of the town, each regretting to see him leave. During his pastorate the church has had a substantial growth, receiving 149 new members in five years. He and his wife have not only been active in the church work, but in the civic, educational, and social life of the town. The best wishes of the town and county will follow them to their new field of labor.

Rev. R. C. Stubbins, our new pastor, is no stranger to our people, he having assisted in revival services here several times. Mr. Stubbins preached to a good sized congregation Sunday morning (a rainy morning), November 16. His subject was "The Attractiveness of Goodness." He said: Goodness attracts, the good life is the natural life, the evil, the unnatural life. He said we should look for the good in people, as pastors, teachers and parents we should point the young to the good things in life, high and noble. He said, when in climbing a mountain, ascending the ladders, he was told to keep his eyes up, not to look down, for in so doing he might become dizzy and make a mis step, but when on top, on a solid foundation he could look down and afar off and enjoy the beautiful scenery. In John 12:32 Jesus says, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

Our church and town welcome Mr. and Mrs. Stubbins in our midst.

Mrs. J. S. Ridge and Mrs. Rufus Routh have recently undergone operations in the High Point Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clemmons and children have moved to Greensboro to make it their home. They have made many friends while in Asheboro. We are glad to have Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison and little son in our town and worship with us. Mr. Harrison has been made promotional secretary of High Point College and Conference Council Religious Education.

Miss Mary Whiteley, who has been indisposed for some time, has not been so well for several days.

Mrs. M. L. Gray, who has been unable to attend services for a while, is somewhat improved in health. REPORTER.

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Once again we begin a new Conference year with renewed energy and greater ambitions. The report from Conference informed us that Rev. Edward Suits is our pastor for the ensuing year, succeeding Rev. D. I. Garner, who has served us so faithfully for the past two years. We are indeed glad to welcome Bro. Suits into our midst and we plan with his help to make this a year of real success. The officers of the church as elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Stewards (pastor's salary), G. R. Hemphill, C. C. Hemphill, J. S. Pickett, J. A. Crowson, and G. L. Whitaker, (general interest), George Pickett, A. L. Kime, and W. C. Kime; trustees, E. E. Jordan, C. U. Burrow, W. H. Garrett, J. F. Brown and Mrs. G. L. Whitaker. Our new superintendent is Mr. W. P. Pickett, with Mrs. J. A. Crowson as assistant; organist, Mae York; class leaders, Mrs. A. L. Kime, W. P. Pickett; reporter, Clarice Whitaker.

We feel that there is much work to be done and with the co-operation of the church and Sunday school may we accomplish much.

The Senior Christian Endeavor has also reorganized with the following officers installed: Mrs. J. A. Crowson, superintendent; Mae York, president; Grace Garrett, secretary and treasurer; Clarice Whitaker, assistant secretary and treasurer. The committees have also been reorganized: Lookout committee, Annie York, Edwin Henderson, and Ethel Bryant; social committee, Hassel Bryant, Ruth Crowson, and Clarice Whitaker. This business meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Crowson, with Mrs. Crowson in charge. After the business, a social hour was enjoyed, at the conclusion of which delightful refreshments were served. Everyone is making plans for progress and though the society is small in number it hopes to do great work for the Master, for it's really the "little things that count" after all.

The community was very much saddened when the Great Master called Mrs. W. H. Garrett, a member of our church, to her reward, on November 4, 1930. Mrs. Garrett had been ill for six years, her affliction being tuberculosis. She bore her suffering cheerfully and did her best to regain her health, but all in vain, for the Heavenly Father saw need for another flower in Paradise. She leaves her husband and five children behind to complete their earthly tasks and join her on the other shore. May God be with them and comfort them in this great bereavement, helping them to see that their loss is Heaven's gain.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers for a happy and successful year.

Why Not.—The writer met his appointments at Flag Spring and New Hope yesterday. Owing to rain and mud the attendance was not large at either place, but exceeded our expectations.

Three churches on this charge paid budgets in full last year—Seagrove, New Hope and Fairgrove. The older heads of Fairgrove do not recall having done so well financially prior to last year. The Ladies' Aid of the last-mentioned church gave the pastor's wife money with which to buy a new hat. The Ladies' Aid paid large on the budgets also.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Love Joy Saturday, December 13th. Sermon at 11 a. m.; quarterly conference at 1 p. m. All officials are urged to attend.

Denton.—Another Conference year has passed. We cannot change its record, but we can probably make a better record for the year of 1931.

Our new pastor, Rev. Robert Short, preached for us Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. I think the people here are well pleased with him. I believe if we as church members will stand by him in both a financial and spiritual way that we may all enjoy the coming year and realize that a great good has been done.

Our former pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, leaves us to go to Davidson circuit. We regret very much to have Mr. Bingham and family leave us, but he thought best to go. We wish to say that we think Mr. Bingham is one of the most sincere and consecrated men that we ever knew and we sincerely hope that he may enjoy his new field of work. We give them a standing invitation to come back and be with us in our church services and homes any time convenient.

Our Sunday school work is moving along very nicely. New officers have taken charge and we hope new interest and new members may both be added.

State Street, Lexington.—Considering the very unfavorable weather conditions, attendance at all the services Sunday was good.

Our "new" pastor and his wife were enthusiastically welcomed. We were all delighted to have Mr. Hendry come to us for this, his second, year. The year just closed was a good year. We hope to make the one we are entering upon a better one.

Mr. Hendry has asked for a mid-week meeting this week to plan for the working out of some of the problems of the work and arrange for their satisfactory solution.

We are deeply grateful to Rev. and Mrs. Hendry for the faithful and untiring way in which they have labored with us and for their unselfish, efficient leadership.

The deepest regret is felt by the church and entire town because of the going from our midst of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Cox and their splendid children, Fred, Jr., and Ella Stuart. Mr. Cox is moving to Raleigh, where he is connected in a very responsible way with the Delco Light Company and other branches of electrical work. No church ever had more loyal workers than this fine family. The social and civic enterprises of the town also lose one of their most helpful families. Our interest and prayers for their success and general well-being go with them to their new home.

We are glad to have Mrs. H. T. Blanton back with us after an extended visit to her mother and other relatives and friends in Jacksonville, Fla.

A large number of our folks attended Conference. All were helped and encouraged to better work and higher resolve. One of the outstanding treats enjoyed was the address by our efficient and well loved president of the General Conference, Dr. Broomfield.

Rev. N. G. Bethea, our former pastor, was in town a short while last Tuesday on his way home from Conference. He is always warmly welcomed by every one here.

Again we are grateful to our Heavenly Father that another Conference year has come and gone and no one of our number has been called in death.

Efland, Orange Charge.—We are indeed glad to have our same pastor assigned to us for another year. This is the seventh year that Rev. B. M. Williams has served Orange charge. Every year as Conference draws near you always hear these words over and over again: "I hope Mr. Williams comes back for another year." We are indeed fortunate to have had the service of this good man for so long and we extend to him the heartiest welcome ever. May this prove to be the best year for our Master that we as pastor and people have yet had.

Notice your Herald of the 6th of November and you will find our pastor's name at the top of the list on subscription accounts: $124.00 for last Conference year. He is always on the lookout for the Herald.

We are glad that Archie Gray Williams is at home again. He has been for several months in the hospital. We rejoice with him that he can be home again.

Here's hoping everyone is as well pleased with the result of Conference as the people of Efland church. All togther for a good year's work.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—There have been several cases of scarlet fever in our community, causing the attendance at Sunday school not to be so good, though we hope they will all be with us again soon. Sixty-two braved the rain and mud last Sunday. Prayer meeting was conducted by Dr. W. A. Johnson.

We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dobbs and family, who are moving to Reidsville; they have been among our faithful few and will be missed very much.

We are glad indeed that Conference saw fit to return Bro. Trollinger and family for another year. We are looking forward to his being with us next Sunday at 11 o'clock to begin his new year's work, and we feel sure that if we co-operate with him through this year's work much good will be accomplished.

Plans are being made for a Christmas program and tree.

Success to the Herald and its many readers.

Pleasant Grove Ladies' Aid—The Pleasant Grove Ladies' Aid Society met in joint session with the Brotherhood on November 13 at 7:30 p. m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Meredith. The two had the devotional service together. Our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, read the 15th chapter of St. John, and led prayer. Songs were sung and there were readings by Mrs. D. R. Williams, Mrs. W. G. Myers and Mrs. J. R. Meredith. We also enjoyed a special song by Little Norbert Meredith.

The two organizations separated for the business sessions. Our collection for dues and other things amounted to $29.92 with 16 members present.

After the business we met again and enjoyed some games together. Mrs. Meredith then served delicious refreshments, which were greatly enjoyed by all.

First Church, Thomasville.—Here we are at the beginning of a new Conference year. What are we going to do with it? Are we going to make it a success, or are we going to drift along and not do anything for the Master? Let's make it a success instead of a failure by pushing and boosting our pastor and church. We can succeed if we only try hard enough. So let's get to work and make this a year not to be forgotten.

We are glad that so many of the Sunday school scholars stay for church. For a while it seemed as if everyone went home from Sunday school and did not stay for church, but now a large percentage of the enrollment stay for church. This increased attendance can mean but one thing, and that is a new interest in our church and what it is trying to do. We hope that this attendance will keep up and that more will join us in these services.

We are glad to have Rev. T. Glenn Madison as our pastor again this year. Whatever he does for the upbuilding of Christ's kingdom we as a church are going to back him up in. This is the beginning of a new Conference year and if we co-operate with him we can make this a greater year than last.

The Thomasville Christian Endeavor City Union will meet at this church Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All Christian Endeavorers are invited to be present.

Asheville.—Hope you have not forgotten us. We are still on the map, very much. The reporter has been on the sick list and could not report.

Last Sunday (Conference Sunday) our Sunday school had 75 present. We were delighted to have several new members.

Rev. J. S. Williams is improving satisfactorily from his fall ten days ago; he was quite painfully hurt.

Mrs. F. R. McIntire is much improved and is able to sit up awhile each day. We are all delighted that our sick are improving.

Mrs. James Bailey was in the hospital several days. She is convalescing at her home, we are glad to say.

Our church supper Wednesday evening was well attended; an enthusiastic crowd of 50 or more; several visitors also present. Our prayer service was conducted by Mr. E. C. Fawcett, who gave us a beautiful talk, quite fitting the occasion, his subject, "Rebuilding the Walls," admonishing us to retain the beautiful, cheerful spirit and co-operate in all phases of our work and trust in God for guidance.

Our delegate to Conference, Miss Clarice Younginer, gave us a most interesting report of events.

The Girls' Circle will meet Monday evening at the home of the Misses Younginer.

The prayer service Wednesday evening will be in charge of our faithful friend, Mr. E. C. Fawcett.

Thursday afternoon our Ladies' Auxiliary will meet at 19 Rosewood Avenue with our treasurer, Mrs. E. C. Fawcett.

Choir practice will be held Thursday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Younginer.

Sunday evening our Christian Endeavor was led by Miss Clarice Younginer with 23 in attendance. Their business meeting will be held Wednesday evening after prayer meeting.

Maple Springs, Forsyth Charge.—We were very glad indeed to have with us on Sunday evening our new pastor, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, who gave an impressive sermon based on the text from Romans 12:1: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." He said in part: Paul was speaking to all Christian people, telling them to present their bodies a living sacrifice, acceptable unto God.

We are very delighted in having Rev. L. W. Gerringer and family come here and sincerely we trust that we make it so pleasant by working together, giving our very best to the church and Lord.

The past year has been a very successful one for us. We have recently elected our new church and Sunday school officers for the ensuing year.

May we make a good year for our Master.

Henderson.—Conference is over and it was with joy and gladness that we were able to welcome back again our loyal and devoted pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter. This Sunday, November 16th, marked the beginning of his sixth year with us, and we are confident of doing better and more worthy work under his leadership this year than ever before. His wife and family are very active in all our organizations, and each one has equally endeared themselves to all of us.

At the 11 o'clock services Sunday morning Bro. Hunter gave a most fitting sermon for the new year, using for his subject, "The Crime of Cowardice," and saying in part: That regardless of the discouraging things that will occur in this year's work, we must not be cowards and try to shun and avoid them, but with faith in God and an optimistic outlook press on and do our duties. There are many who will become discouraged and thereby affect others, but the other effect can be caused by the encouragers, if they but speak their beliefs and thus influence the weak-hearted and cowardly.

Our new officers were elected and duly installed before the Conference and our missionary work and its various departments, as well as the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor work, under capable leaders is well organized and a good year is hoped for.

The board of stewards will hold their first monthly meeting tonight, November 17th, at 7:30 o'clock, at the church. The new chairman, Mr. C. M. Hight, will be in charge and plans for the every-member canvass will be one of the items of business discussed.

Circle No. 1 of the Auxiliary will have a barbecue dinner in the basement of the church Thursday, November 20th.

The M. E. Conference will be held in our city this week in the new M. E. church. It is a lovely structure of gray stone and convenient in every detail for this gathering. The members of all the other churches have opened their homes for pastors and delegates, and much interest will be shown in the various services held, in charge of many notable leaders of that denomination.

The Philathea class met with Mrs. C. L. Finch at her home on Andrews avenue last Tuesday night at 8 o'clock with Misses Lettie and Thelma Finch as assistant hostesses.

The house was most attractively decorated, carrying out the Hallowe'en design. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Frank Moss, Miss Doris Crews presided over the meeting. Mrs. C. H. Finch conducted the devotionals; the roll was called and minutes of the last meeting read and approved. Thirty-six members answered to the roll, this being one of the best attended meetings for some time.

The secretary gave a report and collection of dues and reports from various committees followed, showing 47 visits, three trays, and flowers sent three times during the month.

The business session was very brief as there was nothing special to be brought before the class. The meeting was then turned over to the program leader, Mrs. C. L. Finch, and many comical games were enjoyed, after which the hostess served delicious refreshments and peanuts.

The class was glad to have with them as their guests Misses Ethel Royster and Edna Williams, of Drewry, and Mrs. L. R. Leftwich.

The Missionary Auxiliary was delightfully entertained last Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George B. Harris. Mesdames R. A. Hunter and Henry T. Powell were associate hostesses.

The president, Mrs. S. R. Watson, presided. Mrs. Kenneth Hawkins, devotional leader for the afternoon, conducted the opening session. Following this, a review of the first chapter of the study book, "A Cloud of Witnesses," was given in a most interesting and concise manner by Mrs. Edison T. Hicks.

The business session was in charge of the president and the following routine was pursued: Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call by circles. Circle No. 1 had eight present; Circle No. 3 had 12 present. A report from the local treasurer was read.

Reports from circle chairmen were given in order. Two notes of appreciation were read by the secretary. A letter of thanks for assistance to purchase an electric refrigerator for the Children's Home at High Point was also read. Reports from the secretaries of various departments were most gratifying, and showed much active work being done by the leaders.

The following leaders for the young people's circles were appointed: Mission Band Leader, Mrs. W. B. Hight; Sunshine Circle, Mrs. J. M. Baity; Bright Jewels leader, Mrs. H. A. Jordan. Mrs. E. C. Kittrell reported 22 subscriptions secured to the Methodist Protestant Herald.

The pastor asked all who could entertain delegates during the Methodist Conference to please notify Mrs. Watson this week. The Auxiliary voted to give Miss Myra Hight $3.00 with which to purchase curtains for the primary room. The meeting closed with special prayer for the missionaries offered by Mrs. F. R. Harris.

Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J H. Pyle, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Clyde Hight. During the social hour the hostesses served delicious ice cream and cake.

First Church, Winston—Rev. J. E. Pritchard—that's the name of our new pastor—and Mrs. J. E. Pritchard is our new Madame. Everyone enjoyed the fellowship and fine spirit of both Rev. and Mrs. Pritchard Sunday morning. Those who had not met them before had a happy meeting and those who knew them were extremely glad to see them. Mr. Pritchard's sermon was splendid, his topic being "God's Purpose for Us." It was inspiring and most beneficial, we think, to all who heard him. They are moving to Winston-Salem Tuesday to stay with us for a while, (for a long while, it is hoped).

There will be prayer meeting Wednesday night and a meeting of the board of stewards afterwards. All of the members are urged to be present as this is the first meeting of the new Conference year and the year's work must be planned and begun at once.

Circle No. 4, or the Girls' Circle of the Auxiliary, met Monday night at the church with Miss Pauline Tise, hostess. The devotionals were conducted by the president, Miss Pauline Branson, and the Missionary Record Question Box Study was conducted by Miss Mabel Burton. The Circle at this time is studying "Blind Spots," a very interesting book on "Race Prejudice." A chapter was very interestingly given by Miss Pearl Sapp. The meeting was a success and as next month is Christmas it was decided to draw names and each one bring a present for the one whose name they drew.

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the various hostesses.

It's nearly Thanksgiving. It should always be "Thanksgiving" in the hearts and lives of those who have so much to be thankful for, and it should always be a time of sharing, too. There are a lot of us who continually count our sorrows and misfortunes, and never, never count our many, many blessings that God so generously showers upon us. If we see all our blessings we could but make someone else happy by sharing what we have; if it's nothing but a great, big smile and a kind word. It is said of Jesus that "He was never too busy to be kind," and we all believe that, too. Could we all remember that and not forget to be kind?

West Forsyth.—Thanksgiving is just around the corner, and we, as well as everybody, should be happy on that day; but, listen, the people of West Forsyth charge are happy right now! Why? Because we have our prayers answered in the return of our former pastor, Rev. C. B. Way, and his dear family. Truly, God does hear, and answer, the fervent prayers of His children.

A little thought comes to me that our beloved president, Rev. S. W. Taylor, had a big hand in giving added joy; thank you, Bro. Taylor, also every one else that gave a word of encouragement. But my story is not finished; I have still another thing to be overjoyed and happy about; that is, God has spared my life to see the day that I became a great-grandmother. Yes, on November 7, 1930, a sunbeam, pure as morning dew, in the form of little Robert Herman Smith, Jr., came to live with us, and make the world around us brighter and better.

Now, let's all try to follow our shepherd, as he leads us on through another Conference year. MRS. ROBERT P. PETREE.

First Church, High Point. On Sunday morning, when the report of the committee to select a Sabbath school superintendent was called for, the chairman, Lester B. Teague, announced that Prof. C. R. Hinshaw was re-elected. It is a source of genuine pleasure that Prof. Hinshaw, who has served as the leader of the church school so acceptably for the past year, has consented to continue in the work, and the pastor assured him of the co-operation and assistance of himself and all members of the school and congregation. Prof. Hinshaw is a busy man with his work at the college and various other duties, but he is giving generously of his time and talents to this important and worth-while phase of church work, and he assuredly deserves the full help and sympathy of the members of the congregation.

At the hour of morning worship, the Junior church met in the assembly room as usual, and services were conducted by Mrs. S. S. Coe, and these services are to be continued. A committee composed of Prof. L. R. Johnston, L. E. Teague, C. R. Hinshaw, Mrs. J. A. Gray, and Mrs. A. M. Rankin, has been appointed to secure suitable leadership permanently. This phase of the work has become of vital interest to the entire church, and we are especially pleased to learn that it will be continued. Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Ballard, while they labored here, built up a large and interesting congregation of eager and enthusiastic boys and girls, and it is a source of pride and pleasure, not only to the parents but to all adults as well, to know that the Junior church will continue to function as in the past.

At the hour of morning worship in the auditorium Mrs. J. H. Allred sang "Ninety-First Psalm," by MacDermid in beautiful voice and with fine effect, and the choir rendered the anthem, "Shepherd, With Thy Tend'rest Love" in a pleasing manner. The minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered a most timely and appropriate message on "A Man of Action," which was his initial sermon in the new Conference year. He took occasion to express his appreciation and pleasure for the opportunity to serve with this church for another year, and chose as his text Nehemiah 4:6, "For the people had a mind to work." He said in part: This age is one of achievement, and is judged by results. "He delivered the goods" is a modern phrase, which is very suggestive. Pope says:

"Honor and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part; there all the honor lies."

Nature avenges bitterly all those who defy the law of activity: the most unhappy people in the word are the inactive ones. It gives a man or woman a thrill to accomplish the seeming impossible, and one of the most glorious experiences in the lives of men was that of those who went to the North or South Pole. What a man does determines what he is at a given time. These are stirring pages out of Holy Writ. This record of Nehemiah's repairing and building up the walls of Jerusalem is one of great achievement. Carlyle said, "The end of all effort is action and not a thought, though it were nobles." It takes a great time to produce great people. The biggest churches have sometimes failed in their hour of great opportunity, and brainy, brilliant young men and women have felt that the church was not behind them in the cause of missions and the ministry. How many have you sent out? I thank God for the army of missionaries sent to foreign fields by the women of our denomination. Let us not only pray, but work. As members of the church we must possess two factors of Nehemiah's work which are indispensable, vision and daring faith. Shakespeare says: "Strong reasons make for strong actions." Let us build air-castles today. I am challenging you to a greater activity in the coming year, and, O church of Christ, you are a company of venturesome spirits. I want us to resolve to drag the anchor as far ahead as possible into what ought to be, and divine strength will be supplied for all our needs. My friends, the U. S. bureau of census can tell the number of church members, but it cannot tell what kind we are. Pray God that we may get new vision and a daring faith in our problems for the year just ahead of us."

The five o'clock Vesper service on Sunday afternoon has been resumed again, and proved a success in point of interest and attendance. The minister, Rev. Mr. Farmer, spoke on "Hidden Well-springs," his sermon being woven around the conversation of Jesus with the woman of Samaria at the well. These Vesper services will be held each Sunday afternoon until further notice.

On next Sunday morning the newly-elected officials of the church and superintendent of Sabbath school will be publicly installed at the 11 o'clock worship hour with a brief service.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor Society met as usual Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, and the topic discussed was "Jesus, An Example of Stewardship."

The Wednesday Fellowship Supper meetings have been resumed, and will be held at 6:45 o'clock Wednesday evening, when Circle No. 4, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, chairman, will be in charge of the meal and Rev. Mr. Farmer will bring the message on "Principles or Rules of the Bible."

The Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the following homes: No. 4, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, chairman, with Mrs. C. L. Gray, 306 Lindsay street; No. 5, Mrs. A. M. Rankin, chairman, with Mrs. L. J. Diffee, 1103 Johnson street; No. 6, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, cahirman, with Mrs. J. A. Gray, 308 Lindsay street; No. 7, Mrs. Lewis Teague, chairman, with the chairman at 1108 Johnson street, and No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Snipes, chairman, with Mrs. H. U. Oakes, 221 Montlieu avenue. The Auxiliary is planning to conduct a Food Sale on Tuesday before Thanksgiving Day at an up-town store, when cakes, candy, pies, chicken salad, and other delicacies will be offered for sale. A most pleasing feature of the meeting of Circle No. 6 at Mrs. J. A. Gray's on Monday afternoon was a shower of miscellaneaus gifts for Mrs. R. M. Andrews, who is leaving in two weeks to make her home in Charlotte. A pretty box containing these useful and dainty gifts had been prepared with ribbon streamers, and young Gilbert Gray and Stanwood Kennett drew it to the honoree, who was overcome with surprise. This was an appropriate expression of love and appreciation to this capable worker and loyal friend by her fellow members.

Circle No. 1 of the Auxiliary, Miss Margaret Snipes, chairman, will meet Thursday evening with Misses Inez and Irene Reynolds, 809 Fourth street; Circle No. 2, at the same time with Miss Mary Young at the Girls' Dormitory at High Point College, and No. 3, Miss Blanche Burgess, chairman, with Mrs. Theodore Ballard, 316 Howell street, on Tuesday evening.

Sunday was Volunteer Day, when pledges to the work of the church for the new Conference year were made to the stewards, and next Sunday afternoon the Every Member canvass will be made, when all members are asked to remain at home from 2 until 4 o'clock in order that the stewards may find them at home when they call.

Interesting inauguration services were held last Saturday morning at High Point College, when Dr. Gideon Ireland Humphreys, who has been the active head of the institution since September 1st, was formally installed into office. The drizzle of rain prevented the academic parade as planned, but an assemblage of 400 friends and old students met for the ceremony in Roberts Hall. Prof. C. R. Hinshaw presided at the exercises and President Humphreys was presented by Dr. T. M. Johnson, representing Mr. R. M. Cox, Winston-Salem, chairman of the board of trustees, who was unable to be present, and the installation address was delivered by Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of the North Carolina Annual Conference. On the rostrum sat representatives from the different Colleges of the state: Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, represented the denominational colleges; Mr. R. B. House represented Dr. Frank P. Graham, new president of the University of North Carolina, who was detained by illness in a Durham hospital; Dr. Frank W. Stephenson was the representative from the Board of Christian Education, and Dr. J. C. Broomfield, president of the General Conference, brought a message from the denomination at large. Dr. Lucius C. Clark, Chancellor American University, of Washington, D. C., delivered a strong and timely address on "Flaming Youth." Other representatives of colleges present on this happy occasion were the following: Dr. T. C. Amick, from Elon College; Dr. Raymond Binford, from Guilford College; Miss Marian Blair, registrar, Salem College; Dr. J. I. Foust, from North Carolina College for Women, and a number of others. All guests were entertained at lunch in the college dining hall.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Whitesell upon the arrival of a little daughter, Anne Fleming, on Friday, November 14th, at Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem. The happy young parents are popular members of First church, and will move into their pretty new home on Rotary Drive in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Astor Dowdy are building an attractive brick residence on Woodrow Avenue, where they plan to move soon.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Perryman, Jr., who were recently married, will make their home with the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Perryman, on Lindsay street for the present.

The local W. C. T. U. is meeting this (Tuesday) afternoon with Mrs. W. P. Pickett at her home on North Main street.

Hawkins Chape', Littleton Circuit.—If I didn't report this month, you might think we were sleeping at the inn of Conference, but not so. We didn't have any preaching the second Sunday and no preacher Sunday night. We had a splendid prayer service held by our class leader, Mr. C. F. Hawkins. "Watch and Pray" was a fine subject.

The Conference didn't send our pastor, Rev. C. I. Smith, back. We will miss him and his family very much. We will not forget the song Mrs. Smith taught us during the revival. We wish them much happiness.

We are so glad to learn the Conference is sending us Rev. P. E. Bingham; he has a warm, hearty welcome.

Our Sunday school is moving on. The superintendent, Mr. Baldy Green, seems to want it to grow more than ever. He has been our superintendent for the last two years.

The C. E. meeting, if nothing prevents, will be welcome in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hawkins Wednesday night for a social. We are so glad to have our same editor, Dr. J. F. McCulloch of the Methodist Protestant Herald. Best wishes to him.

Mr. Lorenzo Pittard, a student of Chapel Hill, spent the week-end before last with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pittard.

Weaver's Chapel, Littleton Circuit.—Our work is going on nicely in Sunday school. Our attendance continues very good. We hope no more will stay away on account of bad weather.

We are sorry to know that one of our most faithful Sunday school teachers, Mrs. N. E. Wilson, was taken to Roanoke Rapids Hospital last Sunday for an operation. We are glad she is feeling comfortable as could be expected.

We regret very much to state that we are to lose our pastor, Rev. C. I. Smith, this year. He has been with us for the last two years. His work was truly successful. Our new pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, will preach for the coming year.

STILL MORE COUPONS

Dear Friends:

I have just received one of the sweetest letters in regard to sending coupons, that I want all of you to share it with me, so I am quoting it here for you.

"In this mail I'm sending some soap coupons; hope you will get them safely and they will be some help in securing for the Home something needful.

"It gave me pleasure to collect them and wish I could have gotten more."

What is so especially pleasing about the letter are the two expressions, "that it gave the sender pleasure to collect them" and that she hoped "they would be some help in securing something for the Home." O, the many, many things we could get just with these coupons! And the many things that are so needful!

This letter makes me brave to ask what I have thought of so many times while receiving the packages of coupons and the delightful letters that accompany them. That is, that our denomination will get the coupon habit as the other denominations have it, and send the coupons, all they can collect, to us and let us get what we most need and then report to you what we have gotten with them. We could get all the large heavy aluminum pots and kettles we so much need, all the tableware and a great number of other things, and then we could have the money to buy or pay for the everyday needs of the children. I believe every one of our people will co-operate in this, and we most heartily thank you.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

"Our home life is much like that of a private family. The dishes must be washed and the meals must be prepared and served, the family washing must be done and the butter must be made, etc.

"Schedules are made so that each girl has her work at certain times of the day. Most of the work is done by groups because of the amount to be done and the number of girls available for work.

"Each older girl is assigned a 'Little sister.' She washes and irons for her, mends and presses for her, bathes her and dresses her for Sunday school and other times when they must have their good clothes. It is remarkable to see the mother instinct developed so sweetly in some of these older girls. They are anxious that their little sisters should look as neat as their room-mates' do.

"Most of the clothing worn by the girls and the smaller boys is made by the girls in our sewing room. During the week after school closed while 'Mother Dixon' was in Baltimore attending the board meeting ten girls working in the sewing room made 100 suits for the smaller boys except the button-holes. The making of the button holes has been donated by a factory in the city and they have them in hand now.

"Sadness came into the Home during the week of the board meeting when one of our little boys fell at school during the last day of school and was injured fatally. He lived three days after the accident. He was a happy-faced little fellow and will be missed by everyone. He has two brothers who are with us now.

"Our entire family attends the First Church in High Point every Sunday with few exceptions. Our home bus makes two trips, one with boys and one with girls and the Cadillac and Buick take a load of from eight to 18, depending on the size of the children. Two individual cars belonging to workers also carry children. Twelve of our children joined the church at Easter time and about 15 were promoted from the Junior church to the adult congregation. I believe all the children of the age of accountability are members of the church. We hold Christian Endeavor here at the Home every Sunday night."

Thank you, friends; this makes a pretty good showing this time and begins to look like Thanksgiving. It is the showing of funds received from November 1st to November 18th. We thank you and look forward to a great Thanksgiving offering. A dear old lady 84 years old, who calls herself a friend, is listed above with her thank-offering, and so is Miss Pearl Fishel, and also Mr. C. Clarence Stamey, who is away in Texas for his health at this time.

Clothing and Other Gifts

One barrel of clothing from Linthicum Heights, Baltimore, Md.

One bundle of clothing from Oxford, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Basket, for children of Spring Valley, Vance, 11 aprons and 8 towels.

Mr. J. W. Montgomery, Lebanon, High Point, one fine R. I. Red rooster.

Mrs. Pritchard, High Point, 2 coats for girls, 1 coat and vest, one hat and one sweater for boys.

Mrs. J. Elmer Welborn, High Point, 2 dresses and 1 nighty.

Dr. T. M. Johnson, magazines.

Mrs. Henry Stone, Greensboro, 1 coat and 1 coat suit for girls.

We are thankful for this help.

Looking to Thanksgiving

We are trusting the dear Lord and you for a fine Thanksgiving offering this year. A letter went out on yesterday to every pastor and Sunday school superintendent whose address we had, asking three things:

1. Pray for us that the dear Father will, through His children, send us a liberal Thanksgiving offering.

2. Make a free-will offering to the Home yourself, at or near Thanksgiving, and get others to do likewise.

3. See that, in your church and Sunday school, every friend of the Home is given the opportunity to contribute, and make the suggestion that is being made to all good people in the state, that each one contribute at least one day's income.

We have 100 children to feed, clothe and educate, and we face the winter with no funds in hand. This means that our friends must contribute largely at this Thanksgiving and Christmas or we must suffer for the necessities of life or go deeper in debt. The latter we cannot afford to do.

This is the plea of the orphan children who have been committed to our care. Please make their plea to your people. We believe you will, and God will lead His people to contribute, and we thank you.

We are printing this part of the letter that all those who read the Herald, and who may not be reached by the appeal which will be made by our pastors and S. S. superintendents.

These precious children need your help, and you need just such a channel through which to give expression of your gratitude to God for all His goodness to you and your family.

May God richly bless you and give each of you a very happy Thanksgiving.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON, Supt.

Thanksgiving

For blessings more than we can count,
To meet our need the full amount,
In ceaseless stream as from a fount,
We thank Thee, Lord!

For care of all the human race,
Of men of every time and place,
Of folk of every form and face,
We thank Thee, Lord!

For blessings to our favored land,
All coming from Thy bounteous hand,
Far more than we can understand,
We thank Thee, Lord!

For that great place to be prepared,
When we this world have fully shared,
And Evil One has us not snared,
WE THANK THEE, LORD!

Other People's Troubles

How few and small and insignificant they are! "Other men are not troubled as we are." Our own troubles are numerous and terrible and enduring. How happy we would be if we were as free from troubles as our neighbors are. There is Neighbor Smith, always serene. We never heard a word of complaint from him. It is true his wife is bed-ridden and his daughter is a confirmed invalid and his son is a cripple for life and his business has gone to the bad, but he shows no sign of discontent. Evidently his troubles are not of the troublesome kind as ours are. Our troubles come the fastest and hit the hardest and last the longest of any troubles human flesh is heir to.

Principles Before Consequences

A United States official is credited with the statement: "When principles are at stake results are not to be considered." The statement does him honor. Many men sacrifice principle to gain practical results. Such an exchange may seem profitable, but in fact always involves loss. The moral must be given precedence over the material. There are those who deem the moral impracticable, but in the long run only the moral is practicable. Honesty will win out. Respect for law and right will find its reward. Every compromise with wrong, however slight, will surely bring future trouble. Righteousness characterizes the administration of the universe. God's kingdom is one of righteousness.

Future of the Rich Young Ruler

Many read the story of the rich young ruler who came running to Jesus to ask him what good thing he must do in order that he might have eternal life and at once give up hope of the young man and condemn him for failing to follow the directions Jesus gave him.

But did he fail to do what Jesus told him? Where is the evidence? It is true that he went away sorrowful, but that is evidence that he had taken to heart the things Jesus told him. Was he going home to sell his possessions or to enjoy them? The story does not tell. Neither can we divine the young man's purpose from Jesus' comment: "With what great difficulty shall they that are rich enter the Kingdom of Heaven!" Jesus might have said that in view of the young man's mental struggle to overcome opposition and proceed in the course Jesus had marked out for him. Or he might have said it in view of the failure of rich men to enter the kingdom because the love of money or wealth holds them back.

It is said that Jesus loved this young man, which we take to mean that he made special manifestation of his warm affection. It is not to be presumed that Jesus would give him up without further effort to bring him to salvation. Jesus may never have seen hm again before He was put to death, but we may be sure that He did not forget him and that He somehow sought to bring him to eternal life. He may have sent the Holy Spirit to him or He may have sent a human messenger. The young man later probably learned better who Jesus was, and could never fail to be impressed by the weighty words spoken by the "Good Teacher." Life could never be the same to him again after he heard those words and became aware of their lofty source. His honors would seem tame, his gold would turn to brass. It may have taken time for Jesus' words to work out the effect, but the young ruler was a changed man from the time he heard those words. There is we believe a tradition that this young man became a preacher and a missionary. This seems to us more probable than the supposition that he clung to his wealth and lost his soul.

—Be thankful that you have lived to another Thanksgiving Day. Many of our friends have passed over within the year.

—Our printers forwarded this issue of the Herald a day in order that they might enjoy Thanksgiving with their families. We are glad they could do this.

—Winter's mud does not play the part it once did in relation to church services, thanks to good roads. Some churches could afford to move a considerable distance to escape the effects of the mud.

REPLY TO DRY HYPOCRISY EXPOSED!

(By Ex-Anti-Saloon League Campaigner—Published in "Psychology Magazine," November 1930 Number)

By Dr. T. C. Amick

In the November, 1930, issue of the Psychology Magazine, there appeared a very excellent article by Henry Knight Miller on the subject mentioned at the head of this paper. This is a very strong article, and an article which all persons, whether in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act or not, should read with care.

Henry Knight Miller is a thinker and writer of ability and whatever comes from his pen is worthy of the consideration of all thinking men. As a Psychologist he has accomplished many notable things in his field; and as an editor, he has built up a wonderful magazine that fills a field unoccupied previous to this time. It is with pleasure that psychologists everywhere have followed Mr. Miller's articles and these articles and editorials will continue to be read with deep interest as long as this magazine is published.

In the article referred to, Mr. Miller devotes a page and a half to enumerating his movements as a member of the Anti-Saloon League of America. From childhood to manhood and to years of maturity Mr. Miller devoted his life and energies to the advancement of the purposes of the League and he made quite a notable reputation as a leader in this work. Not only so, but Mr. Miller served some of the better churches of some of our cities, and he has accomplished much good as a Minister of the Gospel and a leader in religious work. And as editor of one of the growing magazines of the country, Mr. Miller's name has become one of the familiar names in Psychological circles.

But we regret to record that, in the middle of the first column on page 17 of this article, Mr. Miller confesses that his former faith in the efficacy of the Prohibition Laws has been shipwrecked, and that he has been forced to turn his back on those ideas and ideals that motivated his conduct when in the prime of youth and manhood and that he has joined in word, faith, and act, that small and noisy minority who would abolish the advance in civilization made by the Eighteenth Amendment, and that he would fling into the dust that "Noble Experiment" of the best and noblest souls of our country, ..., and he would consign to everlasting disgrace those aspirations of the heroic idealists of our time and age.

Mr. Miller tells us that, as an Anti-Saloon crusader, he made promises that the world would be renovated and rejuvenated, that poverty would be banished, that crime would be forever crushed, and that numerous others of the ills of the human race would be cured, if we would but adopt prohibition. In the next paragraph he reminds us that he has lived to see every one of these promises fail of fulfilment. Might we not here ask, in reply, whether or not Mr. Miller did not promise too much? Who ever dreamed that the Eighteenth Amendment would be a panacea for all our ills? If Mr. Miller promised too much, the fault is in him and in his short sightedness, and not in prohibition. Has any law, or set of laws, no matter how wise they were, or has even the Constitution of our country cured the ills of society? If those who first favored the law against murder, when the enactment of such a law was first agitated, had promised that the law would abolish all murder and cure all the ills to which the human race is heir, the passage of this law would not have prevented all murder, and those visionary souls would have been doomed to disappointment. Because murder has not been entirely abolished, is the law to blame? If Mr. Miller's reasoning is correct, are not the laws against murder, theft, prostitution, and the like just as responsible for the murder, the crimes, and the prostitution that he speaks of as the prohibition acts? These crimes are certainly against these other laws of our land. We should have these laws on our statute books, otherwise civilization would be hanging in the balances, but the laws do not make the crimes; they are incentives to all reasoning and fair minded men to avoid these acts. And these laws are warning voices to the depraved and criminally minded and they are pointing such persons to the paths of rectitude and right doing.

In the last paragraph of column one and the first paragraph of column two on page seventeen of this article Mr. Miller indicates that lawlessness has increased, crime has flourished, and violence goes merrily on, and all because of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. Here we would lay down the proposition that the law is not responsible for the crime. The law, in every case, is the result of the desire of the good people of a community or state, or nation to have certain forms of crime abolished. When the crimes resulting from the liquor traffic exasperated the people of our country and defied high heaven, then the people rose in their indignation and the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act were the result. These came as a response to the outraged feelings of the people of our country and to their regard for decency and order. And the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, are no more responsible for the crime, violence, and bloodshed of which Mr. Miller speaks than the Bible is responsible for all the crime for the last nineteen hundred years of the history of the human race. The sins and evils that surround us on every hand are as sternly denounced by the Word of God as ever any amendment or law on our statute books has ever denounced any crime which has taken place in our country. Very few of us would be so simple as to say that the legal document that denounces a crime is the cause of the crime denounced.

Further, may there not have been other causes of this bacchanal of crime mentioned in these paragraphs? In this post war period when people have become somewhat lax as to morals, when extravagance has become rampant in our country, when family and home discipline have become relaxed, and the young have been allowed to follow the devices of their own minds, in this day of the movie when the sex appeal has been unduly emphasized, in this day of the New Psychology where we are taught by some psychologist that it is God's will that his children shall have the utmost of their heart's desire whether the person works for the desired end or not, in this day when civilization seems in a state of flux, can any fair minded person attribute all the crime, the prostitution, the evil and the sin to the Eighteenth Amendment? It belittles a person's intellect for him to do so.

But, are these the facts in the case? Is there more crime in our country today than ever before, according to population?

After a thorough investigation by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, we find that they report that the trend of alcoholism among the fathers of the children included in this study is "similar to that which appears in families known to the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Prior to National Prohibition, intemperance was present in 47.7 per cent. of the homes of the families known to this society; in 1921 it had dropped to 18.9." This means fewer drunken fathers and fewer delinquent and criminal youth under prohibition.

If allowed, we will quote from Dr. Kirchwey who, referring to the reports on crime of the Census Bureau of Washington, says, in the New York Times of May 26, 1929:

"Let us take courage from the official record, covering the eighteen years from 1910 to 1927, inclusive, which shows a marked decline of 35 to 40 per cent. in the general crime rate in the United States, and this notwithstanding the immense number of 'new crimes' resulting from liquor, drug, and traffic laws enacted since 1910. That, in this period of 'lawnessness' and 'demoralization' incident to the attempted enforcement of the prohibition law, the offences of assault, fraud, vagrancy, prostitution, and larceny, the last the most common of serious offences, should fall off by 50 per cent. or more, and burglary by ten per cent. or more, should give pause to our modern Jeremiahs."

Mr. Kirchwey further goes on to say:

"Robbery is less impressive statistically than it is in effect on the public mind, as the ratio of hold ups, even now, is only one to three burglaries and one to eight cases of larceny. It is the more sensational way in which robbery is performed nowadays, and the attention which it receives from the newspapers that have given it its evil eminence. Without the new style robber, equipped with the automatic and his high powered car, and the still more modern 'racketeer' with his machine gun, and bomb, there would have been no crime wave and no despair as to the fate of the Republic."

The above quotations of facts gleamed from the statistics of our country as a whole speak loudly for themselves. To accuse the prohibition laws of the new criminal with his new methods of crime and to blame all the crime in our country to prohibition is not the part of a candid, unprejudiced mind. Taking all crime into consideration, the table compiled by the United States Census Bureau shows, that, under prohibition, there has been a decrease of 37.7 per cent.

The fault, where crime is on the increase, as it doubtless is in some cities of our country, is not with the law, but it is with the officers who fail to enforce the law. Were the officers to enforce the law rigorously, the speakeasies, and the crime of which Mr. Miller complains, would all be quickly nipped in the bud. Had Mr. Miller directed his tirade against the venal officers who accept bribes and who are bought and do not enforce the law, then he would have hit the correct mark. Let the sworn officers uphold the constitution which they take an oath to uphold, protect, and obey, and we will find crime dwindling to very small proportions indeed.

INTERRACIAL AND INTERNATIONAL PROBLEMS CONSIDERED IN WASHINGTON

By Rev. Luther K. Long

The Fifteenth Annual Meeting and Good Will Congress of the American Branch of the World Alliance for Friendship through the churches was one of the finest conventions it has ever been my privilege to attend.

All the sessions—except the Armistice Day memorial services in the Washington Auditorium, at which President Hoover was the invited speaker—were held in the Willard hotel, November 10-12.

Delegates came from all parts of our country, and there were a number of interested visitors from Canada. It was good to see Jews, Roman Catholics, and all sorts of Protestants unitedly working in the interest of a common cause.

Any program could not help being attractive that includes such speakers as Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Dr. J. Fort Newton, Dr. John R. Mott, President Mary E. Woolley, Justice Florene E. Allen, Colonel Raymond Robins, and others of almost if not quite as great prominence. The timeliness of the subjects considered and the marked attention of the crowded audiences contributed much to the success of the meetings.

I shall confine myself to a single session. The subject was "Amerca—Interracial and International Problems." There were three speakers. Hon. C. C. Wu, Ambassador of the Chinese Republic, opened the discussion. He said in substance:

We need to plan, to talk, and when necessary, to sacrifice for peace. We need to use a strategy for peace, even as strategy is used in war.

All religions have opposed war and worked for peace—as yet not entirely sucessfully. Only in the last seven years have we organized and planned for peace.

Wars are caused by:

1. Fear of what one's neighbor may do.
2. Greed for what one's neighbor has. This fear and this greed have brought to pass, after twelve years, a renewal of prospects of war.
3. Desire for colonies, markets, natural resources—coal, iron, etc. While we cannot abolish fear and greed and natural desire we can in various ways—by treaties, pacts, agreements, etc.—moderate these.
4. Legitimate grievances may bring about war between races and nations—they surely bring about ill will and enmities, and add to the other things that make for war. Every possible effort should be made to remove legitimate grievances.

Dr. George Haynes, a worker in the interracial department of the Federal Council of Churches, represented his people, the Negroes. He had recently travelled 11,000 miles in the African continent among the black peoples. He said in outline:

Because of the new movements in the interest of interracial good will, the Negro peoples are looking for three things:

1. Relief from the economic exploitation they have suffered and are suffering wherever the white man has dominated. They want a fair share of the wealth they have helped

Note: Blank spaces in the Gratitude "Gift Deficit" column show that the charge has paid its apportionment. This money was borrowed to take care of the unpaid amount apportioned to the North Carolina Conference for the $100,000 Hundredth Anniversary Gift, a part of the Centennial Celebration at Baltimore in 1928. The charges are asked to raise the amount still due, so the Treasurer can pay off this note.

The column headed "College Expense" is the $20,000 ordered apportioned to the charges to help take care of the annual deficit in the running of High Point College, and takes the place of the "Dollar-a-Member" campaign. Money for operating a college comes from three sources: Endowment, student fees, and gifts. High Point College has no endowment, the tuition fees cannot be raised to cover the cost. The college, therefore, must depend on gifts. The amount apportioned to your charge is just that—a gift to help High Point College carry on.

THE BUDGET COUNCIL.

MY THANKSGIVING

For all the good my days afford,
For all the blessings on me poured,
For every kindly act and word,
I thank thee, Lord.

I thank thee, Lord, for thoughts that roam
Beyond the narrow walls of home
To gather good from days to come,
And from the past.

I thank thee, Lord, for length of days,
For guidance through life's devious ways,
And in the darkness for the rays
Of light and love.

I thank thee e'en for hours of gloom,
For crushing grief and darkened room;
For in the shadow thou didst' come
To heal and bless.

I thanked thee that the weight of things
No longer binds my soul's free wings;
That she can soar, and, soaring, sings
Thy praise, O Lord.

That sea and mountain, flower and tree,
Their message brings to me of thee,
And fill my soul with ecstasy,
I thank thee, Lord.

When many hearts thanksgiving say,
But now, forever and alway,
I thank thee, Lord!

—Mary Aronetta Wilbur, in Living Church.

—Our observance of thanksgiving days should lead us into the habit of perpetual thanksgiving. God's blessings are constantly coming our way: should not our thanks be constantly going His way?

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

English Street

November 22, Saturday.—The first quarterly conference of this charge was held on this date, at Midway church. All of the three churches constituting this charge—English Street, Midway, and Shady Grove, were represented. This is a new charge, created by the Boundary Committee at the last conference. The grouping seems to be well, and we see no reason why the charge should not prosper under this arrangement. It is sufficiently compact, too, to enable the pastor to serve it properly without the necessity of over-much traveling. The one difficulty that we encountered in the quarterly meeting was the amount of salary. None of the churches making up the charge are strong, and that creates the difficulty of providing an adequate salary. However, we believe that this can be worked out to the satisfaction of all parties. Pastor Reynolds has visited all of the churches, and will give himself to an intelligent and earnest promotion of the work. Midway occupies a prominent position on the highway just outside of Greensboro. We trust that the building may be painted and underpinned soon, and the grounds beautified. We are confidently expecting a good year on English Street charge.

Spencer

November 23, Sunday.—We visited this church on this date, and enjoyed preaching at the 11 o'clock hour. We have a small but faithful band here, and it is always a pleasure to visit them. Plans will be completed soon, we think, to supply them with pastoral service for the new conference year. We are grateful to Brother and Sister Moore for entertainment at dinner while on this visit.

"When the Spiritual Thrives"

''Everything else goes well when the spiritual thrives.'' The papers quote Bishop Mouzon as saying this at the Henderson conference. And of course, he is correct. The spiritual condition of the church determines always its power and progress. And since we know that, why not put the emphasis there, and make this year outstanding in spiritual attainments? Why not? Why not? And what of the results? Here is the answer: ''But the fruit produced by the Spirit is love, joy, peace, forebearance, kindliness, generosity, trustfulness, gentleness, self-control.'' Zion always puts on her strength in proportion as these qualities are magnified. ''Everything else goes well when the spiritual thrives.'' The ''one thing needful'' for pastors, at the beginning of this conference year, is to commit themselves anew, and their congregations with them, to an intensified program of spritual development, and to work at that incessantly during this conference year. That does not mean that anything else is to be neglected. When we give ourselves to the one chief purpose of the church, other things will be done, and done with more ease and more effectiveness. ''Everything else goes well when the spiritual thrives.''

Christmas Presents

Let it be the Herald and the Methodist Protestant-Recorder. Each of these papers will make a most fitting Christmas present, and the cost is not prohibitive. We trust that pastors will suggest this to their people. It is not at all impossible to increase the subscription list of these papers very perceptibly by this method. And the benefit, both to the reader and the publisher, would last all the year. Now, for a large number of Christmas present subscriptions.

Budget Apportionments

The Budget Council has revised this report, and it will be ready for the Herald this week. Now the next thing in order is for pastors to see that quarterly conferences apportion the various amounts to the various churches, and that the chairman of the board of stewards at each church be supplied with a statement of the apportionment. This is very important, and we shall expect that no chrage will fail to do this. When the apportionment is properly made, I desire a statement for my files. If pastors will supply this, I shall be very grateful to them. And along with this, please give name and address of chairman of board of stewards. Thank you.

Care of the Pastor

Perhaps he is new on your charge. In that case, he is a stranger among you; take him in, and in so doing, he will see to it that you are entertaining an angel. Make him feel at once that the ''lines have fallen to him in pleasant places, and that his is a goodly heritage.'' In your thought of the pastor, remember, always, that his family is included. Take them, likewise, into your fellowship; for as you make the family happy, you minister to the happiness and the hope of the pastor. And it is not altogether impossible, neither improbable, that your pastor is in a like condition of a noticeable pastor about whom we read, who said, ''Silver and gold have I none.'' Don't let your pastor tell you that; just presume that that is true of him, too, and you won't miss it. Slip some ''silver and gold'' into his hand, and let him know by that fact that he is in the ''house of his friends.'' And the old pastor: don't forget him, either. You know that he is true and tried, and just as needy as ever. Give to him your warm hand again, and the material assurances of your love and confidence.

Thanksgiving

Before this reaches you, the day will be over. We hope and pray that it may be a happy one for all of our readers, and that our meditations on God's goodness may move us to say too: ''What shall I render unto the Lord for all of His benefits toward me.'' God's blessings will be unfailing, if his people are grateful. The Children's Home will, of course, be in our minds, and we trust that a generous offering will be made for the work there.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION

Notwithstanding that our forefathers endured the hardships and privations of a primitive life, surrounded by dangers and solaced only with meager comforts, they nevertheless bequeathed to us a custom of devoting one day of every year to universal thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessing of life and the means to sustain it, for the sanctuary of home and the joys that pervade it, and for the mercies of His protection from accident, sickness or death.

Our country has many causes for thanksgiving. We have been blest with distinctive evidence of divine favor. As a nation we have suffered far less than other peoples from the present world difficulties. We have been free from civil and industrial discord. The outlook for peace between nations has been strengthened.

In a large view we have made progress upon the enduring structure of our institutions. The arts and sciences that enrich our lives and enlarge our control of nature have made notable advances. Education has been further extended. We have made gains in the prevention of disease and in the protection of childhood.

Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, November 27, 1930, as a national day of thanksgiving, and do enjoin the people of the United States so to observe it, calling upon them to remember that many of our people are in need and suffering from causes beyond their control, and suggesting that a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young and old, shall have cause to give thanks for our institutions and for the neighborly sentiments of our people.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Seal of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-fifth.

By the President: HERBERT HOOVER,

Henry L. Stimson,
Secretary of State.

Interracial and International Problems Considered In Washington

to create, and the right to the natural resources of their own lands.

2. They desire freedom from political domination, and they want their own chosen representatives in councils to consider their rights.

3. These black peoples long for the doors of participation to be opened in the enterprises for progress. They want to share in responsibilities. Give them a better chance at music, art, science. Black people in Africa have even greater possibilities than have American Negroes.

Here are three suggestions:

1. Get a truer conception of what the Negro is. We are to understand peoples if we are to bring peace.

2. We need to begin with the children in forming correct interracial attitudes. Children do not naturally have these prejudices. Care should be taken not to implant them.

3. We need a technique of settling difficulties between races.

To the Honorable Chester H. Rowell, a publicist of Berkley, Cal., was given the privilege and responsibility of speaking for the white folks. He has had wide experience and contacts in China and elsewhere. His spirit is fine and fearless. He said in brief:

I am to speak for the race that has suffered most from pride, and needs most to learn the lesson of humbleness. I wish I could speak as well for my race as the two preceding men have spoken for theirs.

The major quarrels and wars have been between nations. We need to stop them.

There is another sort of war—that between classes and races. We must set up machinery of the inner spirit to overcome these.

In the United States whites have not forgotten that they were once masters. Blacks are trying to forget that they were once slaves. We all need to learn how to forget.

Across the waters we deal with peoples who were always free and proud, and who had looked down on our inferior ancestors. We need to learn that the first thing they require is that we treat them with respect. They will not rest much longer under the imputation of race inferiority.

We arrogate to ourselves self-respect—we should grant the same to others. Mutual respect is the best protection against bugaboos.

Physical differences should not make for enmities between races. The dog and the cat—in their age-long antagonisms—may act from instincts, with the well-known results. We humans should live by reason.

OUR STORY PAGE

"THE THANKFULLEST THANKSGIVING"

Tomorrow was Thanksgiving, and the whole house smelt of spice and cake and pies and turkey. Grandpa and Grandma were coming to dinner, and Nellie ought to have been very happy, as she sat on the back steps and thought about it all. Mother had told her what Thanksgiving Day meant—how our forefathers in the early days when this country was a great wilderness inhabited by savages, and only a little handful of settlers from England struggled for a foothold for their homes and children; and how the Governor, after a season of prosperity and good crops, had ordered the colonists to unite in keeping a day of Thanksgiving to God for His care of them in the wild new country, and how we have kept this Thanksgiving Day ever since, to remind us that all our blessings come from God.

Mother had told Nellie to think how many good things God had given her, and to count them up, so that she might really feel that she thanked Him for His goodness to her. Nellie had begun with being thankful for Mother and Daddy, and Baby, and—there she stopped, and began to cry. For she wasn't thankful for Fred, and she couldn't say she was; and how could she thank God for him?

She would have been thankful for her kitty, Snowdrop; but now there wasn't any Snowdrop; and it was all Fred's fault. She was sure she hated Fred.

The way of it was that Fred loved to tease, and he had put Snowdrop in a basket, pretending he was going to carry her off and give her to the old apple-woman on the corner. Nellie had screamed and run after him, and he had run away from her. Then he put down the basket, and before he knew what was happening, Spot, his dog, had caught up the basket and run off with it, just for fun. He was out of sight in a minute, and all Fred's running and calling could not bring him back. He came at last, of his own accord, but without the basket, or kitten. And Nellie, picturing her pet as killed by another dog, or run over in the street, could not be comforted.

In vain Daddy promised her another kitten, and mother pointed out gently that Fred was only teasing, and it was not right to be so angry with him. But Nellie felt that she could not forgive him when she thought of her poor kitten's fright and perhaps suffering.

She could not help crying as she sat on the back steps and thought it all over. Mother had whispered, "Couldn't you try, dear? You will feel so much happier if you are friends with him again." Nellie knew that, but how could she be friends, when he had been so mean to her and so cruel to Kitty?

She sat thinking for a long time; and by degrees gentler thoughts came to her. Fred was good—sometimes. He had rescued Kitty when she fell in the well, and he had climbed a tree once to get her down. And when her leg was broken he had played doctor and tied it up in a splint. And maybe really had not meant to be cruel—

"Try praying about it," mother had whispered, and at last Nellie shut her eyes and said very simply, "Dear God, I want to forgive Fred and be thankful for him, because I think maybe he did not mean to be mean, and was only being horrid. And help me not to be mad any more, for Jesus' sake, Amen."

She opened her eyes to see Fred crossing the yard. He caught sight of his little sister and came toward her.

Nellie was not sure enough of herself yet to speak, but she tried to smile, though her lips quivered. Fred felt a little ashamed.

"I'm real sorry about the kitten. It was all Spot's doing, truly. I wasn't going to take her out of the yard. I was just having a little fun. Won't you forget it, when you know I didn't mean it?"

"I—I'm not mad any more, Fred. I don't believe you meant to hurt my little Snowie. If I could only know what happened to her." And Nellie's eyes filled again. "I'm so 'fraid an automobile ran over her."

Fred was privately afraid of that himself, and he was a soft-hearted boy, in spite of his love of teasing. "Oh, I guess she ran away," he said uneasily. "I'll give you another kitten, Nell, I will, truly. Bobby's old cat has three beauties of kittens; he said you could have your choice of 'em. Come over and see 'em."

But Nellie shook her head. She was not ready to supplant poor Snowdrop quite so soon, and Fred turned away, disappointed. Suddenly he gave a shout.

"Look, Nell! Look who's here," he cried, catching up something that had slipped under the gate.

Nellie looked. Just for a minute she did not recognize the little grayish, dirty kitten that nestled in Fred's arms. Then she too gave a glad cry.

"Oh, it's my own Kitty, my Snowie! Where have you been? And how did you find your way back? And what has happened to you?"

Snowdrop made no answer to all these questions, unless her happy purring was meant for an answer. And while Nellie petted and soothed her Fred ran to beg some milk from mother. He came back with the milk and a saucer, and the kitten drank thirstily.

"Poor little darling! I believe you are 'most starved," said Nellie, watching her. "What did happen, do you 'spose, Fred?"

"Why, I think the basket came open when Spot ran away with it, and Snowdrop ran into somebody's yard and hid in her fright. She did not dare come out, and maybe she caught a mouse or two. After a while she slipped out and found her way home. Cats can, you know. We'll wash her clean and nice, and then she can have a big Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow."

"It's something else to be thankful for, that I have her safe again," sighed Nellie. "But I'm glad I made up with you, Fred, before she came, because now I know I really did forgive you, even though I never expected to see her again. And I'm thankful for you, and thankful for Kitty, and everything; and it's the thankfullest Thanksgiving I ever saw."—J. L. Glover.

Dec. 7: THE BEST CHRISTMAS GIFTS

(Consecration Meeting)

Scripture Text: 2 Cor. 8:1-5

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Love, 1 Cor. 13:1-13.
Tuesday—Light, Eph. 1:15-23.
Wednesday—Friendship, 1 Sam. 18:1-4.
Thursday—Christ, 2 Cor. 9:15.
Friday—The Church, Ps. 42:1-5.
Saturday—New Courage, Heb. 12: 1, 2.

Leader's Talk

The best Christmas gifts are not those that cost the most, but those that have most love and sacrifice in them. Sometimes a simple thing that one has worked hard to make is more appreciated than some costly trinket that cost only money. Each year much money is wasted upon useless or worse than useless gifts. There is great need for discouraging foolish, extravagant, lavish giving just for show, or to pay some back for the present received last year. Thoughtfulness as to the appropriateness of a gift goes a long way toward making it the best gift.

Tonight we might make some suggestions in regard to the "best Christmas gifts." Let us remember, however, while these suggestions may not be the solution to all "gift" problems, they should stir our own thoughts to such action as shall help us to find our own happy solution.

We should be thankful for the spirit of giving, for the opportunities to do good, and for our great example in giving. May we have eyes to see and ears to hear the calls for help. May God help us to use our money as Christ would use it.

Suitable songs: "There are Lonely Hearts to Cherish," "Help Somebody Today," "Oh, Do Some Good Deed Every Day," "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," and "Sweet Peace the Gift of God's Love."

Consider These

1. Why do we give gifts at Christmas time?
2. What must go with the gift if it is to be a true gift?
3. How would Jesus spend money for gifts?
4. Should all gifts be useful?
5. When is a "Gift" not a gift?
6. How can we give ourselves to God?
7. What is the one supreme Gift of all gifts that mankind needs? Upon what terms may he be received?

Quotations

"We do not own the things we have. They are God's and we are only in charge of them."—Anon.

"A father received from his son a rude box made by the boy. He did not value it for its appearance, but for the love it showed. The outward appearance is often wrong."—Barber.

Poetry

SOMEBODY

Somebody did a golden deed,
Proving himself a friend in need;
Somebody sang a cheerful song,
Brightening the sky the whole day long—
Was that somebody you?

Somebody thought 'tis sweet to live,
Willingly said, "I'm glad to give;"
Somebody fought a valiant fight,
Bravely he lived to shield the right—
Was that somebody you?

Somebody made a loving gift,
Cheerfully tried a load to lift;
Somebody told the love of Christ,
Told how His will was sacrificed—
Was that somebody you?

Somebody idled all the hours,
Carelessly crushed life's fairest flowers;
Somebody made life loss, not gain,
Thoughtlessly seemed to live in vain—
Was that somebody you?

Somebody filled the days with light,
Constantly chased away the night;
Somebody's work bore joy and peace,
Surely his life shall never cease—
Was that somebody you?
Was that somebody you?

MOUNTAIN SCHOOLS RECEIVE MOODY COLPORTAGE BOOKS

The Bible Institute Colportage association of Chicago, founded by D. L. Moody in 1894, continues to distribute its attractive evangelical literature in large quantities to the spiritually needy ones, such as prisoners, mountaineers, lumberjacks, seamen, hospital patients, and several other groups.

During September and October, the association was able to supply 1,422 mountain schools with 24,820 Moody Colportage Library books, 27,191 Evangel booklets, and 40,474 Pocket Treasurys by reason of contributions to the Missionary Book Funds. The boys and girls in these school are encouraged to read the books and memorize a number of choice verses. Those who repeat from memory the verses indicated receive as a reward a copy of John with special helps, or a New Testament for additional verses memorized. In this way 5,083 scholars thus far earned Gospels and 429 have earned Testaments. Requests from teachers for additional Gospels and New Testaments are being received continually.

The Secretary of Temperance and Moral Reform is supposed to make a "noise" this week, but now that the curtain is drawn and my bow is made I have nothing to say. There have been so many splendid articles written on prohibition and kindred subjects that I would not attempt to write along that line. However, I would recommend your reading some of these appearing in our church papers or the Christian Endeavor World. I wish especially to call your attention to the one in the Advanced Quarterly for the fourth quarter written by Rev. C. W. Bates of Greensboro on the subject, "The Problem of Prohibition."

Are you placing in your homes the kind of literature, pictures, furnishings, etc., that make the proper appeal to the young people who live in them to lead clean Christian lives? By the way, there were some good suggestions along this line in another of our Sunday school periodicals for the present quarter. The amusements of our young people also have a telling effect on their characters. Let us help in every way we can to make it easy for people to do right..

WHAT CORN WHISKEY WILL DO

An exchange says corn whiskey will remove stain sfrom summer clothes. No doubt correct. It will also remove the summer clothes as well as the winter, spring, and autumn clothes, not only from the man who drinks it, but from the wife and children as well. It will remove linings from stomachs, hair from head, teeth and tonsils, reputation and self-respect. It will remove what little sense the drinker has, make a wildcat out of what would otherwise be an inoffensive plug citizen. It will remove the food from the table, the furniture from the house, and happy, eager look from the faces of little chidren. As a remover of things corn whiskey has no equal.—Anon.

We call special attention to the thank-offerings we are permitted to report this week, ahead of Thanksgiving day. Rev. D. A. Fishel, one of our grand old men of the ministry, heads the list. Then comes Mrs. M. E. Moore, Mrs. J. M. Cheek, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Loy and Mr. J. W. Magee with their personal thank-offerings. And you will note thank-offerings from New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio and Alabama. One of the most splendid things in this report is the list of thank-offerings from the dear old people in the Home for the Aged in Westminster, Md. This group seemd so happy to be able to send $7.50 as their thank-offering. May the dear Lord bless them.

Just this morning we received a check for $25.00 from two friends at the Alma Desk Company, High Point, who are not Methodist Protestants, but who chose to send their thank-offering to this Home.

We are confidently looking for a fine Thanksgiving showing during the next two weeks. And we already have the promise of one strong church to include us in their White Gifts for the King at Christmas. Fine!

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. P. W. Cooper, Texas, 1 coat and 1 pair blankets.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Mount Pleasant Church.—Regardless of the November rain that fell in an almost continuous downpour in this section Sunday morning, a good number of our members were present to welcome back our pastor, Rev. J. R. Hutton, and to enjoy his uplifting message, at the regular eleven o'clock preaching service. He selected as his subject, "The Impotent Stranger at the Gate of the Temple." And chose for his text the sixth and seventh verses of the third chapter of the Acts of the Apostles:

"Then Peter said, silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give to thee; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up, and walk.

"And he, leaping up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God."

Mr. Hutton's well-chosen words were human frames of gold and fine silver for the spiritual pictures that his message unfolded for us.

We were glad to have with us Misses Lois Brady, and Pearle Thompson, as visitors of our S. S. and preaching services.

One of the outstanding improvements made at our church during the past few months has been the erection of an ornamental enclosure around our church cemetery. Large brick columns overtopped with cement slabs connect iron railings at regular intervals, while wrought-iron gates give east, west, and south entrances to the cemetery. The work, which was superintended by one of our members, Mr. Seymour Stafford, is an artistic ornament to our picturesque old church ground, and has attracted quite a bit of favorable comment from visitors and passers-by.

F. R. Gilreath was an able leader of the Senior Christian Endeavor at our church, Sunday, November 9. The topic for discussion being, "Brotherhood."

Mrrs. L. L. Bowman is confined to her home by illness, we are sorry to report.

Little Harold Suits, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Suits, is critically ill with inflammatory rheumatism and has been carried to a hospital in Greensboro.

We were glad to learn that Mr. Worth Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Black, was not seriously injured in the acid explosion accident of which he was an unfortunate victim.

Mrs. S. R. Shepard is improving. The following of her children were her visitors during the past week-end: Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Friddle, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Shepard, and Mr. H. R. Shepard of Greensboro. Miss Mattie Shepard accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Friddle back for a week-end visit.

Mr. W. R. Brady of High Point was a week-end visitor of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Shepard.

We are wishing for all of our sick members a speedy recovery.

Glen Raven.—Our former pastor was one whom we all learned to love and we feel that much good was accomplished during his eleven months of work at Glen Raven church and community. But the people are beginning to realize more and more the need of religious work and Christian influence and we are looking forward to the coming year as one of the best in the history of the Glen Raven church.

As our new pastor, Rev. A. D. Shelton, took his stand in the pulpit Sunday morning and began his forceful and well-delivered sermon, people began to sit up and take notice and realized that there was much to be done and it was time to get back to real work.

Mr. Shelton told the entire congregation what they were and what influence they could have in their home, community and church. This was taken from St. Matthew 5th chapter. "Ye are the salt of the Earth. Ye are the light of the world, a city that is set on a hill." He told the importance of salt, the necessity of light, and the outstanding of a city set on a hill. With this he pointed out to us our importance in the world to live the very best life possible and to "Let your light so shine before men that they see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

The congregation, though small, was very much impressed with this splendid sermon which seemed to put a new spirit in the etire church.

Our splendid superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. P. E. Troxler, declares that we can have a grand Sunday school in spite of the bad weather and "Groundhog" days as he sometimes calls the cold, dark, rainy weather. Everybody is very proud of the Sunday school and especially proud of our good superintendent. We sometimes think that our Sunday school could hardly be better, but this saying still holds good, "The more you get the more you want" and so Mr. Troxler is always working up some way to improve the Sunday school and get new members.

The contest which the Christian Endeavor society put on proved to be very successful. Even though we did not reach our goal we feel that the society was greatly improved by the 45 new members which were taken in. We now have 70 members who have signed the Active Pledge cards. Our attendance at the Sunday night programs is anywhere from 50 to 90 present.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend all services at our church.

Mt. Hermon, Creswell Circuit.—Now as Conference year has come to a close we deeply regret we haven't accomplished what we desired to. Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, filled his last regular appointments first Sunday morning and evening. A large audience was to hear his very inspiring sermons.

We deeply regret that we can't have him for our pastor for the ensuing year, as he will be on the circuit in Emperio, Va.

Rev. Hethcox has been our pastor for twelve successive years and he stands out in our hearts and memories as one who will never be forgotten, his good works and worthy deeds will hover o'er us as time endureth; and we as his brethren and friends pray God's richest blessings on him and his family where ever they go.

Our delegate to Annual Conference, Mrs. Charlie Holmes, succeeded in bringing us another preacher in the person of Rev. J. R. Russell and we hope he will render us the service and good works our former pastor has.

The election of church officials was First Sunday morning after services. Classleader, D. E. Davenport; Stewards, Mrs. Robert Davenport, A. W. Davenport, W. P. Davenport; Trustees, J. A. Edwards, Bessie White, W. P. Davenport; Church Reporter, Ida S. Ambrose.

On second Sunday morning after Sunday school, the officers for the ensuing year, were elected. We have a new sueperintendent, Mr. J. A. Edwards. A new class for young girls was organized. We trust our Sunday school will do great wonders with our new Supt. and teachers.

Best regards to the Herald and all former pastors.

Canaan.—Rev. E. A. Bingham is leaving us. We regret his departure as he has done so much good work on this charge. We feel that we owe much to him for his great work. We want to thank him for the way he has stood by us.

We also regret very much to part with Mrs. Bingham and lovely children. Mrs. Bingham is a woman of high character. May the Lord bless them where they go.

The officers and teachers for this coming year were elected Sunday before last. Secretary, Wesley Sexton; stewards, John Ward; trustees, T. J. Ward, J. R. Surratt, W. L. Sexton; class leader, J. M. Gallimore; teachers, Class No. 1, T. J. Ward; Class No. 2, Mrs. Zeb Garner; Class No. 3, Mrs. S. E. Martin; Classes No 4 and 5, Mrs. J. S. Harris; organist, Mada Ward, Ester Gallimore; reporter, Wesley Sexton.

We wish to make this year the most successful year with our new pastor, Mr. Robert Short. MADA WARD.

West Forsyth.—Our service at Harmony Grove church last Sunday morning was well attended, and the people were very attentive to the efforts of the pastor in the delivery of a message. After the service the pastor and family were invited to the home of Brother J E. Jarvis, where we enjoyed a splendid dinner and a visit during part of the afternoon. The Sunday school of Harmony Grove church is to render a Christmas program during the Christmas week.

The pastor and family have been remembered with appropriate gifts since assuming the work of the new conference year. Mrs. R. P. Petree, of Pleasant Hill church, was the first to present a gift. Mrs. J. D. Anderson and Mrs. E. M. Long, also of Pleasant Hill church, and Mrs. Pearson Sprinkle, a neighbor, having made suitable gifts. For all of these things we are very thankful.

The meeting of the first quarterly conference for West Forsyth Charge has been called for Saturday, December 13, at Tabernacle church. Our usual program will be followed, with preaching at 11 a. m., dinner at church during the noon hour, and the business of the conference beginning at 1:30 p. m. We are expecting to have a minister from another charge to preach the sermon for the occasion.

Pleasant Hill church is preparing a Thanksgiving program which will be rendered at the church next Sunday night under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary. It is to be a public service for everybody, and we are hoping for a large congregation. An offering will be taken for our Children Home.

The next regular appointment on the West

Forsyth charge will be the first Sunday in December, at Baltimore church at 11 a. m., and at Stony Knoll church at 2:30 p. m.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Hobbs Chapel, Greensville Circuit.—We are indeed fortunate and glad to have Rev. Hethcock for pastor this year. He helped in a special meeting here about fourteen years ago and he is not new to us. When we learned that the Annual Conference had assigned him to this work we said, like the old darkey, "Thankee, Jesus." We feel that he will build up this work and do great things for the Master, if we can keep him here several years. Brother Hethcock is interested in young folk and we have some fine young people for him to work with. He preached for us last Sunday morning, using for his text, "He is mine, and I am His." It was a splendid sermon and enjoyed by those present.

It was with sad hearts that we bid Mr. and Mrs. Cowan goodbye. They had been with us two years and had done much for our church. Big folk, and little folk loved them. We are glad to know that they are pleasantly situated this year and may the God of peace be with them and bless them in their new field of service. I heard a little whispering last Sunday, "I'm going to see Cowan next summer. I've been to Weaverville. It's only six hundred miles from here."

Kannapolis Church.—Yesterday was a beautiful day here, and we had a great day at our church: One hundred and five present at Sunday school. Our Sunday school superintendent resigned and Brother Robert Sides was elected to take his place. We are sorry to give Mr. Henderson up for he has been a great worker, and has watched with pleasure the Sunday school grow. We are glad to see Brother Sides take up the work for he has had a lot of experience in Sunday school work.

On last Sunday six new members were received into the church by letter from the M. E. church. We are very glad to have them with us, we feel they will be an inspiration to us. We are very glad to get our pastor and family back with us. The singing school at our church closed Saturday night which has been going on for two weeks, with a musical program which was enjoyed by a large number. Brother Lee Chambers was the teacher and had a very large class, some from every church in town. He is a splendid leader. We are very grateful to him, for we feel like it is a great help to the church.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McComons were visiting out of the town last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Henderson and children from Craymington were visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sisk over the week-end. Hoping every one a happy and thankful Thanksgiving.

REPORTER.

Bethany, Randolph Charge.—I want to say a few words in regard to the work which has been done through our efficient pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner. C. E. societies have been organized through his efforts, and he was continually planning and devising ways and doing things for the betterment of God's cause. Bro. Garner leaves us to go to St. Paul's church, Greensboro. We regret very much to give him up. We feel the loss very keenly, but we know our loss is their gain, and best wishes go with him in his new field of labor, and when he chooses to come back to visit us the latch-string hangs on the outside of the door. We learn there were several churches pulling for Bro. Garner, and while we know he is a splendid man and pastor, this proves the value of his works. Our pastor did not get to fill his last appointment at this place on account of illness, being taken to a hospital the day before. It is our sincere wish that he has completely recovered.

It hasn't been our pleasure to meet Rev. Mr. Suits, our new pastor, but I feel the people at this place will co-operate with Bro. Suits and help make this a good year.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Wesley's Chapel, Greensville Charge.—The reporter from Matthews Chapel said so much about our good pastor and his dear wife in last week's paper. "She" did not leave much for us to say, but we love them both and enjoyed their two years' stay on this charge and we are grieved because they have gone, but God knows best. Our love and best wishes go with them to Weaverville.

We are sorry, too, to know that Mr. Auman has moved farther away from us. He helped Mr. Cowan in two special meetings on this charge last summer. I never listened to better soul-stirring sermons, and he had a smile and kind words for everyone. He even taught the little ones to sing in the Japanese language, and they haven't forgotten how to sing yet. I hear them at it real often. We want you to come again, Mr. Auman, and bring your family next time.

We have not met Mr. Hethcox but we extend to him and his family a cordial welcome and trust that he may do a great work for the Master while here; but let us remember he needs our prayers and co-operation. So let us as Christians do our part.

Miss Fannie Mae Moody, who is attending State Teachers' College, Farmville, Va., spent the week-end in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Moody, of Henrico, N. C.

With love and best wishes for the Herald and its readers.

MRS. AARON B. MOODY.

Tabernacle Charge.—We are at the beginning of a new Conference year. Are we going to make it a success, or are we going to drift along and not do anything for the Master? With our pastor beginning his third year we should be able to do even greater work in every department of the church.

We welcome Mr. Isley back.

He brought us a wonderful message the third Sunday. Subject, "Serving God With What We Have." Exodus 4:2. He referred to the rod in Moses' hand, to the needle in Dorcas' hand, to Florence Nightingale going into the trenches, carrying sunshine to the soldiers, and the beginning of the Children's Home at Denton, N. C., through the influence of the Woman's Auxiliary, till now they number more than 100.

Circle No. 4 met with Mrs. J. F. McCulloch Wednesday, November 12th.

Mrs. Leana Coley was buried at Tabernacle last week. Rev. Mr. Isley and Rev. Mr. Millard of Alamance church conducted the burial service.

Our pastor delivered a very inspiring sermon the fourth Sunday. He brought us a practical Thanksgiving sermon. Psalm 116:12: "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me?" He also told us to think of what the Lord has done for us. He said, "A home rarely fails where there's a spirit of gratitude." Mother, father and wives are waiting for a word of thanks and appreciation. If Thanksgiving means anything it means giving thanks to God and to our fellow men.

The collection amounted to $24, which went for the Children's Home.

Asheboro.—The Philathea class met with Misses Ethel and Lucy Leigh Lovett at their home on Dixon street, November 17. An interesting business meeting was held with the president, Miss Iola Lowdermilk, presiding. Then a social hour was enjoyed, after which a delicious salad course was served. The next meeting will be with Misses Enolia Presnell and Katie Belle Cagle, at the home of Mrs. J. S. Lewis on December 12, when the "Heart Sisters" will be revealed.

Our new pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, moved from Winston-Salem to our city November 18. He and Mrs. Stubbins are at home at the parsonage, 216 East Salisbury street. A delightful reception was given at our church on Thursday evening, honoring Rev. and Mrs. Stubbins and Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Harrison. This gave our people an opportunity of welcoming these good people to our town and getting better acquainted. All the church was thrown open to the guests and these were directed through the class rooms and various departments of the church. A musical program was rendered during the evening. Light refreshments were served to the many guests who called between the hours of 7:30 and 10 o'clock.

On Friday evening Miss Esther Ross' S. S. class of young ladies had their class meeting and a quilting in the social room of the church. The class had secured names at ten cents each to be placed on the squares, these were put together and quilted, the quilt to be given to the Children's Home for Thanksgiving. Light refreshments were served to the members of the class and several guests.

We had good attendance at the Sunday services. There were 259 present at Sunday school, (24 more than a year ago this Sunday) and an offering of $29.15. Under the direction of Mr. J. D. Ross as general superintendent and efficient superintendents of the other departments and faithful teachers the Sunday school is doing splendid work and accomplishing much good. A large congregation was present for the church service. The choir rendered a beautiful anthem, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing." The pastor delivered a very helpful sermon on "Program and Progress" from Judges 7:21. At the evening service the Presbyterian pastor and congregation worshipped with us. The subject for the evening was "Walking Together."

We were delighted to have Mrs. S. F. Thacker, Jr., of Kingsport, Tenn., in our services Sunday. She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Stubbins and will be in their home for a visit of about ten days.

The union Thanksgiving service will be held in the M. E. church this year. Services at 9:30 Thursday morning with our pastor delivering the sermon, the offering going to the various orphanages.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—As I have been re-elected reporter for this church I will try to do my duty. A large congregation welcomed our new pastor and his family at the evening hour yesterday. Mr. Henderson is to preach for us again at three o'clock the fifth Sunday afternoon. We will move our Sunday school hour up to two o'clock. We are hoping to have a large crowd. Church and Sunday school officers were elected the first Sunday in November with a few changes in church officers. A new superintendent, Mr. E. L. Davis; new teachers for every class except the primary class. It seems the little folks all love Miss Kate Poole too much to give her up.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Lee Poole worship with us Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pearson announce the birth of a daughter, November 18. We hope Mrs. Pearson's health will soon permit them to be back at church and Sunday school. We have missed them. This church is very much concerned about the bad health of Mr. Lee Leonard. We ask that all former pastors of this charge who have met Mr. Leonard join us in our prayers for his recovery.

We all thank Mr. and Mrs. Nick Smith for the work they did in getting together the means with which to buy a new rug and the much-needed chair for the pulpit. We feel sure that all who gave are pleased.

First Church, Winston.—After five happy years with the good people of Asheboro we left there on the morning of November 18 at 9:30 o'clock and at 11 we were in the parsonage at Winston. Mrs. Millaway, Mrs. Sapp and Mrs. Paschall had the house warm and dinner on the way. At the noon hour we were their guests for dinner and in the afternoon we began to set up shop. We are now very comfortably housed in a well-built house with a splendid furnace at 906 Carolina Avenue. This house is in a splendid residential district in West Winston. Yesterday was our second Sunday at the church, having been here one Sunday morning before we moved. Sunday school attendance took a decided jump yesterday over the previous Sunday and over a year ago. We had good congregations at both the morning and the evening service yesterday and a spirit of hopefulness seemed to be in evidence everywhere. While this pastor and his wife have been cordially received at other places, I think we can safely say that the reception has never been more cordial than at Winston and we are pleased with the prospects.

It is a very great pleasure to the writer to find our good friend, Rev. C. H. Whitaker, here in Winston and to have him in our services. Both Sundays we have used him in the services.

Brother C. H. Smith was elected chairman of the board of stewards at a meeting following prayer meeting last Wednesday evening. The every-member canvass was started yesterday by having the members who were present to sign up just after the sermon. The canvass will be completed next Sunday afternoon.

The Woman's Auxiliary here is divided into circles and seems to be very active, they having raised about a thousand dollars for all purposes last year. The Auxiliary will meet this week and we are looking forward to being in the meeting.

The first money to be received for the Herald since coming here was the renewal of Brother W. N. Pegram. He was a subscriber to the Central Protestant before the Herald was started, was a contributor to the Publishing House Fund and has taken the Herald continuously since it was started 35 years ago.

Burlington, First Church.—Attendance at Sunday school today was 307 and the offering amounted to $18.21. The interest for the winter seems to be very good and we are hoping that we may do much throughout the school during the coming months.

Our new pastor and wife, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Paschal, formerly of Asheville, N. C., have arrived and Bro. Paschal brought two very helpful and inspiring sermons today. The attendance was splendid and interest good. Let's all work together with the pastor and make this Conference year the best yet.

The Baraca Class was taught by Mr. Geo. Smith, the assistant teacher, today in the absence of the regular teacher, Bro. C. C. Lindley. The annual class banquet and election of officers of the class will be held Tuesday evening, December 9, in the Hut and let each member plan now to be present at this meeting, as a good time of fellowshiping and feasting is assured.

Last report from Mr. L. L. Wilson, of Oteen Hospital, was that he is improving. Also, we hear that Mr. A. E. Sykes, of the Westbrook Sanatorium, Richmond, Va., is getting on very well and will perhaps be able to return to his home here within a few weeks.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening, November 17th, at the Hut with 42 present. The program was in charge of Circle No. 1. The leader, Mrs. George Haltom, read the Scripture, followed by prayer by Mrs. Ed Ausley. The program was as follows: Song, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains;" "Gratitude for Missionary Achievements in the Past," Miss Elizabeth Nicholson; "Responsibility for the Future of Missions," Mrs. N. L. Hunley; "Gift of Gold," Mrs. Clyde Johnston.

As Mrs. L. W. Gerringer, president of the Auxiliary, has left this church, Mrs. J. M. Crawford, vice-president, became president and presided at this meeting. The regular business, including reports of circles and treasurers, was transacted. Mrs. Ed Ausley was unanimously elected as Home Secretary to the Children's Home.

The meeting then adjourned, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Games were conducted by Miss Elizabeth Nicholson. Circle No. 1 served fruit for refreshments.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our new pastor and his wife arrived on last Thursday. We are indeed glad to wlcome this young minister and his companion into our midst an we plan with his help to make this year a real success. Rev. Mr. Smith, who has served us faithfully for two years, is still living in the parsonage so Rev. and Mrs. Bingham are making their home at Mrs. Inscoe's for the present. We will miss Mr. Smith and his good wife and we hope for them much success.

The officers of the church as elected for the ensuing year are as follows: Sunday school superintendent, Mr. W. I. Porter; assistant, Mr. B. F. Morris; class leader, Mr. Richard Harper, Mr. Sol Inscoe; stewards, Mr. B. F. Morris,. W. E. Carter, G. D. Insco, Whit Harper; treasurer, M. J. Morris; trustees, M. J. Morris, W. R. Carter, D. A. Insco, W. E. Carter; pianist, Mrs. Hettie Carter; assistant, Miss Cassie Porter; Herald reporter, Mrs. B. F. Morris.

Our Sunday school is moving on nicely under our new superintendent. We hope that more will take interest in the Sunday school and it will continue to grow.

Our delegate to Conference, Mr. M. J. Morris, gave us a most interesting report of events.

Don't forget service at Corinth the first Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. This will be the first preaching service for our new p[illegible] at this church.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers for a happy and successful year.

Friendship Church, Fallston Charge. — On November 23 our Sunday school was well attended. Our collection was $7.65.

Sunday evening Rev. J. M. Morgan, our pastor, gave us a message on prayer. A very large crowd was present and all enjoyed the message. A collection was taken which was $10.40. The Sunday school collection with this collection will be sent to our Children's Home as a Thanksgiving offering. The total being $18.05.

We also collected some clothing, bedding, and food which we will carry to the Children's Home before Thanksgiving.

The church and community were saddened by the death of one of our members, Dr. F. H. Lackey.

The Christian Endeavor society is progressing nicely. Several new members have joined. They are planning to give a Christmas program.

Mount Hermon Church, Creswell Circuit.—Our hearts are saddened by the fact that we had to give our pastor up. Brother R. L. Hethcox had been with us for 12 years and we shall miss him so much: he was such a good man, everybody liked him so much, but we are planning to have him come back next summer and hold our revival meeting at Mt. Hermon church, for we will never get over the loss of him, for I do not think any one can say anything too good for him.

Welch Memorial-Albemarle Tidings. — One of the hearts hurts of the moving pastor is the leaving the people and the work through the years on a field that has become near and dear to him. This was certainly the experience of this pastor and family when we left Welch Memorial. We had learned to greatly love the people and the work there. The heart sweets of the move is to find those who show by actions as well as words that we are appreciated. This was manifested in a very large way by the Welch Memorial people whom we were leaving and by the Albemarle people to whom we have come. With a few exceptions of the working part of the church at Welch Memorial gave fine expressions, not only in word but in deed, for what we had tried to do for them during our stay with them. On Thursday night November 13, the good lady of the parsonage was surprised and overjoyed when the parsonage all very suddenly became crowded to overflowing with the good ladies of the church. These good ladies came to express their love and appreciation to the lady who had kept the parsonage and who had worked in the church during our pastorate at Welch. A wonderful shower of beautiful and valuable gifts were presented and a sweet and most appropriate devotional program was rendered. The company then repaired to the dining room where a great spread of fruits had been prepared. Not only was the lady membership quite largely represented but a goodly number of those who were not members were present. And a number of those who could not be present either brought gifts or sent them later with very kind words. This was indeed one of the sweetest affairs this writer has ever seen given in honor of any one. God bless the good ladies of Welch Memorial. Brother Wm. M. Epps, Brother Odell Brown and the young men of the Young Men's Bible class, of which the pastor was a teacher remembered the pastor in a very substantial way. The little daughter, Virginia, was remembered by her classmates as she was called to her classroom to receive a shower of much appreciated gifts. A number of families including Mr.and Mrs. D. G. Hiatt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Greenway, and Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Ridge gave us very fine dinners before our leaving. Other invitations could not be accepted because of the lack of time. On Tuesday, Nov. 18, our moving day, the parsonage was again crowded with the good people, both men and women, who had come to do whatever they could to help. At this time another wonderful dinner was spread. This occasion was in honor of the incoming pastor, Brother Anderson and his family as well as in behalf of the out going pastor and his family. With all these good deeds rendered, by those we have every reason to believe possess loving hearts, how can we ever forget the Welch Memorial people. We leave them very reluctantly but we turn them over to you, Brother Anderson, with a God bless you, for you and for them, and a prayer that you may have a wonderful pastorate.

Now that we have arrive in Albemarle we have found ourselves among a great people that are striving to make us happy by giving us every attention and by pouring upon us many favors. When we have arrived although it was late in the night we found the good people had unloaded our belongings from the truck that had preceded us and the parsonage had been arranged and made comfortable. Good eats were on the dining table ready and waiting for us. The next morning early, men were gathered to offer their services to help arrange our home. Then on Tuesday night, Nov. 19, the great surprise and overflow came when all at once the parsonage became full to overflowing. Where they came from and how they all got there we do not know, but we do know they kept coming until we were bewildered to find room for them. The dining room was made the depository and by the time the deposits were all made room was about as much in demand as was standing space in other parts of the house. A substantial check was handed the pastor by the treasurer. Pay in advance. It is impossible to call names just here and it is impossible to mention the numerous articles. Too many! We tried to conduct a short devotional service and thank the good people for kind thought and large deed, prompted as we know by loving hearts, but we could not find words to fully express our thoughts. Our appreciations were too deep. We can say God bless you, good people of the Albemarle church, and we can pledge our best in service of whatever kind to advance the Kingdom through this beloved Zion.

The services here last Sunday at the Sunday school and at both preaching services were fine. The attendance and attention were good and the music inspiring, while the amens from the audience were helpful to the preacher. All these with the beauties of the lovely new church building of Albemarle served as high lights that would cause a man to preach to the extent that he possesses such ability. May God bless these good people and may the Holy Spirit lead both pastor and people so that we may all grow better and stronger as time goes on and as we work for the advancement of the Kingdom.

GEO. L. CURRY.

P. S.: We would not forget to mention the services of Bro. D. F. Helms, the transfer man and a faithful member of the Albemarle church, who proved to be so efficient and who exercised so much care and patience in moving us. Thank you, Bro. Helms. Then, too, Bro. Henry Kivett of Welch Memorial who with Howard Vuncannon, one of the fine boys of Welch, who volunteered to accompany us from High Point to Albemarle as we made the trip by night. Their services proved to be invaluable, especially when car trouble occurred out on a lonely road where needed help was not available. Thank you, Bro. Henry. Thank you, Howard. G. L. C.

First Church, High Point.—On Sunday morning last, the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an eloquent and appropriate Thanksgiving sermon on the subject, "Cause for Gladness," taking as his text that beautiful quotation from Psalms, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." He said in part: The Pilgrim Fathers established the first Thanksgiving in Massachusetts more than 300 years ago. There were only 100 people in the colony, and they didn't have much for which to be thankful, but they had spent one year in a land of religious freedom, and their lives had been spared. Now today we have much more cause for thanks than these Puritans. We come this morning thankful for our attempt to serve God during the past year. Of course we have had clouds, but God lives, and "is in His heaven, and all's right with the world." We have come to the place that we love God and our neighbors, and it brings us joy and gladness. There are two legends in which I have always been interested: one runs thus: An angel from Heaven came to earth, and told Satan that God had taken away all his powers to tempt people, when His Satanic Majesty begged to be left just one temptation, depression or "the blues." If I can make people depressed, that is all I want." Depression or discouragement is an infectious spirit. The other legend is Jewish; Lucifer was asked what he missed most after being banished from Heaven to earth, and he replied that it was the joy and gladness of praise and thanksgiving. We ought to thank God for the new day, for we have a new spirit of endurance and heroism. We are growing together into unity and brotherhood. A few things have developed in the past years a strength to endure trials, and the stern hand of fate has scourged us to move forward. They have brought strength to bear the struggle. We will carry in our minds the mountain peaks of the World War that taught us to cherish honor, service, sacrifice. Two cocoons lay on my desk; from one emerges a silver-winged butterfly, but the other did not struggle, and when I opened it with my knife, he was found to be dead. We thank God for the ability to struggle. The new spirit of brotherhood throughout the world is breaking down racial hatred and differences. When the Allies became synchronized, then victory came. The kingdom of God is moving forward and we are discovering the federation of brotherhood. On the banks of the Rappahannock in Virginia in 1863, the opposing armies were encamped; the bands of the North played "Star-Spangled Banner," then the Southern bands struck up "Dixie," at the close of which all united in the universal favorite, "Home, Sweet Home," which was applauded to the echo. This brought a spirit of brotherhood, unity, and fraternity. We thank God that the church of Christ is being recognized today as never before. General Pershing said that one American lad is worth ten German lads, bebcause the American boy worships God. We have not reached our Utopia or the Millennium, but we are on the way. The Nineteenth Century will produce men and women who do the will of God, for which we should be thankful.

At this service Mr. Arthur Fidler sang "The Penitent," by Vanderwater, and the choir rendered a lovely anthem, "Fear Not, O Israel."

The Junior church service was conducted by Mrs. S. S. Coe at 11 o'clock. We are happy to announce that Mrs. Coe and Mrs. L. R. Johnston, both of whom are most capable and efficient workers with the children, have been secured to give their attention and direction to these services permanently, and the boys and girls will be divided into two groups, Mrs. Johnston taking charge of the younger children, and Mrs. Coe of the older group. The last quarterly conference appropriated the sum of $600 for this purpose, and we can but feel that this arrangement will be a happy solution for this problem.

At the Sunday afternoon vesper service at 5 o'clock the more aged members of the congregation were honored, and cars called for them. An interesting and pleasing feature of this service was the presence of four of the five living charter members of First church, namely: Miss Lou Pickett, Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., Mrs. F. M. York and daughter, Mrs. S. D. Shelton, the absent one being Mrs. J. Wesley Guire, of Lenoir, N. C. At this service the minister was very happy in the selection of the subject of his message, which was most timely and fitting, "The Time of Falling Leaves."

The Every-Member Canvass of the membership was made by the stewards on Sunday afternoon betwen 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock, and it proved to be successful, we are pleased to learn.

The Sunshine Circle of boys and girls from 6 to 14 years of age met at the church Monday afternoon with their competent and faithful leader, Mrs. Ross H. Davis.

The Young People's Society held its weekly meeting Monday evening, when the timely topic, "Things for Which We Should Be Thankful," was discussed in an interesting manner by Miss Selma Clapp, leading. A Thanksgiving social was enjoyed after the devotional meeting, when various games were enjoyed by a large number of young people.

On Thursday morning at 9 o'clock First church congregation will unite with that of the Presbyterian church, Dr. C. H. Nabers, pastor, in a Thanksgiving service of praise and worship. Next year the plan is to unite the two congregations at First church.

Just prior to the sermon Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Farmer took occasion to call attention to the Annual Red Cross Roll Call, and also to the campaign for the church paper, urging every subscriber to get another for the Methodist Protestant Herald at Greensboro and the Recorder of Baltimore, which has a brand new editor, Rev. H. H. Price. It is expected that every member will support and uphold our local Conference organ, the Herald, which has been more a labor of love than otherwise for its faithful and loyal editor, Dr. J. F. McCulloch, for more than one-third of a century. Who can surpass this enviable record?

A recent letter from Mrs. E. L. Ballard brings welcome and interesting news of our greatly-loved friends, Rev. and Mrs. E. Lester Ballard. Mr. Ballard is particularly interested in a course in Hymnology under Dr. Smith, author of "Hymnal for American Youth," which he introduced at First church. Mrs. Ballard says she is delighted to be back in missionary work, and she and her husband are enjoying contacts with many pleasant and cordial people, and the many interesting services held in the various churches of Boston and vicinity. They have been shocked, however, at the laxness of observance of the Sabbath in many instances. They hear a great deal of discussion about the negro question, but are convinced that we of the South handle that situation quite as well as the Northerners do their foreign element. Mr. Ballard has had an opportunity to use his splendid voice to advantage, and both have been asked to give examples of model Sabbath school work, in which they are so proficient.

We are pleased to know that G. I. Humphreys, Jr., the young 7-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. G. I. Humphreys, of High Point College, who had the misfortune to break his arm recently, is improving rapidly.

South Lexington.—Mt. Carmel.—It was with joy and gladness that we were able to welcome back our loyal and devoted pastor, Rev. C. G. Isley. This is the third year he has served South Lexington charge and we are confident of doing better and more worthy work under his leadership this year than before. He has served us faithfully and we hope he will continue to be blessed in his work.

We are deeply grateful to Bro. Isley and mother for the faithful and untiring way in which they have labored with us and for their unselfish, efficient leadership. May this prove to be the best year for our Master that we as pastor and people have yet had.

At the last appointment before Annual Conference new officers were chosen in the church for the ensuing year. Practically all the old officials were re-elected. Sunday school superintendent, H. V. Swicegood, who has faithfully served for several years; Mrs. R. M. Fritts and J. T. Swicegood are to continue as class leaders; trustees, R. M. Rowe, J. T. Swicegood, R. M. Fritts, Adam Berrier and H. L. Swicegood; stewards, W. W. Swicegood, W. F. Fritts, Kathleen Rowe, Leona Helmsteller and R. O. Fritts; organist, Irene Swicegood; assistant, Effie Mae Swicegood.

The trustees, with Pastor Isley met Thursday night, November 20, at the home of J. T. Swicegood to make plans for the new church. The contract will be let shortly and work is expected to be underway by December 1.

Mebane.—We begin the new Conference year with the realization that the past year was not what it should have been but we believe we will not be less interested or, even discouraged as we face the same obligations and the same duties that have come to us in previous years.

Sunday morning the attendance at Sunday school was very good; 154 were present. We hope our attendance will increase even though we are facing the winter months.

At the 11 o'clock service the pastor gave us a splendid Thanksgiving message, speaking from the text, "What Shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?"

Sunday evening at 7:30 our annual thank-offering service for the Woman's Auxiliary was held. The program was well prepared and well rendered. Ladies and young people from the different circles participated as did the William Nicholson Mission Band. Offering taken, $14.40.

Saturday evening of last week the Ever Ready Circle served supper in the Kiwanis Hall from 5 to 8 o'clock. Many compliments were heard as to the quality and quantity. The Circle cleared around $21.00 from the supper.

Monday evening the Circles of the Auxiliary met at 7:30. No. 1 at the home of Mrs. J. W. Nicholson; No. 2 with Mrs. A. C. Allen; No. 3 with Mrs. C. F. Jobe, and Mrs. C. C. King was hostess to No. 4. Each circle seems very active and interested and we are confident each will raise their quota.

We are glad those of our congregation who have been sick are much improved.

Misses Grace Barnette, Elizabeth and Edna Nicholson spent the past week-end with their parents.

J. E. Foust visited his father Sunday, who is quite ill at the home of his brother in Greensboro.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—We are all delighted with the return of our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams. Every one welcomed him today with smiling faces and happy hearts. His work has been a success here, and we hope his work this year will be even more successful. We feel very grateful to the Annual Conference for sending Mr. Williams and his family back to us for another year. Let us all unite our efforts and co-operate in such a way that we may accomplish more during the present year for the kingdom of the Master than we have ever done before. Truly we may say that "the fields are white unto the harvest" and every member is needed for the service of the Master.

Mr. Williams filled his first appointment this afternoon with a good size congregation.

Thanksgiving service will be held here the fifth Sunday, November 30, at 11 o'clock. This offering will go for the benefit of the Children's Home.

The first quarterly conference will meet with the Efland church Saturday before the second Sunday in December at 2 p. m.

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary, let's start this ball rolling right now with the new Conference year. We were late in organizing last year and we could not do much, so we must get busy and do more than we did last year.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers.

Winston.—Sunday services were very good indeed. The attendance at both Sabbath school and church was fair. Mr. Pritchard gave us a wonderful sermon on "Glorying in the Cross."

The Thanksgiving offering for our Children's Home was stressed at both Sunday school and church services. It is hoped that the offering from our church will be a big one and that each member will share in making it so. This worthy institution needs the support of every Methodist Protestant and we truly hope none will shirk any opportunity to help.

Monday night? A pound for our new pastor and his wife. We hope they got something that they like real well.

The Home Circle of the Auxiliary is giving a cake sale at the Huntley-Hill-Stockton Company Tuesday, November 25th. Mrs. H. O. Sapp is chairman of this circle, and she is really an industrious chairman. This circle is composed of the women of the church who cannot attend meetings, and Mrs. Sapp has 'most everything to do all alone. She is loved and admired by all her circle and the entire Auxiliary for her good work.

The Auxiliary will hold its meeting in the church Tuesday night at 7:45 with Circle No. 2 hostess.

Last Sunday was "Honor Day" in our midst. Mr. C. H. Smith was given the floor immediately after the sermon, and as chairman of the board of stewards he made his plea to the church and then the stewards passed the pledge cards around to each member. All were urged to make their pledge and turn same in as early as possible. Those who did not pledge, however, will not feel slighted because their steward will pay them a personal visit next Sunday afternoon and give them a big chance to do their duty. The stewards are to be commended on their fine work of preparing these pledge cards. One one side there is space for the pledge, on the other the budget of the church for the ensuing year.

Rev. Mr. Whitaker and son worshiped with us Sunday morning. We are always glad for them to be with us.

Next Sunday the newly-elected officers will be installed. Mr. Pritchard announced that he would use a beautiful installation service from the Conference Journal. All these officers are urged to be present; the installation into office often helps the individual to see in a more direct way his duty, as well as his obligation to his church in the fulfillment of that duty. May these people go forth into the coming year determined that everything will go fine, with the splendid new leader and pastor that First Church, Winston, has.

"Everything works together for the good of those that love the Lord."

Kernersville.—Our first quarterly conference will be held at Kernersville on Saturday before the second Sunday in December at 2 o'cock p. m. It is very important that all the official members attend. Since South Winston is attached we will need to readjust our program. And, too, if you are really interested in the progress of your charge, you will want to be present and help plan for the year. W. D. REED.

◆

South Winston.—Please take notice, brethren, that since you have been made a part of Kernersville charge, it is very important that you attend the first quarterly conference, which will convene at Kernersville on Saturday before the second Sunday in December at 2 p. m. W. D. REED, Pastor.

◆

Spring Hill, North Davidson.—The interest of the Sunday school is encouraging, but the attendance is not quite so large as it was during the summer. There were 117 present Sunday.

We have our pastor, Rev. H. L. Powell, back with us for another year. With him as leader we hope to have a successful year in the work for the Master.

The church officers for the coming year are as follows:

Class leaders, Mrs. Henry Byerly and J. D. Craven; trustees, C. O. Craven, J. L. Craven, J. D. Collette, C. L. Swaim, and C. W. Haynes; stawards, Mrs. J. L. Craven, Mrs. Henry Byerly, Mrs. R. H. Proctor, Howard York and Miss Mildred Swaim; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Haynes; reporter, Alice Haynes; S. S. superintendent, C. W. Haynes; assistant superintendent, George Craven.

The C. E. officers have also been elected. They are as follows:

President, Miss Edith York; vice-president, Miss Nellie Wade; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Milford Byerly. The C. E., with Alice Haynes as leader, will give a program on Thankfulness Thursday evening at 7:30.

The Ladies' Aid held its monthly meeting Saturday afternoon with Mrs. D. E. Hilton. They were glad to have with them as visitors Mrs. Ethel Newby, Mrs. Julia York and Miss Vina Cecil. After the business meeting refreshments were served and all enjoyed the evening.

On Saturday morning, November 8, our hearts were made sad on hearing of the death of one of our church members, Mrs. J. H. Loggins. As she had been sick only three days her death was a shock to all. Mrs. Loggins was held in high esteem by those who knew her and her passing will not only leave a vacant place in the home, but in the church and community as well. The funeral was held at Spring Hill M. P. church with Rev. D. C. Cox and Rev. Saffrit of Zion Reformed church. We extend our deepest sympathy to the husband and little son, Billy Joe, as well as the other relatives and friends.

REPORTER.

Charlotte, First Church.—Dr. R. M. Andrews has been here for the services since conference and expects to move his family here this week. Last Sunday morning Dr. Andrews used as his text, Matt. 25:16. His subject was, "Making Proper Use of Our Talents." He spoke of money a gift from God, energy and influence. His final message was to use our talents whether two or five and if we have only one to do the best we can. Dr. Andrews does not come to us as a stranger as he has many friends here.

Mr. R. S. Garmon has been a patient in the Presbyterian hospital for the past ten days after an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Garmon has had some complication that has hindered his recovery but we hope now he may speedily recover and be able to see his friends soon.

Last Friday we lost by death the oldest member of our church, Mrs. M. J. Burnett. The funeral was conducted Saturday at 2 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hattie Hodge, by Dr. R. M. Andrews, assisted by Rev. A. L. Griggs, a Baptist minister of the city. The body was carried to Matthews for burial. Mrs. Burnett has been very feeble for some time.

Last Friday evening Circles Nos. 1 and 2 gave a chicken supper at the church.

On Friday evening of this week the first quarterly conference will be held at the church. Three of our ladies have been added to the board of stewards.

The every-member canvass will be made next Sunday afternoon.

Miss Ruth Curry, daughter of Rev. Geo. L. Curry, is in training for a nurse here at the Presbyterian hospital.

We hope the Children's Home will be remembered with a very substantial Thanksgiving offering.

—Rev. C. W. Bates, pastor of Calvary church, attended a banquet Tuesday night at which all the ministers of the city were guests of honor. The banquet was staged by the Lions club of the city. While one of the ministers present was making an after-dinner speech Bro. Bates received a telephone call stating that some very important company was at his home. Snatching his hat and grabbing his overcoat, he slipped out of the banquet hall and hurried homeward, thinking that some young couple of Calvary church was about to forsake single blessedness. To his surprise he found a large number of his flock at his home, and on the dining table was a real pounding. Bro. Willis Booth acted as master of ceremonies and a number of those present responded in humorous songs and recitations. Bro. Bates expressed appreciation for the kindness of his members, and reiterated his impression that some young couple of Calvary church wanted to get married.

A PSALM FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

(Arranged by L. K. L.)

Let all nature praise Thee, O Lord:
Let the heavens of heavens praise Thee,
And the waters that are above the heavens;
Fire and hail, snow and vapor;
Stormy wind, fulfilling Thy will;
Mountains nad all the hills;
Fruitful trees and all cedars.
Let them praise Thy name, of Lord;
For thou commanded, and they were created.
Thou hast established them forever and ever:
Thou hast made a decree that shall not pass away.

Let all Thy creatures praise Thee, O Lord:
The sea monsters, and all deeps;
Beasts and all cattle;
Creeping things and flying birds;
Rulers of the earth and all peoples;
Governors and all judges of the earth;
Both young men and maidens;
Old men and children:
Let them praise Thy name, O Lord;
For Thy name alone is exalted;
Thy glory is above the earth and the heavens.

Let our home-land praise Thee, O Lord.
Happy art thou, O America.
Who is like unto thee, a people saved by the Lord?
And thou, America dwelleth in safety,
And full of blessing of the Lord.
The Eternal God is thy dwelling place,
And underneath are the everlasting arms.
We give thanks unto Thee, O Lord;
We sing unto Thee, We sing praises unto Thy name
For the precious things of heaven, for the dew,
And for the springs that gush from the earth,
And for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun,
And for the precious crops that grow from month to month,
And for the chief things of the ancient mountain,
And for the precious metals of the everlasting hills,
And for the precious fruits of the earth and its fullness.
For all these, O gracious Father,
May everything that hath breath
Praise Thy holy name,
Hallelujah.

MRS. GERRINGER HONORED

Three years ago a dear woman came into the midst of the Woman's Auxiliary of the First M. P. church. Her interest in the auxiliary and the people made her loved by everyone. She was not only interested in the work of the auxiliary but in every phase of the church.

She was elected president of this organization altogether, which has proven entirely successful. More women and girls have been brought into the work of the church. Nothing was too hard for her to tackle. It made no difference to her how busy she was with her homework when someone asked for her help, she was at their service. She was willing and with a loving and forgiving heart she won the love of our people.

It makes us sad when we are reminded of the fact that she and her family are leaving our church, and in order to show our love and appreciation for all their wondrous works, the Woman's Auxiliary gave a reception and shower in the honor of Mrs. L. W. Gerringer Friday night, November 14th, at the M. P. Hut, Burlington.

Potted plants were used in making the Hut more attractive. At the beginning of the program, Mrs. Harlan McPherson, at the piano, played softly familiar classical selections, which gave a sense of sadness and at the same time a sense of appreciation and enjoyment. Miss Emily Young entertained with two vocal selections, "You'd Better Ask Me," and "The Gingerbread Man." In spite of our efforts to keep back the tears, Mrs. J. C. Tingen amused us wonderfully with two humorous selections, "Talkative Tilly," and "Billy Entertains Sister's Beau," which centered our minds upon the word "laugh" and we did plenty of it too. Miss Ruth Shaw of Graham favored us with two violin solos, "The Rosary," and "By the Waters of Minnetonka."

Since Mrs. Gerringer had worked so hard and so faithfully for us, we thought probably she would like some rest and as a token of appreciation, Miss Susie Stafford presented to her, from the entire auxiliary, an overstuffed chair. Since Rev. Mr. Gerringer and his family had done a great work for this church, the chair was not only presented to Mrs. Gerringer, but for the benefit of the whole family. The members also showered her with individual gifts for her use and the family also. It was quite a surprise to her and she was so shocked and overjoyed, she could hardly find words to say, but responded nicely.

The next hour was spent in the opening of the gifts. She received beautiful presents. A social hour was then enjoyed, during which refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, coffee and cakes, were served by the leaders of the circles and other members. At the end of the social hour everyone clasped hands and sang, "Bless Be the Tie That Binds."

PINE RIDGE NOTES

All farmers have their troubles; why should we be exempt? A few weeks ago we lost a fine hog and of course it was a shock to us—but we are thankful we did not lose any more. A little later men from the State Agricultural department came through our county administering the Tuberculine test to cattle. We were shocked when we were told that the best cow in our barn was a "reactor" and should be killed. The state will pay us about one-half her value, and of course we did not want a cow that might spread the dread disease. A later report from the department assured us that there was no danger of the cow already having spread the disease germs as they were local and just beginning their work.

Rev. E. M. Babcock, a member of our staff of workers, was struck by a car being recklessly driven past our store at a forty-mile speed. The driver did not even stop to inquire whether he had killed the man. We are very thankful Mr. Babcock was not seriously hurt. We are on the track of the offender and hope yet to give him a shock.

Our hearts will certainly be in tune with the Thanksgiving spirit. Our friends have been very kind and helpful. We were enabled to pass out more second-hand clothing during the month of October than ever before in any month. We are trying to acknowledge every donation and we are thankful for the cooperation—you are not only helping us, but also hundreds of men, women, and children to whom it means more than you can imagine. Christmas plans are now being made and we are sure you will supply us with the usual practical gifts such as boys and girls have use for every day, that we might gladden the hearts of many at Christmas time. If you want a copy of our "Booster" in which we tell more of our doings, let us have your address. We still have a very limited supply of water, and you would laugh if I could tell you how we have managed to "make it do;" but God has never let us suffer and it is "better farther on."

Thankfully yours,

T. R. Woodford.

Jericho's Wisest Man

The Master came to Jericho:
It seemed that He must pass on through,
Though wearied with His journey sore,
For He could see no open door.

The streets were lined with gaping crowd,
But none but blind man cried aloud,
And him they told to hold his peace,
To let his clamors wholly cease.

A drooping city of droning men
To whom would never come again
A day so great, a time so grand
As when they saw the Son of Man.

A place where priests and Levites dwelt
And made their own importance felt,
Because in temple they did serve
And from their course did never swerve.

No welcome sign could there be seen
In face or eye or loving mien;
They looked on Him in stupid gaze
And let pass by this day of days.

One man there was with soul alive
Who felt it was a time to strive:
He hastes, he runs, he climbs a tree
That he the Sinner's Friend may see.

And O the greatness of his joy,
Which hostile men could ne'er destroy!
Through gracious power of Noble Guest
His house is with salvation blest!

Breaking Up of Imperial Churches

The church of Rome was the first to suffer breaking up. Protestantism manifested its force and the empire of Rome—the ecclesiastical empire—was no longer world-wide. Other churches essayed to do what Rome failed to do—make their sway and sovereignty world-wide. Wesley said, "The world is my parish;" innocent enough if he simply meant by parish the field for evangelization, but not so innocent if he meant sphere of control. Followers of Wesley with mounting ambitions sought to extend their empire over the world, justifying themselves by Christ's great commission to go into all the world. But Christ's purpose was to make for Him disciples of all nations, not to extend human authority. The Christian movement and the denominational movements all seek to reach the uttermost parts of the earth, but may have very different motives.

When the object is to secure denominational control and enlargement as the first consideration the church becomes imperialistic in spirit, however small and insignificant it may be in fact. But the churches that have won conquests in many lands have lived to see the day of breaking up. The secession of large areas goes on from continent to continent. There is nothing that can be done about it but watch the disintegration and wonder what is coming next. The stone cut out of the mountain without hands is rolling and crushing. What does this world-wide movement for self-government in church as well as state mean? It means that the spirit of Christian democracy is at work in the world. It is a force too mighty to be overcome by the spirit of imperialism. The face of the ecclesiastical world is changing. The spirit of human brotherhood is making itself felt.

Why Did Jesus Say "Must"?

Jesus surprises us when He says to Zaccheus, "I must abide at thy house." Whence the necessity? There are two answers. It may have been a physical necessity. Night was near and the people of Jericho were inhospitable to Jesus, they had not opened their doors to Him. The inns if there were any had only room enough to accommodate the party of Jesus not including Himself. He must abide in the home of Zaccheus because he had no other place to go.

But there is another explanation. Jesus referred to a moral obligation that was upon Him. He felt that He must work the works of God while it was day, while he had opportunity. He saw in this man Zaccheus a ready subject of saving grace. It was a case calling for personal work. He felt that He must talk with this man Zaccheus about his personal relation to God, and in order to do this most effectually He must spend the night under the roof of the publican.

—The year seems to be starting off well, judging from reports. It is noteworthy that many of these hopeful reports are written by the laity of the church. The reports of the people constitute a church barometer.

—In his message to Congress President Hoover names speculation as one of the causes of economic depression, diverting money to illegitimate channels. But the principal cause he finds is overproduction. The world is making more than it can use. In other words, the prevailing trouble is caused, not by poverty, but by wealth. The world needs to learn how to conduct itself in a state of great plenty. The surplus cannot be sold and it is regarded as demoralizing to give away indiscriminately.

REPLY TO DRY HYPOCRISY EXPOSED!

(By Ex-Anti-Saloon League Campaigner—Published in "Psychology Magazine," November 1930 Number)

By Dr. T. C. Amick

Further along in his article, Mr. Miller spoke of the increase of poverty and blamed the Prohibition law for this trouble. When we put the facts to the acid test of statistics, we find Mr. Miller again wrong.

Taking the United States as a whole, the statistics give the following percentages of dependents in the United States for the years mentioned:

In 1912, 14.8 per cent. of our people were dependents; in 1916, 16.5 per cent. were dependents; in 1917, 16.5 per cent. was again the number of dependents; now, coming to the prohibition period, we find in 1921, 3.3 per cent. were dependents; in 1925, 8 per cent. were dependents, and in 1929, 9.2 per cent. only are dependents. This statement of statistical facts shows that, on an average, the percentage of dependents has been halved since the prohibition period came in. Does this show a great increase in poverty? During this time also, the amount of savings banks deposits has increased many fold, and we can give statistics to prove the statement, the people of our country live better and have more of the comforts and luxuries of life, and our country has been in the best financial condition that it has been in since the establishment of our government. We have no report yet for the year 1930, but even in the period of depression through which we are going, our people are better off than in the pre-war period under liquor. We will always have the feeble and shiftless with us and we can never expect to have poverty absolutely eliminated.

In the next place, Mr. Miller tells us how the drink bill has mounted by leaps and bounds, but he fails to give any statistics or authority for his statements.

On Page 285 of Prof. Irving Fisher's book, the Noble Experiment, in table 32, we have an estimate of the consumption of distilled spirits in the United States based on data collected and checked and rechecked from all parts of the country from the years, 1900 to 1928 inclusive. Commencing in the pre-prohibition period in 1904, the absolute alcohol content consumed in the United States was 60,543,693 gallons, or an average of 2.13 gallons for every person in the United States. The statistics show that the amount increases until it reached its peak in 1917, when the amount rose to 83,870,162 gallons, or 2.35 gallons per person. Under Prohibition this total has been reduced until in 1928, the total amount consumed was 13,547,503 gallons, or an average of one-third of a gallon per person. Between 1917, before Prohibition nad 1928, under Prohibition, the amount consumed per individual has been reduced from 2.35 to one-third of a gallon for each person, or over 600 per cent. If Mr. Miller's estimate is correct, then those who are in a position to know and who have checked and rechecked the figures are positively wrong. The writer is inclined ot side against Mr. Miller in favor of the statistics.

Mr. Miller again takes up the criminal aspect of the Eighteenth Amendment on pages eighteen and nineteen of his article and gives a rehash of what he had already said. We have already pointed out that statistics show that crime has decreased very materially and under Prohibition, and we will not add further comment here except to say that it is manifestly unfair to blame crime to the laws against crime. And also a man who denounces the laws of his land, sides with crime, and gives encouragement to the criminal class of our people. I doubt not but that the liquor and the criminal element will roll Mr. Miller's article like a sweet morsel under their tongues. We will have that element with us as long as the human heart is depraved and the best we can do is to pass as many salutary laws as possible to safeguard society against this element, and to curb this element in their criminal course.

Mr. Miller also mentions the increase in the number of deaths from alcoholism since the passage of the eighteenth Amendment. Let us here examine the facts in the case. According to the estimates of the wets themselves the death rate in the United States from alcoholism in 1905 was 16.7 per thousand; in 1915, while were still wet, the rate was 14. per thousand. In 1925, under Prohibition, the rate fell to 11.7 per thousand. The wets themselves admit that deaths from alcoholism have materially decreased under Prohibition. The figures compiled by the drys on the same subject correspond very closely with the calculation of the wets and this shows that Mr. Miller is wrong or that he has juggled his figures.

Finally Mr. Miller busts out with the question, "What stands in the way of majority rule?" He then mentions the Literary Digest poll and the finding of the Literary Digest in favor of the wets. Let me ask the question in reply, Does not the majority rule? Did not the majority of our states vote the Eighteenth Amendment into our Constitution? Has not Mr. Miller found out that the Literary Digest poll was discredited long ago? And does not Mr. Miller know that when two years ago, Al Smith ran on an avowedly wet ticket and Herbert Hoover ran on a dry ticket, the people of our country lined themselves up at the polls and gave Herbert Hoover the greatest and most overwhelming majority any candidate for the Presidency had ever received in the United States? We know that Mr. Miller would suggest that other issues than Prohibition were at stake, but we can assure Mr. Miller that the good people of our country will do this very same thing again if ever they have to face the issue fairly and squarely. That element of the people of our country who stand for decency and order, who are laboring for the highest good of our country and are doing their best to advance our civilization, will, if the issue is pressed, rise as a mighty giant and give to another dry man a vote so everwhelming that none but the wilful fool will question or gainsay. Party lines will again be flung to the winds and those who stand for law and order will assert themselves in no misunderstood terms. Talk about the Literary Digest poll! The nation discredited this poll begore it was born. To claim that the Literary Digest poll is conclusive evidence that the majority of our people oppose prohibition is to beg the question. The voice of the nation has been heard and the nation will speak again when necessary.

The remaining paragraph of Mr. Miller's article are given to villifying the Anti-Saloon League, Prohibition, and our dry senators and representatives. Vilification does not get us anywhere. The facts are what count and Mr. Miller can, by a little investigation, get the facts. When he writes another article along this line, he needs to fortify himself with the facts. Also, when this question comes to a showdown again, if such should ever be the case, Mr. Miller will have to reckon with the Church and with the faithful mothers of our country who will not bow the knee and worship the god of alcoholism and the god of gold.

When we consider that it was bought out in the hearings of the United States Senate Lobby Investigating Committee that this whole wet propaganda is confined to a few millionaires who are willing to debauch and prostitute their country and the youth of the country in order to feather their nests with gold, and that, in 1929, the wet group had only about ten thousand members, and that these claimed to be the majority of the peoples in our country, we can see how preposterous are their claims. This whole investigation and the utterly absurd claims of the wets may be found by referring to page 3895 et seq. of the hearings.

With these facts before us, we can but feel that Mr. Miller has been led by some weird tempting voice to espouse the cause of the wets. We are sorry to see him prostitute his noble powers and energies to the work of debasing his country and its youth, when they might be so much more nobly spent in helping our country and her people to nobler and holier purposes and to a better and a happier way of living and to a nobler civilization than we now enjoy.

This writer is not a member of the Anti-Saloon League of America or of any of its affiliated organizations. He is a teacher upon whose heart has fallen the burden of encouraging and helping the young of this generation to live nobler and more heroic lives than otherwise they might have lived. He can not submit to having temptations thrown athwart their pathways and he therefore stands for the enforcement of the law, for removing temptations and allurements to vice and crime from the paths of the young, and so, there is but one course open for him and that is to oppose with might and main all onslaughts of the enemy against the supreme law of our country.

A FRANK TALK WITH HERALD READERS

It is a recognized fact that religious papers, especially denominational weeklies, have fallen on evil times. They are, almost without exception, financially embarrassed. Many of them have been forced either to combine with other papers or to discontinue altogether.

For two years now our Conference paper, The Methodist Protestant Herald, has been facing an acute financial situation. The time has come, we think, when those who take the Herald, and wish to continue taking it, should face that situation along with the editor and the publishers. For those who read the Herald can help to solve the problem. If the solution comes, it must largely come from them, because they are most interested in it.

The facts simply stated are these: The Herald is being printed for much less than it costs the printers for labor and materials. They have been giving the difference in order that The Herald might not suspend. They have been giving it for the past two years. It isn't fair to ask them to continue to do so. That's fact Number One. The second fact is: The editor of The Herald has been giving his services for less than nothing a year. It isn't fair that he should continue to do so. We don't know any other man in the Conference who could or would. (We can put figures here to prove both facts, but it seems hardly necessary. Take our statement for it. And if you want figures, see the report of the editor in the 1930 Conference Journal.)

Now what's the solution? INCREASE THE HERALD SUBSCRIPTION LIST TO 3,000 SUBSCRIBERS. That is, EVERY SUBSCRIBER GET ONE MORE. That will put The Herald on a paying basis, and give something, although very little, for the editor.

"EVERY SUBSCRIBER GET ONE MORE." That's the slogan adopted by the Conference for this year's subscription campaign. THIS IS THE MONTH. NOW IS THE TIME. WILL YOU WHO READ THIS GET ONE MORE READER? But don't stop with one. Get as many as you can.

To make it interesting, The Herald committee will offer a book of your own choosing to the layman, or woman, who sends in the largest list of subscriptions between now and January 1, provided at least ten yearly, or twenty semi-yearly, subscriptions are sent in. And a book of his own choosing to the pastor who sends in the largest subscription list, provided it is at least 20 yearly or forty semi-yearly subscriptions. GO TO IT.

To those who don't want to enter the contest, let us suggest that you GIVE THE HERALD FOR A CHRISTMAS PRESENT! None would be more acceptable to a great many people. To those who send in such subscriptions, and will indicate it, an engraved card will be sent to the party receiving the subscription indicating that you are sending The Herald as a Christmas present.

NOW EVERYBODY ALL TOGETHER TO MAKE THE HERALD SUBSCRIPTION LIST THE BIGGEST IN ITS HISTORY. WE CAN DO IT IF WE WILL.

The Herald Committee.

GOING BACK

One of the lessons in life that is hardest to learn is to go back to the places where we have failed in duty. When Elijah fled to the wilderness and God sought him out and asked him why he was there, the only answer God made to him, was, "Go, return."

In other words God always sends us back to the places of our failure in order that we may gain a moral victory at the point where we had failed.

Dr. John A. Hutton once pointed out that there is not a greater moment in the soul of a man than when he puts aside his pride, takes back all the presumptuous vows which he made that he would never do this or that, and faces that lonely transaction. You do not know God until you are acquainted with that tremendous experience of going back.—Christian Observer.

All Things Through Christ

Charlotte

November 28.—We had the pleasure of being with Dr. Andrews and his people of the Charlotte church on this date, and to preside during the meeting of the quarterly conference. The regular routine business was transacted, and other matters preparatory to the year's work attended to. Dr. Andrews spoke of matters that he regarded essential to the progress of the church, and suggested two goals, which were promptly accepted by the conference. First, an "Attendance" goal; second "Every Member Contributing" goal. These are certainly worthy and workable, and will produce good results, no doubt. Special attention is to be given absentee and indifferent members. The Sunday School superintendent spoke hopefully of this phase of the work. The church has two C. E. societies, an Auxiliary, and Boy Scout troupe. The report of the treasurer was business like and complete. The church is considerably in arrears, but a good working financial program will change this in due time. The "Every Member Contributing" goal will help much here. It is remarkable how much a small congregation can raise in twelve months, when all give systematically and liberally. It will be interesting to have Charlotte prove this. The conference was well attended, and a spirit of progress and co-operation prevailed.

Dr. Andrews and his family have been heartily received by the church, and they are looking forward hopefully to a happy year's work. They are pleased with their good home—one of the best parsonages in the district. We enjoyed the comfort of it, and the fellowship of the family while on this visit. Among those we missed from the conference was Brother R. S. Garmon. He has just undergone an operation for appendicitis. We were glad to learn that he is recovering.

Lebanon

Sunday, November 30.—It was our privilege on this date, to worship with this congregation again, and to preach at the 11 o'clock hour. The large congregation was an inspiration to us, and we enjoyed our effort to preach, and, likewise, the fellowship of the folks. At the conclusion of the sermon the newly elected officers for the new conference year were installed. The stewards will have a meeting Wednesday night, December 3, to organize, and to plan the financial program of the year. The prospects now are that pastoral supply for the year will be arranged in the very near future. It would be well for this church to provide a parsonage. It is much easier to secure pastoral supply where the church has a home for the preacher.

Assigned

December 1.—On this date, Rev. G. H. Hendry was assigned to Spencer Mission for pastoral supply for the remainder of the year. He is in easy reach of the church, and will give it two afternoon services during the month, and what visiting he is able to do in connection with his work at State Street. We trust that this plan for Spencer may prove a happy one, both for the pastor and the charge.

That Christmas Present

Of course you haven't forgot it; but we just want to stimulate your purpose. Send your subscription in to Dr. McCulloch and have your gift included in the Christmas number. By doing this you will give support to the paper, and at the same time help to keep the Christmas spirit living throughout the year. Let's make Dr. McCulloch happy, and others too, by a large number of "Christmas Present" subscriptions.

Golden Rule Week

This is December 7th-14th. Golden Rule Sunday was conceived in 1923 for the benefit of dependent children in Bible lands, made destitude by the World war. The scope of the idea was widened in 1929 to include the underprivileged children of the whole world. "Golden Rule Sunday" then became "Golden Rule Week." Last year "Golden Rule" gifts were administered through 53 different institutions and agencies, and many hundreds of thousands of needy children all over the world received help and comfort. President Hoover says, "The greatest asset of a race is its children." Golden Rule gifts go to the benefit of childhood. That is sufficent to commend the idea to our attention and sympathetic support. And every dollar that is given, goes for this purpose, we understand. Nothing is taken out for expense. The Golden Rule idea centers around a Golden Rule dinner. It is to be made very simple, and the difference contributed as a Golden Rule gift. Whether we follow this idea or not, let us have some share in Golden Rule Sunday. We urge pastors and superintendents to give the people an opportunity to make an offering on this day—next Sunday, December 7—Golden Rule Sunday. Tell the people that it is for the helpless, dependent, needy, suffering children of the world, and that every penny given will be used for that purpose.

I am presuming on Dr. Brown's willingness to receive the offering, and forward it to New York. Please send it to him.

MINISTERS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED

It was our duty a short time ago to take lunch with a group of men, ministers, called together to plan for the advancement of a worthy cause. After the meal cigarettes were passed and in a short time the room was filled with smoke as those men talked of plans for building a "chapel where unfortunate wards of the state might worship according to their faith." As they talked in that stinking atmosphere I could not help wondering what Christ would say if He should come into their midst. Opposite the writer sat the pastor of the largest church of his denomination in the entire country, so far as membership and wealth goes. In his mouth was a big, fat, black cigar on which he was puffing with all his might. He appeared far more intent on that cigar than on the problem in hand. In his pocket were to be seen three or four more cigars.

Were these men filled with the Holy Spirit? Were they the kind of men who had made this church which they pretended to serve? Are they the kind of men whom God is going to use in saving the world? No, I have since found that if the church which my black cigar smoking friend serves was to be swallowed up today the work of Christ in the world would not be hindered by a moment. It is looked upon by even many of its members as a dead church although seemingly alive.

God needs today "Spirit-Filled" men who have wisdom to carry on His work. The work of the Stephens is still to be done in this world. When His spirit comes into a life these other things are crowded out.—Rev. F. D. Raymond.

AN AFRICAN CHRISTIAN

When Moffat (the English missionary) and his companions were on their travels in Africa, they came near to a heathen village on the banks of the Orange river. They had traveled far, and were suffering from thirst, hunger and fatigue. They were afraid of lions which were seen in that vicinity; and so they wished to remain in the village over night. But the people of the place were rough and unkind, and would not allow them to come in; even insisting on their halting some distance off.

The travelers asked for water, but were refused; they offered the buttons on their jackets for a little milk; but that also was denied them. They had no prospect of anything better than to spend the night hungry and thirsty, though in sight of the village and of the river. And to this must be added that they were suspicious of the villagers themselves, whose manner was most unfriendly.

But when it began to grow dark a woman came to them, with a bundle of wood on her head, and a vessel of milk in her hand. Without speaking, she gave them the milk, laid down the wood and went back to the village. A second time she came with a cooking dish on her head, a leg of mutton in one hand, and water in the other. She sat down without saying a word, prepared the fire, and put on the meat to cook. Again and again they asked her who she was. But she remained silent until her work was done. Then she was again entreated to give a reason for such kindness to strangers. Tears rolled down her dark cheeks as she replied, "I love Him whose servants you are, and surely it is my duty to give you a cup of cold water in His Name. My heart is full. I cannot speak my joy to see you in this out-of-the-world place."

This poor woman was a solitary light burning in a dark corner. She had been some time before in the school of a missionary, where she had learned to love Jesus; and she had now a copy of the Dutch Testament given her by her teacher, Mr. Heline.

When asked how she kept the life of God in her soul, alone, and without Christian help and sympathy, she drew the much-prized Book from her bosom, saying, "There is the oil which makes my lamp burn; this is the fountain whence I drink."—Evangelical Messenger.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A BIBLE?

What is home without a Bible?
'Tis a home where day is night,
Starless night, for o'er life's pathway
Heaven can shed no kindly light.

What is home without a Bible?
'Tis a home where daily bread
For the body is provided,
But the soul is never fed.

What is home without a Bible?
List! and ponder while I speak:
'Tis a home with Bibles in it,
But not opened once a week!

Monday comes and goes, and Tuesday
Comes and goes, and Wednesday, too;
Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday,
Book forgotten the week through.

Lost! the Bible
Lost! its teachings;
Lost! its help each day in seven.
Lost! to live by;
Lost! to die by.
Lost! What's lost?
The way to Heaven!

GOD'S WAY—NOT MINE

A True Story

A woman had prayed and prayed for her husband's salvation. She had kept this up for years. Still he had not yet been converted.

One day they went to a church. The minister preached. To the wife it was an exceedingly dry and unfruitful sermon. On the way home she began to make remarks about it to her husband—how poor it was, how unspirited.

The husband did not reply. She turned to look at him and saw tears streaming down his face. It was the sermon which led to his conversion.

Isn't that the way with so many of us. We pray and pray for God to do something for us, yet we make a mental reservation as to how we want it done. We want it done by our minister, and our way—

Rather than saying, "Lord, not my way, but Thy way."—Gospel Trumpet.

We note a number of churches are preparing to build Sunday School rooms or new houses of worship in entirety. That is a good omen in these days of industrial stagnation.

OUR STORY PAGE

THIRTY DOLLARS AND FORTY CENTS

The school auditorium was full to overflowing, and everybody was as interested as possible, for this was an entertainment entirely by the A-1 Class, and the boys had promised on their hand-bills that there should not be a dull minute. And there was not one. And many were the compliments the boys received.

But the entertainment was not the most important thing, else you would have heard more about it. While the boys were anxious to give their friends a pleasant evening, their main idea was to raise some money for the purpose of making their coming vacation a more enjoyable one. They had succeeded beyond their wildest hopes, and their eyes got big as they gathered about a table after the crowd had left and counted the money which Gordon Littlefield and Andrew Horne had piled out before them.

"Shades of my ancestors!" cried Ira Carroll. "Who ever would have thought we could lay hands on thirty dollars and forty cents? Somebody hold me up. I'm about to faint!"

"Now we can have a camping trip that is a camping trip," exulted Jack Meadows. "Think about—"

"Oh, pshaw!" broke in Gordon disgustedly. "Do we have to fool all this away on one camping trip?"

"What in the name of Patrick Henry do you want to do with it?" demanded Jack. "I thought that was the plan all along."

"You had your head in a sack," retorted Gordon. "We didn't—"

"Why, we did." It was Joe Barnett who pushed his way into the conversation. "We sure did. Didn't we, James?"

"Yes," James Waits nodded. "That's what I supposed."

Andrew managed to make himself heard.

"Now see here, boys," he began. "We worked like towheads for three weeks to get up that entertainment, and we've got the money. Now are we going to spoil it by getting into a row?"

Gordon grabbed the money and shoved it into his pocket. "As treasurer of the A-1 Class," he said, "I'm going to bank this money till the thing's settled. I think at least half of it ought to be spent for books, a sort of circulating library, you know, to—"

"Who wants any more books?" shouted John Leverett. "Why the town's full of 'em, and there's a school library and a Sunday School library, world without end."

"Yes," Gordon admitted, "but we didn't get to pick any of those books."

"Bow-wow," said John. "You make me sick. You never want anything but a book. If you ever get to heaven they'll know better than to offer you a harp. They'll just pop you down to a pile of books."

Gordon grinned. "If they'll let me pick 'em that's all I'll ask."

"Well, I don't want to spend it camping or for books, either," declared Cecil Carroll "Why can't we get some instruments and start a band?"

"That won't do," objected his cousin Ira, "because we couldn't get enough instruments to go round, and—"

"Now you're talking," broke in Jack. "Now if we spend it camping—"

"But we camped last year without any special amount of money," said Cecil. "And if we had a band—"

"Well, we can't fool around here all night," protested Gordon. "Let's go home, and thrash this out some other time. I'll put the money in the bank in the morning, and it's not going to be touched till we can come to some sort of agreement."

Thereupon the conclave broke up, and the boys went to their homes. They did not all get together any more during the week, but as often as any two met, the money came up for discussion.

On Sunday morning the question was still unsettled, and when the class met, they came near losing the right to their name, for not one had an A-1 lesson nor an A-1 attitude toward his classmates.

Their teacher, Mr. Maddox, was puzzled. He had been at the entertainment, but had left before the money was counted. Gordon had called him up the next day and told him with quite an air of pride how much they had made by their own unaided efforts, and he had rejoiced with him enthusiastically. But here was a new situation. It was plain there was an unfriendly feeling among them, and the lesson fell flat, try as he might.

He asked no questions, deciding it was best, if possible, to let matters straighten out by themselves. The boys filed out of the classroom and immediately separated, a thing which was quite unusual with them. He went home with his mind filled with all sorts of conjecture, and, after some reflection, came to the conclusion that it would be wise to get them out on a hike and let them have a chance to get their minds cleared up.

On Monday evening he called up each in turn to talk up the hike. None of them seemed particularly interested, but they all agreed to go, and the following Saturday afternoon was set as the most convenient time.

The first thing Mr. Maddox noted when they met was that each had a sort of belligerent air, and he feared the hike was not going to be a great success. He put forth his best efforts, but in vain. Not even in toasting "weenies" and strips of bacon did they unbend the stiffness of their attitude. He disliked making an outright inquiry, so after supper, when they were seated about the camp fire in the cool spring dusk, he ignored it altogether and started telling stories. It had been their custom on such occasions to let it travel round the circle. Andrew sat next to him and, naturally, was looked to for the next story.

He began it, "Once upon a time," but as he went on, the boys looked at one another horrified. Andrew was telling the story of their own disagreement. True, he was not giving names or places, but it all came out. At the end of it, he looked smilingly at Mr. Maddox.

"How should they have settled it?" he inquired.

His teacher understood at once, and answered lightly. "They might have taken the vote on it by secret ballot and let the majority rule."

The boys looked at each other and grinned sheepishly. Nothing was said, but the story telling proceeded more cheerfully, and when the time came to go home, they were almost their usual selves. On the way back the word was passed around that they would have a meeting Monday afternoon.

Monday afternoon, after school, they gathered in Mr. Horne's back yard to take the vote. And when they counted up, they found that most of them had definite plans of their own. Only two plans had as many as two votes and that made a tie.

"I should think you boys would be ashamed," began Mary. "Why, folks can hear you a block away."

Andrew flared up. "Now see here, Mary, this isn't your funeral. You know I never mess in your affairs when the girls come to see you, and you'd better—"

"We never make as much noise as that," smiled Mary. "Besides—"

"Boys," said Andrew, "let's go to the schoolhouse."

"No," cried Dorothy, "don't yet. We want to tell you something, truly."

"Maybe we'd better let 'em say it," suggested Gordon. "Dot isn't so bad to butt in. It might be worthwhile."

"It is," cried Dorothy, jumping about excitedly. "Mary and I had just got together to try to think up some plan for the girls' class to get hold of some money to do something for somebody, but he might die while we are getting it raised, and—"

Gordon jumped up from the box on which he was sitting and laughingly put his hand over his sister's mouth.

"Now begin at the beginning and tell us what you are talking about," he said. "We can't tell what you're driving at."

"Tell it, Mary," said Dorothy. "You thought of it first."

"Well," began Mary, "our washwoman's little boy has just had pneumonia, and isn't getting well the way the doctor hoped he would. You know she lives in a little dark flat that the sun never gets into. Mother talked to the doctor about it, and he said if the little boy could go to the country where he could get lots of sunshine and fresh air and milk, he might soon get well."

"But what's that got to do with us?" demanded Jack.

"Well," said Mary. "You've got some money."

"And you don't know what to do with it," chimed in Dorothy. "And the doctor knows a place out in the country where they will board the little boy for five dollars a week. That thirty dollars would pay his way out there and back and give him five weeks. By that time he'd be well."

"If the girls' class had that money," added Mary, "they'd know what to do with it. That's what!"

"Farewell, vain world!" exclaimed Jack. "Have we worked three weeks just for this?"

"We didn't say for you to do it," said Dorothy. "But if you don't, the girls will. Only—" she heaved a sigh; "it's going to take us so long, that the little fellow may die before we get it."

"Is that all you girls had to say?" asked Andrew.

"Yes," they nodded in unison.

"And we're going right this minute," Mary finished up.

"I'm fey, as the old vikings said," began Ira, "and I can see all the things we planned disappearing."

"Let 'em go," said Gordon. "I was beginning to wish we had never got hold of a cent of that money anyway."

"Fellows," proposed Andrew, who was class president, "do you want to take the vote all over again on what to do with that money?"

"Yes," said James, "and let's vote out loud."

"All right," said Andrew. "All in favor of sending the little boy out to the country, say 'Aye.' "

There was a chorus of ayes, and the thing was done. They called the girls and commissioned them to go and tell the boy's mother. Somehow it seemed as if a weight had been taken off their shoulders. And the next Sunday when Mr. Maddox faced a smilng class which gave every evidence of deserving its name, he remarked:

"I judge that the matter is settled."

"Unanimously," agreed Andrew. "And now we haven't a cent to our name, and we don't care a hoot. Do we, fellows?"

"Not one," they chorused. —Flora Sweetnam, in Youths' World.

GOD DID IT

This is the magnificent testimony of many who, when pressed for an explanation of their experience, are, by reason of the overwhelming wonder of that which has taken place in their lives, driven to a confession which seems inadequate. But to these revolutionized lives, whatever else may bear the stamp of ambiguty or uncertainty, there always remains this one grand and glorious conviction—God did it! The spiritual and moral metamorphosis was too great and too complete to be ascribed to a lesser power than that of the Almighty.

To the scientific sage, and to those who reside in realms of philosophical lore, this may appear unsatisfactory and insufficient as an answer to their query. But to the Blood-washed, Spirit-filled, believer it contains in a single sentence the essence of the mystery and miracle of the new creation. In that season of threatened crisis and calamity, suddenly the dark storm-clouds were rolled back—as though some authoritative Voice had commanded their dispersal—and the soul was left upon the battle-field more than victor. Not a single blow had been struck in self-defense—not a word had been uttered in self-vindication, yet the crisis passed, and left the believer in possession of the position which awhile since seemed so untenable. What had happened? How did it happen? You cannot tell! All you know is simply this—God did it!

Again in that hour of utter hopelessness, when sickness seized the body for its prey and life was ebbing fast. In a moment life streamed in, and to the amazement of all health was restored. But words cannot be commanded to express or explain all the glory of that wonder-filled hour. With brimming eyes and love-anointed lips you whisper—God did it! Out of the silence of the unseen and the unknown, Jehovah stepped in and became Champion of your cause.—The Elim Evangel.

You will note a number of thank-offerings in this report, besides the splendid ones coming from the dear friends in our own Conference. You will find that Alabama, Canada, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia are all represented in the above. The one from the children in our mission school at Pine Ridge, Ky., is a remarkable and touching offering. The three little boys said: "We haven't much to send, but we are thankful that our father and mother are living, and will send what we can." We would like to quote from other letters, but must desist. However, we do appreciate, so much, the many fine expressions which came to us, and the wonderful spirit manifest in these thank-offerings.

HISTORY OF THE THOMPSON SCHOOL

By Dr. W. T. WHITSETT

(Extracts from the historical address delivered at the Reunion of Thompson School students at Siler City, N. C., November 14, 1930).

Prof. J. A. W. Thompson

Prof. J. A. W. Thompson was born September 11, 1853; died March 30, 1925. Born at the old homestead in Alamance county, North Carolina, it is fitting that his burial was in the ancient Thompson burial ground amid his ancestors near the banks of the Haw River, two miles south of Swepsonville in the soil of his native county. He was married December 21, 1882, to V. Isabella Roberson, who was born December 6, 1860; died April 17, 1926.

Prof. Thompson completed the course in the famous Bingham School while it was located at Mebane, N. C., finishing his work there some time in the early seventies. Maj. Robert Bingham, who was at that time in charge of the Bingham School, became a warm friend and admirer of J. A. W. Thompson during his student days, and his interest in him continued through the following years. On September 27, 1885, he visited Prof. Thompson's school, then located at Oakdale, and on November 17, 1885, wrote the following letter, giving his impressions: "You have the typical school for the education—at small cost—of our youth of both sexes. I was pleased to see so good an equipment, so well-drilled a military company, so correct a student body, and so faithful a corps of teachers." These are fine words to come from Major Bingham, for he is justly regarded as one of the really great teachers of North Carolina.

Beginning at Oakdale Academy

The progressive citizens of the community surrounding Oakdale in Alamance county had in 1876 made a serious effort to establish a permanent school in their midst, but after four years of varied experiences they were becoming discouraged in their efforts. Prof. Thompson, then about 27 years old, was looking for a suitable location for school work, and was impressed with the spirit of the community. As a result of the negotiations that followed he began his work there under the name of Oakdale Academy in August, 1880, and continued until December, 1886, at which date the school was moved to Siler City; opening there in January, 1887, under the name of the Thompson School, and continuing until December, 1897. It was during these years in the period from 1880 to 1897 that Professor Thompson really did his life work, and made his permanent impression upon the educational life of his day, and upon the hundreds who were so fortunate as to come under his influence. While we are here today terming this the reunion of Thompson School students we are including all those who attended the school under the name of Oakdale Academy, as well as those who came later to the Thompson School at Siler City, for the work at the two places had the same directive head, the same ideals, and the same lofty purposes. It would have been unjust to have moved the school and carried with it the name Oakdale, for that name was a community possession, but it would be unjust in us today not to give to Professor Thompson the credit due him for the same actuating purposes as he directed the work at the two respective places; his work begins at Oakdale, rises there to its finest possibilities, is carried to Siler under the name of the Thompson School, and the true work of his life really closes with his work here.

Success at Oakdale

The three years following the establishment of Oakdale Academy in 1880 brought it to the notice of the State. My own personal contact with the school dates from August, 1883, to May, 1886, the period of the highest development of the work on the Oakdale location. I shall draw from the school catalogue for the year ending May 20, 1886, for facts to show the status of the school at that time. While this catalogue contained only 28 pages it was so well arranged, so closely condensed, that it gives us a fine picture of just what had been done at that period. It was well-written, and breathes throughout the spirit and ideals of Professor Thompson, who was its author. For the school he sets forth the claim: "An English, Classical, Mathematical and Commercial Academy, with a Course of Instruction either Preparatory or Finishing for Life." His faculty for that year was J. A. W. Thompson, superintendent; M. D. McNeill, Latin and Greek; Z. V. Peed, Literary Department and Drill Master; S. C. Thompson, Literary Department; A. W. Wilson, Vocal and Instrumental Music; J. J. Fowler, Penmanship, Crayon and Pen Drawing; Miss Beulah Patterson, Calisthenics; with a Normal Teacher for the Fall Term still to be elected. The Postoffice once at Patterson's Store, had been changed to Oakdale. The catalogue justly claims: "The school gradually rose to its present status, now standing in the front rank among the educational institutions of the State." Vocal music was introduced in 1881, also instrumental, and the music room was built; in 1882 Penmanship and Calisthenics were added; in 1882 the main academy building was greatly enlarged, and two assistants added to the teaching force. In 1885 a new recitation building was erected and a Normal department added to prepare teachers for public school work. With its new Victor desks, wall maps, charts, etc., the school was for that time one of the best furnished in the State. The Military department was supplied with guns for drilling, and the Cadet Gray uniform was supplied at a cost of $20.00. The school opened at 8:30 with religious exercises, and on the Sabbath there was Sabbath school and prayer meeting, which practically all students attended. The Oakdale Student was published as a 12-page monthly, with two editors chosen from the Prolific and the Erasmian literary societies. There were no dormitories, but the students boarded in the private families near the school, and many of limited means reduced expenses by living in clubs in which the boys did their own cooking. A number of gold medals were given in different departments of the school. For the scholastic year 1885-1886 there were 135 students, 74 being boarding students from 25 different counties.

Endorsed by Leading Educators

Oakdale Academy won the commendation of many leading educators: among them, Prof. M. C. S. Noble, of the Wilmington City Schools at that time, later of the University; W. S. Long, superintendent public schools of Alamance County; A. H. Merritt, superintendent public school of Chatham County; S. M. Finger, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Kemp P. Battle, president of the University of North Carolina; D. S. Stephens, president of Adrian College; Eben S. Stearns, chancellor of the University of Nashville; and others prominent in the educational world. By their strong words favoring Oakdale Academy, these and others were of much help in fixing firmly the school's reputation in public esteem. Scores of his patrons, also, from various counties furnished fine letters of praise showing their satisfaction with the school's work, and thus helped to widen the school's influence. Professor Thompson was especially fortunate in securing the patronage of many of the State's leading citizens whose personal standing helped so much to establish the work of the school in the public mind.

The Oakdale Environment

No picture of the work of Professor Thompson would be complete without some word as to the local setting of Oakdale Academy at Oakdale. Here in the extreme southwestern part of Alamance County, 14 miles from the county-seat at Graham, and six miles from Liberty, was one of the most delightful agricultural communities to be found in the State 50 years ago. The farmers owned their homes, produced yearly an abundant supply of everything needed, and were a moral and religious people, attending on the Sabbath day their nearby Methodist, Baptist, Christian, and Lutheran churches. They were deeply interested in the education of the children of their community, and felt no sacrifice too great to make towards this end. Call the roll of some of these men, and give to them also something of the credit due in telling the story of the eductional work of Prof. J. A. W. Thompson. Among the names that come to mind are: John R. Adams, Judge S. Patterson, T. J. Stroud, Balaam Hornaday, George W. Coble, H. M. C. Stroud, O. N. Hornaday, Wm. D. Adams, D. F. Way, G. A. Clendenin. These are the men who held up the arms of the teacher in their midst as he labored so faithfully to establish a school for the youth of his day. These are the homes that cared for the students, and as memory turns again the pages of the past a thousand pictures of the delightful days spent amid these surroundings will crowd the mind. It

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Union Chapel, Granville Charge.—We are so glad our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, has returned to us. I think we have had a successful year and our pastor and wife have labored faithfully for the upbuilding of the work here. We hope to make this our best year.

We were very glad to have Rev. Merritt from Ahoskie M. E. church with us Sunday, borrowed him from the M. E. conference at Henderson. He delivered a helpful and inspiring sermon using "Faith" as his theme. The Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home was taken at this service and amounted to $28.00.

The members of our Woman's Auxiliary have been hard at work all through the year. We met with Mrs. J. W. Floyd in October. Had a good meeting, good reports, etc. The treasurer reported two-thirds of the budget paid and this was very encouraging to us.

A district meeting of the Woman's Auxiliaries was held at Rehoboth the first Sunday afternoon. Miss Crystal Bobbitt, chairman of district No. 2, presided. The main feature on the program was an address by Mr. A. A. Hicks of Oxford. He used "Truth" for his subject. Mrs. Clyde Finch of Henderson made a talk on "Christianizing America." The reports from the different auxiliaries were inspiring. The next meeting will be held at Union Chapel in the spring.

◆

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth.—The Young People's Missionary Society met with Misses Milna and Lois Long last Saturday evening at 3 o'clock to hold its regular weekly meeting.

Our Sunday school seems to be very active, but we are desiring more interest all the time. The attendance was very good Sunday considering the bad roads and the sickness in the community. Our superintendent is very much concerned about the work. May we do all in our power to help him in his great work.

We are very glad indeed that Mr. H. C. Whitman has returned from the hospital. He had been there for almost two weeks.

The Woman's Auxiliary will give a thank-offering program Sunday night, November 30. We extend an invitation to all.

RUTH LONG, Reporter.

◆

Oak Grove, Cleveland.—This is the third year that Rev. C. E. Ridge has served Cleveland charge. We are indeed fortunate to have had the service of this good man for these years and we extend to him the heartiest welcome ever. At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning Bro. Ridge gave a most fitting sermon for the new year; text, Cor. 12:14: "I come not to seek yours but you." We feel that Bro. Ridge has this charge at heart; if we as members will co-operate with him much good will be accomplished.

We are sorry to state that Bro. C. M. Hasting, one of Oak Grove's oldest members, is still confined to his room. We hope that he will soon be able to fill his place at Oak Grove again.

We were delighted to have Bro. Ridge's mother, two brothers and one sister, all of Greensboro, who spent the week-end with him and his family, worship with us Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guffey and Miss Willie Pendleton, of Asheville, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Pendleton.

Our former pastor, Rev. J. D. Morris, will be with us at our Thanksgiving service Thursday night. We are glad to have him come and be with us. Let's all come with open hearts and make it really a thanksgiving service by making a good offering to our Children's Home.

MRS. F. H. GRIGG, Reporter.

◆

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—We are glad indeed to have our same pastor and wife return to us. Brother Fogleman filled his appointment with us Sunday morning with an inspiring sermon. I have heard several people say that this was the best sermon that they had ever heard Mr. Fogleman preach.

One of our oldest members, Mrs. R. A. Hardy, is desperately ill with high blood pressure and heart trouble.

The members of the Woman's Auxiliary are planning to have their annual bazaar on November 25 at the home of Mrs. J. L. Alston. We are also expecting to sell the quilt which the members of the Auxiliary have made at this time.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN,

◆

Union Grove, Orange Charge. We are all delighted very much with the return of our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams. His work has been very successful and we hope it will be more successful this year. He filled his first appointment here the fifth Sunday afternoon which was our Thanksgiving service, with a very good attendance. We were also glad to see his son, Archie Gray, able to be with him.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers.

FLORA RILEY.

Tabernacle Charge.—On Monday night, November 24, the pastor of this charge was agreeably surprised when Brother T. B. Reynolds and wife drove up to his home with a car loaded with almost everything needed for the pantry. The pounding was from Circle No. 3 of the Auxiliary of Tabernacle church and was a Thanksgiving pounding. Those who took part were: Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. John Gregson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garrett, Miss Pearl Coble, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coble, Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Trogdon, Miss Kate Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Coble, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garrett, Miss Beulah Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Shaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Worth Trogdon.

Our vocabulary is too limited to express our appreciation for these generous donations. May the great Head of the church bless the donors and help us to render our very best service.

We have been gratified just recently to receive into the membership of Tabernacle church Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Coble and two sons, John William and Walter, Jr., from Calvary church, Greensboro, and Mrs. Richard Fogleman from Alamance Presbyterian church. Mr. and Mrs. Coble have located permanently on their farm near Julian, and Mrs. Fogleman joined Tabernacle with her husband. On the last Sunday before Conference Mr. Alton Blackard, a splendid young man, united with Julian church on profession of faith.

All of the church organizations on this charge are functioning in a satisfactory way.

H. L. ISLEY, Pastor.

P. S.: Just before Conference we were kindly remembered by Tabernacle and Julian members: Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hanner, Mrs. Helen Horney and mother, Miss Annie Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hanner, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fields, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hardin.

Roberta.—We were very sorry to lose our good pastor, Rev. Robert Short, and family, but we are proud of our new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Hill. He brings some soul-stirring sermons. We enjoying hearing them. We wish Rev. Mr. Short much success in his work.

Sunday school at Roberta every Sunday morning beginning at 10 o'clock. Preaching services at 11 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. by the pastor.

On Sunday, November 23, John Penninger was elected church treasurer.

We are very sorry to say that Mrs. Will Rogers, one of our members, is very sick with double pneumonia and flu. We pray that if it is the Lord's will she may soon be able to be up again. Also Mrs. Frances Motley is on the sick list. We ask your prayers for her, too, as she is very old.

Rev. Mr. Short and son, Dexter, of Denton, were welcome visitors in our community Saturday.

MISS ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

◆

Why Not Charge.—The first donation of edibles since Conference was given by Mrs. L. A. King. The next in order was by Mrs. Noah Williams and Mrs. C. T. Luck. For a long time Mrs. Nettie Allen and Mrs. W. R. Williams have helped us materially. Dr. D. J. Johnson, our second door neighbor, has given us free of charge all medical attention needed by our famiy. We are inexpressibly grateful to these big-hearted friends.

At Love Joy church Saturday, December 13, at 11 a. m. Dr. Taylor will preach. Following the sermon lunch will be served at 1 p. m. The quarterly conference will convene. On Sunday President Taylor will preach at Love Joy at 11 a. m. He will preach at Macedonia at 2:30 p. m.

Let every church official take note of the conference and plan to attend.

Wm. H. NEESE.

◆

Moriah.—We are very glad indeed to have our pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, back with us again this year. He brought us a wonderful sermon Sunday, his subject being

"Serving God With What We Have." The little things we do in kindness is what counts.

Our Sunday school seems to be very active, but we are striving for more interest and members. Our superintendent is much concerned in our work. May we all co-operate with him in making this a very, very successful year.

We had several visitors Sunday. We were very glad indeed to have them with us. Strangers will always find a welcome in our midst. REPORTER.

Denton to Davidson Charge.—We have never served more loyal members than the good people on Denton charge. We have become very much attached to them and it is with many regrets that we leave our old friends. We had the best of neighbors around the parsonage. We shall never forget their kindness and helpfulness. The day we moved some of them helped us. We hold a warm place in our hearts for all the faithful members on Denton Charge. We have a good school in Denton and we are proud of the fact that our children will have truck conveyance to the same school. We welcome any who wish to come to our home or churches at any time.

On Thursday, the 20th of November, the good people of Davidson charge came to Denton to move us to the parsonage at Handy. We did not have very far to move—only about four miles. But it was no little job to get all our plunder together, load, unload and place the things. When we arrived at Handy we found that the Ladies' Aid had scrubbed the floors and had everything in good condition. The men had secured some lumber and built a good, substantial chicken house for our chickens. All the above has been done without any charge to the pastor or any collecting to be done on the charge. It would be impossible for us to mention all the names of those who have taken part in these favors shown the pastor and his family, but we wish to say with all there is within us, thank you! thank you!.

During our short stay among the Davidson members they have been constantly remembering us. We thank each one for their gifts, and hope in turn we shall be able to render some service to them. We have been gladly received at all the churches. It is our prayer that this may be a good year in kingdom service on Davidson circuit.

We have taken a Thanksgiving offering at four of the churches; at least three of the churches took part in a collection of wheat, corn, potatoes, pumpkins, molasses, canned fruit, hose, etc., that the pastor carried to the Children's Home on Thanksgiving day.

The first quarterly conference of Davidson charge will be held at Lineberry church on Saturday afternoon at 1:30 on December 13. All official members are urged to be present as there will be important business to transact. E. A. BINGHAM.

Union Grove, Orange Charge.—We were very glad indeed that Conference returned our present pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams. He has served us faithfully for six years, and we are looking for another successful year.

We were rained out the third Sunday, but we had a Thanksgiving service the fifth Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The offering will go to the Children's Home.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Efland church the second Saturday in December at 2 p. m.

Our Sunday school is fairly good, although it could be better.

Best wishes to all.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.—We are glad to be back with these good people for another year. We have filled all appointments so far and the people seem to be glad that we are to serve them another year, although this is the beginning of the 22nd year altogether that we have served this charge. We have received more members into the different churches on this charge than the total membership at present, so many have crossed over since we first came here 32 years ago.

The people have kindly remembered us with edibles, wood and other things. Mr. William Cox, who operates a nursery at Pilot Mountain, gave us about $80 worth of shrubbery for the parsonage and church. It helps the appearance of both.

The first quarterly conference will meet at Pinnacle church Saturday before the third Sunday in December at 1:30 p. m. The officials will please take notice and be present.

A. L. HUNTER.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, preached his first sermon the fifth Sunday for us which we enjoyed. We were glad to have Mrs. Bingham and children worship with us. We believe that we have a good preacher. Let us all do our part to help make this a good year. Let us commence at the first of the Conference year.

We still remember Mr. and Mrs. Reed, who were kind to us. We wish them great success in their new field of work and that they may be restored to health and may have many more happy days.

First quarterly meeting at Lineberry on Saturday evening before the second Sunday in December.

Preaching at Alleghany the second Sunday in December. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Asheboro. -The Workers' Council of the Sunday school held their meeting at the church on Monday evening, November 24. Plans were made for a Christmas entertainment by the school; also gifts will be given to those who are in need.

On Tuesday evening the board of stewards met and made plans for financing the church and discussed other matters of importance.

The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was 260, one more than the Sunday before.

The church service was well attended; a number of college students at home for Thanksgiving were present, also a number of visitors, which we were glad to have. We feel all were benefited by the effective sermon by the pastor. His subject was "God's Provisions for His Own." The text was from Romans 8:28: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." The choir rendered a beautiful anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord;" good singing, not only by the choir, but by the congregation also makes worship more impressive.

We were indeed glad to have Mrs. Stubbins in our choir; she will be a great help to us.

On account of the rain late Sunday afternoon and evening the attendance at the evening service was small.

Mr. R. R. Ross, a charter member of our church, celebrated his 80th birthday Sunday, November 30, at his home here. He was happy to have all the family share the day with him.

The children from the Children's Home will render a program in our church next Sunday evening, December 7, at 7:30 o'clock; all the people are invited to come and hear them, as they are always enjoyed here.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Walter Presnell are announcing today (Monday) the marriage of their daughter, Ellen Jane, to Mr. Thomas Calvin Crebbs on Tuesday, July 22, 1930, at Danville, Va., They will be at home after December 15th in Gordonsville, Virginia. We extend congratulations and best wishes. Miss Presnell is a member of our church and a teacher in the Sunday school and we regret to lose her.

Rev. W. F. McDowell, who has been suffering with a severe cold, is improving. We are hoping he will soon be able to be with us again in our services.

LOLLIE JONES, Reporter.

Saxapahaw, Saxapahaw Charge.—We wish to thank the Conference for returning to us Pastor Whitehead. We feel that he is indeed a man of God, and we are sure the people will be in sympathy with him in all his undertakings.

We are planning to build four new Sunday school rooms to our church and every class in our Sunday school is interested in this work. Several dollars have already been realized and we are hoping to begin the work at an early date. REPORTER.

Albemarle.—Our new pastor, Rev. Geo. L. Curry, delivered an inspiring message for his first sermon Sunday morning, winning the admiration and praise of all who heard him. The night service was also especially good, beginning with a special song service with the male quartet as an added feature. Rev. Mr. Curry had chosen a very appropriate subject for the evening, which was "Thanksgiving," and some wonderful thoughts were brought out which had probably never passed through our minds before. After hearing this message we realized more than ever how many, many things we have to be thankful for, and how greatly we are indebted to God, who giveth all these things. Truly we can say in the words of the text, "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good."

At the close of the service a touching plea was made for donations to our Children's Home, and a nice sum was realized from the offering.

Our pastor's family was pleasantly surprised on last Wednesday night, when a large number of men and women arrived at the parsonage with their arms full of bundles, boxes and bags containing all sorts of groceries. These were deposited on the kitchen table, after which the pastor expressed his appreciation for their kindness and generosity. We all then assembled in the front rooms and had a song and prayer together. We are indeed glad to welcome him and his family into our midst.

The two Circles of the Ladies' Aid Society met in regular session Tuesday, November 19. Each Circle met separately, but as the pro cedure was practically the same, we are reporting them jointly. The Lucy Hatley Circle was entertained by Mrs. Boyd Gantt, and the Cam Snotherly Circle by Mrs. C. W. Hatley. The chairman of each Circle presided and carried out the regular order of business. It was decided that the ways and means committee from each Circle have a joint meeting to formulate plans for an entertainment which will be held in the social room of the church Tuesday, December 3rd. A motion was made and carried that the treasurer pay $100.00 on a note which is due against the church.

A social hour followed during which delightful refreshments were served.

Rehoboth Church, Granville Charge.—Conference is over and we are glad to welcome our loyal pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, for the new year.

The past year was a very successful one, but we wish to do greater work in the year of 1931.

The writer had the pleasure of attending Conference at Albemarle, and I don't think I ever enjoyed any kind of services more. The entire program was interesting.

The Woman's Auxiliary was entertained last Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. W. O. Cheatham. The president presided; Mrs. R. W. Harris led the devotional. The program consisted of songs, prayers of consecration, and business was pursued, after which the hostess served home-made chocolate and cocoanut candy.

Circle No. 3 of the Auxiliary will give a silver tea next Friday afternoon.

We have decided to make our Thanksgiving offering next first Sunday morning. Trust that we may be as liberal as we can.

Mr. T. D. Harris, of Washington, D. C., is visiting his mother, Mrs. E. C. Harris. We trust that his health is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Hattie Perkins has also been at home on a vacation.

Our officers were installed before Conference.

Rev. Mr. Spencer gave us a fine sermon on the first Sunday. This was his first sermon on returning. We wish to co-operate with him in his work and try to press onward towards the goal. May we all feel that we have a task to perform and may we get about it.

The quarterly conference meets soon.

Miss Lucy Rogers has been elected reporter, so she will write next time.

Mr. Arch Parrot and Kathryn Wyche were married recently. We wish them a happy life.

We haven't completed our plans for Christmas, but we are thinking of having a Christmas program.

Mr. Jasper Hicks and Miss Grace Boyd were married at noon on the 29th inst.

REPORTER.

Liberty.—Once again we begin a new Conference year with renewed energy and greater ambitions. We are very glad to have our pastor, Rev. J. D. Williams, who has served us so faithfully the past year, come back to us.

Sunday morning the officers of the church for the ensuing year were installed, as folliws: Stewards, R. L. Elkin, J. E. Cox, A. J. Brower, C. L. Highfill, and Mrs. B. J. Gregson; trustees, A. S. Pickett, John Holt, J. W. Curtis, O. P. Brower and J. N. Isley; superintendent, Willie Smith, secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Mamie Smith; ushers, J. B. York and W. M. Hanner; class leaders, Mrs. W. C. Shuford, Mrs. John Holt and Mrs. J. A. Clapp; pianist, Miss Dorothy Curtis; reporter, Mrs. J. N. Isley.

We feel there is much work to be done and with the co-operation of the church and Sunday school may we accomplish much.

We are glad to know that Mrs. C. L. Highfill is able to come home. She has been a patient in Wesley Long Hospital for two months. We have missed her very much. Another faithful member, Mrs. J. B. York, has been very sick; she is in a hospital in High Point. Hope she may soon be well again.

There will be a union Thanksgiving service held at our church Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

We were very glad to have Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon with a class of children from the Children's Home take charge of the service Sunday evening; am sure every one present enjoyed hearing the children and we are always glad to have them come.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maynard, of Chapel Hill, spent Sunday with Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Williams.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers for a happy and successful year.

MRS. J. N. ISLEY, Reporter.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Our Sunday school has grown so much until the young men's class is planning to build a hut, as they have outgrown their Sunday school room. This is a fine class of young men that any Sunday school should be proud of. There are from 55 to 60 present every Sunday in this class. There were 259 present last Sunday for Sunday school, and it runs something like that every Sunday. The children will start practice soon for the Christmas program.

Our new pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, has been with us since Conference and all seem well pleased with him. He has preached some splendid sermons and is having good congregations out to hear him at every service. We are looking for a good year's work and feel sure, with God's help, we will succeed.

The class of young girls will hold their class meeting next Tuesday night; this is a fine class of young girls; they have about 30 present every Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid will hold their December meeting with Mrs. C. E. Wilson.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday night; this service is well attended.

We ask your prayers.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—We are indeed fortunate and glad to have Rev. L. W. Gerringer for our pastor this year. Although he was a stranger to us when we met him, we feel now that he will be a great friend and helper in the Master's work. We were glad to have him with us Sunday at 11 o'clock, rendering a splendid sermon, which was enjoyed by all. We welcome Mrs. Gerringer and children; we feel that they will be a great help to us this year.

It was with sad hearts that we bid Rev. and Mrs. O. B. Williams goodby, as they were with us only a few months and had done much for our church. We are glad to know that he has a higher work this year and may the "God of peace" be with them and bless them in their new field of service.

Our Sunday school is doing very well for winter months, although some were absent on account of sickness.

Miss Permelia Smith, being at her home over the Thanksgiving week-end, is suffering severe pain from a burn received by a scald on the arm.

Our first quarterly conference will meet at Maple Springs Monday, December 8, 1930.

REPORTER.

Mt. Hermon, Creswell Circuit.—Sunday morning a special message was brought to us by our new pastor, Rev. J. R. Russell. His text was "Thanksgiving." A good congregation was present and the service was enjoyed by all; every individual so far seems to like the new pastor immensely.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at church on Thursday night after last first Sunday in a business meeting. A very good program was rendered by the members; afterwards the election of officers took place and the addition of two new members to the roll call. The society's name was changed to the Ladies' Auxiliary. We as a whole are striving as the new year approaches to make it a better and more progressive organization, by regular attendance and co-operation, pledging ourselves to its use.

IDA S. AMBROSE, Reporter.

Henderson—We have begun our sixth year's work as pastor of the Henderson church and have been most cordially received by the people of the church and community. The attendance at the first service of the new Conference year was fine and many of the members expressed a desire to make this the "best yet" Conference year.

The new officers of the church were elected and installed before Conference and last Sunday the every-member canvass was begun and is being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. In spite of "hard times" the people are responding loyally and we are expecting a fine showing to be made before the canvass is closed.

Our monthly meeting of teachers and officers of the Sunday school will be held next Wednesday evening. At that time plans will be made for the annual Christmas service by the Sunday school which will be given some time during the holidays.

Our church is very much alive, as can be seen by the monthly reports of our faithful reporter, Mrs. C. L. Finch, and this pastor and family are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to serving these fine people for another year.

R. A. HUNTER.

Lexington, State Street.—The work in all its branches is getting started on the year's program in an enthusiastic way that is encouraging to the pastor and people alike.

At the 11 o'clock hour Sunday three new members were received into the church. These were Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Nanny, from a Baptist church in Shelby, and Mrs. J. D. Holt, of this city, from the First Reformed church here. We all welcome these friends into our midst most heartily.

At the evening service Mr. and Mrs. Wade and their two attractive children, of Fountain Place, Burlington, were very welcome visitors.

Our pastor, Rev. Mr. Hendry, was at one time pastor of these fine people and our former pastor, Rev. N. G. Bethea is their pastor now. So there is a feeling of "kinship" between them and us. Mr. Hendry asked Mrs. Wade to sing for us and she graciously consented, delighting us with a solo.

All the Circles of the Missionary Society will meet at the church Wednesday night for discussion of ways and means and for a social hour.

Plans are under way for a Christmas celebration. Details of the program will be worked out soon and practice begun.

Many of our boys and girls who are away at college were home for Thaanksgiving.

Next Sunday is the day set apart by our church and practically all M. P. churches to give the equivalent of a day's income to the Children's Home. Everyone should give to this worthy cause in as liberal a way as possible. REPORTER.

North Davidson Charge.—The new year is starting very nicely. I have made one full round except Union Grove, the new church added last Conference. I'll preach there on the first Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock p. m. The reception has been fine at all the churches visited. We are entering the work with zeal and faith, believing that we shall have another good year.

All the churches are preparing to have Christmas trees and entertainments. If we can have co-operation, and I believe we will, God will give us good success in kingdom service.

Bethesda will soon be building two new Sunday school rooms. The Sunday school has outgrown the additions made only a few years ago. There are other additions and improvements undertaken within this Conference year. We also expect to do much better on our finances.

May courage and determination increase the zeal to do our Master's will.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

Seagrove.—We are glad to have Brother Neese and family back another year.

On Tuesday night before Thanksgiving we held Thanksgiving services. This service was gotten up by the Ladies' Aid Society. The collection for thank-offering was $10.00, which will count on our Conference budget.

We had 50 present at Sunday school last Sunday, which is an increase over last year.

We are planning a Christmas program and treat for the Sunday school. We have a fine group of children here and they take great interest in the Sunday school.

We think we are starting off well on the new year's work and hope for great things this year. MRS. NOAH WILLIAMS.

First Church, High Point.—As a surprise to our minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, on Wednesday evening before Thanksgiving Day, November 27th, about 150 members of the congregation assembled at 6:30 p. m. in the social room for the Fellowship Supper meeting. Even the kiddies were present in large numbers, and each family brought dishes or baskets of cooked food. Members of Circle No. 5, Mrs. A. M. Rankin, chairman, had set the tables, and made delicious coffee. The bountiful and appetizing supper was greatly enjoyed after Dr. Dixon had returned thanks, at the conclusion of which all gathered in a semi-circle around the minister, who conducted the usual mid-week service of prayer and praise. Several sentence prayers of special thanks for manifold blessings through the past year were expressed, and the communion of kindred spirits was truly delightful and uplifting. Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Coe had issued a letter to every family of the membership who are residents of the city, and were amply rewarded by the large attendance and the evident joy and appreciation of Rev. Mr. Farmer, whose countenance radiated happiness.

At the morning hour for worship last Sunday, we were delighted to have Rev. J. R. Anderson, the new pastor of Welch Memorial church, worship with us, and he was asked to make the opening prayer. The minister delivered an inspiring and eloquent sermon on "Proud of the Gospel," from the text found in Romans 1:16: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation." He said in part: The will of the present is the key to the future, and our present character is directing what we shall become in years to come. The knowledge of God is a disclosure of one treasure after another. There are too many people who are ashamed of the Gospel. Paul went to Rome for the first time, and it was the head and heart of culture in that day; although he knew that it was dangerous to oppose popular beliefs and ideas, perhaps at the risk of reputation, freedom, and even of life itself, he said that he was ready to proclaim the Gospel at all times, and he was not ashamed of it, yea rather he was proud of the privilege. It was Paul's ideal service; Christianity was making converts to a better life and churches were being built; it was consoling the unfortunate, making the dissolute virtuous, and bringing the sinful to a knowledge of saving grace. Paul's reasons for pride in the Gospel were based on the evidences of those who really accepted and lived its principles. Next Sunday I will preach on the Holy Bible, and expect to give a souvenir to all those who attend the service. The Constitution of the United States was based on the principles of the Bible; and Blackstone, the greatest lawyer of modern times, found the inspiration of his laws from this blessed Book. An interesting support of the Bible is the evidence of goodness in the lives of those converted and regenerated by its teachings and standards of living. I want to say that the people who are ashamed of the Gospel have brought shame upon it. I did not know that I was impure until I saw the purity of God. I am deeply impressed by the blessedness of the influence of God and the Bible; let us attach ourselves to its power of strength, and go out and demonstrate it by consistent living.

At the vesper service at 5 o'clock, the football players of the high school, the college, and the ex-stars were specially invited guests, and the minister spoke on "Good Sportsmanship in Play and Life." The college glee club rendered splendid music, the "Cherubim Chorus."

The Junior church services on Sunday morning were conducted by Mesdames S. S. Coe and L. R. Johnston in an efficient manner. The children have been divided into two groups, which we feel will be more satisfactory.

On Monday evening the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society met in weekly session with Mrs. W. L. Albertson leader on the topic, "Our Responsibility to Spread the Gospel."

On Tuesday evening the music committee will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. A. M. Rankin on Church street.

Misses Ruth and Elizabeth Welch and Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., were hostesses to the American Legion Auxiliary on Monday evening.

The Wednesday evening Fellowship Supper meeting will be held at the usual time this week, and after the supper the minister will speak on "Whom Does God Love?" At 8 o'clock the Workers' Council of the Sabbath school will meet to discuss some important questions relative to the work.

The Boy Scouts will meet at the church Thursday evening, E. L. Auman, Jr., and Charles Robbins, Jr., being in charge of this work.

A recent food sale given by the Woman's Auxiliary at the High Point Hardware Store netted the sum of $25.00.

Rev. George T. Stephens, the evangelist who makes his home here on Fairway Avenue, is conducting a Crusade for Christ campaign in a tabernacle on South Main street, which draws large congregations every evening. The series of meetings is announced to continue until Sunday, December 7th.

We are pleased to announce that Postmaster O. R. York is improving after a continued illness. As an early Christmas gift Mr. York yesterday received notice that the Junior High School lot on the corner of South Main, Green, and Wrenn streets has been selected by the government for the site of High Point's new Post Office. Mr. York will go to Washington upon his complete recovery from illness to ask for an early beginning on the construction of the building. This lot, which measuses 200 by 220 feet, is the property of the city, and has been used for school purposes since 1897, when the graded school was first established under the superintendency of Rev. George H. Crowell. A new junior high school building will be erected at once on the high school lot on Jones street, plans for which have already been prepared.

Miss Dorothy St. Clair, who was teacher of violin in High Point College for three years, and who is now connected with the music department of Georgia State Teachers' College at Athens, Ga., spent the Thanksgiving season with Miss Mary Young at the college.

Wilbur Pritchard came home from State College, Raleigh, to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pritchard, and Robert Davis, who is a student at the State University, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis.

Mrs. Johnsie Surratt, of Charlotte, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. June Gray, during the Thanksgiving holidays.

English Street Church.—Recently our Ladies' Aid Society had a chicken supper and cleared around $75. We feel that our Ladies' Aid Society is one of the most helpful organizations of our church.

The C. E. Society has taken two children to clothe for the winter. Last Friday night the society met in the homes of two shut-ins and held short programs on "Giving Thanks." They hope to continue to hold these meetings weekly. The last meeting, which proved to be an interesting one, was held at the home of Kathleen Embler, with Tressie Caudle as leader.

Our Sunday school, under the leadership of J. A. Robbins, is continually growing. We are proud indeed of our young men's class, which has an average attendance of 25 each Sunday.

We feel greatly indebted to Conference for sending Rev. G. L. Reynolds back to us. We are deeply grateful to Brother Reynolds and family for the splendid work that they have accomplished in the past two years, and we feel that with their help we can make this year one of the most successful years that English Street has ever known.

Class Meeting, Burlington.—The First M. P. church Baracas will hold their annual business meeting at the Hut on Tuesday night, December 9th, at 7:30 o'clock. Every member is urged to be present and bring an old member or a friend, as this will be our annual banquet night and election of new officers for the next six months. It is important that every member be present.

Shady Grove Church. -We are working and looking forward to a successful year. We closed the last year with everything paid in full.

We feel that there is a work for each of us to do and with the help of God and co-operation of each one we can accomplish much. Each of us was very sorry to give up our former pastor, Rev. Taft White, a young M. P. minister. Mr. White served us faithfully and showed a great interest in his work. During the time he was with us five new members were received and we are expecting more soon. We trust that Mr. White will be greatly blessed in his new field of work and feel sure that he will.

We are also glad to welcome our new pastor, Rev. Mr. Reynolds, of High Point.

First Church, Charlotte.—I have filled all the Sunday appointments here since Conference; have also held the first quarterly conference. President Taylor was with us in the quarterly conference and the business was transacted smoothly.

The every-member canvass was made last Sunday. This church has evidently suffered a larger percentage of losses in its membership than any in our entire Annual Conference. Out of a total of 400 members received less than half of them are now members in active relationship, i. e., members who are known and who attend the services. So when the age of the church is considered, it appears that First Church, Charlotte, has suffered many casualties.

We are glad to report, however, that there are some very fine, loyal people here—this we have already discovered; and we are hopeful that the year may be a good one. We shall certainly do our best to make it a good year for the church here.

We are now living in the parsonage, a well-built, splendidly-arranged brick building, hot air heat, large basement; all the living rooms on one floor. We moved last Thursday and were rejoiced by the ladies of the church furnishing us a most excellent dinner. It was quite cold and we arrived late in the afternoon, which added zest to our desire for such a meal. We thank the ladies; we are unable to give all the names, but our gratitude is more easily expressed.

And so, after a period of 13 years, we are dropping back into the routine of the pastorate. We believe it will soon appear as though we had never left it and all recollections of the days which lie between now and 13 years ago will fade out of the picture as having only a small part in the work of the present time. R. M. ANDREWS.

NOTICE, NORTH DAVIDSON CHARGE

To the Officials:

Please take due notice here-to and govern yourselves accordingly:

The first quarterly conference will convene at Bethesda on Saturday, December 13, 1930. This is Saturday before the second Sunday of December. Preaching at 11 o'clock a. m. Lunch. Business of the quarterly conference.

It is an important conference, brethren! Be sure to be present. The last Annual Conference added a new church, Union Grove. There will be some change made in the plan of appointments. Think this matter through before quarterly conference, brethren!

Be sure to come and be on time. Have good reports. H. L. POWELL.

STEWARDSHIP

To Secretaries of Benevolences:

Since God is the supreme owner of everything, and since out of the 36 parables, 33 speak of money or stewardship, it seems quite plain that we have a wide field for service. So we are responsible for how we use our time. The success in a great measure of stewardship depends on systematic and regular giving. We are stewards to God, and must give an account to Him of our life, time, talents, possessions, and spiritual resources. Teaching stewardship in our young people's conferences has been helpful.

The following poem is more to the point than anything I can write:

Stewardship

It ain't throwin' your cap in the air
And shoutin' your minister's praise;
It ain't arguin' all day long
Until you are red in the face.
It's to pay as you pray
On collection day—
That's Stewardship.

It ain't in swellin' a talk-fest brigade
And spoutin' out promises fair;
It ain't in yellin' encouragement
When creedsmen rant and rare:
It's livin' day by day,
In a God-honoring way—
That's Stewardship.

It ain't in givin' advice,
Though it's free and without price;
It ain't in boastful braggin'
About spiritual heights attained.
It's to do your best work
And never play the shirk—
That's Stewardship.

It ain't in singin' Psalm tunes,
Or repeatin' the Apostles' Creed;
It ain't in bombast or pharisaic pride,
Or in sayin' one is "on the Lord's side."
It's prayin' and workin' and payin,'
Always puttin' God's kingdom first—
That's Stewardship.

MEETING OF CENTRAL MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION

You will please note the change of the day of holding the Ministers' Association meeting. By the action of the last meeting the day was changed from Monday to the second Tuesday of the month. So Tuesday, December 9th, 10:30 o'clock, the Association will meet in Calvary church, Greensboro. Rev. C. W. Bates, the pastor of the church, says that the women of his church will prepare a fine chicken dinner for 50 cents per plate. You will please notify him of your coming.

A good program is being prepared. Dr. Humphreys will bring a message at the morning hour which you will want to hear and enjoy. Rev. N. G. Bethea will speak in the afternoon, after which everyone will have a chance to participate. We want that this part of the service be a real spiritual feast The program will close at 3:30.

MONKEYS THAT TEST MONEY

A friend of mine, who has lived in Siam for a number of years, has sent me an interesting account of the money-testing monkeys of that country. Large kinds of monkeys are frequently employed by the merchants of Siam as cashiers.

In Siam there is usually a large amount of bad money in circulation. In order to protect themselves the merchants employ monkeys to detect the genuine coins from the counterfeit. Exactly how the monkeys are taught to do this has never been discovered by Europeans, but the fact remains that they are very clever at the job. It is most amusing to see the grave business man with the monkey sitting at his side. When any coin is handed over, this is at once given to the monkey. The animal puts the coin in his mouth and, with one bite decides on the nature of the money. If it is good he drops it into a basket at his side whilst, should it be bad, he flings it away, making all kinds of angry noises.

The remarkable part about these monkeys is that they are never wrong. However well a counterfeit coin is made, the fact that it is not genuine is detected by them.—Exchange.

Since the publication of Cruden's Great Concordance in 1737, it has been recognized throughout the English-speaking world as the standard work of its class. The present revision is based on the original work of Cruden, but has been greatly improved. References to the text of the Revised Version have been included, with reference to the Authorized or King James Version. The proper names have been inserted in the same alphabetical arrangement with the main body of the work, making reference to them simpler and easier. The definitions and encyclopedic articles written by Cruden have been revised in accordance with modern scholarship. The whole work has been set up in a new large, clear type, so arranged as to make it a pleasure to consult, even for the most difficult or obscure reference. Cloth, 783 pages. —The editor had an unusual visitor last night. After the reputed manner of Santa Claus he came down the chimney and made his presence known by scratching around in the stove pipe. The pipe was disjointed and the visitor, whatever he was, appeared in the form of a screech owl. He did not seem to enjoy his visit, though he did no screeching. We opened a window and he flew into the outer darkness. Fortunately for him there was no fire in the stove at the time.

"Mother" Jones, distinguished as a labor crusader, has just died at the age of 100 years. She was a real heroine.

was a community "far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife," it is true, but we must remember that for long years it was believed that such locations were the only suitable ones for educational work. The founders of our State University gave it a secluded location in Orange County; the same was the case with Trinity College at its old location in Randolph County; it was equally true at Davidson College, and Wake Forest College; so, measured by the standards of the past, Oakdale Academy was fortunate in its location. It rose to its State-wide reputation stressing its secluded location, and boasting of the fact that it was located far from temptations to extravagance and dissipation.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Wright

Mrs. Lona Garrett Wright died November 23. Funeral services conducted by the writer at Union Grove church, November 24th.

Sister Wright joined above church October 1913, and lived a consistent member until death. She was interested in all the activities of the church.

She had been an invalid for some time. She told her pastor last August she was not afraid to go.

A good woman gone, she will be missed in her home, the community, and her church.

Dr. Lackey

Dr. Franklin Harris Lackey was born August 4, 1889, and died November 17, 1930. Age 41 years, three months, and eleven days. He finished his high school education at Oak Ridge, spent two years at the University of N. C., then completed his medical course at the University of Maryland. About the age of 25 he began the practice of medicine in his home community; his practice extended over a large section of Cleveland county and adjoining counties. He continued this practice as long as his health would permit. He had his first stroke of paralysis about one year ago. Since that time he has had two other strokes, the last of which proved fatal.

Dr. Lackey joined Friendship M. P. church at the age of twelve, and remained a member until death.

He was married April 12, 1918, to Miss Fuchsia Lackey, to this union were born five children, Virginia, Elleen, F. H. Jr., Edwin, and Euell. Fuchsia departed this life Dec. 7, 1926, and was followed by Elleen November 13, 1927. On Febrbuary 15, 1928, Dr. Lackey was married to Miss Ada McCoy, who survives with the four children, Virginia, 11 years, F. H., Jr., 8 years, Edwin, 7 years, and Euell, 5 years of age.

Others surviving are his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Lackey, of Fallston; three brothers, John, Dr. Austin, and Dr. Walter, of Fallston; and three sisters, Mrs. A. R. Reep, Kittrell, N. C., and Mrs. B. P. Peeler, and Mrs. E. E. Elkins, of Belwood, N. C.

Mebane

On November 2. 1930, death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Mebane and took from them their oldest daughter, Ruth. She had been in ill health for sometime, but bore her illness with patience. She was a member of Hebron M. P. church, and always attended when her health would permit.

She was a graduated nurse of the State Sanatorium and did fine work in her profession. Since graduating she has been on her duties in several hospitals doing excellent work, until her health forced her to discontinue.

The funeral service was conducted at the church of which she was a member, on Monday, November 3, by her pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Fleming of Hawfield church, and Rev. Mr. Clark of Mebane M. E. church. After this her body was placed in the cemetery under a mass of flowers to wait for the remaining of her devoted family.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sisters, four brothers, and a father and mother, besides all the host of relatives and friends.

May the Lord comfort the bereaved ones in the loss of their oldest daughter and sister.

—Congress as it assembled last Monday was confronted with a mob of communists perhaps a thousand in number. This recalls the visit of Coxey's army to Washington in the days of Grover Cleveland.

—The postmaster general proposes to make us all pay 2½ cents postage on our letters and we will have to do it if Congress says yes.

—Bro. J. C. Causey, of Mt. Pleasant, and John Lewis Hardin, of Indiana, were among the visitors at Calvary church last Sunday.

—Bro. R. R. Ross, of Asheboro, reached the age of 80 years last Sunday. His descendants of three generations met to celebrate the event. In the papers he is pictured sitting on a horse. In younger days he was a lover of horses and a large dealer, bringing droves from the West. He is still spry, but feels that he is waiting for the final summons. May his horizon grow brighter and brighter as he approaches the sunset.

—Mrs. W. C. Kennett, who fell and hurt one hip, makes a very cheerful invalid. She is provided with a swing over her bed with which she can raise herself to a sitting posture at pleasure.

Stoning the Prophets

The prophets speak the truth in love,
In tones as mild as gentle dove;
They speak the things that men should know,
But waken hate where'er they go.

Their message startles, terrifies,
It aims to make the foolish wise;
But men prefer their stupid ease,
They wish to do just what they please.

With growing zeal the prophet pleads
And tries to show the people's needs:
They stop their ears, they curse and swear—
They kill him if they do but dare.

Stephen's Defense

When Stephen was on trial for his life he reviewed much of the history of the Jewish nation and concluded with a sharp arraignment of the generation before him. Really his speech was more of an attack upon his accusers than a defense of himself. Had Stephen's object been to bring about his own condemnation and execution, he could scarcely have found a better way to promote that end. He does not talk like a man pleading for his life. As we read his speech we are impressed that his chief regard was not for his own life or safety, but for the truth regarding God. He wished to justify the ways of God to men. He knew that the Christian movement was a divine movement. He would convince his fellowmen that Christianity was of God. That would be a far greater and better achievement than to save his own life. He spoke for his enemies rather than for himself. His words were sharp because he meant them to be cutting; not to wound and hurt, but to convince and help. If we fail to see in his review of the past history any defense of his own course we may see that he is speaking for God, showing his hearers that in all former history we find precedents for what God is doing today. True religion has always been progressive. In the past change has succeeded change. The innovations of the present are in harmony with the innovations of the past. God is always leading His people onward and upward. Moses has been succeeded by Jesus of Nazareth. The Christian dispensation has taken the place of the Mosaic dispensation. Both are of God, each in its own order. The Christian movement is of God and not of wicked men. If Stephen can convince his countrymen of that, he will feel that his work is done, he will be willing to die. His speech shows that he is more concerned about them than about himself. His trial was welcomed not because it gave him a chance to save himself, but because it gave him an opportunity to declare to them the truth that was hidden from their eyes and which they so much needed to know. Stephen was true to them and true to the truth of God. He was willing to die in order to save for them the truth.

Ministers' Meeting

The meeting of ministers in Calvary church on Tuesday was an occasion of extraordinary interest. The devotional service conducted by Brother Maier prepared us for Dr. Humphreys' address on "The Minister's Responsibility and How to Meet It." Ministers, said Dr. Humphreys, are not born but made. God makes them. He calls them, He equips them, He inspires them and sustains them. It was a finely analytical presentation of the theme, clarifying thought and awakening a sense of the honor and responsibility that are the Christian minister's. Surely every minister present was made to feel the dignity of his calling and the danger of failing to measure up to its demands. Several short talks by older brethren followed Dr. Humphreys' address. A good chicken dinner was served by Calvary ladies in the hut. In the afternoon session Rev. N. G. Bethea spoke on the "Minister's Discouragements." Often they fish and catch nothing. But when under the Master's direction they cast the net on the right side of the ship, they are abundantly rewarded. Brother Bethea has had an interesting career in the ministry and has a fund of telling illustrations drawn from his own experience. For many of the discouragements that ministers have human sympathy and appreciation bring solace and relief. Help your minister by letting him know that you highly esteem him for his works' sake.

The March meeting is to be held in First Church, High Point, to complete its program in the fore-dinner session.

President Taylor characterized the Calvary church meeting as a "spiritual feast." Truly it was good to be there.

—Some superannuated ministers feel the need of occupation. They have interest and energy for work and no work to do. It is a real relief to them to be called on to preach. Some of them make very capable supplies when pastors are called away. In some cases they may be called on to conduct funerals. Some of them might well follow the example of Rev. W. C. Kennett in his octogenarian days—conduct prayer meetings in homes in some neighborhood remote from churches. As far as possible give to our superannuates the opportunity to be and feel useful.

—Christmas draws nigh. There will be no Christmas day issue of the HERALD. Please say next week all that you must say through the HERALD in 1930.

FAITH THE POWER-BUILDER

By Grenville Kleiser

Have faith in yourself if you would fill a large place among your fellowmen. The man who dares not follow his own judgment, but runs perpetually to others for advice, becomes at last a moral weakling and a mental dwarf. He is a mere element of a human being, and is borne about the world an insignificant cipher.

The degree of your faith in yourself, in your resourcefulness, in your work, and in your future, is a great determining factor in your ultimate achievement. Your real growth and progress will be greatly accelerated when you have established firmly such self-faith.

Believe increasingly in your inherent powers; believe that your abilities are sufficient to achieve unusual success; believe deeply that you have within yourself qualities necessary for great achievement. Think of what other men have done with ability such as you possess, and resolve that you, too, will win a place of distinction in this world.

A practical way to increase your faith is to make a written list of your abilities and personal qualities, and then carefully consider how you can use them to increased advantage. Occasional self-appraisement or mental stock taking is of great benefit.

Thoughts which increase your faith, courage, industry, ambition, optimism, energy, confidence, independence, determination, power, enthusiasm, or other desirable qualities, are right thoughts. Repeated thoughts lead to acts, and repeated acts at last consolidate into habits. The procedure is: Thoughts, acts, habits, character, destiny. There is the philosophy of life in a nut-shell.

A commander who knows he has reinforcements at his ready hand in case of need finds in this assurance a source of great courage. You will do better with the power you use when you realize that is reinforced by other powers. You have reason for great faith in yourself when you realize that you can never exhaust your God-given resources.

A profound belief in your work will cause you to do it with regularity and cheerfulness. Apply your energy to a definite purpose until it is accomplished, and accustom yourself to persevere in the face of any difficulty. Fix your mind upon one thing at a time, and bring your mind back to it as often as it wanders away, whether it be once or a hundred times. This is the secret of concentration.

Your mind is a powerful force in attracting what it habitually dwells upon. Constantly picture yourself as the man you wish to be, and try to see, mentally, the conditions with which you desire ultimately to surround yourself. Keep one great object before you. Realize the great responsibility devolving upon you to make the most of yourself. Persistently fill your mind with thoughts of increasing power. Believe deeply and sincerely that your faith, coupled with diligence and determination, will ultimately carry you forward to a place of influence and independence.

Men of faith have done the world's supreme work. Faith is the soul of every great enterprise. With faith great enough you can do the seemingly impossible.

Many men who have achieved success acknowledge that had they known the difficulties before them, they would have given up in despair, but their immense faith led them to persevere and carried them step by step to the realization of success.

These suggestions regarding your unused possibilities should arouse your profound interest, and make you eager to attempt greater things than ever before. As the astronomer searches for the hidden things of the sky, so should you earnestly explore your mental world in order to discover hitherto unrealized powers.

THREE GREAT JOBS—YOU WANT ONE?

By Rev. Luther K. Long

Only a small part of the heat, light and power resident in wood and coal is utilized in our stoves, furnaces and factories. There is harnessed for the use of man a much smaller part of the heat, light and power resident in the water that flows on the earth, the winds that blow over its surface, and the tides that surge up and down and across the bosom of the sea. Some of the sun's surplus summer heat, light and power might be put to work directly. If more of it could be stored for use at at night and during the winter, it would be of immense benefit. As the young Oberlin college student made himself immensely rich and a benefactor of mankind by discovering a cheap method of extracting aluminum from clay, so the one who masters this job of conserving and utilizing the heat, light and power resident in these great natural resources will have an abundant reward. This is job number one. Who is ready for it?

We need better methods for assigning the production of farm crops and manufactured goods, and a much better and cheaper method of distributing these products. The problems of production have been, or can be, solved with our present and prospective agricultural and manufacturing facilities. The difficulty is to know just what, and when and how much to produce. Who is ready for this job? There will be great gratitude, at least for this service.

We need to find a scheme by which to do away with involuntary unemployment. Unemployment disintegrates the morale of the workman and his family. Insufficient and uncertain income shatters a man's sense of security and independence. Charity is better than starvation, but the bread it gives has its bitterness. Progress and hope die in the families of the long-time idle. The unemployed man is a poor buyer, so that he and the producer and the distributor suffer together. I do not believe that this problem is unsolvable. Its solution is urgent just now. Whoever adequately masters this third job may count on President Hoover and the Congress for a fair reward.

—We regret that we cannot find room this week for all church reports received. Again we must ask reporters to condense.

—We wish to devote the first issue of the Herald in January to the prohibition issue. What should the nation do about it? is the question. We would like to have a symposium of our ministers on this question. We ask each one to give his conviction in a brief testimony, say from 25 to 100 words.

OPTIMISM EVANGELISM

The President's Letter

All Things Through Christ

Sympathy Extended

We learned on last Sunday of the death of Mr. Joseph Holmes, a brother of Rev. G. W. Holmes. The deceased was at one time an active minister in the M. E. Church, South, though he had not been engaged in the work for a number of years. He made his home during his later days with his brother, and was a cultured and highly respected gentleman. We extend sympathy to Brother Holmes and to his family because of the breaking of this earthly tie, and assurances of our prayers.

We wish also to extend our sympathy to Mrs. Kennett, wife of the late Rev. W. C. Kennett, for many years an honored member of our conference. Sister Kennett fell recently, we understand, and sustained painful injuries, probably dislocating a hip. She will have the sympathy and the prayers of the brethren throughout the conference. We trust that she may soon recover.

Pleasant Grove

December 3.—On this date we were with Brother Williams and his people at this church in their first quarterly conference. The usual routine business was transacted. This church made an unusual record for itself last year in paying all claims. Now that they have found that this can be done, they will want to continue the good record this year. Brother Williams is entering upon the work earnestly, and is hopeful of another good year. The church has a good Sunday School, and Aid Society, a strong Brotherhood, and a C. E., with about forty members. We trust that the Aid Society may be merged into an Auxiliary. This will be done, we think, in due time. Pleasant Grove is one of our strong churches, and should grow with the years. We were glad to be with them.

Mt. Hermon

December 7, Sunday.—This is Mt. Hermon church, on Mt. Hermon charge. We were here in the afternoon, arriving in time for Sunday School at 2 o'clock, and preaching at 3:00. We sat in the Young Men's Sunday School class and discussed the lesson with them.. The Sunday School was well attended, and seemed to fully justify the six rooms that were added to the church last year. This better housing facility has no doubt greatly increased the interest and the efficiency of the school. The church and pastor are to be highly commended for this improvement. The attendance at the preaching service was unusually large, though perhaps it is the habit here. The auditorium is large, and it was full. We were heard with most helpful attention. In addition to the regular envelop contribution, Pastor Carroll asked that all loose change be given as a "Golden Rule" offering. It was gratifying to find persons present in this service from the other churches of the charge. The pastor had insisted upon this. The work of the charge seems to be in good condition. Friendship church is erecting a Sunday School building. We will hear more about this later. Last year the charge paid salary and annual conference budget in full. The pastor is setting for his goal this year, all financial obligations in full. We trust that he may have the full support of his people in this. The allotments for the charge are not excessive, it would seem. The budget allotments, including the college, amounts to only $1.05 per member. And the membership payment for salary is only $1.64, making a total for all obligations of $2.69 per member. This would not seem to be large for a prosperous membership such as that of this charge. We shall fully expect to see Mt. Hermon an honor roll charge this year. Pastor Carroll is entering upon his fifth year here, and is popular with his people. We shall hope and pray that this may be his best year yet, both spiritually and materially. We enjoyed our visit to the charge.

Board of Church Extension

December 8, Monday.—The board met in Calvary church on this date, and attended to such business as needed attention at this time. One of the problems of the board is limited means. We were not able to do, in the appropriations for next year, what we desired to do because of this. The policy of the board now is to work within our income, and to make some reduction on what we owe, as far as this is possible during a money stringency such as we are in now. If we were not able, therefore, to do all that charges desired, we are sure that they will understand why, and will be patient. The board is ready and anxious to help to the limit of its ability; but, of course, can't help beyond that.

Apportion All Claims

Pastors understand, of course, that this is to be done in the first quarterly conference. We trust that in no case it will be omitted. And when this is done please send to me a statement of such apportionments. One pastor has done this. I want this for my files. And along with the apportionments, please send the name of the chairman of board of stewards. I urge also, that these allotments be passed out to the individual members, either by the Every-Member canvass, the allotment system, the honor subscribing system, or a combination of any and all systems,—just so a good business financial plan is adopted by the church, and every member receives a definite financial share. One church, Calvary, has done the unusual this year. The entire budget has been pledged, including all financial obligations of the church, and a margin of about $500 left from people who do not wish to pledge, but who will pay.

"All that other folks may do
Why, with patience, should not you?
Only keep this rule in view,—
Try, try again."

We earnestly urge all pastors and churches to take a vigorous grip upon the financing of the church, now at the very beginning of the year, and to establish in every church an adequate financing system. And about the best system is a willingness and a determination to do it. Where this is present, a way will be found.

Christmas

The happiest of all the festive seasons of the year! The most significant of all the festive seasons! Only 16 more days, and it will be here again. How rapidly the years go by! We will of course be caught on the tides of this season, and move along with the great happy, currents of humanity. But surely, amid all that goes into the celebration of Christmas, we will not forget Him who is the center and soul of this happy season. It is a most fitting thing that we assemble in our respective churches on this day and offer unto Him the worship of glad hearts. If plans have not already been made for such worship, we urge that it be done. The whole meaning and import of Christmas is missed if Christ is not magnified.

Christmas Offering

Last year we asked for an offering on "Dollar a Member." In fact, everything was sidetracked for the college for the first half of the conference year. The needs of the college made this necessary, and we were glad to do it. The needs of the college are still urgent, but a different plan is in process for meeting them. It would seem, therefore, that the annual conference budget should have right of way at this Christmas. The Board of Church Extension will need funds, and other annual conference obligations could be met if we could receive a liberal Christmas offering for this budget.

The Treasurer of the conference is suggesting an offering for the Gratitude Gift Deficit. It will be noted, of course, that some charges have already paid this, and therefore have no allotment for this purpose. But the charges that do have it will find that it is not large, and probably it can be carried along with the offering for the A. C. B. We suggest that this be done.

Now, brethren, for a large Christmas offering for annual conference purposes. And we urge, too, that charges do not forget their pastors at the Christmas season. Let an offering be made for them also.

Assigned

December 3.—On this date Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk was assigned as pastor of Spring Church charge. Brother Lowdermilk is a good man, a good pastor, and a good preacher, and the Spring Church charge is made up of good folks. We see no reason why this assignment should not result in progress for the charge, and happiness for pastor and people. We shall expect these good ends.

Appointments

December 10.—Draper, in quarterly conference. Hour, 7:30 P. M.

December 13-14.—Why Not charge, in appointments as previously given.

December 19.—Randolph charge, in quarterly conference at Bethel church. Hour, 2:30 P. M.

December 20-21.—Mt. Pleasant charge, in appointments as previously given.

December 25.—Christmas, at home.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Fraternally yours

S. W. Taylor.

A CHANGED HEART

We hear the Psalmist cry: "Create in me a clean heart, O God." In writing to the Corinthians Paul says: "Ye are our epistle written * * * in fleshly tables of the heart." David's words after committing his great sin. Here we have the true form of the petition and the right attitude of the changed heart. Note the various conditions appearing.

First of all a changed heart is a prayerful heart. Nothing so quickly shows the altered condition of the heart as prayer. Ananias was afraid to visit Saul because of his persecutions, but when God said, "Behold, he prayeth," he went immediately. Saul's heart was changed. The cry of mercy by the publican and by the prodigal are evidence that "old things are passed away." When a man begins to pray it is evidence of a change.

The changed heart is a confessing heart. David offers no excuses and emphasizes no former good deeds. He sees only his sin. This is a clear evidence of a changed heart. If a man belittles his sin and speaks of himself as always having been fairly good and acts as if he were doing God a favor in coming to Him, it is evidence that his heart is not renewed. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The changed heart is a repentant heart. "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned." It was not because the sin of David had been found out; it was not because it had brought ruin upon him; it was not because others were likewise involved that David is sorry. He had sinned against God.

The changed heart is a forgiving heart. When we return to God the Word is very positive in its gracious offers. When God says: "Return * * * I will heal" you and "I will in no wise cast out," it is no evidence of a renewed heart to question the promises. It may seem strange to us and we may feel that we do not deserve to be forgiven, but the heart rests devoutly on God's assurances.

The changed heart is a renewed heart. If a man has drawn near to God and falls away, when he returns the old joy comes back and the old peace takes possession of him. Love for God's people and for His Word will rise in the heart and there will be a desire to obey Him. The world is a new world. When renewed and recovered the heart begins a new career.

The changed heart is a glad heart. Rebelling against God and wandering from His presence keeps real joy from the heart. Sinners have their noisy delights and outward pleasures, but real joy is not for them. If we are changed in our purposes, in our relation to God and in our relation to others we will have joy. We may well pray: "Restore unto me the joy of Thy Salvation."

The changed heart will mean a fruitful life. By precept and example it will teach sinners God's ways and will sing aloud of God's righteousness. It will pray as did the Psalmist: "Do good in Thy good pleasure unto Zion: build Thou the walls of Jerusalem." The changed heart will rejoice in the Church. If a man is not praying for the Church and Christian work, something is wrong. If a man will not unite with God's people, the heart has not been wholly surrendered. If a man is continually criticising Christian people, the heart is yet deceived.—The C. U. Herald.

OUR STORY PAGE

"HE DID IT"

Shortly after the World War, when the boys were being sent home from that great conflict, a troop-train arrived at Winnipeg, Canada. Hundreds of parents and loved ones were gathered at the depot to greet them, and anxiously awaited their arrival.

The boys fairly tumbled out of that train amid the welcoming shouts of their many friends, and were received by their family groups. It was a heart-warming sight to see sons thus restored to their parents again.

Some there were who were cripples for life; some with disfigured faces, others with empty sleeves, some using crutches, but all were received tearfully and thankfully.

As we stood and watched, we saw one soldier who was heavily leaning on a crutch carefully making his way from the car, yet at the same time leading a comrade who appeared to be blind. They made their way from the train, and we see a family group hurrying toward them—it is the one with the crutch they come to greet.

While the crippled boy is embraced by his brothers and sisters, his father and mother, the blind one stands helpless.

But at last as he raised his head from his dear mother's shoulder, the boy with the crutch reached over and grasped his blind comrade's arm, drawing him toward his mother with these words—"He did it, mother. He dragged me in when I lay helpless and wounded out there in No-Man's Land—a shell burst and blinded him just as we rolled into our trench. He did it, mother; thank him!" And with tears streaming down her cheeks, the grateful mother clasped the blind one to her breast, thanking him for saving her boy.

This, my friends, is just one of the many stories of heroism that could be told, suggestive of vital, salvation truth. It reminds us of the words of the Lord Jesus Christ when He said—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Here was a man who risked his life for his friends." Here was a man who risked his life and sacrificed his eyesight in saving his comrade from a horrible death in bullet-sprayed and shell-torn No-Man's Land; here was one who loved his comrade enough to face almost certain death to bring him to a place of safety. Such an act of heroism is commendable, and for its accomplishment the blind soldier wore a Distinguished Service cross.

Now in Romans 5:8 we read, "But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Can you understand such love as that?

I am sure you can understand the love of a comrade that would lead him to risk his life for his friend, but God's love for poor, ruined, guilty sinners far exceeds any such love; the wonder of God's love was that when He gave His Son to die for us we were enemies; notice again, enemies to the One who died for us, as we see in Colossians 1:21. "You that were sometime aleinated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath He reconciled." He who was "made sin for us" there upon Calvary's Cross gave His life for His enemies.

As one who believes and trusts that One, who can say, "He loved me and gave Himself for me," I beg you to believe.

As the rescued soldier said, "He Did It!" for we are saved by grace, through faith in Another who did all the work of redemption while we were helpless. "For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly." (Rom. 5:6).

None of us poor, guilty, ruined sinners could do anything to save ourselves, but we are saved if we believe in Him who died for us (in our stead).

Believest thou this?

Oh, believe it now! Then you too will say as did the rescued soldier, "Thank Him—He did it."

"Christ for my sins has suffered — Yes, Christ has done it all."—The Life Line.

A BEAUTIFUL SIMILE

That is a beautiful simile that the Psalmist uses in his first Psalm in describing the truly blessed man. He says: "He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water." He was placing emphasis on the truth that the Christian life is a living, struggling and growing thing. It will help us if we will think often of the tree as representing the Christian life.

Dr. J. Stuart Holden points out the similarity of the Christian life to a tree in the following helpful words:

"It has well been likened to a tree, deep rooted in the past, some of whose branches have been smitten with the lightning of passion, or broken in some tempest shock, or weakened by some subtle growths, or dwarfed in the forest shade, but whose vaster spread is nevertheless flung abroad to the light of God, lifted toward the sky, renewing its own life, outgrowing its wounds, concealing its scars by the very processes of life itself, and reborn with each new springtime of the soul. I know nothing more beautiful than that description of Christian growth and struggle and victory—faith and a good conscience."—Christian Observer.

DEC. 14: HOW TO MAKE OTHERS HAPPY

Scripture Text: Eph. 4:31, 32; 5:1, 2.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Be Kind. Col. 3:12-17.
Tuesday—Be Patient. Jas. 1:3, 4.
Wednesday—Be Willing to Help. Mark 2:1-5.
Thursday—Be Forgiving. Matt. 18:21-35.
Friday—Be Gentle. Tit. 3:1, 2.
Saturday –Be True. Prov. 11:13.

To the Leader

How to make others happy is a thing in which everyone is or should be deeply interested. If every one failed in making others happy this would be a sad, sad world and no one would care to live in it. It is true that those who are always trying to make others happy are the happiest themselves, for they are really getting the most pleasure out of it. Making others happy is just like giving gifts to others, the giver always receives the most pleasure. The greatest happiness comes not from those who merely do their duty but from those who are eager to do little acts of kindness and thoughtfulness which we are not looking for.

Suggested songs: "Help Somebody Today," "Others," "A Little Bit of Love," "Keep the Heart Singing," "There Are Lonely Hearts to Cherish," "Blest Be the Tie" and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart."

Discuss These

1. Is happiness contagious?
2. How do we somethimes make others unhappy?
3. What chances have we to make people happy?
4.What way of making others happy is best suited to our community?
5. Can we give happiness without it costing us anything?
6. How can we make our parents happier?
7. Name ways of making our minister happier.
8. How did Jesus make others happy?
9. What sort of things make us happy?
10. Why is happiness desirable?

Quotations

"Happiness is unrepented pleasure."—Socrates.

"Happiness is a cloak that is always big enough for two. Share it."—Anon.

"Others"

Lord, let me live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way,
That, even when I kneel to pray,
My prayer shall be for others.

Help me, in all the work I do,
To ever be sincere and true,
And know that all I'd do for you,
Must needs be done for others.

Let "self" be crucified and slain,
And buried deep, nor rise again;
And may all efforts be in vain,
Unless they be for others.

And when my work on earth is done,
And my new work in heaven begun,
May I forget the crown I've won,
While thinking still of others.

Yes, others, Lord, yes, others.
Let this my motto be:
Help me to live for others,
That I may live like Thee.
—Chas. D. Meigs.

DEC. 21: JOY TO THE WORLD

Scripture Text: Luke 2:13, 14; Eph. 5:19,20.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—Joy of Angels. Luke 2:13, 14.
Tuesday—Joy in Heaven. Luke 15:1-7.
Wednesday—A Day of Joy. Matt. 21:1-11.
Thursday—Joy of Achievement. Luke 10:17-21.
Friday—Joy of Faith. I Pet. 1:3-9.
Saturday—Joy of Giving. Acts 20:35.

To the Leader

The great hymns of the church represent a rich heritage of the past. They are the wheat of the centuries. The "chaff" has been blown away and the wheat remains to bless and inspire each generation in their Christian living and service. All through the ages from the time when the angel chorus sang on that first glad Christmas morn, singing has had an important place in the worship services of the church. Christ has been the inspiration of every hymn and we should use hymns to voice our praise to Him who was born in Bethlehem of Judea.

A great Japanese has said "Christianity is the only religion in the world that sets people to singing." Hymns have circled the globe and covered the earth. Surely God has sent His singers upon the earth to touch the hearts of men and bring them back to heaven again.

Suggested songs: "We're Marching to Zion," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "Joy to the World," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Love Divine," "Abide With Me," "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," and "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord."

For Discussion

1. What makes a hymn great?
2. Do other religions have joyful songs as does Christianity? Why?
3. How does Jesus Christ bring joy to the world?
4. Why is there so much sorrow in the world today, if Christ came to bring joy?
5. What joy does Christmas bring to us?
6. How can we send Christmas joy to others?
7. What is your biggest criticism of many of the present-day sacred songs?
8. What can we do to restore congregational singing?
9. What can Christian Endeavorers do to spread Christ's joy to the world?

Quotations

"In our country Christmas Day is a trifle longer than the days that precede it. So Christ will increase, and the winter of unbelief and disobedience be swallowed up in love."—Anon.

Quotable Poetry

THE LOST CHORD

Seated one day at the organ,
I was weary, and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly
Over the noisy keys.

I know not what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming then;
But I struck one chord of music,
Like the sound of a great Amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
Like the close of an angel's psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit
With a touch of infinite calm.

It quieted pain and sorrow,
Like love overcoming strife;
It seemed the harmonious echo
From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence
As if it were loth to cease.

I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine,
That come from the soul of the organ,
And entered into mine.

It may be that Death's bright angel
Will speak in that chord again;
It may be that only in heaven
I shall hear that grand Amen.
—Adelaide A. Proctor.

FROM ENFIELD TO GRAHAM

One of the sacrifices the preacher and his family must make is the giving up of newly-made friends. For after all it is this friendship of life that prompts the truest feelings of contentment and joy. The preacher and his family are human to this degree that anything which seems to disturb this atmosphere brings sorrow to their hearts. The departure from Enfield meant the giving up of many of those loving spirits which had more or less become a part of our life. However, the enrichment which has come to us through having known them will, I am sure, always be an asset to us wherever we shall go.

We were in the Graham parsonage the same week Conference closed. From the hour of our arrival nothing but the finest spirit of cordiality has been shown us. We feel that it is going to be a joy to serve them. We spent our first night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Goley. While it took a day and night for the truck to make the trip from Enfield to Graham, yet after it did arrive on Saturday afternoon not much time was lost in getting things in order. Dr. Goley, Brother S. S. Holt and son, Don S., gave us valuable assistance in getting unloaded and getting things arranged. Thanks to one and all who helped us out.

The committee in charge of the Christmas exercises have the program well under way. It is truly a delight to have your folks to go ahead with out your suggestion.

The first Quarterly Conference will be held in the Hut on Thursday evening of this week.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

This, together with the last two weeks' reports, covers the Thanksgiving period and five a fine response on the part of the friends of this Home. And we are profoundly grateful. Of course there will be other Thanksgiving offerings coming in yet, for there are some individuals and some churches yet to respond who never fail us. We thank you before the offering comes.

We had a fine day yesterday with our children at Siler City, Bonlee and Asheboro. There was a large attendance at each place, and the people seemed to hear gladly and they responded liberally with their means.

You will note above one Christmas offering already. We know many more will come, and if the people will just send us the money this time instead of so many toys we will be greatly helped.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Woman's Auxiliary, Liberty, 8 quilts.

Mr. Cecil Frazier, Liberty, 1 fine R. I. Red rooster.

Mrs. B. L. Heavener, Vale, N. C., for the ladies of her church, 1 quilt.

Mrs. H. A. Jordan for Precious Jewels, Henderson, 3 boxes school crayons, 15 tablets, and 1 dozen pencils.

Missionary Society, Clara, Mich., 1 quilt.

Miss Florence Forrest, Westminster, Md., for Mrs. A. N. Ward's S. S. Class, a box of clothing: 2 coats, 1 dress, 2 sweaters, 2 pair pants, 4 pieces of underwear, 4 pair shoes, 1 cap, 1 slip, and some pencils and handkerchiefs.

Young People's Missionary Circle, Towson, Md., 15 books for our library, 3 pair shoes for girls, 2 pieces of underwear and a nice box of personally wrapped packages for Christmas.

Weston, W. V., 1 towel, 3 dress patterns, and 1 piece of outing flannel.

Miss Laura Shutt, Advance, for her S. S. class, one box containing some potatoes, 4 tablets, 1 pad of writing paper, 2 pencils, 2 handkerchiefs and 1 pair shoes.

Members and friends of Center Church, Alamance, 2 quilts, 2 pair pants for small boys, 48 quarts canned fruit and vegetables, 2 gallons molasses, 3 pumpkins, 48 pounds flour, 5 bushels potatoes and some fresh meat.

Mrs. W. B. Lamb's Class, Asheboro, 4 tablecloths.

We are thankful for these gifts of produce and clothing. May the dear Lord bless and prosper all of you.

Christmas

Our friends will please note: Around Thanksgiving and Christmas our hearts and hands are so full in looking after the many details here, and in doing what must be done, that we cannot send the Christmas remembrances to pastors and friends as we used to do, and as we would so much like to do. We must content ourselves to plan and work for the happiness of His little ones, and with this general expression through the church paper. We wish for all of you an exceedingly happy Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year. May the "Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace."

Yours in His blessed service,

MR. AND MRS. A. G. DIXON.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Cleveland Charge.—We have been kindly received again by the good people of this charge and the old preacher is back on the job again for another year. The work seems to be starting off fine so we are hopeful of the best year that we have had on this charge.

Brother C. M. Hastin has been confined to his room with rheumatism for more than a year. He is one of the charter members of Oak Grove church. It was the privilege of the writer along with a few of the brethren to meet at his home last Sunday afternoon to hold a religious service. This service proved to be very helpful to all of us.

Thanksgiving was observed at Oak Grove church Thursday night. The Thank Offering went to our Children's Home.

We have been remembered a number of times with meat and other useful articles by our good neighbors, but last Thursday night after the service at the church the Oak Grove people drove their cars over to the parsonage and the first thing we knew they were coming right in and taking complete control. So all we could do was to just stay back out of the way and find out what it was all about. They found their way into the kitchen and there they began to unload. We will not try to give the names of all who had part in this pounding, but we take this opportunity to again express our appreciation to everyone who had part and pray that the Heavenly Father will greatly reward them in things material and spiritual.

Our first quarterly conference will convene at Kistlers church on Saturday, December 27. Preaching at 11 a. m. Dinner will be served and the quarterly conference will be held in the afternoon. Let all official members take due notice and please be present.

Lexington.—Our Sunday school is progressing nicely; there were 217 present today, which was an increase of 52 per cent over a year ago today.

Our mother's class has been gathering an offering for the Children's home for the last few days which we carried over to the home Sunday afternoon. We also carried our Sunday school offering which amounted to $12.00; 71 from our church went along and visited the home, and we were welcomed joyfully. The children sang songs for us, and Mr. Dixon told us the great work they were doing, after which we all walked around over the buildings and the grounds and found that every thing was kept in splendid condition. All present expressed delight in visiting the home.

We are very sorry that Mrs. C. M. Isley has been sick for the past few days, but we are hoping and praying she will soon be able to be out with us again.

On Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock one of our faithful members, Miss Emma Lanning, was called home to her reward. Emma was 14 years old, she was standing in front of the fire a few weeks when her clothing caught fire and she was burned severely. Her condition was not considered serious at first but she was kept at the hospital and pneumonia developed some days ago and she passed away Saturday. She was a girl of fine qualities, and was a regular attendant at all of our church services, including prayer meeting, which speaks well for a young person. She bore her pain with with a smile but prayed and asked others to pray that she could go to meet her mother.

The funeral was conducted at our church Monday at 2 o'clock p. m. We feel we have lost a good young member, but our loss is her gain.

Our preaching services are holding up well; we have good crowds at all services, at the evening service we received Mrs. Francis Yates into the church; we were very glad to have her join in with us, for we feel sure that the church will be a blessing to her, and that she will be a blessing to the church.

Philadelphia, Greensville Circuit.—We of Philadelphia church feel very grateful to the Annual Conference for our new pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox. He filled his first appointment Sunday, Nov. 30, with a splendid sermon. We are fortunate in having a man with such ability. We are very glad to have his family worship with us, and we wish to extend to the entire family a hearty welcome. We are trusting that the coming year will be a prosperous one in material as well as spiritual blessings.

The first Quarterly Conference will be held at Matthews Chapel Saturday, December 13, at 2 o'clock p. m. Preaching at 11 o'clock; lunch between. Everybody come.

At this time we are planning a Christmas program which will be presented some time during the holidays. The date will be published later.

We are hoping and praying that each member will work and pray with the pastor and make it the best year—one that will long be remembered.

With prayers and best wishes,

MRS. R. A. SHELL, Reporter.

Asheboro.—Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Stubbins were called to Enfield Thursday, Dec. 4 for the funeral of Mrs. R. C. Reeves at the M. P. church in Enfield. She was a loyal member of one of Rev. H. F. Fogleman's churches.

Rev. Mr. Fogleman was assisted by our pastor, who was a former pastor of Mrs. Reeves. Mrs. Reeves was the only sister of Miss Blanche Hardy, who has been a guest in the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Pritchard here on several occasions. Her many friends extend sympathy.

There was good attendance at the Sunday school and church services Sunday morning. We had a good sermon on "The Value of an Empty Pocketbook."

There was a full house Sunday evening for the children's program from the Children's Home. The songs, recitations and the play, "Thanksgiving Ann," were thoroughly enjoyed, and were very helpful. A substantial offering was given.

Mr. Robert T. Lloyd was unable to meet his Sunday school class and fill his regular place in the choir Sunday; he was suffering with an infected hand, from a briar scratch.

The choir is very busy rehearsing for the Christmas cantata.

Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary held a service in the jail Sunday afternoon. The women's organizations of the various churches hold services there regularly.

The circles are having their monthly meetings in the homes of the members this week. The Auxiliary will meet in the church next Monday afternoon.

Mr. W. A. Bean, who formerly lived in Asheboro, but for the last few years was a resident of High Point, died at his home there Sunday morning. Mr. Bean was a member of our church here and was a regular attendant as long as his health would permit. The funeral will be held at Pleasant Hill church Monday afternoon, December 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Euclid Auman, who have recently moved to Asheboro from Why Not, are the proud parents of a little son, David Wills, who was born Wednesday, December 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Auman are loyal members of the Why Not church and were faithful workers in the Sunday school. We are looking forward to having them in our church and Sunday school. REPORTER.

Whitaker's Church.—Conference has come and gone and, in a way, we have our same pastor, having to share him with another work.

We have had our first quarterly conference; business was transacted in harmony and satisfactory arrangements as to our number of services during the month.

Our Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home was not as large as we had hoped for.

One of our members has had a very serious operation but she stood it well and is now out of the hospital and doing as well as she can.

Our S. S. is holding up well; attendance regular. C. E. Societies doing good work. Woman's Auxiliary holding its own but not as regular in attendance as we could wish it to be. I am elected reporter and if we do our work well, hope to be able to report regularly.

Best wishes for a peaceful Christmas season for the Herald and its readers.

Asheville.—We were delighted to have with us at S. S. and morning worship Miss Verda McIntire, superintendent of our Primary Department. Miss Verda is in Greenville, N. C., in charge of the music at E. C. T. C. She came up Friday to spend the week-end with her mother, Mrs. F. R. McIntire, who has been sick for sometime, but is improving.

Monday evening the Girls' Circle will meet with Miss Josie McNeill on Michigan Avenue. The girls are quite busy these days practicing for a play, "Miss Molly," which they will give just after the holidays, proceeds of which will be used to help take care of expenses for their "Adopted Sister" at the Children's Home. Miss Novella McIntire, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. McNeill are assisting them.

Our Christian Endeavor is a live wire these days; twenty-five were present last evening and the meeting was most helpful and instructive under the leadership of Mis McIntire.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 will be our regular church night supper in charge of Mrs. J. A. McIntire and her Circle members. Immediately following the supper there will be special music and stereopticon views of the Holy Land given by Rev. M. C. Avery, pastor of Oak Hill Presbyterian church of West Asheville.

Friday of this week the Ladies' Auxiliary will hold their annual bazaar of cakes and fancy-work. We are all busy.

Miss Eula Taylor is convalescent after an illness of several days. REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—Our services at Baltimore and Stony Knoll last Sunday were well attended, considering the roads. After the service at Baltimore we were invited to the home of Bro. Grover Griffin, where the pastor and family enjoyed a splendid dinner and brief visit. From there we hurried to Stony Knoll for the service there at 2:30 p. m. The absence from this service of Bro. L. D. Speer, one of the faithful members, was noticeable. Upon inquiry we learned that Bro. Speer met with a very painful accident and had been in a hospital at Winston-Salem for several days, having undergone an operation for a fractured knee-cap. He was crossing a small stream and fell, his knee striking a rock. We are glad to report that he is returning to his home today (Monday).

To Mrs. W. T. Hennings and Mrs. J. F. Hunter we are very grateful for special gifts for the table.

The meeting of the first quarterly conference for West Forsyth charge will be held at Tabernacle church Saturday of this week. We are to follow the usual program, with preaching at 11 a. m., dinner at the church during the noon hour, and the business session at 1:30 in the afternoon. We are glad to announce that Rev. L. W. Gerringer, the new pastor of Forsyth charge, will be present and preach the sermon at the morning service. We are trusting that a large number of the official members and others will be present, as very important matters will be considered.

Our appointments for next Sunday will be at Tabernacle at 11 a. m., and at Union Hill at 3 p. m. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Welch Memorial.—We moved to High Point on November 18. The truck that brought us to High Point carried Bro. Curry to Albemarle.

We have been here three weeks, but we are still moving, owing to the fact that the parsonage trustees and the Ladies' Aid are doing some much-needed repairs. Carpenters came and jacked up the kitchen floor and braced it, and then went on the inside and put down a nice new floor; they also removed part of the flooring on the back porch and replaced it with new. Then they went to the front room and knocked off the plastering from the ceiling and replaced it with sheet rock; that is to be paper. The ladies are buying new rugs for the floors, and the painter will be here about two days painting the kitchen and dining rooms, and we are moving from one room to another and out on the porch, and in the yard, upstairs and everywhere.

Rev. R. I. Farmer, pastor of the First M. P. church, and Mrs. Farmer came out to see us one day last week. We got them as near in the house as we could and asked them to be seated. But as soon as the plumbers get through putting in the new lavatory and bath-tub in the bathroom, and the painters finish we will be sitting pretty.

We had a good day Sunday; fine Sunday school, and a fine spirit in the worship service at both the morning and evening service.

We had a short church conference Sunday night after preaching to get lined up and ready for our first quarterly conference on Wednesday night, and workers' council on Thursday night.

The furnace in the church had been broken down since the week before we moved; a new one was installed last week and the building made very comfortable. There is a saying, "A bad beginning makes a good ending." In this case the end should be glorious if the saying is true. While our furnace was broken down we had the pleasure of worshiping with Bro. Farmer and his good people at the first church.

Shiloh.—Our Sunday school was delighted to have our pastor and family on the fifth Sunday. Bro. Troxler taught the lesson to all of the adult classes, which assembled in the main auditorium. After Sunday school adjourned our pastor found his car pretty well loaded with gifts from Shiloh folks—just an old-fashioned pounding. Just wanted to show a little of our appreciation of a faithful pastor and family.

Shiloh's Sunday school roll is 409, but our attendance today was ony 226. Come next Sunday and bring someone else with you. Some of our faithful members are sick, among whom are Mrs. Conrad Kepley, Mrs. Adam Berrier. Miss Ruth Sink, Master Sammy Shoaf, and Mrs. Baxter Leonard. There may be more of whom this writer hasn't heard but hopes for all a speedy recovery and early return to Sunday school. Mrs. Floyd Leatherman was able to be out today after being absent for several Sundays because of illness.

Christmas is not far in the future and some of our good ladies, Mrs. Curtis Leonard and Mrs. Cleno Koonts, are training our little folks for a Christmas service.

Brother Troxler preached today from Isaiah 53:6: "All we like sheep have gone astray and have turned everyone to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Also he asked us to keep in mind these words: "Isn't this the carpenter's son?" He said in part: We have all gone astray, have left something, have left God, righteousness and peace. Each one has gone his own way. Going our own way leads us away from God and into unbelief. Unbelief is a sin that saps life and power of church, sets at naught the mighty works and say, "Is not this the carpenter's son?" Unbelief is bad enough, for the unbeliever is inactive, drifting and stagnant; but unbelief leads to rebellion against God and all good. The rebellious unbeliever talks against church and Sunday school and sours on everything. The end is sinful self indulgence, which leads farther from God and leaves an awful sense of guilt. The only remedy is found in the words, "He has laid on him the iniquity of us all." Our hope is to lay it all at the feet of Jesus.

F. L. Berrier, of Jacksonville, Fla., son of W. J. Berrier, was a welcome visitor at his home church on the fifth Sunday. On Monday he and his mother, Mrs. W. J. Berrier, went to Richmond, Va., to visit his brother, Carl. They returned on Wednesday and Floyd returned to Florida on Friday.

Wishing everyone a happy Christmas season. MRS. WILEY SHOAF, Reporter.

Lexington, State Street.—At the 11 o'clock hour Sunday the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by the pastor, Rev. G. H. Hendry, assisted by Rev. O. P. Routh, a superannuate minister of the M. E. Conference. Rev. Mr. Routh and Mrs. Routh are living a few miles from town on highway No. 90. We are glad to have them visit us. Their daughter, Mrs. Zimmerman, of Lexington, is one of our number, having recently been received into membership.

Mr. Hendry filled his appointment at Spencer this afternoon.

The evening service was one of the best in every respect. The attendance was good and many expressions of appreciation were heard for the helpfulness and spiritual value of the address. Another delightful feature of the service was a solo sung by Miss Willie Veigh Leonard in her usual efficient way.

The Workers' Council met Sunday evening just preceding the hour for the evening worship. Some changes were recommend in regard to more careful grading of the children and a few other adjustments made that will tend to create deeper interest in regular attendance.

Next Wednesday night the monthly fellowship meeting will be held in the church dining room. These meetings are growing more interesting each month. There is always a good program of music or short addresses or something of a religious nature followed by a supper of sandwiches and coffee and a general coming together in a social way that is greatly enjoyed by all. This is an excellent way for new members to become better acquainted with the congregation and with each other. In many respects the monthly fellowship meetings are of great value, and in every respect enjoyable.

Mr. J. W. Lindsay, who has been in poor health for several months, is much improved his many friends are glad to note. Mr. Lindsay is a charter member of our church and superintendent of the Sunday school until recently when he was relieved of the actual duties of the office and made superintendent emeritus.

The children are enthusiastically preparing for a lively Christmas entertainment, the central feature of which is to be a huge Christmas tree with the usual decorations and presents. The presents will be taken off and distributed by Santa Claus himself.

Belmont Church, Mt. Hermon Circuit.—We are still trying to press onward. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Mr. Roy L. Sharpe, our superintendent. We have about 200 enrolled in our Sunday school. We are preparing to have a Christmas program. Instead of having a tree, as the custom has been for several years, we are going to have a log cabin. This will be December 24 in the evening about 7:30 o'clock.

Next Sunday afternoon, December 14, beginning at 2 o'clock there will be a singing in this church. This singing is to be under the leadership of Mr. J. H. Randolph. A number of choirs and others singers will be present. These are as follows: Belmont choir. Swepsonville choir, Glen Hope choir, Burlington, and the Junior Girls' Quartette, Burlington.

Lee Moser, who is now in High Point College preparing for the ministry, spent Thanksgiving at his home at Belmont.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Waddell of this place was buried here Saturday afternoon, November 29. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Wayne Curtis.

Baltimore, West Forsyth.—This is the third year that Rev. C. B. Way has served West Forsyth Charge. We are indeed fortunate, and glad to have our same pastor and family return to us. We extend to them the heartiest welcome.

At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning Bro. Way gave a most fitting sermon for the coming new year; text, Isaiah 52:1-3. May we all as followers of Jesus awake and shake ourselves from the dust, and labor more faithfully for the unbuilding of the work here. If we as members will co-operate with him much good will be accomplished.

Our Sunday school is moving along very well for the winter months. But we are desiring more interest through the coming new year. A Thanksgiving offering was taken last Sunday for the Children's Home amounting to $4.05.

Miss Elsie Carter, one of our best church and Sunday school workers, has accepted a position in Winston-Salem; we miss her very much.

We had several visitors Sunday; very glad indeed to have them with us, especially Miss Nell Davis from Winston-Salem, formerly one of our Sunday school workers.

Strangers and friends will always find a welcome in our midst. We cordially invite all to come.

Siler City Church.—Sunday was a great day for us. We had 148 in Sunday school and that was a record breaking attendance. The superintendent, Mr. Sharpe, and all of us are delighted with the success of our school.

At the 11 o'clock hour Dr. and Mrs. Dixon with 16 of the children rendered a good program to a packed house. All the available space was filled with chairs and each seat full. Everyone present seemed to enjoy the program, which was so well given as each child did their part well. The collection amounted to $18.00 and we had already sent in our thank-offering. Then the Woman's Auxiliary pledged themselves to give each child one dollar that will get on the honor roll the sixth month of the school year.

Circe No. 1 will meet with Mrs. B. E. Fox Monday afternoon at 2:30. This Circe has made a neat sum this year selling cakes. Circle No. 2 will meet with Mrs. E. D. Woody Monday night at 7:30.

We were so glad to have our beloved pastor return to us for another year. He has filled all the appointments so far with good, interesting sermons. He is always at his best.

The first quarterly conference will be held at our church next Wednesday night, December 10th. We hope to have all members present.

Our Wednesday evening prayer services are well attended. Dr. Williams makes them so interesting we just cannot stay away.

The Christian Endeavorers are to have charge of our Christmas entertainment. We are expecting a good program with them in charge. They also plan to have a Christmas tree for the entire school.

As we enter upon this new year we hope to make it the best ever, and with the pastor and people co-operating there is no reason that we cannot make it so. May there be much and lasting good accomplished in every church for the betterment of God's kingdom here on earth.

Best wishes to all the readers of the Herald.

Spring Valley, Vance Charge.—We are indeed glad to have our pastor return to us again for another year. He brought us a wonderful message last night, and so does every time he is with us. We feel very fortunate in having him with us. He is such a splendid worker with the young people.

Our Sunday school is doing very nicely. We have a goodly number present every Sunday, but not as many as we would like to have. We hope to have more this year, and be able to do more than we have ever done.

Our Christian Endeavor Society is doing splendid work. More interest shown in it than ever before. Recently, our pastor organized a joint society with our neighbor church, Flat Rock, and we have been having fine programs. I think the organization of this society has been a great benefit to both communities and it is bringing in young people in the church and old ones too, that have not been coming. We hope we will be able to accomplish a great deal in this new year through the Christian Endeavor Society. Last Sunday we had a Christian Endeavor Rally at this church, and had a splendid program. The topic for discussion was "Our Responsibility to Spread the Gospel," and it was fully discussed by Mr. S. R. Harris, Mr. C. B. Baskett, Miss Mavis Hester, Miss Mary White, Rev. B. M. Williams, Miss Elizabeth Harris and Miss Kathleen Paschall. It was one of the best programs of this kind I have ever attended, and I am sure that all who attended were greatly benefited.

Our Missionary Society is alive and very active. We have been quite busy all the year. Lots of new members, and we have raised a good portion on our budgets. We recently purchased for the church a piano, and a rug for the pulpit, and also new collection plates. We are very proud of our society and its work.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Pleasant Grove.—We have started a new Conference year with renewed energy and greater ambitions. We are glad to have our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, who has served us so faithfully the past two years, come back to us.

We were very glad to have Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon with a class of the children from the Children's Home take charge of the morning service the fourth Sunday. The offering was $43.00.

Brother Clarence Robbins, our new Sunday school superintendent, is very much interested in the work. May we all do all in our power to help him in this great work.

Our pastor brought us two inspiring messages Sunday. Mrs. Doris Beck came to us by letter from Calvary Reform church. We welcomed her in our midst at the morning service.

We are very sorry to say two of our faithful members, Mr. I. W. Burton and Mr. W. S. Cecil, are very sick. We pray that if it is the Lord's will they may soon be able to worship with us again.

The Ladies' Aid Society meets with Mrs. Z. B. Morris Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting of the church brotherhood will be held Saturday evening with Mr. S. L. Murphy.

English Street Church.—The Sunday school attendance was a great improvement over last Sunday, the number present being 209. The young people seem to be taking a great interest in the Sunday school. The young men's class had 35 per cent, and the young ladies had 25 present the past Sunday.

The Philathea class held its monthly business meeting and social at the home of Misses Callie and Hope Loflin last Thursday evening.

The C. E. Society will hold its monthly business meeting and social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lee Friday evening. The social committee has planned a big surprise, and they are hoping for a large attendance.

Last Sunday afternoon a large crowd of our Sunday school went down to Midway and held a song service. During the service several talks were given and a solo was rendered by Miss Ruth Bonkemeyer. We feel that there is a great future for Midway church, and we hope to become better acquainted with them so that we can help each other to do more for the advancement of God's kingdom.

First Church, High Point—Rev. R. I. Farmer delivered an inspiring and timely message on "Healing Life's Lameness" from Acts 3. He said in part: When Peter and John went into the temple to pray, a certain lame man who lay daily at the gate called Beautiful, asked alms of them. Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I unto thee; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk." He rose up immediately and his feet and ankle bones received strength, and he leaped, ran, and shouted praises to God. In America, the richest country in the world, there is dire need this winter. It is commonly said that the man or woman without money can do nothing in the way of bestowing charity, but often a kind word of encouragement to a tousel-headed boy or wavering girl is of greater comfort than coins. To those who make their way to houses of worship comes a vision of need. Robert G. Ingersoll said that as long as people went to church at least once a week he had no hope of destroying the Christian church. Those who go to cathedrals in England, France, Germany, and Italy can but be impressed by the beauty and solemnity of the architecture. It is a compliment to the church that people can find comfort and solace in their religion, but there are too many palaces overshadowing hovels today. A woman sat in the portals of a grand cathedral in Cuba and begged coins to have her sick baby blest by the priest before it died, but the alms came too late. These men who were healed of lameness no doubt went out, got busy, and worked to make their living, and there was no necessity to ask for alms again. The chief lameness in life today is not in the ankle bones, but in the human heart. Henry Drummond said that our chief business is to get back and find the cause of poverty and remove it. One ounce of help is often greater than a ton of sympathy. One thing we may do is to point people to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world, and perform whatever loving service in our power, for what men and women hunger for, is compassion and sympathy.

"Then gently scan thy brother man;
Still gentler, sister woman;
Though baith may gang a kennie wrong,
To step aside is human."

At the close of this service we were greatly pleased to see two promising young girls, Margaret and Virginia Dixon, come forward and be baptized, uniting themselves with the church, and Mr. Paul G. Moss brought his transfer letter from the Wesleyan Methodist church, Winston-Salem and joined our communion. Mrs. Moss is already a member of First church, and we are happy to have this fine young couple members of our congregation.

At the Vesper service the theme of Rev. Mr. Farmer's discourse was "The Eddy or the Stream," and Mr. Dement sang a charming solo, "No Night There."

The general meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary convened in monthly session Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A short business session was held, when reports of activities of the various Circles were given. It was decided to hold Circle meetings as usual next week.

The Young People's C. E. Society held its weekly meeting Monday evening with Miss Lalah Shepherd leading the topic, "The Best Christmas Gifts," this being a consecration meeting.

The Wednesday Fellowship Supper meeting will be held tomorrow evening at 6:45 o'clock, and Circle No. 7, Mrs. Lewis E. Teague, chairman, will have charge of the tables and coffee. The minister's subject for discussion will be "Is Bible 'Rest' Inaction?" These fellowship meetings are very delightful occasions for the membership.

Miss Vista Dixon will conduct classes in cooking and nursing in the night school, which is sponsored by the Woman's Club of the city.

Katherine, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Ryan, underwent an operation last Saturday for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. We are much gratified to note that her condition is satisfactory.

Our cordial and earnest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Henry A. White, who has been professor of Greek in High Point College since its opening in 1924, in the loss of her husband last Wednesday, December 3. Death came to Mr. White suddenly and almost without warning at the midnight hour after a happy day spent in a business trip to Burlington followed by his attendance with Mrs. White at the Folk-lore entertainment at the College. Mr. White was a prominent and public-spirited citizen, having come to the city 29 years ago; he was a native of Perquimans County, N. C., a graduate of Guilford College, class of 1894, and later studied at Haverford College, Penn. A life-long member of the Friends church, he exemplified in a remarkable degree the tenets of their faith, honesty, sobriety, plain living, and high thinking. The citizens of High Point mourn the passing of a valued member of the community, an upright and consistent Christian gentleman. He and Mrs. White were unusually campanionable, and their wedded life was ideally happy.

Fountain Place.—Again I want to say, as I did in my last report, that we are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Bethea and their family for another year. Since we will not have to spend a large part of this year getting acquainted we have a much better chance to do a full year's work and may we make the most of our opportunity.

Saturday night, November 22, the Annie Forest Philathea class gave an oyster supper in a vacant store near the center of the business section of our town This was a new experience for the girls and although some mistakes were made we feel that the results were satisfactory and are sure that we have learned much about serving supper. This class and some of the other classes of the Sunday school are putting forth a special effort to help reduce the church debt.

The first quarterly conference was held last Wednesday night with a good attendance. Mr. C. L. Jones was re-elected secretary for the coming year and an advisory committee to aid the pastor was chosen. After the meeting was over the people went to the parsonage with packages of good things to eat and the like for pastor and his family.

Thursday night Class No. 3, Miss Hilda Amick, teacher, gave a party in the church basement. Such attractions as a baby show, fortune telling, fishing, etc., proved profitable. In addition to these, peanuts, candy, sandwiches and coffee were sold at the refreshment stand. It's fine for the younger members of the Sunday school and church to want to help in the church work.

Last night (Monday) the Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. C. L. Jones and her daughter, Miss Elouise. The attendance was good and it was one of the best meetings we have ever had. The Auxiliary has prepared and sold one bushel of peanuts as an experiment. It proved profitable, so all plan to handle them on a larger scale. Mrs. Dickens, of Enfield, gave us a bag (four bushels) of peanuts and a committee is to arrange this week to sell them to drug stores and refreshment stands regularly. We appreciate Mrs. Dickens' gift and hope to get great profits from it for the Lord and His work.

Although the program, which came after the business, was not elaborate, it was one that brought tears to our eyes and memories back that may have been forgotten for many months. After singing two Christmas carols and hearing a lovely poem on the subject, our pastor led off by telling some of his Christian experiences in childhood. Others followed and the thought was brought out that in years gone by the children received fewer toys and presents, but knew more about the real meaning of Christmas. Then one who knew from experience in a children's home talk of the broken hearts among the tiny folk when Santa didn't come at the usual time, but waited until Christmas afternoon at the tree.

At the close of the program plans were made for helping the needy of our city through the organized charities. If we all strive to help others more this Christmas season and forget self in the act it will be the happiest Christmas we have ever known.

Best wishes from Fountain Place to all the other churches for the coming Christmas season and the new year.

Philadelphia, Greensville Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, preached his first sermon the fifth Sunday, which we enjoyed. We are so thankful the Conference saw fit to send us such a grand speaker. I know God had a hand in sending him to Greensville charge. I feel that he is going to do a great work over here if we members will just cooperate with him. A preacher can't do his best unless we do our part, be always ready to push or pull, or anything he calls on us to do. If we want things to grow I hope we all will work and pray as we have never done before. I think it is a time we all should try to do our very best day by day, for we never know what tomorrow will bring forth. We were glad to have Bro. Hethcox's family join our church last Sunday. If you don't believe we are going to have some good singing now just come to Philadelphia next third Sunday night. A MEMBER.

Mount Pleasant Church.—We wish that we could have shared our pastor's sermon with everyone who was not in a church listening to one equally as good during our 11 o'clock service Sunday morning, December 7.

We appreciated the presence of a number of visitors for the service and are extending to you and others a hearty invitation to "Come again! Rev. J. R. Hutton will make it well worth your coming."

Choosing for his subject, "The Sympathy and Power of Jesus," using Luke 7:11-18, emphasizing the 13th and 14th verses, and addressing himself mainly to the young people of the congregation, Mr. Hutton preached a truly great sermon. No pen could give a verbal vision of its depth and sincerity.

A sincere young Christian minister might have preached a great sermon upon the same subject, but the writer saw the spiritual offering as both intensified and mellowed by the experiences of many years of Christian ministry. We thank God for such ministers and such sermons, and that it is our privilege to enjoy the benefits of the years of Christian living and service that are melted like molten metals into the making of them.

We are to have with us President Taylor at the first quarterly conference, which will be held at our church on Saturday before the third Sunday of this month, at 2 p. m. All church members are urged to attend this important meeting. The following day at the 11 o'clock service Mr. Taylor will preach at our church. We understand that he is to preach at Pleasant Union at 2 p. m. of the same day.

We are extending a sincere and heart-felt sympathy to the sons and daughters—who are counted among the strongest pillars of our church—and the other relatives of Mrs. Rebecca Causey, whose funeral was conducted within the sacred confines of our church since the last report.

A quartette from the Greensboro Calvary church rendered several appropriate hymns during the ceremony, and Mr. Bates, of that church, led the funeral procession in its entrance, reading an impressive requiem as he led the cortege to the altar. There, amidst a profusion of sweetly-scented flowers, arranged in graceful floor baskets, reclining upon tall floral stands and wreathing the entire altar, the casket reposed throughout the remainder of the ceremony in which Reverends J. D. Williams, McCulloch, and J. A. Burgess participated.

Mr. Burgess sought to give the bereaved audience a glimpse of the simple, priceless beauty of the departed spirit as it was manifested in the love for, and cultivation of natural and spiritual beauty, during the lifetime sojourn of the departed mother.

After the distinctive service the body was interred within our church cemetery.

Flowers were carried by the grand-daughters of the deceased, and the following served as pall-bearers: Messrs. Teague, J. T. Bowman, W. D. Underwood, J. Enos Causey, Gordon Causey, and Rollins Causey.

Circle No. 1 of our Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Arthur Foust next Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

Richard Shoffner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Shoffner, who is in St. Leo's Hospital suffering from severe burns following a gasoline ignition, is reported as some better. We are hoping that he will soon be wel again.

Mebane.—Last Sunday the attendance for Sunday school and church was fairly good, and a large number partook of the Lord's Supper at the 11 o'clock church service. The pastor announced that on next Sunday morning parents of small children will be given an opportunity to dedicate them to the Lord in baptism.

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Ladies' Aid had an interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. June Smith; some important matters were discussed and taken care of at this meeting. The ladies of this organization are planning to hold their annual bazaar on next Saturday afternoon at the Kiwanis hall beginning at 2 o'clock; we will also serve supper.

We are sorry to report the death of the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jobe on November 30. The sympathy of the entire church is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jobe in their bereavement.

Miss Grace Bennett, of Hillsboro school faculty, and Miss Katie Lee Barnette, of Greensboro, spnt the past week-end with their parents.

Miss Elizabeth and Edna Nicholson also spent the past week-end at home.

Miss Alta Allen, of Southmont school faculty, spent the previous week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Allen.

Several from here attended the funeral of R. B. Foust at Mount Hope Reformed church in Guilford county on last Wednesday, December 3. J. E. Foust, of this place, is a son of the deceased.

We are planning a White Christmas for our church this year; the following have been appointed to be responsible for its program or service: Mrs. H. C. Nicholson, Mrs. G. E. Wyatte, Mrs. Carl Sykes, Mrs. A. H. Jobe and T. O. Pender.

Denton Charge.—We arrived on Denton charge November 20th and found the parsonage swept and garnished for our occupation. We have been received with flattering ceremonies by the town, sponsored by the good pastor of the Baptist church and all the churches of the city in a service for this purpose. We have also had a hearty welcome at all the churches on our charge. We are blessed with following a pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, who as a result of his faithful labors for the Master, left the work in a good, wholesome shape.

We spent four happy years with the dear folks of Roberta, and the longer we stayed, the more they endeared themselves to us. The good folks showed us every kindness even down to the last moments of our stay there. Even after we were assigned to Denton charge, we were honored with a dinner that would have made a governor's heart leap for joy. We all together had such a good time over this, they seemed to want to keep the good work going. So here they came with another sumptuous pounding that put a smile on our pretty face that it will surely take many hardships to erase, and a song in our hearts that, if possible, might cause the mocking bird to wonder if he had a monopoly on the art of cheerful song. My dear Roberta loved ones, we have marched together, fought together, prayed together, wept together, rejoiced together, and our hearts shall now and ever think, love and blend together, though apart here for a few years. May we all live together when this vale of tears is past. I can never forget you, God bless you!

If signs mean anything, and surely they do, we are bidding fair for a happy sojourn on the good Denton charge. For we have met with several happy surprises that have tended to inspire our hearts with hopes that we did not even dream of a month ago. One of the best things has been that my own mind shows signs of change, and we are told that "A fool never changes;" don't you think this should comfort me? Now, what do you think comes next? Don't guess, let me tell you. Last Friday night at 7 o'clock not less than 50 people, groaning under burdens that would have almost loaded a wagon, made a raid on the parsonage and of all the good things space forbids my telling! The biggest pounding mine eyes have ever been blessed to see, that was this one. Everything, I think, that lay in the pantries of this town some of it must have been deposited in our dining room. Space will not permit my naming all this host here. But God has their names every one, and is "Not unrighteous to forget their labors of love in that they have ministered to the saints." (Heb. 6:10.) If they meant this for a sample of what they had at home, who wouldn't like to live in such an environment? Hurrah, for Denton church, and God bless you and attend you as only He can do, is our prayer.

The Thanksgiving offering to the Children's Home amounted to $25 and some over. The congregations have been very responsive to the gospel as we have tried to preach it.

Kistlers, Cleveland.—This is the third year that Rev. C. E. Ridge has served this charge. We are indeed glad to have this good pastor and family with us again this year, and we extend to them a hearty welcome. At the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning Brother Ridge gave us an inspiring sermon; text, Acts 6-5: "They chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit."

Our first quarterly conference will be held at this church on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in December.

Our S. S. attendance is small, but much interest is shown in the small group by their faithful attendance each Sunday.

Rev. C. E. Ridge and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Velus Ivester last Sunday.

* * *

Friendship, Stanley.—We are thankful for the conference to give us Rev. and Mrs. O. B. Williams. We feel that he is indeed a man of God and we are sure the people will be in sympathy with him in all his undertakings. We are looking for the greatest year we have ever had.

Our Sunday school is just fine. Our new pastor delivered an inspiring message Sunday morning.

Plans were made for a Christmas entertainment in charge of Mrs. D. W. Sides and Mrs. O. B. Williams.

The Ladies' Aid society is doing good work with Mrs. T. J. Tefler president, Mrs. W. H. Harwood, secretary, Mrs. C. R. Hatley, treasurer.

Gibsonville Church.—We are all overjoyed over the fact that we have Rev. N. G. Bethea and Mrs. Bethea with us for another year's work. He always has a splendid sermon at the preaching service and we enjoy hearing him preach. He occasionally visits our school and conducts the worship service. The students enjoy his visits. We would like for him to visit more often.

We are glad to note several visitors in the congregation during the recent services. We hope they will see fit to come again.

The Young Ladies' Auxiliary gave a play, "Janey" on last fifth Sunday night. Their last business meeting was held with Mr. and Mrs. Bethea at the parsonage at Burlington. An interesting program was rendered on "Giving." Mrs. Wade sang "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Pauline Pickard. We were glad to have them with us in our meeting. After the program the hostess assisted by Miss Lena Isley served refreshments. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Clayton Fawcette at her home in Gibsonville.

The Young Ladies' Bible class will hold their regular monthly business meeting on Wednesday night of this week at the home of Mrs. Fred Ridge. Full attendance is requested.

The Woman's Auxiliary holds its regular monthly meeting.

The first quarterly conference has been held and the work planned for next year.

The Senior Christian Endeavor continues to meet at the regular time and place.

First Church, Winston.—Ho! Ho! Hum—What do you think we've done! Had a little social last Tuesday evening for our big pastor and his dear wife. Rev. Douglass L.

Rights, pastor of Trinity Moravian church, here, gave an address of welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Pritchard. There were quite a number of people who appeared on the entertainment "string," most of whom were from our local congregation, however some were from elsewhere and we were very glad to have them. Rev. and Mrs. Gerringer enjoyed this occasion with us. It was a pleasure to all of us to have them present and enjoy their splendid fellowship. Mr. Gerringer gave us a few remarks which were enjoyed. Mr. Pritchard delighted all with a talk, reciprocating the former talks. Mrs. Pritchard also gave a few words. The Sunday school room was filled and everyone left with a feeling that somehow they knew both of the honor guests better, however, most of the congregation felt as though they had known Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard for a long, long time, because of their splendid personality and adaptability since they have been in our midst. At the close the Woman's Auxiliary served ice cream and delicious home-baked cake.

The Worker's Council met Friday night at the church. Mr. Frank Voss, our Sunday school superintendent, had charge of the business session. Several items of importance to our school were discussed. It was decided to give the children a treat Christmas as has been our usual custom.

As Sunday was the first Sunday there was communion service. Rev. C. H. Whitaker worshiped with us Sunday and assisted our pastor in this service.

Rehearsal for the Christmas entertainment, a lovely pageant is being gotten up by our group this year, both adults and children are taking part. In it the real Christmas—the first Christmas is portrayed.

The first quarterly conference will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Sunday school room of the church.

Sunday services were fair, there were ten more at Sunday school than one year ago. The church worship was attended very well and a good sermon was delivered by Mr. Pritchard, although it was short due to communion services, it was splendid and forceful in its journey to one's heart.

Everyone is beginning to make ready for Old Santa. On the streets its a bustle and a hurry. Christmas is wonderful when one person makes another, who is in need, happy. Unless we do that this year, there will still be lacking in Christmas something that is needed for the fullest enjoyment.

Kannapolis Church.—Sunday, December 7, has been a great day for us. We had 116 present for Sunday school. One year ago today we only had about 42. We are very glad to see our Sunday school grow. Our pastor preached a very forceful sermon today. Two new members were taken into our church, making 12 new members for us since conference. We are very glad to welcome them in our midst.

Our Ladies' Aid met at the regular time the first Monday night in December with Mrs. Addie Weaver. One new member was added to our roll. After the meeting the Aid presented Mrs. J. L. Love, our pastor's wife, with a pretty kitchen shower.

The program for Christmas is underway. We are practicing twice a week. We hope to have a good program. The children are so anxious to do their part. We have asked every adult member of our church to give one day's work on our church debt, and we are proud of the way they have come to our aid.

We are very proud of our little church and are anxious to get it paid for so we may begin to build our Sunday school rooms, which we need so badly.

Thanksgiving was very quiet in our little town. We had a union service of all the churches here. It was held at the Presbyterian church at 9 a. m., and was attended by a large number.

Wishing our paper the best of success for the New Year.

South Lexington Charge. — Immediately after the adjournment of conference I entered upon my third year of work with the good people of the South Lexington charge. The work of the charge has begun in such a way as to bring hope for much success this year.

At South Lexington the Sunday school continues to grow. The attendance last Sunday, December 7, was 221. At the regular preaching service in the evening a large crowd was in attendance and gave evidence of their interest by the close attention paid to the sermon. Since conference we have received the following members into the South Lexington church: Mrs. Frances Yates, Mrs. Mae Bowers from the Baptist church, and Miss Virginia Daniel.

At Mt. Carmel the Sunday school is likewise growing and interest is good. A large audience was present at the preaching service Sunday morning. The contract for erection of the new church building will be let Thursday, December 11. It is hoped that within sixty days, at most, the completed building will be ready for use.

Both churches are planning Christmas programs; and those on whom the responsibility of the preparation rests seem to have the matter well in hand and good interest is being shown.

We wish to thank Mr. C. L. Hedrick, Mr. Herman Swicegood, Mr. R. M. Rowe, Mr. John Swicegood, and Mr. R. M. Fritts for donations of provisions, which were greatly appreciated.

We regret the illness of Mrs. J. M. Russell, Mrs. Adam Berry, and Mr. Shaw. Mrs. B. F. Everidge has also been on the sick list, but is now improved.

It is our hope that this may be a year of advancement and success of the work of our church on the South Lexington charge.

C. G. ISLEY, Pastor.

Anderson Charge.—On Sunday morning, December 7, Rev. M. C. Henderson preached his first sermon at Fairview M. P. church to a large congregation. His sermon was excellent and everyone present received an inspiration to do more and better work for the Master during the coming year. A number of visitors were present, among whom were the W. M. C. quartet from Central, South Carolina. They rendered several very appropriate selections. At the close of the services it was announced that the pastor would find some extra packages in his car. It had been announced on the previous Sunday that the members of the church and Sunday school wished to express their good wishes and esteem by pounding Mr. Henderson and family.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Supt. T. B. Nalley. The attendance now is around 100, but 200 has been set as a goal for next year. There are several who have not missed a Sunday during this year. Tommy Nalley, a young man, in the Senior class has not been absent in four years. We are justly proud of his record.

The first quarterly conference of Anderson charge meets Saturday, December 13, at 2:30 p. m. at Fairview. Every member is urged to be present, especially the official members. Some important business is to be attended to.

TO AN ARMCHAIR CRITIC

Sir, I've read your caustic comments—
What you say may well be true;
But just now, with your permission,
I should like to question you.
Did you ever paint a picture,
Carve a statue, make a speech?
Did you ever learn by labor,
Anything the fine arts teach?

Have you ever made great music,
Or a new creative book?
Have you ever known pure Nature,
Wood and mountain, sea and brook?
Have you ever traveled widely,
Studied Life, firsthand, yourself?
Or is all your knowledge bounded
By the volumes on your shelf.

Have you ever seen world marvels—
Seen the Sphinx's secret smile,
The Necropolis by moonlight,
Or the ruins by the Nile?
Have you paused in breathless wonder
At the magic of the day—
At the sunset on the desert,
Or the sapphire Naples Bay?

Never! For the myriad wonders
Of the earth and of the sea,
Would lay bare the tawdry glitter
Of a critic's fluency.
Will you ever leave your armchair
And the books upon your shelf,
And set forth, a humble pilgrim,
To interpret Life yourself?

Will you ever make the effort
To employ your subtle brain
On a worthier, greater object
Than to cavil and complain?
If you do, you'll find sheer living
Makes your criticism fade,
And for loving and creating
Were the reasons Man was made!

—Grenville Kleiser.

UNEMPLOYED

Is the way drab and dreary?
Are you disheartened and wan?
Pilgrims, be of good courage,
Midnight foretells the dawn.

HISTORY OF THE THOMPSON SCHOOL

Thompson School, Siler City, 1887-1897

By DR. W. T. WHITSETT

The very success of the work of Professor Thompson at Oakdale brought many questions to the front. The increasing demand for more and better buildings; the opinion, held by many, that the school would succeed better if located on the railroad in some progressive town or city; the inconveniences of reaching a country location over bad roads; all these and other problems pressed for decision. Naturally, the local community desired the school to remain where it was first established; where many sacrifices, financial, and otherwise, had been made by citizens to bring it to its present position; these, and other serious problems made the decision no easy one. The removal of any educational institution is a debatable question. Here in North Carolina we have on the negative of the question such results as followed the removal of the Davis Military school from La Grange to Winston-Salem; the removal of the Horner school from Oxford to Charlotte; and others; on the affirmative we have examples like that of Catawba college from Newton to Salisbury; the Graham Normal college from Graham to Elon college; Trinity college from its old location at Trinity in Randolph county to the city of Durham. No school can be removed to a new location without friction; without some actual loss and real wrong; without a loss of friends and prestige in certain cases. All these things beset Professor Thompson and his friends in the removal of Oakdale Academy to Siler City where the school was to continue its work under the new name of the Thompson School.

Losses at Oakdale Academy by Removal

By removal the school lost something of the fine reputation made by such faculty members as Baker, Davidson, Lutterloh, Peed, McNeill, S. C. Thompson, Wilson, Fowler and others in the old location. It lost something of the reputation it had gained by such a long line of outstanding students as the Bethune brothers, the Clendenins, the Cobles, the Grahams, the Hunter brothers, the Ledbetters, the Strouds, the Wrightsells, Rankin, Merritt, and a host of others. It lost in large measure the support of a fine local community that had given six years of faithful effort to establish a permanent educational institution in its midst. The fine roots of affection, and loyalty, and devotion in the old home could not be transplanted to new ground. The high promises of all the past could not be realized in the new location as quickly as some sanguine friends had prophesied, and this made it sometimes hard to justify all the high hopes in the new location.

The Gains at Siler City by Removal

It is easy to find a new home for any prosperous enterprise; invitations are never wanting. So it was with the removal of this school. Several different places tried to induce Professor Thompson to accept their invitations. Several made splendid offers. Finally, he decided upon Siler City for the new home. This decision was not pleasing to those who had failed to interest him, and, naturally, they were not among his well-wishers always. There were many advantages at Siler City. A most excellent, and progressive community; a fine citizenship; and liberal offers of a material nature to set the school going in its new home. Better mail facilities, the convenience of a railroad, and a surrounding community anxious for a good school. But while the community expected to be called upon to give liberally to assist the school it also expected that in many material ways the school would be a profitable and constantly growing asset to the town and the entire community. In studying the story of the Thompson School and its ten years' history at its new location in Siler Ctiy all these and many other things are to be taken into consideration. Because the Thompson School came to Siler City in January, 1887, and closed its work here in December, 1897 constitutes no reflection either upon Professor Thompson and the Thompson School, or upon the friends of the school in its new location, and the town of Siler City generally. There were many moving causes and forces that played their part; all of which would require too much time for us to attempt to analyze and explain on this occasion. Rather, let us be proud of the great work that was done here; honor those who in any way promoted the school's success; and be charitable in our views of any and all causes that operated to finally bring its history to a close. To perpetuate any good cause, or good work, or even great institution is one of the most difficult tasks confronting mere human hands. As we study history we are sometimes inclined to think that only the hand of Divinity moving amid human affairs can add perpetuity to any story.

The faithful teachers who labored in the Thompson School in its ten years at Siler City have left an indelible impress upon scores of lives; the citizens who contributed so largely to the work in so many ways have rendered a real service for all time to the uplift of their day and generation; the students who marched day by day through the classrooms, coming from scattered sections of the commonwealth, gathered here the guiding principles that have made their work in so many cases a work of real distinction in the school room, in the pulpit, at the bed-side of the sick, in the halls of legislation, in public and private service for humanity, and in all the vocations and callings of life. Could we call the long roll here today we would find many of its names written in letters of light; and we have every reason to be profoundly grateful that the Thompson School stood here as a city of light set upon a hill, and so well served humanity and God by its faithful efforts in the decade of its existence at this place.

A Changing Educational Era

To properly estimate the great service of the educational work of Professor J. A. W. Thompson we must glance at the history of education in North Carolina. In a handsome volume called "North Carolina and Its Resources" published in 1896, containing over four hundred pages of carefully prepared matter concerning this state, we may find on page 265 a list of over one hundred educational institutions in North Carolina of which number fewer than ten are in existence today. Why is this? The answer may be found in certain facts in our story of education.

The Civil War left us desperately poor, with practically no system of public education. Public schools of two, three, and four months, taught by inefficient teachers told the story from 1865 to about 1880. There was no place for the student who aspired to obtain a high school education, or preparation for college. During these twenty years from 1880 to 1900 scores of schools throughout the state came into the field to fill this void in our educational life. For thirty to forty years they served the state well, and offered light to the youth of the state. More than a hundred of these schools as has been stated became the only Alma Mater for the aspiring youth of their day. Many of these schools were conducted by educators of fine type; men such as John Graham, John Duckett, Morsen and Denson, W. H. Ragsdale, Washington Catlett, F. S. Wilkinson, C. F. Siler, J. N. Weatherly, T. M. Robertson, Ira T. Turlington, J. F. Brower, J. C. Clapp, J. D. Hodges, N. C. Hughes, and a host of others among whom were some of the finest teachers that the state has ever had. It was into this work that J. A. W. Thompson entered in 1880 and continued for nearly twenty years. The colleges of 1880 were hardly equal to the high schools of the present time either in equipment or curriculum. The people had no money with which to go to college, and no adequate preparation for entering upon college work. This type of school to which we refer came in to supply a real need in our hour of educational dearth. They did their work well; as witness the thousands of leading men today whose training was received solely within their walls; men who have rescued the state from poverty, and set North Carolina as the chief diadem among the Southern states. In most cases these men were trained in the schools to which we refer.

With prosperity, and wealth, a new day dawns; the public high school is given to the people of the state; the colleges advance their courses, and add to their resources; and the type of school that played such an important part from say 1880 to 1920 has gradually passed out; some being absorbed into the public school system, others by religious denominations, but practically none remaining in the field to attempt their work solely by private initiative. Together with a host of others, we owe a debt of grattiude to J. A.

W. Thompson, who labored so faithfully in this field of preparatory education, and furnished to the state teachers for the public schools long before we had dreamed of establishing our normal colleges for teacher training, and training to those who were to enter upon their business careers. In addition to these, it was schools such as his that gave preparation to those who despite poverty pressed on to college and university, in that day when going to college was the exceptional and not the usual thing for a young person to do. Oakdale Academy and the Thompson School belong to that type of institution that saved the day educationally for the youth of our state of forty and fifty years ago. What we have done, and what we are today, have been determined by the fine efforts of the workers of those days and we should not be remiss in paying due tribute to their efforts.

In the fine fundamentals of accurate scholarship, development of character, and a determination to play a significant part in all the duties pertaining to true citizenship, we will do well to keep in mind the ideals of these past masters of our school-rooms. Their dreams of CHARACTER, CULTURE, and CITIZENSHIP for every one who entered their classes may well inspire and guide us in our work today.

WINGS THAT SOAR ABOVE THE CLOUDS

The story goes that once a farmer found
An eagle egg at rest upon the ground.
He put the egg with chickens' eggs to hatch
Under a hen, the while he kept a watch
To see what he should see.

The hatching season brought him chicks of brown
And with them ran an eagle clothed in down.
As days slipped by, the down to feathers changed,
But still upon the ground the eagle ranged Contented as could be.

The eagle doubtless thought himself as others,
Nor knew that he could fly above his brothers
Until one day a storm-cloud filled the sky
That warned the chicks a mighty storm was nigh.
They straighway ran to hide.

But nobler instinct sent the eagle soaring
On eagle wings, above the wind's loud roaring;
Above the clouds, to peaceful rest, he flew
And there until the mighty storm was through
He safely did abide.

Are you beset by earthly storms, today?
Have clouds of troubled storm rolled in the way?
Renew your strength in God and soar above
On eagle wings to where there's peace and love,
Mount up, and fly, today.

Let unbelieving souls go hide in fear
And crouch in darkness, though the sun be near,
But use your new found prowess while you may;
Soar proudly up above the clouds, today.
Soar up an eagle way.

A MODERN NOAH'S ARK

In a certain Florida lake there is an island which is much used as a pasture for cattle. During heavy storms, however, the waves sweep over it and the cattle must be taken to the mainland in large flatboats kept there for the purpose.

Although the surface of the island is for the most part low and level, there is one spot elevated a few feet above the rest, and on it there is a large shed used for storing fodder, hay, and other supplies for times of drought and seasons when the pasture is naturally scant.

Not long ago the owner of the island had occasion to visit it during a stormy period when all the low land had been submerged for several days. Imagine his surprise when he found the shed to be a veritable Noah's Ark!

The waves dashed about its base, making it appear as if afloat, and within it were all the survivors of the island. There were rabbits, squirrels, birds of many varieties, rattlesnakes, hoop snakes, lizzards, tortoises, insects, and other kinds of animal life too numerous to mention.

And to add to his surprise, all of them appeared to be living together peaceably. It seemed strange to find the rattler and his natural prey so close together. The hawks, too, perched near what might have been their victims under other circumstances, without molesting them in the least.

It occurred to the owner that the cause of this peculiar phenomenon was probably fear. The animals had been driven from their homes and hiding-places by the rising water, which threatened their very lives, and those that had been fortunate enough to reach this haven of refuge were still living in terror.

If the refugees had been human beings, he might have explained the situation somewhat differently. Possibly gratitude for their deliverance might have been powerful enough, for a few days at least, to prevent the strong and the wicked from preying upon the weak. Who can tell?—William Alphonso Murrill in "Our Dumb Animals."

—S. P. Honeycutt of Johnston county produced 105.3 bushels of corn an acre on his five-acre demonstration, reports J. B. Slack.

JIM CROW, A SMART BIRD

"Jim" is a talking crow in the town of Fidelity, Illinois. He was taken from a crow's nest about two years ago and belongs to William Tuetken, in whose home he has become a most interesting pet. At an early age the young bird began to talk and he has developed a remarkable vocabulary to which he constantly adds new words.

Recently, it became necessary for Jim's owner to clip the bird's wings in order to keep him at home. Jim had been in the habit of making long flights to neighboring farm houses and visiting with the residents who know the bird and welcome his coming.

A short time after the beginning of school, Jim flew to Medora, which is a distance of two miles from the Tuetken home, and visited the pubile school which was in session.

He alighted on the ledge of one of the windows, and, after inspecting the room full of children from his perch he began to talk and laugh uproariously.

The actions of the big, glossy, black bird brought a round of tittering from the children, and, as they laughed the bird continued to laugh that much louder. The teacher went toward Jim and drove him from the window-ledge. He took refuge in a neighboring tree where he contiued to call and talk, apparently directing his remarks toward the school-room and the teacher. An hour or so later he flew away and returned to his home.

Jim is engaged this fall helping with the corn husking. He rides on the edge of the wagon-box and drives the team with his voice. When it is time for the wagon to be moved, Jim will call out to the team, "Get up." When the wagon has advanced far enough, he will call out, "Whoa," in the most efficient manner.

"He can drive the team in the cornfield just as well as I can," stated Mr. Tuetken, in discussing some of the bird's many abilities. —Arthur Thatcher, in "Our Dumb Animals."

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

CONCERNING LIFE, MEMORIAL, AND PERPETUAL MEMBERSHIPS

A beautiful custom that has prevailed since the early days of our missionary work is the giving of Life and Memorial Memberships. Of course, Life Membership in a branch of church work does not mean that there are no further obligations on the part of the member to help support that work, any more than life membership in a family lessens that obligation.

I know of several children who have grown up with the consciousness that they are Life Members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. P. church. To give just one instance, a little girl who made her home with her grandmother was made a Life Member of our organization when she was quite small, by the layman who was entertained at the home of her grandmother at one of our annual conferences. Although the little girl's parents were members of another denomination, and the little girl joined the church with them at her grandmother's death, she and her husband have since become loyal members of the Methodist Protestant church. Who can say that the Life Membership did not have some weight in bringing this about?

To be in a real sense a Life Member, the membership must be begun in infancy, and it has a wholesome influence on the life of a child, to be connected with such a fine and noble work. Life Memberships are secured by payment of ten dollars, and it is a lovely thing for grandparents or other relatives to do for children.

If no one makes you a Life Member for all your life you may begin at any age, but the primary object of this phase of our work as I see it, is to bring the children into vital connection with the work of the church.

What more beautiful tribute to the memory of those who have passed on to their eternal home, than to make them Memorial Members of the Woman's Work? So many beloved friends of the work have gone to the land of Eternal Memories recently, and I feel sure they have left friends who would be glad to give this memorial tribute of ten dollars.

Money for Life and Memorial Memberships counts on our budget, and should be sent to Mrs. Taylor, state treasurer, as should all funds.

Perpetual Memberships, which cost thirty dollars, do not count on our budget, except the $1.20 annual interest which comes back to pay annual dues in the branch from which they are sent. To me, Perpetual Memberships are least desirable of any with which I am concerned, for the membership fee can never be spent except the interest, which, at four per cent. is a very small amount of money, while thirty dollars invested in real service toward the salvation of souls would, in the years to come, mean much more to the Kingdom of God.

I shall be glad to furnish certificates for any of these memberships. Please print clearly the name of those for whom you wish certificates and state the name of the auxiliary from which it comes, together with the addresses of persons to whom certificates should be mailed.

Let us take time to think of these things; we are nearing the end of the third quarter of our year.

Sincerely,
MRS. SAMUEL R. HARRIS,
Secretary Life, Memorial and Perpetual Memberships.

Three Greatest Gifts

Amazing gifts does God bestow
Upon His children here below:
Rare wonders of both sea and land
Are gifts of His most lavish hand.

No want of ours too deep or high
To be soon reached with rich supply;
We live in plenty all our days,
So bounteous are our Father's ways.

But lift your eyes to greater things,
Rise up as if on eagle's wings,
And view the wondrous gifts of grace
Prepared by God for Adam's race.

In this survey no finite rule,
Not greatest used in earthly school,
Can measure all the vast extent
Of what is given, not simply lent.

We read God gave His only Son
To sons of Adam, every one,
And each may be God's son and heir,
Both rich and great beyond compare.

As fathers give their children bread,
So God will give, as He has said,
The Holy Spirit to them that ask,
To strengthen for each daily task.

But God is not yet satisfied.
For death would us from Him divide:
Eternal life to us He'd give,
Preparing us with Him to live.

These three grand gifts of heavenly grace
Make us indeed a favored race.
What more for us could God have done?
But we must strive till all be won.

Hindrances That Are Helps

That sounds paradoxical. What we mean is that many seeming hindrances are in reality helps. This is well illustrated in the life of Paul. His long imprisonments seem at first sight the sheer loss of time for a man most capable as an exponent of the gospel of Christ. Those years in prison of course kept him from his travels and greatly reduced the number of his opportunities to preach, but gave him opportunity to write his immortal epistles. Thus his hindrances greatly extended and enlarged his influence in the world of mankind. Many of his persecutions at the time seemed against the success of the cause he was advocating, but in reality gave much added force to his testimony. A man willing to suffer for the truth he is proclaiming evidently believes in the value of his message. That much hindered man, Paul, was in truth a much helped man.

Many of our hindrances are like Paul's—helps in disguise. They are not such helps as we would choose, but God chooses them for us because He sees that they are the helps we most need. Instead of being intimidated by such hindrances we should be encouraged, knowing that God's plans for us are better than our own.

Our Greatest National Problem

At this stage of our history our greatest national problem is what to do with the liquor traffic. Some of us thought it was solved by the enactment of national prohibition. But opponents of this solution are of course dissatisfied and are trying to make the impression that a majority of the people are dissatisfied. Unfair means are sometimes used to accomplish that end. The people need first of all to know the truth, and then they need to follow determinedly wherever the truth may lead. But it is to be remembered that we cannot find the truth simply by counting heads. What if it should be brought about that the majority are opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment: that would not prove that the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment was a mistake. It would only demonstrate the fickleness and unreliability of a large number of our citizens. Let the testimony of dishonest Wets be met and overcome by the testimony of honest Drys.

We wish to devote a large part of our issue of January 1 to a discussion of this perplexing problem and again ask each of our pastors to contribute brief expression of his convictions. We will ask also any laymen that feel impelled to do likewise. The battle is on, and it behooves every Christian to take up arms against a monstrous iniquity. This is not a fight in party politics. It is a battle of moral truth against moral error. He that is not against error is not strongly for the truth.

They Must Be Banished

We mean "Rev. Smith" and "Rev. Jones." They have long been a nuisance. Every editor has suffered from them. Strong is the resentment in the breast of every experienced editor against them. We are glad to see the new editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder, Dr. H. H. Price, so soon taking up arms against them. This gives us increased hope of the complete banishment of these misnamed monstrosities. We know Doctor Jones and Lawyer Smith, but we refuse to recog-

THREE TIMES—AND OUT?

By Rev. Luther K. Long

Bishop Manning, of the Episcopal diocese of New York, has frequently brought on a bad situation among his people and has caused grief to many devout Christians of other communions. Here are three counts against him.

1. In November, 1929, the Christian Unity League—made up of members from many denominations—held its annual meetings in St. George's Episcopal church, New York. Bishop Manning forbade the celebration of the Lord's Supper at that gathering on the ground that Dr. Coffin, a Presbyterian minister who had been appointed to administer the sacrament, was not an episcopally ordained clergyman. The service was adjourned to the chapel of Union seminary.

2. The 1930 meeting of this same Christian Unity League was held in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church. Dr. Norwood, the rector, invited members of the league to the Lord's Supper, at which he himself would preside—avoiding, as he supposed, any occasion of offence to his bishop. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, a former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, was to preach the communion sermon—other than Episcopal clergymen do sometimes preach from Episcopal pulpits. Again Bishop Manning interferred, this time on the ground that the sermon at communion in an Episcopal church must always be given by an episcopally ordained clergyman.

The point in the Bishop's mind seems to be that there is something about an Episcopal church, and an episcopally ordained clergyman, that sets them apart from churches organized and ministers ordained after the customs of Presbyterians, Methodists, Congregationalists, Baptists, and Disciples. This so hedges in Episcopalians, and so shuts out members of other churches, that inter-church fellowship and work are very greatly hindered. Such a situation, naturally, does not set well with ministers and members of other denominations; and there is a strong feeling in the Episcopal church—especially among laymen—against such unwarranted and high-handed assumptions and measures.

3. Just recently Bishop Manning has made a third exhibition of the spirit that is in him. The New York Churchmen's Association invited Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, to speak to them on Marriage and Divorce. Bishop Manning protested, in a letter, against Judge Lindsey's being allowed to address the clergy. After a lengthy and spirited debate, the clergy voted by a large majority to hear the judge—stating to the public that in this action they were "governed by the conviction that it is both the right and the duty of the clergy to hear speakers on matters vitally affecting the welfare of the people to whom they are called upon to minister."

The incident in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, the following Sunday, was not creditable to either the Bishop or the Judge. Bishop Manning had advertised that he would speak on Marriage and Divorce, and Judge Lindsey had let it be known that he would attend the service and might ask some questions. A crowd, many of them of the curious, filled the Cathedral and heard the scathing attack on the character and teachings of the Judge—largely a misrepresentation, as any one who knows Lindsey and has read his writings can testify—and the Judge attempted to say something in his own defense. Then came the riot, the ejection from the Cathedral and the arrest.

I hold no brief for Judge Lindsey and his views on marriage and divorce. He is bringing from under cover a lot of facts that should have been faced long ago. His ideas and plans will, no doubt, be given whatever consideration is due them—along with other ideas and plans that will, and should, be discussed. It is through search and discussion that truth is discovered. The truth and the right, we may believe, will eventually prevail.

As to Bishop Manning. A considerable section of his clergy do not hold his narrow views. Some of them are of the opinion that he should go over to the Roman Catholic church, where he logically belongs—leaving the Protestant Episcopal church to be really Protestant.

"HOW A YOUNG WOMAN MAY SPREAD THE GOSPEL"

By Kathleen Paschall

I think I shall drop the adjective and just speak of women in general. I would like, however, to emphasize the "May," because the ways I am about to mention are not ways which one often thinks of the Gospel being spread, but they are ways which we women may and should spread the Gospel if we only would. You probably expect me to name such ways as being a missionary, religious education worker, Sunday School teacher, or other similar fields of service. These are, of course, very definite ways for women to spread the Gospel and there are women today who are giving their lives in some such field of service in order to advance the Kingdom of Christ. So I would not tell you anything new at all by dwelling on those methods, hence I am coming down to a common level and speak of the ways or opportunities which we who are not in active Christian service have of spreading the Gospel. All of us women cannot go into all-time service, in fact, the greater part of us cannot, yet the kind of life we live day by day either helps or hinders the cause of Christ in the circle in which we move, and among the people with whom we associate. I have often heard my father make the remark that it was a responsible thing to live in this world, for each moment of our life we were influencing someone. So, women, young and old, think for a few minutes of the ways which we who stay at home, or clerk in a store, or work on the farm, or do some other simple every day task, may help to spread the Gospel.

The first way I mention is by living a pure life. I wish it were possible for me to put into words just how important I think it is that we keep ourselves pure and clean from the habits that mar our character and cause people to lose confidence in us and respect for us. It is often hard to keep from taking part in something that other people are doing. They may laugh at us and call us narrow minded at times, but how well it pays to let them go their way, while we stand alone, if necessary, rather than do things that will cause people to be suspicious of our character. If we are instruments of God we must live above reproach. In speaking of purity I like to think of Mary, the Mother of Jesus, when she was only a girl in her teens. I am sure that no unclean thought was ever allowed to dwell in her mind, that no act unbecoming to a young girl was ever performed by her. Not because it was easy to do right then, I don't think that at all, for the world was full of sin and shame, but she desired to be pure, and so she kept herself free from the things that would bring reproach upon her name. And then when God chose a mother for His Son, He chose this pure, clean and devout Christian young woman, because she had lived a life that made her fit to train and teach the Saviour of the world in His infancy and boyhood. God does not need another young woman for the Mother of Jesus, but He does need women who try to live a pure life as Mary did, to carry on His work in the world, regardless of what we do for a living. Don't fool yourself one minute by thinking that preaching the Gospel of Christ is up entirely to those who are in definite Christian service. Every one of us is responsible for the advancement of His Kingdom whether we would like to be or not. Unless we keep ourselves pure in thought, word, and deed we misrepresent Christ entirely.

The second method I mention does not apply to all women directly, yet the entire world is more or less influenced by those to whom it does apply, and that is in the public school room. Of course there are men teachers as well, but there are more women teachers than men and I believe that a woman probably exerts a greater influence as a teacher than does a man. Whether that be true or not that's not my point, I am thinking of the wonderful opportunities we school teachers have of spreading the Gospel of Christ. Compare the time we are with the children with that of the Sunday School teacher, pastor, or even parents. Do we not do more towards building the character of the youth of today than anyone else? Yet how many of us are taking our task seriously enough? How many of our teachers today are morally fit to train and shape the lives of the youth of our land? What can we expect of boys and girls if they are taught by a girl for whom they have no respect and in whom they have no confidence? Some one has rightly said that a person has to do more than he expects of those under his leadership; so have we got to live a little bit better than we expect those whom we train to live. As teachers in the school room we should realize that we have the America of tomorrow in our care and under our influence. That we are molding character instead of teaching books. That everything we do and every word we say has its impression, whether it be good or bad, on the ones whom God has placed in the world to be the leaders and workers of tomorrow. And just as certainly as we have to present a report to our principal at the end of each month, just that sure are we going to have to give a report to Almighty God. And I do not hesitate to say that if the pews in our churches are empty on Sunday, and the mass of young people are careless and indifferent toward the church, it is because of the training they have received, and the kind of influence which has been exerted over them, in many instances. Some day, I think, the State of North Carolina, and other states as well, are going to wonder why it did not require a teacher to have an A grade character as well as an A grade certificate. The rule governing the election of teachers seems to be that in case of several applications elect the teacher holding the highest grade certificate. I believe in a teacher being capable and well-trained but that should not be the only requirement. Along with her scholarship those in authority should be sure that her examples are going to be fit for her pupils to follow, because she is with them six hours of the day, five days of the week, nine months of the year. You may say that you can't help what a person does but I say that the public gets what it demands, and the type of teacher it requires is the type it will get.

The third way I mention of how a woman may spread the Gospel, and this applies to those women who have a home, is by keeping the home what God meant for it to be and not letting your place be filled by some one else.

There are instances where it seems necessary for the mother to work out, and I make that exception, yet I do not hesitate to say that the homelife of America is being torn down. Instead of a sacred place, the home is often merely a place to eat and sleep, and it is because women are being rushed into the business world so rapidly. It matters not how richly a house is furnished, how conveniently it is arranged, nor how elaborately the table is spread at meal time, it is not a home unless a woman fills her place there. I think of a home just now where the mother and father both go to work regularly every day and the two children are left in care of a colored servant. When they get home at night the children are sleepy and ready to go to bed, so Sunday is really the only time the mother has with her children. Is not the cause of Christ being hindered because of this neglect in the home? Should not that woman, and other women in similar circumstances, stay at home with her children and teach them day by day about the love of God?

When these three things I have mentioned are neglected by us women of today, I think then that the ministers, Sunday School teachers, and other active Christian workers, have an almost hopeless task. We hear the cry in every church of the need of leaders and teachers and workers of all kinds and it is simply because we women of today are failing to hold up the moral standard of our country; we are failing to be the type of teacher needed in the school room, and women in the home are failing to make the homelife what it should be. Thus the Gospel is thrust upon the church, and the task is too great for it.

In closing I want to read a clipping entitled "Christ's Ideal Woman," and let us resolve to endeavor to make our lives measure up to this standard.

"She would be perfectly true. There would be no insincerity or deception in her. In every relation in life she would be found faithful.

"She would be perfectly pure. Not only in deed but in thought and in heart.

"She would put herself last. In her heart Christ would be on the throne and self on the cross. Self-control would take the place of self-will.

"She would be serviceable. No service would be too slight.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

That Christmas Present

The HERALD, I mean. Don't forget to send it in to Dr. McCulloch. We trust that pastors are urging this, and that they will continue to do so through this week, and at their appointments next Sunday. We should have a large number of Chrismtas present subscriptions.

Pastor's Federation

The central pastors met in their first Federation meeting, of the new conference year, at Calvary church, December 9. About thirty ministers were present, and a few ministers' wives. The meeting was helpful from every standpoint. The particular emphasis was put upon the spiritual needs of the minister and the church. Since Dr. McCulloch has written fully of the meeting in last week's HERALD, I shall not say more about it here. Still our opinion that the Pastor's Federation is highly worthwhile. The organization is being justified by each succeeding meeting. We hope to see notice soon of the meeting of the eastern and the western Federations.

Draper

December 10. The first quarterly conference of this charge was held on this date at 7:30 p. m., with ten officials present. Pastor Vickery is serving his first pastorate, and is entering upon his work here with much concern for success. He is winning his way to the hearts of the people, and a spirit of hopefulness maintains both with the pastor and the church. The church has a Sunday School and an intermediate C. E. Society, and both seem to be functioning well. We urged a Woman's Auxiliary, and our hope is that one will be organized. This church, like many others, is without an adequate financial system. We urged them to apportion the salary and budgets to the members, giving every member a definite allotment. We are sure that they will get good results from this if they will do it. And since their community is an industrial one, the members get their pay weekly, and can, therefore, make their payments to the church weekly. We urge that this plan be insisted upon and established. The pastor will make special effort on behalf of the HERALD. We trust that he may be able to secure a goodly number of subscribers. A reading church is always an interested church. We were glad to be with Draper in this conference, and we shall watch the work during the year with deep concern. The pastor had received to date on salary $41.

Why Not

December 13-14.—These two days were pleasantly spent with this charge, and we trust, with profit. The first quarterly conference was held at Love Joy on Saturday, preceded by preaching at 11 a. m. Twenty-three members of the conference were present, with all the eight churches represented but New Zion. The charge made a good record last year, and the program is shaping up well for 1931. A spirit of harmony, cooperation, and progress maintains on the work. A Woman's Auxiliary for the charge is to be organized, with circles at each church. The salary and budgets were apportioned to each church in itemized form, and these in turn are to be apportioned to the membership, each member to be given a definite allotment. The conference also endorsed the recommendation of the pastor that all churches be urged to pay monthly. Rev. J. W. Hulin was elected by the conference as Financial Promoter for the charge. The pastor had received $61 on salary, and $15 had been paid on budgets. Offerings were taken Sunday for the Home, and for annual conference purposes. The eight Sunday Schools of the charge are in normal condition, and some with signs of increasing interest. Flag Springs school is making a "harvest offering" to the Children's Home. The pastor is urging a C. E. Society at Love Joy, and he has in contemplation a weekly prayer service at Sea Grove. Fair Grove has an active C. E. Society, and there are three Aid Societies on the charge, and one missionary society. The Aid Societies contribute, also, to missions. Our Sunday appointments were at Love Joy, 11 a. m., Macedonia, 2:30 p. m., and Fair Grove at night. The attendance was good at Love Joy and Fair Grove, though not so large at Macedonia. Good attention and earnest interest marked these services. We enjoyed our visit to this charge. Pastor Neese is giving careful attention to the work, and we expect a year of happiness and progress for him and his people. Brother J. W. Hulin now lives on this charge, and is comfortably housed in his own home. Brother C. W. Saunders, pastor of Chase City and Bethesda, is also a member of this charge. We were glad to see them both and to have them in the services. Pastor Neese and his people have our thanks for kindnesses shown us while on this work.

Richland

Saturday night.—The first quarterly conference of this charge was held at this time, with ten of the officials present. The meeting was held in the new residence of Brother Trogdon, on the hard surface road three miles out from Asheboro. He has a nice home here, and a very desirable location. Progress was made on this charge last year under the leadership of Brother Trogdon, and we believe that the records will improve with this year. The pastor recommended definite financial allotments to each member; monthly offerings for the Children's Home; and a weekly prayer meeting in each church. The Sunday Schools of the charge—five—are all running normally, and one church—Gile's Chapel—has a C. E. Society. There are no women's organizations on the charge. We recommended to them a circuit auxiliary. Salary and budgets were apportioned, and stewards are to allot this to the individual members. We found here, as on Why Not charge, an encouraging attitude toward finances. We believe that a better financial system will be worked out for these churches. It would seem that this could easily be an honor roll work. The total membership allotment for salary and budgets combined is very small, being only $3.70. The pastor had received on salary to date, $11. The annual conference budget had received $5. We were impressed with the earnestness and the willingness of those present at this conference. There are larger things ahead for this charge, and it is our full confidence that this year will give proof of this prophecy. Pastor Trogdon will give thoughtful attention to the work, and will seek in every way to build it up. We are indebted to him and to his family for the kind and generous hospitality of their home.

The Christmas Offering

You will remember that we spoke of it last week. The offering is to be for annual conference purposes. People are generous-minded at the Christmas season, and expect to make offerings then. Urge upon them to pay generously to the annual conference budget; and include the small amount asked of your charge for the Gratitude Gift Deficit. It would not seem impossible for a number of churches to get these two causes out of the way through this Christmas offering.

"Merry Christmas"

Since there will be no HERALD next week, this will be our last opportunity to say "Merry Christmas" to all the churches. We trust that it may be just that for all of us—pastors and their people. And of course we mean our superannuates, the Editor, and the HERALD force. "Merry Christmas" means all of us, and all of our readers. Our prayer shall be that no untoward circumstance shall be permitted to mar for any of us the peace and the happiness of the celebration of this, the most marvelous and the most blessed of all world events—the birth of our Saviour. May it be for one and for all a season of inner peace and gladness; for "there is born unto us this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord."

"Hark! the herald angels sing,
'Glory to the New Born King';
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled!
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With the angelic host proclaim,
'Christ is born in Bethlehem'!
'Hark the herald angels sing,
Glory to the New Born King'."

Appointments

December 17.—Talk to the Ministerial Association of High Point College.

December 19.—Randolph charge in quarterly conference at Bethel church. Hour, 2:30 P. M.

December 20-21.—Mt. Pleasant charge, in appointments as previously given.

December 25.—Christmas, at home.

January 10-11.—Alamance charge. Quarterly conference at Center church on Saturday. Preaching on the charge on Sunday.

"And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasurers they presented unto him gifts; gold, frankincense, and myrrh."

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

REGARDING MANAGEMENT OF MISSIONS

EDITOR METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD:

The sentiment favoring denominational amalgamation will not down. Notwithstanding strong opposition from the older and more conservative church members, union sentiment gathers momentum as time passes. Denominational divisions are being forced off the foreign field not only by the economic situation but by the native Christians themselves. Why should those who do not know our God be taught by precept and practice that God's kingdom is divided against itself? The more forward-looking denominations recognize the situation, and either voluntarily or by force of conditions are taking action to remedy the evil.

The purpose of this communication is to recommend that the Methodist Protestant church, instead of endeavoring to support an independent mission work, attended by great financial strain, contribute the money it raises for missions to mission fund of one of the stronger mission agencies, turn over its work to such agency, strengthening the hands of those who are much better able to cope with the situation than are we. The idea is not to reduce, but increase the returns from our mission investment. E. S. WILLS.

CHRISTMAS

By F. R. Garrett

Christmas is celebrated by the Christian nations as the anniversary of the nativity of Christ, but by some of the pagans as a tradition without any great significance.

The date of Christ's birth is not definitely known, but December 25 has been observed by the Christian churches from the very earliest times. It was during the fourth century that the festival at Rome was established by Pope Julius. Before the end of the century all the Christian nations had accepted this date, and it has been observed up to the present time.

Significance

Christmas has a two-fold significance; the religious, commemorating the birth of Christ, and the social, or festive; celebrating the seasonal practices of many peoples. It is a holy day as well as a holiday, and its celebration is at times reverent and at times gay.

Early Season

During the days when the church guided the daily life of the mass of the population and furnished it with amusement, the Christmastide was a season rather than a day. Preparations for the celebration were begun by the church weeks before Christmas Day. The popular festivities began with Christmas Eve and extended to Twelfth Night, on January 6, the festival of the Magi, or the Three Wise Men from the East.

Customs

Many customs of the former celebrations are now existing, but they are modified and refined. All, or almost all, of our customs have been transplanted from Europe. Our Christmas tree comes from Germany, our Santa Claus from Holland, the Christmas stocking from Belgium or France. The "merry Christmas" was the old English greeting shouted from window to street on Christmas morning. Carol singing, the use of holly and mistletoe have been borrowed from England.

Carols

Amid so many popular customs at Christmas, there is perhaps none more charming than that of the Christmas carols, which elebrate in joyous and yet devout strains the Nativity of the Savior. This practice is as old as Christmas itself.

Christmas Decorations

As we see the Christmas colors and decorations, we forget that these too had their beginning centuries ago. The decking of churches, houses, and shops with evergreen springs from a period far anterior to the revelation of Christianity, and seems proximately to be derived from the custom prevalent during the Saturnalia of the inhabitants of Rome ornamenting their temples and dwellings with green boughs.

Gifts

The practice of giving gifts during the Christmas season had its colorful origin at the time Christ was born. The sending of cards by way of greeting and remembrance has grown up since about 1860. The custom of making presents at Christmas is derived from ancient usage, but it has become consecrated by ages.

THE HAND OF GOD

There are people who tell us that miracles do not happen. By this they generally mean events in the natural world that cannot be explained on natural grounds. As a matter of fact, such people when confronted with the innumerable instances of Divine Providence interposing in a remarkable manner in the affairs of men, simply say, "coincidence," and let it go at that. Take the following, for instance:

During the recent storms in England a radio fan sat by his fireside at Weybridge, listening to the calls of ships from the English Channel. That night the British Broadcasting Company's program did not interest him, so he tuned in on the ships. But before he could do that, he had to go out to fix his aerial, which the wind had blown down. He tuned to 600 meters to catch the ships. Presently he heard an S. O. S. call from a Russian ship in distress, and, to his astonishment, realized it was not being answered. Then he heard an odd English, "Please everybody come and help." Realizing the need the listener-in went to the telephone and called the North Foreland radio station with his news. The station had not heard the call because the messages were being jammed. The chief operator secured quiet and got in touch with the Russian ship, and tugs were sent to its aid. The listener-in who had heard the call was told that his intervention had saved the ship, and a quarter of an hour later his wireless aerial was blown down.

Was all this coincidence, my skeptical friend, or was it the hand of God? We have no doubts in our minds. Have you?—Evangelical Christian (Canada).

A SIZABLE LIST OF LOSSES

A well-to-do old lady who had become a Christian late in life was one time walking along the city street accompanied by her granddaughter. Presently a beggar accosted them. The old lady listened to his tale and then, putting her hand in her purse, took out a half-dollar and placed it in his palm.

At the next corner a woman of the Salvation Army was waiting and the old lady dropped a dollar in her kettle.

As she did so her granddaughter looked at her curiously and then said: "Grandma, I guess you have lost a good deal since you have become a Christian, haven't you?"

"Yes," said the old lady, "I have. I have lost a hasty temper, a habit of criticizing others, a tendency to spend all my spare time in social frivolities and pleasures that mean nothing. I have also lost a spirt of avarice and selfishness. Yes, indeed, I have lost a good deal."—M. E. Messenger.

OUR STORY PAGE

WHEN THANKSGIVING CAME BACK TO GREYLANDS

"Ah, dear me!" sighed Grandmother sadly. "Thanksgiving is not what it used to be at Greylands! What is the use of turkey and plum pudding for just John and me. The children are all scattered, no chance of getting them together again. We used to try it. I'd get up a dinner fit for a king, if I do say it, and we would write them all to come; and maybe two of the girls would manage it, and if the boys could get here for the day, eat their dinner and hurry off again in the evening, it would be as much as we could expect. So we gave up trying it. Memories is all we have to be thankful for, now."

"And, me," said a soft little voice at her elbow. "Aren't you thankful for me, Grandmother? Please be thankful for me."

Grandmother turned with a start and gathered a little figure into warm arms. "Of course I'm thankful for you, sweetheart! I was only thinking of the old times, and how different it is now. But you are something to be thankful for, and Grandfather and I don't forget."

"Then you've got some blessings still?"

"Oh, yes, darling," Grandmother assured the anxious little face, upraised to hers. "I only said Thanksgiving wasn't what it used to be."

Fay lifted her face for a kiss; then she slipped out of Grandmother's arms and went away to think it over.

Why was Thanksgiving at Greylands not what it used to be? She thought Thanksgiving was always the same, because there was always something to be thankful for. But Grandmother seemed to think it was hardly worth while being thankful unless you had a lot of people to feed and a dinner fit for a king. Why not Grandfather and Grandmother and Fay be just as glad and thankful, just by themselves?

Fay had not lived at Greylands very long, only since her mother, who was the youngest of the "girls" who used to gather for Thanksgiving at Greylands, had gone to another Home to live forever, and had sent her little daughter to take her place in the family gatherings. But there were no more family gatherings, Grandmother had said, and that was why she did not care about Thanksgiving Day any more. The children did not come home as they used to, and Grandfather and Grandmother had only their memories of the old happy days.

An idea came to Fay, as she sat on the topmost bar of the back gate, waiting until it was time for Grandfather to come and milk. She liked to watch him milk, and he was teaching her how. "A real farm girl she was learning to be," he would say proudly, when her slim little fingers succeeded in bringing a slender stream of milk tinkling into the pail. But Fay was thinking of something else besides milking now. She was thinking of what Grandmother had said, and wondering whether Thanksgiving might not come back to Greylands, the kind of Thanksgiving that used to be, when all the children came home for it, and Grandmother cooked a dinner fit for a king.

"I wonder if it could," mused Fay, and as she mused a little plan began to grow in her brain.

She would have to take Grandfather into her confidence, for she could not carry out her plan quite by herself, but it should be a lovely surprise for Grandmother. But the dinner. How could Grandmother be cajoled into cooking a big dinner for just the three of them. Grandfather would have to be consulted about that. So when he came out to milk, Fay climbed down and stood beside him, too full of her plan to wait. The cows did not mind talking, if you were gentle and did not make a noise and worry them.

So while he milked Buttercup, she began eagerly, "Grandfather, couldn't we have a real Thanksgiving, the way it used to be, this year?"

"Dear me, child," Grandfather made answer. "There are not enough of us for a real Thanksgiving dinner. I know Grandmother means to have a chicken, and mince pies. Won't that do?"

"Oh, Grandfather, not a bit! I want her to have a turkey, and everything. Please ask her to. And company. And may I invite the company?"

Grandfather finished milking Buttercup and turned to Pansy, the gentle, dark-eyed Jersey cow, before he answered.

"Company? What company, baby? You want some of your little school friends? But they'll have Thanksgiving dinner at their own homes, won't they? And there's nobody else."

"Oh, but there is, Grandfather. Let me tell you about my plan."

And while the milk foamed into Pansy's bucket, Fay talked as fast as her little tongue would go, and Grandfather listened.

The telling and the milking came out even. Grandfather rose just as Fay paused for breath.

"Well, well," he said slowly, "it might be managed perhaps—"

"Oh, Grandfather, I know we could. And I'll write the letters, and direct them, if you'll tell me how, and you persuade Grandmother to cook the dinner. I'll do the rest!"

Grandfather smiled at the little eager face. He liked the plan himself, and if Fay wanted to do it, he would not stand in her way. He undertook to talk Grandmother over.

"Mother, Fay and I want a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner, the kind you used to cook, and we want just as much, too. If there's too much for us to eat, there's the poor always with us. Come, now, humor the child and me, and let's have a real good time."

"It won't be the same," murmured Grandmother; but she was not proof against Grandfather's coaxing and Fay's pleading face; and she set about her preparations in good time. If she had any suspicions that more was going on than met the eye, she kept them to herself, and kept Grandfather and Fay busy helping her. The pantry was a goodly sight on the day before Thanksgiving, and Granny Morgan, who had come in to help Grandmother, declared, to Fay's delight, that it "looked just like old times, when Mis' Greymore always had such dinners for her boys and girls at Thanksgivin'."

The boys and girls were grown men and women now, but they would have appreciated that dinner just as much as they did in the old days.

When she thought Grandmother was not noticing, Fay slipped upstairs and opened the windows in the long unused rooms, made up the beds and prepared them to be occupied at short notice. She had written her letters, but no answers had come. She was glad of that. Grandmother would not guess. Thanksgiving Day was just what it ought to be, Fay thought delightedly; clear and cold and beautiful. The old farm house was clean and shining, smelling deliciously of all sorts of good things for dinner. Grandmother looked inquiringly at Fay and Grandfather after breakfast.

''Well,'' she said, ''the dinner's under way, but where's your company coming from? You haven't told me who they are, yet.''

''It's to be a surprise,'' said Fay gleefully. ''They might come on the train. May I go with you to meet them, Grandfather?''

''Why, I guess we might ride down to the station, on the off chance,'' said Grandfather carelessly.

Grandmother went to the kitchen, and presently Grandfather and Fay were driving to the station.

''Do you think Grandmother guesses?'' Fay asked anxiously.

''She hasn't said a word to me, if she does,'' returned Grandfather cautiously. ''Now, there comes the train, Fay, look out and see who gets off.''

Breathlessly they watched as the train rolled to a standstill.

Only one passenger got off, an elderly man carrying a suitcase.

''None of our folks,'' said Grandfather, trying to keep disappointment out of his voice. ''I reckon they couldn't make it, little girl, I didn't expect it much, myself, so don't go and be disappointed. We've got a good dinner, anyway. Come on, let's go home and get up an appetite for it.''

But Fay was disappointed; so dreadfully disappointed that she could not keep back the tears, and Grandfather, seeing that she could not talk, let her alone as he drove swiftly back to the farm.

But as they came in sight of the big front gate, he almost stopped the horses in surprise, for there stood two big cars beside the road, and a group of people stood in the porch. There seemed to be a good deal of kissing and hugging going on. Grandfather rubbed his eyes as if he thought they might be deceiving him, but Fay cried out in delight:

''Oh, Grandfather, don't you see? They came in their own cars. Why didn't we think of that? Uncle Tom and Uncle Theodore brought them all. And Grandmother has had the surprise after all. Let's go in, quick!''

Grandfather drove in at the big gate, and up the drive with a flourish, and he had no sooner stopped than Fay flew over the wheel like a bird and was running up the steps. The group on the porch were running to meet them by this time, and for a little while everybody was kissing everybody, and Grandmother, who had already kissed her three tall sons and two pretty daughters, got kissed all over again, and everybody wanted to hug Grandfather and Fay at once.

Then the whole story had to be told, of how Fay had written her little letters begging them to come home for an old-fashioned Thanksgiving and surprise Grandma, and how fortunate it was that they had all been able to come, and bring the children, so that instead of five, there were eleven extra persons to eat Grandmother's dinner. But she was not worried, there was plenty for all. There always was, at her dinners.

What a day it was, and how surprised and delighted ''the children'' were to find their old rooms all ready for them. They had planned to stay overnight, every one of them, ''if it will not be too much for you, mother,'' said one of the daughter-in-laws, doubtfully.

''Too much,'' said Grandmother with loving indignation. ''It just needed this to make Father and me young again, to have you all about us. It's been years since it's happened, and we were getting old just for the want of young life around us.''

''It shan't happen again that you have to spend lonely Thanksgiving days,'' declared the youngest daughter, putting her own little daughter into her mother's arms. ''Who thought of this lovely surprise?''

''Fay,'' answered Grandfather, ''and it turned out a surprise for her, too, for when none of you got off the train, I thought she would break her heart. She didn't say a word; but I declare I was as glad for her as for myself when I saw you all got here ahead of us.''

''So it was surprises all 'round,'' laughed Uncle Sam, the oldest uncle, picking up Fay for another hug and kiss.

It was a beautiful day and beautiful dinner. Grandfather expressed his thanks in a few brief but heartfelt words, before he began to carve the turkey; and after the little silence the tongues broke forth again. Everybody had so much to say, and Grandmother just sat and smiled at them all, too happy for many words.

''Were you real surprised, Grandmother? Didn't you guess a bit?'' whispered Fay, later in the day.

If Grandmother had ''guessed a little bit,'' she was not going to spoil Fay's delight in the ''surprise'' by saying so. She answered diplomatically:

''Why, I won't say I didn't see that you and Grandfather had something up your sleeves, but he never said a word to me about it, how could I guess that you could plan and carry out such a beautiful surprise?''

Fay was satisfied. She threw loving arms around Grandmother's neck.

''And the very best of it is that Thanksgiving really has come back to Greylands, Grandmother, for they are all saying that they will come back every year. Isn't that a joyful thing? And aren't you just as thankful as you used to be?''

Grandmother kissed her. ''Just as thankful, darling, because I know that my boys and girls love me just as they used to do, and I'll never say again that Thanksgiving is not what it used to be! God is good to us, as He always has been. and the memory of this Thanksgiving Day will last clear 'round to the next!''—Julia L. Glover.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By J. T. BOWMAN

DEC. 28: THINGS THIS YEAR HAS TAUGHT US

Scripture Text: Deuteronomy 8:1-6.

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—It is easy to wander. Isa. 53:6.

Tuesday—False ambitions. Matt. 20:20-28.

Wednesday—Sin is punished. Gal. 6:7, 8.

Thursday—Kindness breeds kindness. Luke 6:36-38.

Friday—Don't judge harshly. Matt. 7:1.

Saturday—Worry doesn't pay. Phil. 4:4-7.

Leader's Talk

The bumps that we get in life are helpful. How strange it may sound to some of us, but that is because we have not had many bumps, real bumps, bumps that make us forget all about the small things which looked large before. Whenever we are strong enough to come out a better man after the bump is passed, then we may or might be classed with the growing, and growing means progress.

We are going to learn of some of the "bumps of 1930" from others present in this meeting.

Suitable songs: "Just When I Need Him Most," "My Father Knows," "God Will Take Care of You," "We're Marching to Zion," "He Leadeth Me," and "I Need Thee Every Hour."

For Discussion

1. What is the greatest lesson this year has taught you?
2. Why try to recall lessons we have learned?
3. Is it a good thing for a person to take an individual inventory of himself at frequent intervals?
4. What have you learned from observing others?
5. To what extent should we forget the things that are past?
6. When is experience too costly?
7. Would you like to live this year over again?
8. Have we learned the meaning of Jesus for our present-day life?
9. Has this year taught us the importance of putting religion at the center of our lives?

Poetry

THE NEW LEAF

"The most practical, beautiful and quotable New Year's poem I know—and one which I use every year of my life in some manner," says Dr. W. L. Stidger of the following verses in his "Question Box" in the Homiletic Review (New York). He does not know the author.

He came to my desk with quivering lip,
    The lesson was done.
"Have you a new leaf for me, dear teacher?
    I have spoiled this one!"
I took his leaf, all soiled and blotted,
And gave him a new one, all unspotted,
Then into his tired heart I smiled:
    "Do better now, my Child!"

I went to the throne, with trembling heart.
    The year was done.
"Have you a new year for me, dear Master?
    I have spoiled this one!
He took my year, all soiled and blotted,
And gave me a new one, all unspotted,
Then into my tired heart He smiled:
    "Do better now, my Child!"

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

Why Not Ladies' Aid.—December 13, 7:30 p. m., at the church, Mrs. A. C. Lowdermilk and Miss Susan Lowdermilk joint hostesses. Twelve active and two honorary members were present; also a number of visitors. A Christmas program was given consisting of a song and readings: "The Origin of the Christmas Celebration," Mrs. R. L. Macon; "The Origin of the Christmas Box," Mrs. C. E. Stuart; "The Christmas Tree," Mrs. J. E. King. Next meeting is to be with Mrs. R. L. Macon, second Saturday evening in January.

Our society regrets the going away of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Auman, who now live in Asheboro, but still retain their membership in our society. They were always ready and willing to help in any kind of church work and we feel that the church suffered a loss in their going. We will welcome them back any time they come.

We have a fine group of boys and girls at Why Not and it is inspiring to be present at their C. E. meetings and see them take such an active part. You should hear them sing, too. We should encourage our boys and girls in the church work and give them something to do, for they are to be our future church leaders.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Shiloh, Randolph Charge.—Bro. Suits, our new pastor, met with us Sunday for the first time, previous appointment being filled by Rev. W. F. Ashburn. He preached an inspiring sermon on "Meditation," with I Tim. 4:15, "Meditate upon these things," as his text. He stressed the importance of meditation in our everyday acts and showed us its results. The talk was very uplifting and was enjoyed by all.

We were glad to have Mrs. Suits with us also and we're hoping that she will continue to visit us.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

CLARICE WHITAKER, Reporter.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Our pastor, Mr. Williams, this morning gave us a wonderful sermon.

We are planning to have our Christmas tree and program Friday, December 26, at 7 o'clock.

ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

Spring Church, Spring Church Charge.—Right after Sunday school we have preaching on the second and fourth Sundays; on the first Sundays our class leader conducts prayer services, and on the third Sundays our Christian Endeavorers hold their prayer service. While we were without a preacher our class leader held prayer service during our usual preaching hour.

We certainly felt a great loss when we learned that Conference had sent our pastor, Rev. A. D. Shelton, to another work. He had been with us five years and had been a great help to us in many ways. We especially enjoyed his good sermons.

We feel indeed fortunate in being able to secure Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk for our pastor this year. We have been very favorably impressed with his sermons, the way he conducts the business affairs of the church and, above all, the faith and trust he has in God. We are very sorry Mrs. Lowdermilk can't be with us often, and hope before much longer they will be living in our parsonage.

Our first quarterly conference will be held at Pleasant Hill church on Friday, January 2, at 7 o'clock.

We will present our Christmas program on Friday evening, December 26th, at 7 o'clock. Our offering will go on our General Conference budget. Hope many of you will attend. We believe our children will give a program worth while.

MRS. RUPERT M. ROBINSON, Reporter.

Asheboro.—The Philathea class was delightfully entertained in the home of Mrs. J. S. Lewis Friday evening, December 12, with Misses Enolia Presnell, Katie Belle Cagle and Helen Hayes as hostesses. After the transaction of business for the month, the guests entered the dining room, where the table was filled with Christmas packages for each "Heart Sister." In the center of the table stood a decorated miniature Christmas tree. As the names were called each one had to perform a stunt before receiving her gift. This was very interesting and caused much fun. After this the secretary read the list of the "Heart Sisters," thus revealing to each the one who had been so kind to her for the past six months. Delicious refreshments were served to the large number present. Several invited guests were present, including Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Pritchard, of Winston-Salem, as honor guests, this being the 18th anniversary of their wedded life.

Our pastor, Rev. R. C. Stubbins, delivered an inspiring and timely message Sunday morning from Matthew 25:35: "For I was anhungered." He discussed physical, mental and spiritual hunger. "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." We were favored with a beautiful solo by Mrs. W. H. Carmichael. We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael of the M. E. church worship with us and assist in the service.

At the Sunday evening service Rev. N. M. Harrison brought us a most helpful sermon on "Being Prepared," taking his discourse from the 14th chapter of Mark. The choir sang a very fitting anthem, "O, for a closer walk with God." We will be pleased to hear Mr. Harrison again.

Mrs. A. B. Copenhaver, Misses Esther Ross and Kate Hammer, of our choir, visited friends in Reidsville Sunday and attended the morning service at the M. P. church.

On next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock we will have Christmas songs, and anthems by the choir, a Christmas story by the pastor, to the children, and a short sermon. Sunday evening at 7 o'clock the choir will render their Christmas cantata, to which all are invited.

We were glad to see Mrs. O. R. Cox in the congregation Sunday morning. She is detained at home most of the time on account of the illness of her sister, Miss Mary Whiteley.

Best wishes to the Herald and all its readers for a happy Christmas.

REPORTER.

Orange Charge.—The first quarterly conference met at the Efland church Saturday. December 13th. Bro. C. H. Jones was re-elected secretary of the conference for another year. Bro. W. A. Davies was re-elected financial agent for the charge. The old board of parsonage trustees was re-elected. All other committees are practically the same as last year.

The amounts apportioned to this charge by the Annual Conference were passed on proportionately to the different churches. Plans were adopted for making a persistent effort to raise these amounts. All business of the conference was transacted harmoniously.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Pleasant Hill, Clevland Circuit.—We have started a new Conference year with renewed energy and greater ambitions. We are glad to have our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge come back to us.

Mrs. J. F. Warlick was re-elected superintendent of our Sunday school. She is very much interested in the work. If we would all do our part to help her in this great work we could have a much better Sunday school.

Our pastor will preach next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Our first quarterly conference will be at Kistlers church on Saturday, December 27. Preaching at 11 a. m., dinner will be served and the quarterly conference will be in the afternoon.

MRS. T. Z. BUMGARDNER, Reporter.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our pastor gave us two very splendid sermon yesterday. We are glad that he and his family are going to help us build up our Sunday school. Our goal is to have the best Sunday school ever. The Sunday school is going to give a short program and a treat for the small classes next Sunday afternoon.

We are sorry to report that Miss Lula Pearson was carried to Chick Springs Hospital where she is to undergo an operation. She has the sympathy and prayers of her many friends.

Mr. J. F. Compton's health is not so good at this time. We are hoping he will soon be back in his accustomed place. We also hope to see Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McClimon out soon with their young daughter.

We have just learned that Mr. Mont Brandon is dead. His family, who are members of this church, have our sympathy.

MRS. JEWELL HARRISON, Reporter.

Asheboro.—We have entered upon our new work and have been kindly received. We cannot and will not forget our friends on Forsyth charge, and wish for them the greatest success as they go forward under the leadership of the good pastor and fine preacher they now have. The work done on this charge by Rev. J. E. Pritchard furnished a foundation that is easy to build on. The writer appreciates the courtesies shown him and the helps given him by the former pastor, as they have aided him so much in getting in touch with his work and people.

Our officers and leaders seem to be well suited to the fields assigned them, and if we are not badly mistaken this is going to be a fine year's work for this charge.

We were delighted to have Rev. N. M. Harrison preach for us Sunday night. His message was deeply spiritual and warmed our hearts. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison are making their home in Asheboro for the present and are a great help to our church. Mrs. Harrison is our organist.

There are many good things we would like to write about the fine people here, but we have a good reporter who will be telling you the things that are going on in the Asheboro church. And, too, Dr. McCulloch asks for brief report. Thank you, Doctor, I concur.

R. C. STUBBINS.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our "new" preacher filled his appointment today and seemed to be at his best. He talked from the subject, "Man—What He Was, What He Is, and What He May Become." We are glad to have Bro. Lindley back with us and hope that this may be the best year that we have had together.

We were glad to receive Mrs. W. J. Talley into our church membership at this service. She is moving her membership from Grace Church, Greensboro, and having at one time been a member of our church we are very glad to welcome her back.

Our Sunday school continues to grow. We had the best attendance today we have had in some time. Plans are being made for our usual "treat" next Sunday.

Our people were delighted with the program rendered by the class from the Children's Home the first Sunday afternoon. They were served picnic supper before leaving for Asheboro.

Our Woman's Auxiliary is still active. We held a bazaar and oyster supper Thanksgiving and realized a neat sum. Our women have certainly been faithful workers.

Best wishes to the Herald and readers.

KARA ANDREW, Reporter.

Lexington.—We had 193 in Sunday school this morning; also a large crowd at the preaching services.

On Tuesday evening our first quarterly conference will be held.

Our Christmas exercises will be held on Wednesday, December 24, at 7:30 p. m., and we are planning to have an interesting program. Also we will have a Christmas tree; the offering at this service will go on the Conference budget.

On Sunday at 6:15 p. m. the Sunshine Quartette of our church rendered a splendid program over the radio from the broadcasting station in Winston-Salem. There were a number of requests for special songs wired in during the program but the time would not permit them to sing these. It is expected that the quartette will put on another program before long, as there were a number of requests for songs which they did not have time to sing. PHONSE BEAN, Reporter.

Fairfield Church, Guilford Circuit.—Funeral services were held at Fairfield for the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Ferell. He was a victim of scarlet fever. He suffered three or four weeks. Rev. E. O. Peeler and Rev. E. W. Jones had charge of the services. Interment was made in the church cemetery. A beautiful floral contribution was made.

Dallas Llewallen, small son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Llewallen, died at the home of his parents last Thursday after being ill 25 days with pneumonia. His funeral services were also conducted at Fairfield. Rev. E. O. Peeler had charge of the services while interment was made in the church cemetery. Mrs. Mendenhall and Miss Davis, teachers of the Allen Jay School, sang a special number, while the flower-bearers were pupils of the same school. There was also a beautiful floral display at his funeral. Large crowds attended these services.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones' baby has been ill for the past week with stomach trouble, but is reported as being improved.

Mrs. Arthur Nelson's small child has just recovered from scarlet fever.

Richard Cashatt, small son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cashatt, is on the road to recovery from a severe attack of diphtheria and pneumonia.

Duncan Bryant is said to be recovering from an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy, from which he has suffered some six or seven weeks.

The Sunday school is planning to have a Christmas entertainment and in the meantime treat the whole school.

J. VAN CASHATT, Reporter.

Mt. Hermon, Mt. Hermon Charge.—Rev. J. Elwood Carroll has started his fifth year on this charge. He has the courage and zeal to do much. One of his goals for this year is to collect every cent of every claim. We hope he reaches his goal.

The first Sunday afternoon we had a good service. Our president, Dr. S. W. Taylor, preached from the parable of the loaves and fishes. The leading thought was Jesus is just as ready to help us surmount difficulties as He was then. Dr. Taylor urged the members to co-operate with the pastor and help make Mt. Hermon an honor roll church. We were glad to have part of Friendship, Belmont and Cedar Cliff worship with us.

Part of our members pay monthly; our pastor is trying to get all members to pledge and pay every month.

The Sunday school will have a Christmas tree and a short program on Christmas Eve.

REPORTER.

Antioch, Mecklenburg Charge.—Our pastor last Sunday preached a fine sermon. We like Bro. Joyner very much and we hope to have a successful year.

The various church officers for the new year were elected.

Our first quarterly meeting will be held at our new sister church, New Hope, on next Saturday, December 20, at 2 o'clock. Hope there will be a full representation from each church, that we may get lined up properly for the work.

We are very sorry our pastor's little girl is sick and has been for some time. Hope she will soon be well.

A merry Christmas to the Herald's many readers.

MRS. MAE MATTHEWS, Reporter.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge—We are very glad to have Mr. Joyner with us another year.

Mrs. Joyner and daughter, Glenna, are spending some time in Long Island with Mrs. Joyner's mother. Glenna, who has been sick for some time, is under the care of the family doctor of that place.

Our Sunday school has been reorganized and we feel that everyone is pleased with the officers and teachers.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met with Mrs. J. E. Hartis Thursday afternoon, December 4, and reorganized. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. B. Furr, January 1.

Let us all work together for a better Sunday school and society during this year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Garmon have moved to Midland. We are very sorry to see them leave. We will miss them in our church. We hope they will visit us as often as possible.

REPORTER.

Fountain Place.—This church took the pastor and family by complete surprise Wednesday evening, December 3rd. We had finished with the work of the first quarterly conference and we were all talking over the Christmas pageant and I was told by the superintendent that all who had not enlisted might remain and Miss Lena Isley asked me to hurry on over to the parsonage, that she wanted to see Mrs. Bethea, and hurry on home. Then when I got in she said, "Take off your overcoat, Mr. Bethea, and make yourself at home," and her hurry all seemed to be over. I wondered what she meant.

The next thing folks began coming in with boxes and packages, one man demanding that I show him where to put his box, for it was heavy. Then they were shown the dining room, since it seemed that the attack was on and there was nowhere else to put such weapons of war.

Well, this writer was speechless. I just said, "Thank you, folks," and by that time they were leaving to let us take stock, I guess, and count the casualties. Well, they were many. Not a name given, so we had to just try and remember who was here and think of them without being sure who brought one article or another.

This company of folks all seemed happy and of course the more we looked the better we enjoyed it and the enjoyments are still lasting and will for many days to come yet, for there are many things that cannot be removed only as the appetite continues to sharpen.

Thank you, good people. This helps the larder much, but the spirit behind it helps the soul more. God bless every giver.

N. G. BETHEA.

Welch Memorial.—We have been badly disorganized ever since the Annual Conference due to the breaking down of the heating plant; despite this we have had good congregations the two Sundays since the new plant was installed, and the Sunday school went over the 200-mark last Sunday.

Our first quarterly conference was held last Wednesday night with a very good attendance. The business was dispatched with a spirit of good fellowship; some changes were made in the financial system, and other plans laid that we hope to have good results from.

The Workers' Council met Thursday night; many suggestions were made in reference to the work of the Sunday school.

Our C. E. Societies are picking up again; we have a senior and a junior C. E. society, and they are doing good work. We have a fine set of young people here, and they are very busy at this time getting ready for the Christmas program. They are giving a play in which there are about 16 characters in the caste; this will be put on Sunday night; then on Christmas Eve night the children will be given a treat of fruits, etc., by the adult classes.

The parsonage trustees and the Ladies' Aid are still working on improvements in the parsonage; we hope to be through by Christmas and get straightened out.

The pantry has had some improvements in which many of the church members and friends took part. We can say to our mind, Take thine ease, thou hast much goods laid up for many days. The fine spirit shown and the abundance of things brought would have made it easy for me to shut my eyes and imagine I was in Albemarle. I didn't even know all the people who came; I could not mention them all nor all they brought for lack of space, but the good Father in heaven knows them all, and He alone is able to reward them as I would like to.

J. R. ANDERSON, Pastor.

First Church, Burlington—Our work is moving forward very satisfactorily. Rev. Mr. Paschal and Mrs. Paschal are entering this work very enthusiastically and hopefully. Let each member fall in line and do their best along with the pastor.

Attendance in the Sunday school today was 313, showing an increase of 14 over last Sunday's record. The offering amounted to $19.84.

Our pastor brought very inspiring messages at both the morning and evening preaching services today with good congregations. The interest seems excellent and we trust that the already large attendance will increase from time to time.

We received one new member last Sunday in the person of Mr. B. S. Stack, from Grace church, Greensboro, N. C. Mr. Stack has been living in this city for a number of years and recently decided to cast his lot with us. We hope that others who have their membership out of town will come with us.

The Baraca class held its annual banquet and election of officers on last Tuesday night from 7:30 to 10 o'clock in the hut. About 50 members and visitors were present and the supper, consisting of oysters, fried and stewed, ham sandwiches with celery and pickles, and cherry pie and coffee was served by the ladies of the church. After the feast the business session of the class was entered into with Mr. W. E. Smith, president, in the chair. Among the items of business attended to were election of the following officers: W. E. Smith, president (re-election); Arthur Wagoner, secretary; B. S. Stack, treasurer; C. C. Lindley, teacher (re-election), and assistant secretaries, presidents, and teachers. Another important matter of business was a vote to take care of one orphan boy at the M. P. Children's Home of High Point, N. C. This occasion was enjoyed by all present and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the ladies for the splendid supper served.

The Christmas program will be given next Sunday at the evening service and, by vote taken today, it was requested that the offering at that service go to the Annual Conference budget.

Here's wishing the Herald and all the readers a very happy Christmas and prosperous New Year.

L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Winston, First.—Our very efficient reporter has done her work so well that it has not been necessary for me to write much so far; however, there are a few things I would like to mention. One thing is the very acceptable pounding which we received one evening just after we came here. While sitting in our cozy room we heard footsteps on the porch and on going to the door found a real delegation of people ready to come in. They soon found their way to the kitchen and soon the table was groaning under the load. Then they came to the living room and engaged in conversation for a short while. We greatly appreciate this expression of friendliness on the part of the people and trust we may be able to match their hospitality and good will by the right kind of service.

Our first quarterly conference was held on Tuesday evening of last week, and it was both harmonious and progressive. Brother L. P. Burns was re-elected secretary. The business called for by the discipline was taken up and disposed of. The pastor made the following recommendations, which were adopted with enthusiasm:

1. Two hundred in Sunday school each Sunday.
2. Fifty new church members for the year.
3. Every member contributing.
4. The budget paid in full by October 20.
5. One-twelfth of budget paid monthly.
6. Every member at church once or more each Sunday.
7. A church paper in every home.
8. Our church the most hospitable church in the city.

It will be difficult to realize all of these, but it will at least give us something to work for.

Mrs. Pritchard is accompanying me on the first go-around of visiting and we are making a desperate effort to get into the homes of all our people just as early as possible. Within a couple more weeks we hope to reach this goal. Wherever we have gone we have been impressed with the hospitality of our people.

Next Sunday morning we will have the Christmas sermon and Christmas music and at the evening hour will have a Christmas pageant under the auspices of the Sunday school.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

West Forsyth. Our services at Tabernacle and Union Hill Sunday were well attended. After the service at Union Hill church the pastor and family went to the splendid home of Bro. J. T. Smitherman and sisters, Misses Nancy and Millie Smitherman, at East Bend, by previous invitation. Here we enjoyed a brief visit and a sumptuous supper.

Christmas programs are being prepared at four of the churches to be rendered during Christmas week.

The pastor conducted burial services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blackburn, of Winston-Salem, at Pleasant Hill church cemetery Wednesday afternoon of last week. The mother of the child is a member of Pleasant Hill church.

The pastor and family wish to acknowledge appropriate gifts from the following since our last report: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sprinkle, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Petree, of Pleasant Hill church; Mr. J. T. Smitherman and sisters, Misses Nancy and Millie Smitherman, of Baltimore church; Mrs. J. O. Patterson, of Stony Knoll church. We are thankful for all of these gifts.

The first quarterly conference was held at Tabernacle church last Saturday. The preaching service was fairly well attended and a very helpful sermon was delivered by Rev. I. W. Gerringer, of the Forsyth charge. He discussed the qualifications of church officers and the high honor of holding office in the church. A splendid dinner, featured by excellent food and an abundance of it, was enjoyed at the church during the noon recess. The business of the conference was transacted at the afternoon meeting in a spirit of harmony. The pastor made his report and in it made recommendations, one of which was that the conference go on record as favoring the adoption of the financial system as provided in the Methodist Protestant Discipline. The report was adopted by a unanimous vote of the conference. Bro. J. H. Speas, who has served as secretary of the quarterly conference for a number of years, was re-elected. The advisory and examination committees were also re-elected with the exception of a change of one member of the advisory committee. Excellent reports were made by Sunday school superintendents present. Four of the churches were represented, and two churches, Harmony Grove and Union Hill, were not represented in the attendance.

Our next regular service will be at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday morning. The Christmas cantata, which is being prepared, will be rendered at this church next Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Forsyth Charge.—Moving time has come and passed and we are now comfortably and pleasantly located in the Maple Springs parsonage one and a half miles outside the Winston-Salem city limits.

In making this first report from the Forsyth Charge I think I might be permitted to say a word about the work and the good people of Burlington. Three of the most pleasant and most fruitful years of my ministry were spent at Burlington. Under the blessing of God, and by the co-operation of the good people of First Church, Burlington, we were able to secure even better than normal results under what everybody acknowledges were sub-normal conditions. The records show this statement to be true to facts. This being true, certainly we ought to be grateful and contented.

All of our friends and co-workers in Burlington have our sincere thanks for their co-operation and for all personal favors. We shall not forget the many expressions of appreciation that came to us while there and when leaving. May God richly bless all those whom it was our privilege and joy under the blessing of God to receive into membership while there, and not only those, but all who are sincerely endeavoring to do the Lord's work. It is out of the question for Mrs. Gerringer and myself to write to all our friends in Burlington, but we shall not forget them. And may you love your new pastor and his wife and give them your hearty co-operation.

We are now among the finest of people. We have been most cordially received. The people seem interested and earnest in the Master's work. On our arrival late Tuesday evening of November 18th we found the parsonage warm and inviting, with a most appetizing meal awaiting us, with other good things in the pantry. Mrs. Ira W. Baity and Mrs. Warren were here to welcome us, the other ladies who had assisted in making our coming pleasant having gone home because of the lateness of the hour. Since that first day a number of other good things have been added to our pantry supply. We will not take space to name the articles or the givers, for we have thanked them all in person already for their thoughtfulness. We take these favors as an expression of the people's interest in the Lord's work and their appreciation of their pastor. We certainly do thank all for their kindness.

The largest number, I think, that I have ever seen in a quarterly conference attended the first quarterly conference which met in the Maple Springs church December 8th at 7:30 p. m. The regular business of the meeting was transacted. Then to the pastor's surprise, but to his gratification, the conference voted to increase the salary two hundred dollars and to pay his moving expenses. Brethren, you certainly have our thanks for this.

I have made two rounds to all the churches since conference and have received the following members: Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Cole and their son and daughter at Mt. Carmel, Mrs. Gerringer and three children at Maple Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Livengood at Union Ridge.

Christmas programs are being prepared at Maple Springs, Mt. Carmel, Union Ridge, and Oak Grove. Hickory Ridge will give the children a treat.

I am looking forward to a happy stay with God's people on this charge, and I trust that my ministry may be fruitful for the kingdom.

With the greetings of the season to all former parishioners, and to those over whom I now have spiritual oversight, to my fellow-pastors, and all friends, I am

Yours in Christian fellowship and service,
L. W. GERRINGER.
Winston-Salem, N. C., Route 2.

Ebenezer, Greensville Circuit—Our new pastor, Rev. R. L. Hethcox, filled his appointment Sunday morning with a large attendance. We feel very fortunate that conference sent us such a fine speaker.

Our Sunday school is moving along fine under the leadership of J. B. Clements, superintendent. It seems the people around Ebenezer have gotten interested in Sunday school.

We are planning to have a Christmas program December 29th.

LILLIE MOORE, Reporter.

Laurel Hill.—Mr. A. A. Sain has been absent two Sundays due to sickness. The Sunday school wishes him a speedy recovery.

On December 24 our Sunday school will render a short Christmas program, then each one will turn his eyes to the gifts, which will come from the beautiful Christmas tree.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Mr. Morgan preached the first sermon for the conference year at our church. It was an effective sermon. Mr. Morgan has returned to us this makes the eighth year. We were all very glad and thankful when we learned that God had permitted our good pastor to return. May God bless us all together and may we have a good year together.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Knob Creek on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in this month.

Mesdames Zuda Willis and Mandy Hull were appointed to make a collection of different articles for the orphan children.

Some new song-books have been bought for our choir.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Littleton Charge.—We have met with the good people of this charge at all the churches but one. Everywhere we have gone the people have given us a cordial welcome. We have become acquainted with quite a few of the members of the different churches, and it sems that to know them is to love them. We are looking forward with hopeful hearts for a successful year at this place, in the building up of the kingdom of God. Let's pray for each other and co operate in this work, for "In unity there is strength."

Several of the members have given us good things to eat, whereof we are glad. Thank you, one and all.

We wish to express our sympathy to Mrs. G. A. Hawkins and relatives in the loss of her husband. We are also sorry to note that Mr. Bill Hawkins has been very ill for the last few days.

Our first quarterly conference will be held in Littleton church on Saturday before the second Sunday in January at 11 o'clock. Let's have a goodly number present. There will be quite a bit of business to transact and plans to make for the work of this year.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

P. E. BINGHAM, Pastor.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman Charge.—Attendance at Sunday school is improving, having had 118 present last Sunday. The regular prayer meeting Wednesday before Thanksgiving to the townspeople who are in need. Rev. A large quantity of food was placed upon the altar to be distributed on Thanksgiving morning to the townspeopl who are in need. Rev. J. H. Brendall, Jr., of the local Methodist church, led the service, which was enjoyed by all present. The absent ones missed a treat.

The first quarterly conference was held at Level Cross December 6th. On Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. T. A. Williams, brought us his second message of the new year. His messages are always filled with hope and good cheer. We are truly glad to have him with us for at least one more year.

Notwithstanding the present financial depression, we consider last year one of the most successful years in the history of our church. Never in the memory of the writer has there been such loyal co-operation on the part of both pastor and people. This should be encouraging to us and prompt us to do bigger and better things.

REPORTER.

Hebron, Orange Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. B. M. Williams, delivered an inspiring and timely message to a large congregation Sunday afternoon. We wish that we could share our pastor's sermon with every one who was not in a church on this day. We certainly feel grateful to the Conference for sending such a wonderful worker to our charge. A preacher can't do his best unless we do our part, be ready to do anything he calls on us to do. I hope we will all work and pray as we have never done before.

A Christmas tree service is being planned for Christmas Eve night. At this time an offering will be taken for the North Carolina work. Everyone is invited to attend this service.

The Sunday school is still holding much interest, although not as much as we would like to see. May the Lord help us to carry on this part of His work in the best way possible, so that much good may be accomplished.

NANNIE McADAMS, Reporter.

Oak Grove, Forsyth.—Although our Sunday school was in the afternoon Sunday we had a very good attendance in spite of the sickness among our members. Mr. Gerringer was with us at 3 o'clock and preached a wonderful sermon.

We had visitors from King , among which were the two, Mr. and Mrs. Spainhowers and Mrs. J. E. Styres, of Rural Hall.

It has been decided that we have our preaching on each second Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Our stewards will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith Tuesday night, December 16, to plan how to raise the church funds. We are looking forward for a prosperous year in this work.

We are planning to have our Christmas program as usual December 24, and as Christmas draws near we are hoping that everybody will keep in a good spirit and mood during the holidays.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—On Sunday, December 7th, the Junior church elected officers just as their elders do, as follow: Trustees, Billy Vance, Julia Coe, Alson Gray, Reginald Hinshaw, Jean Rankin; ushers, Alson Gray, G. I. Humphreys, Jr., W. C. Koonce, Jr., Milton Krieger, Robert Rue, Billy Foister, Yancey Cecil, Joseph Farmer, and Joseph Gray; treasurer, Robert Rankin; secretary, Letha Krieger; pianist, Sue Everhart; Sunshine committee, Helen Cecil, Margaret Dixon and Robert Rankin.

At the morning hour for worship the pastor delivered a very impressive sermon on a favorite text from Micah 6:8, "For what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God," which seems to express the meaning of the Christian life in a nut-shell .He called it "The Golden Mean of Christianity." He said in part: The object of all education is to teach us to see things in their proper light; but the highest education, if unconsecrated or directed by selfishness, cannot redeem humanity. A sense of justice compels us to give to every man his just dues. It means simply a life of integrity. George Bernard Shaw was right when he asid: "Since everything else has failed, let's try Christianity." Its justice will bring better times. Those who love mercy possess the grace of kindness. Shakespeare said that the greatest attribute of Heaven is mercy. In the Golden Rule lies the only cure for the many ills of today. Duty may teach us to do things well, but love does them beautifully. In the third place, this text magnifies the grace of humility. The new version gives it: "Humble thyself to walk with God." Our prayers and sacrifice must go with charity, and this lesson we need to learn at this approaching season of Christmas.

At the 5o'clock Vesper service the message was brought by the minister on "The Grinding of the Mills of God."

The Wednesday evening supper meeting will be the last of the series prior to the holidays. Mrs. Snipes' Circle No. 8 will have charge of the tables and make coffee, and Mr. Farmer will discuss the question, "What Will Satisfy Us When We Awake?"

It is announced that the Christmas entertainment will be held Tuesday evening, December 23rd.

High Point College will close Thursday, December 18, for the Christmas recess, and will open to resume classes January 2nd. All out-of-town students will go to their homes, and the dormitories will be closed. The city schools will begin the holidays Friday, December 19th.

Our neighboring church, the First Baptist, caught on fire for the second time in two weeks last Sunday afternoon and considerable damage was done to the office and wood-work of the Sabbath school rooms. Several valuable old records were consumed, and it is puzzling to know how the fire originated. We sympathize with our sister denomination in this loss.

Mrs. W. P. Pickett returned home last Saturday from a visit to her sisters, Mrs. J. J. Eads and Miss Mary Eller at Mount Airy.

Miss Dorothy Rankin, who is a student this year at Western Maryland College, is expected home Saturday for the Christmas holidays.

"The meanest man on earth" has been found after a long search, but not caught. On a night last week a thief visited the hen-house at the Children's Home, and relieved it of 10 fine hens, but fortunately 190 were left.

Best wishes for a joyous Christmas season to the editor, Dr. McCulloch, and all readers of the Herald, and may the new year bring much happiness and prosperity.

Mt. Hermon, Creswell Circuit.—Again first Sunday morning our pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell, rendered a delightful sermon entitled "The Cross;" also Sunday p. m. he preached a sermon to young people with his topic as "Remember Now Thy Creator in the Days of Thy Youth."

We are sorry to report the illness of one of our elderly church brethren, Mr. Richard Davenport, who has been confined to his bed some time with paralysis.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its monthly meeting last Thursday p. m. at the church and we were glad to have with us Miss Matilda Alexander from the M. P. church of Creswell to make a talk on the work of the Auxiliary, and we feel greatly benefited thereby.

Best wishes to all.

IDA S. AMBROSE, Reporter.

Liberty-Siler City.—We have been returned to this charge for another year and all the appointments have been filled since our return.

The first quarterly conference met at Siler City Wednesday evening, December 10th, with a good attendance from each church. The business of the conference was transacted harmoniously. We are hoping and praying for the best year in the history of this charge.

On Thursday evening, December 11, quite a large number of our people from Siler City and Liberty got together and visited the parsonage with a generous pounding, for which the pastor and family are profoundly grateful. We could not find words then and have not found them since to express our thanks for such deeds of kindness and tokens of appreciation.

J. D. WILLIAMS.

Friendship.—This is Station FCBR broadcasting: The new pastor speaking. Well, we are now located in the fine parsonage at Friendship church, on a splendid paved road, No. 74, between Albemarle and Concord, N. C., being four miles west of Albemarle. FCBR means Friendship Church Beside the Road; here we have a good church building, and right beside the church we have a fine seven-room modern parsonage with electric lights. The Ladies' Aid Society is completing the furnishing of this house in a splendid day.

Thanksgiving day was a good day with us; we had services at the church at 6:30 p. m. and after the services we were surprised to learn that the congregation was not leaving the church as usual after the services but were going right into the parsonage. Well! It proved to be a real old-fashioned pounding; these good folks placed enough good things to eat in our pantry to last a long time. We have already assured these people that we appreciate their great kindness. Our Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home was made and will be reported by Bro. Dixon.

Our Ladies' Aid Society is serving a Friendship Supper this week Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harkey; a fine fellowship is expected.

We are beginning a new building here; a hut on the back of our church lot; this is planned to serve the church in its social program and also to be used for classrooms for our Sunday school. We have a fine superintendent for our Sunday school, Bro. J. H. Snotherly, who is a regular progressive man. We will have our Christmas tree and program by the children next Wednesday night.

We have not and we shall never forget the many kindnesses shown us by the people of Fairview and South Winston; they are on our prayer list and shall remain there for a long time.

O. B. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Almemarle, N. C., R. F. D. No. 3.

Porter.—Our new pastor, Rev. O. B. Williams, has filled two appointments here each time with inspiring sermons. We feel grateful indeed to Conference for sending Rev. Mr. Williams our way. Everyone seems well pleased and we feel that we have only to work and co-operate with Mr. Williams to make this the greatest year in the history of our church, and we most heartily welcome both him and Mrs. Williams into our midst.

The first quarterly conference will be held next Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock; every official member is urged to be present in order to get lined up for this year's work.

MRS. W. T. BRASWELL.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Circuit.—Sunday morning our new pastor, Rev. P. E. Bingham, preached his first sermon for us.

The third Sunday night at 7 o'clock he said he might bring to us the message, "The Coming of Jesus." We are very proud of our young pastor and wife. Christmas is almost here. We should think more about "The Coming of Jesus." We may give gifts to each other at Christmas but just think all have one just like Jesus. He came into the world as a gift. When our eyes are closed on earth on Resurrection day we will awake in a beautiful home on the other shore if we only accept Him.

We are planning to have a Christmas tree and program.

We are very proud of Miss Gaynelle Greene organizing a Bible class in our church.

The C. E. Society met Sunday p. m. Circle No. 2, leader, Mr. Leo Pittard, gave a program. They are planning to have a play as soon as they learn it for literary and social benefit.

The first quarterly conference will meet Saturday before the second Sunday in January at Littleton.

Sorry to report Mr. Billy Hawkins is very ill.

MRS. C. H. HAWINS, Reporter.

Shiloh Charge.—The new pastor and family have received a hearty welcome at all the churches. The new year has started off fine, and we are hoping for a good year's work. We are planning and praying for a better one than last, although we had a good year last; every church paid both budgets, so I think that was fine for the year. The depression is still on us; let us pray that it may be lifted.

Shiloh church has made a fine start in a substantial way; on last fifth Sunday they seemed to be very anxious for us to be there, so we went, and who do you think? During the Sunday school hour, or some time (I don't know when, for they acted just like Santa Claus) they just loaded our car full of good things to eat—so full that we had to beat our way back home and Bro. Protus Koonts had to bring us; so you know that car looked good. That is not all; the week before Bro. Ed Waitman came over with a hundred-pound sack of flour and Bro. Jeff Berrier sent us nearly half of a hog. Last week he sent us another supply of fresh meats, and Bro. Jesse Evans a nice box of fresh meat; so you see we are living fine.

We can't help but love these good folks, for they are good to us. And we are glad to have the privilege of serving them for another year.

All the churches are planning to give Christmas programs, so we are looking for a good Christmas.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

R. L. TROXLER, Pastor.

English Street.—We have met all appointments on this new charge since Conference. Our first quarterly conference was held at Midway with President Taylor in the chair. We are very favorably impressed with the Midway and Shady Grove congregations. We see great possibilities for the Midway church. Located as it is on the Greensboro highway which is rapidly developing by the building of beautiful homes all along the highway, we see no reason why this church should not soon become one of our leading churches. We preach at this church the first and third Sundays at 11 a. m.

Our congregation at Shady Grove is small, but we have here some of our best and most loyal Methodist Protestants. This community was the home of Dr. Lineberry, who was one of the great pioneer Methodist Protestant preachers of his day. Three of his sons are living in the community, and we were most pleasantly entertained in the home of one of them, Bro. C. C. Lineberry, last Saturday night.

English Street has lost three of her 11 o'clock appointments, yet things are moving smoothly and everybody is working harmoniously. The Sunday school is increasing in interest and attendance. Superintendent Robbins is doing a fine work and makes a superintendent that knows no defeat in his undertakings. His greatest problem now is to find room for all who attend. The youngmen's class has grown from a very few to over 30, while the young ladies' class has a membership of 25 or more. The Primary and Intermediate departments, under the leadership of Mrs. Reynolds, are crowded to such an extent that the work is greatly retarded. In short, all the teachers are doing good work, but could do better if we had more room. The field in this part of the city "is already white unto the harvest." Many more could be brought into the Sunday school if we had proper accommodations. Some of the handicaps at this church have been removed, but not all.

We can not close this article without reference to our Ladies' Aid and C. E. Societies. The ladies made a most enviable record last year, and they are now starting off the new year with equal zeal for even greater accomplishments for this year. The C. E. Society, under the leadership of Miss Kathleen Embler, is entering upon greater fields of service. The pastor, and the entire active membership of the church appreciate most truly this band of young folks who enter so heartily into the work of this organization. A Christmas program is being prepared and the children will render it Tuesday night.

GEO. L. REYNOLDS.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Our superintendent, Mr. Arrington, could not be with us Sunday on account of the death of his wife's mother. They have our sympathy in this hour of sorrow.

The Sunday school is planning to give a Christmas entertainment.

At the evening hour of service Sunday, our pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, brought to us a very impressive sermon. His subject was, "Christ, the Unspeakable Gift." Christ was described as "the saving portion of the divine intelligence entering into our common humanity, redeeming man from sin and becoming the Head of a new race, leading toward a new world order after the mind of Christ."

We were glad to have Rev. E. E. Shoe, pastor of the Baptist church, worship with us in this service. He led in the evening prayer.

At this service Miss Mildred Sawyer, a member of the Hollister school faculty, sang a beautiful solo. We enjoyed hearing Miss Sawyer sing, and we hope to have her to sing again for us soon.

The first quarterly conference will convene at Union church on Friday afternoon, December 19. It is urged that all the official members be present, as this is a very important meeting.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville.—We are very glad indeed to welcome Bro. Cowan and his faithful companion in his new work. He on last Sunday brought to us an able and inspiring message, using as a text these words: "Go, stand and speak in the temple all the words of this life." Acts 5:20.

We also enjoyed having Mrs. Cowan teach a S. S. class for us.

At the close of the service the officers were lected for the ensuing year.

It was agreed that an offering be taken each Sunday on pastor's salary.

We are hoping that this will be a splendid year and that all churches will co-operate faithfully.

To all Herald readers a Merry Christmas.

LOUISE CHEEK, Reporter.

Bethesda, Halifax Circuit.—Mr. Fogleman gave us another of his good sermons yesterday—deep and thoughtful. Uusing the text, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" he emphasized the idea of God's love and care for the individual as well as for mankind. The following striking points were brought out: 1.Man is a thinker. 2. Man a dreamer. 3. Man a builder. 4. Man a lover. 5. Man a sinner. Without God his thoughts are narrow and selfish, his dreams empty and futile, his building in vain, his love destructive and debasing, and as a sinner he is lost and undone. With God his thought become noble and beneficent, his dreams real and glorious, his building purposeful and for eternity, his love unifies and glorifies all human endeavor. And with God, in Christ, he finds forgiveness and adoption, leading to a redeemed personality. Thus God finds in man both present and potential worth. Mr. Fogleman's talks show experience with life and a knowledge of men and events that is more than theoretical.

He and Mrs. Fogleman seem to be well-liked, and we are glad to have them back.

Church officers for the ensuing year have been elected.

The Ladies' Aid, or Missionary Society, though small, continues active, with Mrs. Horace Mitchell as president. They meet this week with Mrs. F. M. Taylor.

The S. S. is very small, but the faithful few are working hard to keep things going.

An epidemic of mumps in this section has caused considerable trouble in our school—Aurelian Springs. Some have been quite sick with it.

ATTENTION, PASTORS OF WESTERN DISTRICT

The next meeting of the Pastors' Association of the Western District will be held on Monday, December 29th, at First Church, Charlotte, N. C.

A program is being set up that will, I trust, be helpful and interesting as well.

Dr. Andrews and his good women at Charlotte offer to serve us dinner at 50 cents per dinner on that day. In order for them to know how many dinners to prepare let each pastor of the district drop Dr. Andrews a card, thus notifying him of their attendance. Dinner will be prepared for those so notifying him. His address is Central Ave.

The above notice is addressed to the following brethren who comprise the district: G. B. Ferree, R. L. Troxler, G. C. Isley, Robert Short, E. A. Bingham and all others lying south and west including Broom, Henderson,

Come, come one, come all.

tremities.

The program will begin at 10:30 a. m. with a short afternoon session.

Come, come, one, come all.

G. H. HENDRY, Chairman.

—Little Judge Lindsey (physicall small and some say morally stunted) jumped on a table in a New York church last Sunday to reply to Bishop Manning of the Episcopalian church. He was at once seized by members of the congregation and hustled out of the church. He claimed that the bishop had done him grave injustice in his remarks and claimed the right to reply.

This gives us a very fine showing again this week. Please look up the last two or three copies of the Herald and look carefully over the above report, and note how splendidly our friends from other conferences are helping us out this time.

We sincerely thank every one who has helped, or who is going to help in any way.

We have paid about $2,500 on back bills since conference. That lightens our hearts more than you can know. And yet there are other bills which ought to be paid. You are going to keep helping, and we thank you.

We are thankful for all this help, and for the thoughtfulness which prompted the sending of it to this Home.

May the Dear Father bless and keep and prosper all those who have remembered these little ones, and all those whose minds are turned this way and who would so gladly help. We have already received word of other packages and other checks which are yet to come.

A happy Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year to all His children everywhere.

Good cheer, and great joy to all.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON.

Calvary church was entertained last Sunday night by Dr. and Mrs. Dixon and some of the inmates of the Children's Home. The program in its presentation showed that the children of the Home are being well trained as well as clothed and fed. The announcement of their coming brought out a greatly increased attendance.

WANTED

The printers of THE HERALD can use several pounds of soft cotton rags. Must be clean and of good size, as small scraps are not acceptable. Bring us your surplus rags and convert them into cash. McCulloch & Swain, Asheboro Street at Trinity, Greensboro, N. C.

WANTED—We need at least five bushels of the old-time multiplying onions for planting on the Children's Home farm. If anyone knows where we can secure them, please let us know, and at what price. Thank you. A. G. Dixon, M. P. Children's Home, High Point, N. C.

WANTED—If you haven't bushels of the old-time multiplying onions and can send us any quantity, or tell us where to get them, please do so at once. We can't get any and we need so badly to plant some right away. Thank you. A. G. Dixon.

To all Churches and Sunday schools that are going to paint, we will give 10% discount until Dec. 31, 1930. Inside paint from $2.25 to $3.00 per gallon. Outside paint from $2.50 to $3.50 per gallon. Prepaid to station nearest you. Color sent on request. We handle a product made in Carolina. D. A. McLaurin, Concord, N. C. tf

We invite you to call and see us when you visit our city. A cordial welcome awaits you.
